OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—Henceforth all British subjects, without exception, must secure passports before entering England, Scotland, or Ireland. A despatch conveying this important information was received by the Governor-General from Bonar Law, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

BELIEVE ROUMANIA WILL YIELD.

LONDON, Nov. 26. Even if Roumania should not join the Allies, it is believed here to-day that the Czar's concentration of his force, said to be 250,000 strong, at Ismail and Reni, on the Russian side of the Danube, had disposed of any possibility that the Bucharest Government will declare for the Central Powers. It has been known that the Roumanians feared any move on their part which seemed to favour the Entente group would be followed by such an invasion of their country as Belgium and Serbia have experienced.

Strong pressure is being put on King Ferdinand's Government to authorize the Russian's passage across its territory to the Bulgarian and Serbian frontiers.

The Czar's reported pledge to the Serb Premier to have his soldiers in Bulgaria in a week is taken as meaning that he has good reason for believing Roumania will yield.

KITCHENER IN ROME.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A News Agency despatch says Lord Kitchener, British Secretary of War, is in Rome, and has arranged for conferences with the Government and King Victor Emmanuel immediately.

SELF-SACRIFICING PETERBORO' WOMEN FOREGO ALLOWANCE

TWO NOTEWORTHY CASES

Reference has been made in the local papers to the fact that a lady at Bethany, the dependent relative of a Canadian soldier, had voluntarily relinquished her claim for an allowance from the Patriotic Fund Every credit is due this lady, and it is to her honour that she has asked that the sum be apportioned to some other possibly more in need.

It is quite possible that in this broad land we have very many just such women who are self-sacrificing in aid of the cause and the men at the front. Peterborough can refer to two similar instances, now that the ice has been broken.

Mrs. Harry Evans, of 592 Aylmer street, came to the Patriotic Office and stated that she had decided to undertake some work, which not having children to care for she could very well do. She asked that as she was free to earn a fair sum by her exertions that she might well forego her allowance and expressed the hope that it would give to somebody else's comfort and help.

Mrs. Mary Baxter, of 536 Stewart street, is another commendable example. The widowed mother of a son now on the firing line, she came and asked that her allowance be discontinued, saying that with the separation allowance and part of her son's pay she could make out fairly well, and that the amount would then be available for some one else.

This action on the part of these ladies was appreciated, as it should be. Mrs. Baxter was told that if she cared to make use of the allowance, which was not a large one, for a month or two, it was at her disposal, and that she would then be free to do what she expressed herself as longing to do, make a small subscription to the Red Cross or other worthy funds now before the public, and she engaged to so spend every cent of the money. That motherly promise will be kept.

Six Months in the County Gaol

Local Bastile Again Secures the Services of Harry Waters Whose Ability as Chef Is Undisputed

Harry Water, chef par excellence at the County Gaol, has resumed his duties. For a week or ten days Harry has been holidaying around Peterborough, his term of office having expired at the local bastile. This morning he appeared in Police Court on a charge of vagrancy, and at his own request was returned to his first love for a period of six months. This will ensure the inmates of the stonepile a good bowl of soup for Christmas, and whatever extras the officials will provide. Harry Waters is not only rated as a first-class chef, but is noted for his vocal ability. This he exercises on all and sundry occasions, and the effect is striking to say the least. For several years past, Harry has had exclusive charge of the soup foundry. It would be as easy to dispense with Santa Claus as to celebrate Christmas at the County Gaol without Harry Waters.

A Wages Claim.

Two women contested for honours in a wages claim this morning. Each of them went into the witness box and related a long drawn out story of long and patient suffering in which the other woman was to blame. After wasting the time of the Court for nearly an hour the end was reached and the case discharged.

93rd BATTALION'S GOOD IMPRESSION ON VISITING OFFICER

Capt. W. E. Swaine of the Headquarters Staff Pleased With the Work of Non-coms. and Men—Machine Gun Section of the Battalion to Be Organized Next Week—The 93rd Photographed for the Christmas Examiner—To-day's Military News.

Capt W. E. Swaine, instructor of musketry attached to the headquarters staff of the 3rd Division, paid an official visit to the 93rd Battalion this morning for the purpose of arranging a course of musketry instruction for the Peterborough battalion. It is altogether likely that a sergeant instructor will be sent here to look after that important end of the training. While here Capt. Swaine took advantage of the opportunity to watch the work of the non-commissioned officers of the 93rd. Qualified men to act as instructors are greatly in demand and it was for the purpose of discovering what material is available here that Capt. Swaine had Company Sergt.-Major Hartshorn and Calladine and Company Quartermaster-Sergt. Williams carry on platoon drill. The visiting officer was much impressed with the work of these non-coms. and also with the good showing of the different platoons, expressing himself afterwards as being greatly pleased with the progress that is being made.

The machine gun section of the 93rd Battalion will be organized early next week. Lieut. Crisp, the machine gun officer, will report for duty to-morrow night, and the names of the non-coms. and men who wish to join the machine gun section have been taken.

Bandmaster Hughes continues to keep the 93rd well supplied with marching songs. Wednesday, "Keep the Home Fires Burning" was introduced and to-day another new one was heard. The words of the chorus are as follows:

Farewell, Isabelle, Isabelle
Don't let it grieve you
I've got to go
Farewell Isabelle, Isabelle
I've got to leave you to face the foe
You know very well, Isabelle
As the battle I go through
As the battle I go through
I shall do my best when I'm put to the test
To win it
As I won you.

To-day's Orders

Free Trousers For Men

Men should profit by the announcement of the Scotland Woolen Mills Company's offer of a free pair of trousers on Saturday, which appears in this evening Examiner. An extra pair of trousers, free with every $18 suit, means a good deal these days, especially as the trousers alone, it seems, would cost, according to the advertisement, $6.00 anywhere else. You may have the trousers made from the same material as the suit, or choose some other pattern. The fit and finish are guaranteed as being the same as you will find in a Thirty Dollar Suit, and you pay but Eighteen Dollars for the whole outfit.

Read the three-column advertisement over again and note the substantial claims it makes. You may have a talk with the manager, Mr. Hourigan this evening at the store, 191 Hunter Street, as he promises to be on deck after the store closes to make any personal explanations that men may require.

There has been some discussion whether pants are singular or plural. Mr. Hourigan says that when men wear pants it is plural, and when they don't it is singular. He doesn't intend that anybody shall be singular this winter if he can help it.

EYES!

Having defects should have the proper glasses. Dr. Lacey's glasses work wonders, because he knows his business and makes no mistakes. Bring us your broken lenses to duplicate. Successors to Tait Optical Co., 410 George street, opposite Examiner Office. dtf.

PRIVATE FALLON AND GUNNER McGILL HOME FROM FRONT

PTE. GEO. BUTCHER WAS NOT WOUNDED AS WAS REPORTED

Letter Received From Him Under Date of November Seventh States That He Was Quite Well at Time of Writing

NOW IN BELGIUM

The report that Pte. George Butcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Butcher, 301 Burnham Street, Ashburnham, was seriously wounded has proved to be untrue. A letter received from Pte. Butcher by his mother yesterday relieves anxiety in regard to the rumour. The letter was written on 7th November, at which date George was quite well. A troublesome boil on his arm, coupled with the facts that he had to report to the dressing station each day to have it attended to, undoubtedly gave rise to the story, which was brought to England by returning soldiers, and Peterborough boys there communicated the news to friends here.

Pte. Butcher writes interestingly of his life at the Front and in part says:

"You will sure think something has happened before this that I haven't written, but it is just that I have been too busy. I wanted to write you a week ago, but thought I would wait and see if you letter came. I meant to write Saturday, but something turned up and made it impossible. It is hard to write in those little tents at night, but feel sure I would get a chance on Sunday. Sunday a.m. early orders came to pack up, as we were going to move to some other field, our own being too muddy for the boys to live in. We only went about half a mile, beside a bit of bush, and as soon as we got there we started digging a dugout, as we heard we will be here for the winter. Of course, we will take spells in the trenches, but this is where we expect to come after every turn.

I will try and give you a description of our new home. We dug down about four feet and made it nine feet by twelve feet. It was sure some hard digging, as there was mostly clay, and as it rained nearly all the time we were at it, believe me it was no cinch. Then we got about ten sandbags and filled them and as we filled them a couple of the boys would lay them along the walls and pound them into shape. After that was all over we put a canvas roof over it and then started to build our bunk. We have eight bunks, but at present there are only six of us. One of the extra bunks we use as a work bench for the machine gun and on the other we pile wood and coal and anything we want out of the way. Our door is in the centre of one end and right opposite we have a fireplace dug in the wall, have a draped board over it for a mantel-shelf. We sure are fixed up pretty good, if we only can hang on to it. We can hang our wet clothes up to dry now, and that will be a comfort.

Saw Pte. Quinn.

I was talking to Theodore Quinn again just a little over a week ago, and I was also talking to Harry Portsmouth for a few minutes. Harry is with the C.A.S.C. He was going along with a transport when he stopped at our camp.

We were at a big review before King George about two weeks ago, and I caught sight of Harry Portsmouth and Cyril Giroux then, but didn't get a chance to speak to them.

We are camped jut outside a little village here, and there is a city about three or four miles across the border in France. Norman Darling and I for a holiday. Of course, we had to walk, but that is nothing and the roads were not too bad, as we haven't had rain for two or three days. We sure have mud, but you just plough through it.

I have got over my boil all right. Don't worry about me, as I am feeling fine and am quite happy.

Both Were Wounded at Festubert and Returned Recently on the Metagama.—Recital of Some of Their Experiences.

WERE WELL TREATED

Gunner Mordie McGill of the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, C.F.A., son of Mr. Benjamin McGill of the Customs House, and Private Gordon Fallon of the 14th Battalion, whose home is on Simcoe street, arrived in the city this morning from Kingston, where they spent a few days in a convalescent home shortly after returning from England on the Metagama. Both these Peterborough boys were injured at Festubert. Gunner McGill received an abdominal wound and Private Fallon was hit in the leg by a bullet. They have practically recovered from their injuries, but both are slightly lame, and Gunner McGill shows some traces of nervousness, a lingering effect of the tension under which the boys at the front worked.

Among his experiences Gunner McGill speaks particularly of the methods and dash of the Indian troops, especially the Gurkas and Sikhs, near whom the 4th Battery was located for some time. The bravery of these men needs no further reference, and their fearlessness of German bayonets which Gunner McGill said they grasp with one hand and with the other despatch the enemy. They have a rather gruesome custom of collecting the ears of the dead Germans and stringing them in the form of beads, as it were, which they keep as souvenirs of the work they have gone through.

The English Tommy, Gunner McGill observed, was in a class by himself for sheer doggedness in attack and on defence, but the Canadian soldiers have a quality of adaptability and also a readiness to take a chance that have given their work a special effectiveness. The Peterborough battery, Gunner McGill said, had given a great account of themselves and most of them are in their 'teens. While he did not any credit to himself, Gunner stated that none of the boys flinched in the tightest corner. And through out his experience at the front, and in the hospital at Bromley, Gunner McGill received the best of treatment. Really, he was so reticent in the other Peterborough men with whom he was associated, were all well when he saw them last, which was some time in June. He expected that Sergt. Biff Guerin would have been home, as he had been at Shorncliffe for some time.

Private Fallon's Part

Private Fallon enlisted with some other Peterborough boys at the beginning of the war in Lindsay's first contingent. He was through the battle of Ypres where for five days he had only the ration with which the men carried forward with them. After the battle the fields over which they fought represented all that could be conceived of a modern battle ground. Dead men, dead horses, parts of guns

RESPECT THE FLAG.

A returned pastor from the United States, complains in a letter to the press, of the shabby conditions of the flags the Canadians float, and contrasts them with the tidy conditions of those hung out in the United States, where the flag is "treated with more respect," than to leave it in the open to get wind-whipt and weather beaten, as is done in Canada. It is very nice for the United States to show respect for its flag, but they would, one would think, show more respect for it of they made the Germans respect it a little, too.

FRIGHTFULNESS FAILS.

The German practice of terrorism and frightfulness is as much mistaken as other features of its mad policy. It has only strengthened the determination of first class powers to crush the power that so misuses its power. It has had effect only in the case of Greece, whose King, with Belgium's fate in view, says that whatever happens, Britain and France will not be severe with Greece, but in case of success Germany would crush Greece too, would be implacable, if that country took sides with the Allies. Greece need not be afraid of Germany winning. She has shot her bolt, and the Allies will win in the fight for the smaller nations. There is not the slightest danger that the Entente Allies will sheathe the sword till the victory is won, till the smaller nation are assured of their integrity by the defeat of the imperial bully who outrages the rights and aims to crush every legitimate, national ambition of the great, as well as the small powers of Europe and the world.

REGARD THE RETURNING.

A local contemporary points out that our soldiers are well treated and cared for during training. With this there is full agreement; but when the assertion is made that when they return from the front "their wants are carefully looked after by the government" it would be a pleasure to subscribe as fully to this statement. There is a great deal of complaint of the neglect of returned soldiers or failure to care for them as deserve the men who have through strenuous service at the front come home broken in limb or health. There may be a great deal of exaggeration in the complaints made, but it is to be feared there is a strong under-current of truth in them. We all of us are tempted to forget our friends when we no longer need them, and the experience of the past in regard to the care of discharged soldiers, is that there has been shown a great deal of national ingratitude. We know, and admit that we know, that the government has its hands full in providing for the aggressives side of war. We are doing that better because we are "getting our hand in" after sixteen months' apprenticeship to war making.

But our experience of the other side of the problem, looking after the returned soldier, is limited. We have to master this problem as we have pretty well mastered, or gained reasonable proficiency in, the work of preparing soldiers for the fighting line. It is perhaps inevitable that in the beginning the work of adequately caring for the returned soldier will be imperfectly done; that the new machinery that has to be devised will occasionally and frequently slip a cog or creak in operation

There is need to give this matter as great attention as we give to the preparation and care of the soldier for fighting.

In a sentimental and humanitarian sense we should do better and more for the invalided or disabled soldier when his fighting days are done. If we should be remiss in providing for the comfort of the soldier in training the neglect is not so serious. He is a picked man physically, robust, in full health; he has generally good clothing, good food, and good pay. He may by some carelessness or oversight miss some little comfort, but in the main he is in good condition and position. His food, and raiment, and shelter, are assured and adequate. He has a good income, and what may be deficient in the official supply, he may considerably supplement by purchase. As far as physical comfort and the outlook for its continuance is concerned, he needs have no misgivings; and if he has some hardship he is hard and fit to take, as he is hard and fit to give, a great many hard knocks. On the contrary the returned soldier, returns a broken man, physically inadequate, and a proper and worthy object of the greatest solicitude on the part of the government of a grateful country.

His physical and moral relation to the country suggests, nay, demands, that his case should receive special attention. He should be a special charge upon the authorities from the moment he begins his journey home, and lands at home. He has done his bit, and if, in doing this, he returns in bits as far as physical integrity is concerned, he should be looked after with the most sedulous attention. He should not be allowed to suffer by neglect for one moment, till he regains strength, and he should be assured of a pension or allowance that will insure his comfort, in accordance with the demands in this direction of humanity. We are fighting this awful war in the interests of humanity; and we should not by accident or neglect, or through failure of adequate provision, commit, or permit, any inhumanity, towards the men who have given health and strength, and sacrificed comfort, in the fight on behalf of the highest human interests.

One doesn't take kindly to the cavalier way the Minister of war has of brushing aside the question and putting the blame on the returned soldier "who should have saved enough money" to keep him in comfort after he has given his whole capital of strength and fitness to the country. This is a hard, heartless, unhuman, bookkeeping view to take of the country's responsibility. If the bulk of a soldier's pay has been sent home to his family or dependents, who have to live when the breadwinner is gone, he is in not a very good position to subscribe to war loans, or live for and keep his family on the few dollars he might save out of his pay. We should not be narrow and parochial, nor hard and ungrateful in our national and individual attitude towards the returned soldier.

We must remember, too, that we are still calling for soldiers to send abroad, and our appeal will be strengthened by the attitude we assume towards the soldiers that are sent home.

WELL TO BE READY.

There may be no foundation in fact for the report that Germans in the United States are planning a raid on Ontario, but it would not hurt to have the border well guarded, especially around Niagara Falls, from which comes the energy to run the industries of the province.—London Advertiser.

TWO PENINSULAR WARS.

Among the various parallels which suggest themselves between the present and the Napoleonic war a striking resemblance may be traced in the Balkan venture of Germany to the attempt of Napoleon on Spain and Portugal.

The Corsican tried to incorporate the peninsula in his system in order to complete his continental blockade against England. Similarly the kaiser aches to strike a blow at Great Britain in Egypt and India by linking up his forces with those of the Turk. Napoleon aimed at his island enemy through the western peninsula. Kaisia William through the eastern peninsula of Mediterranean Europe.

At first Napoleon had all his own way. Sir John Moore's army was driven into the sea. Things were far worse for Great Britain than to-day in the Balkans. But Wellesley came and gradually, cautiously made himself secure at Torres Vedas, as the French and British forces will do in southern Macedonia towards the borders of Albania and Montenegro, linking up with the gallant Serbs before long, as the army of Wellesley was supported by the Portuguese and a remnant of Spanish patriots. Servia is clearly the Spain, Montenegro and Portugal of this peninsular war. The Germans and Bulgarians will be crushed out of Servia as surely as the French were forced foot by foot over the Pyrenees.

It has often been observed that the Spanish adventure undid Napoleon even more than his expedition into Russia. Armies of his best French troops melted away before Torres Vedras and elsewhere in Spain, while at least half of the Russian grand army was composed of Germans, Italians, Dutch and Poles. In Spain Wellington wrenched off a great claw of the vampire and bled it to exhaustion. Kitchener is gone to the Balkans, and under his direction there is practically a certainty that the German vampire will get a death wound in the heel. Held on the eastern and western fronts and choked on the seas, Germany will lose in the Balkans as Napoleon lost his game of world dominion in Spain.—London Advertiser.

HONEST CRITICISM CAN BE CONSTRUCTIVE AND PATRIOTIC

"Is The Toronto Star really anxious for more the welfare of our returned soldiers or all this done in the interests of the Liberal party?" asks the Peterborough Review.

Let us put a question. Is there any person in this country, whatever his politics, who is not really anxious to promote the welfare of our returned soldiers?

There is somebody on the Review who evidently believes that political partizanship is the basis of every human motive. There are few persons capable of observing and thinking who can, at a time like this, be so misled. Party differences, the disputes, squabbles, and jealousies of little leaders and local heelers, look miserably small in the presence of the issues that confront the people of Canada to-day. When normal times return so great a change will have come about in the affairs of the Dominion that both the political parties which existed before the war will be as it they had been blown up by high explosives. Old issues will be replaced by new ones, so new and so different that there is no telling what changes may occur in the party formations.

At present there is a Government in office handling unfamiliar problems in regard to which neither political party in Canada had any policy at all. The country is going tremendously into debt, with the full approval of the people, who, however, do not realize the extent of it and have no check on its method of the details of it. The Government in office ought to be less a party Government and more a national Administration than any the country ever had before, and its success will depend upon the extent to which it rises to its responsibilities in this respect, for the great body of the people are not thinking as partizans to-day but as Canadians.

Along with the question from the Peterborough Review we wish to place a paragraph from the Guelph Herald as follows:

"Critics of the Dominion Government excuse themselves by declaring that they are actuated solely by a desire to see that reforms are made ensuring the comfort of the soldiers and the care of those who return wounded. The question may well be asked these politically biased critics whether their action will tend towards impelling men to enlist, or whether their criticisms are not seized upon as excuses for staying at home."

In answer to both these contemporaries we would ask them to consider the significance of the fact that it is they, not the Government, that resents the work The Star has been doing in seeking to ensure proper treatment of the returned soldier. In showing how systems are working badly we have ensured their improvement. We have assumed that it was the desire of the Government—as undoubtedly it always was and is—to do the best that could be done for returning soldiers. But the best was not being done. The Star, with its facilities for observing the effects of a system that was being poorly carried out, made the facts known, with the result that the Government is endeavouring to put a better system in operation. Had wrongs been allowed to multiply in all directions without protest or remedy, this would not have benefitted the Government, but quite the contrary.

Nor do these critics retard recruiting. They have the opposite effect, since they result in improved methods, and guarantee the welfare of those who enlist. Scattered about this city were returned soldiers who had not been just'y used; they and their relatives and all who knew them had grievances. Publicity has brought out the fact that the Government had no intention that they should be used as they were used, and no knowledge that they had been so used, until public exposure had been made. These victims of neglect had written letters in vain to departmental officials; the press carried their grievances past all the outpost of clerks, past all pigeon holes, and laid them before the real heads of the Government, who wanted no such grievances to exist, and who electrified the entire public service with orders to that effect.

Newspapers that enter into a conspiracy of silence in regard to evils that ought to be and can be remedied do no service to their party, or the country, or anybody whatever. They are deserters from their duty.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

The Minister of Militia's reply to complaints about the treatment of returned soldiers is too indefinite and general to be very convincing. As we said the other day, there didn't seem to be much to the complaint from Toronto about the men being brought from Montreal in colonist cars since colonist cars could be made comfortable. But there are other complaints floating around, not all of which emanate from Toronto. Some of these must have reached the Minister of Militia. And he doesn't tell us what provision is being made for the wounded soldiers. He doesn't say whether the government is making provision to have them given preference in the matter of employment. A little definite information on the subject would be more welcome than Sir Sam's slighting remarks about his personal enemies in Toronto.—Ottawa Free Press.

A PATRIOTIC EXAMPLE.

A fine example of unselfish patriotism is shown by Mrs. Frances Hamilton, of Bethany, whose son, Sergeant Harold Hector Hamilton, is serving his country in France under Lieut.-Colonel Ralston, in the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery. Since her son enlisted, Mrs. Hamilton has been in receipt of the regular grant through the Northumberland and Durham branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund. She has written to the treasurer of the fund returning $152.50, all she has received, and saying:

"I have not needed to use the money allowed to me by the Patriotic Fund. I can get along without it at present, so I am returning it, so that it may be applied for the relief of those who are in greater need. I think that the grant might be cancelled in future, as I will try and get along without it."

There is patriotism, pure and undefiled, sincere, free from ostentation. It is an inspiration to all who would like to do something for the cause, and it is a stern though unconscious rebuke to the grafters who have made exorbitant profits out of war contracts.—Toronto Star.

SOCIETY SHOULD NOT ALLOW IT.

There can be no doubt that girls work in local factories for 10, 12 and even 14 hours a day. They work on the piece system and are speeded up by machinery and the necessity to earn. They do receive $5 and $6 a week in many cases. Society should not allow such things to be. This community when informed will not permit hundreds of girls and women to endure such slavery.

An eight-hour day is all that any woman in a factory or shop should be called on to work. The piece system for women is inhuman and ruinous to womanhood and health. Five or six dollars a week is not a living wage for a single woman or girl who has to support herself. But it is on the question of hours that the community can best interfere.

Long hours tend to make workers plentiful, wages low and working conditions unseemly. If the hours were shortened, a two or three-shift system is necessary. More workers being needed, they become scarce, wages tend to rise and conditions to improve. Wages and conditions are much easier to regulate hours. The war-order business has forced the issue upon the attention of the people.—Toronto News.

POOR AND OLD.

Who is this they so closely guard,
Fast bound with galling chains?
Is it some desperado, dyed
With homicide's red stains,
Or felon who has set at naught
The country's righteous laws
That thus upon his guilty head
Stern retribution draws?
Perhaps a daring highwayman,
Or outlaw, fierce and bold.
Ah, no! a hopeless wretch whose crime
Is that he's poor and old.

And so they bind the fetters firm,
Though feet and hands may bleed,
With none to comfort, help or cheer,
Or for sweet pity plead.
To his frail, aged, weeping wife
A heart-wrung last farewell.
And then they bear him, starved and faint,
To the lone prison cell;
There well to learn the bitter truth
That charity is cold,
And in this world the worst of crimes
Is being poor and old.

But iron bars, grim walls of stone,
Strong guards, are all in vain
The immortal spirit, plumed for flight
A captive, to detain.
No form stood by his dying bed,
Of friend or child or wife;
Alone with the dread enemy
Was waged the mortal strife.
But softly gentle angels came,
And 'neath white wings enfold,
And bore to liberty and life,
The prisoner poor and old

To where no hunger-pain is felt,
Nor cold in the blest clime,
Where honest poverty is not
Imputed heinous crime;
But homely joys and constant love.
The lowliest equal own
And none receives in lieu of bread
A cold and cruel stone.
We pray Heaven save us from our foes
Of fiendish Teuton mould,
And still with greater need we say,
God help the poor and old!

Mrs. A. F. Calder.

Followed Instructions.

She was a little girl, and very polite. It was the first time she had been on a visit alone, and she had been carefully instructed how to behave.

"If they ask you to dine with them," papa had said, "you must say 'No, thank you; I have already dined.'"

It turned out just as papa had anticipated.

"Come along, Mildred," said her little friend's father. "You must have a bite with us."

"No, thank you," said the little girl with dignity; "I have already bitten."

What is Milk?
Is it a Food or Drink?

Medical authorities say milk is both "eatin' an' drinkin'."

If so, drink and eat PURE Milk—the purer the better.

There is no milk "just as good" as the milk that is Clarified and Pasteurized.

All danger of dirt, slime, grit or soil is expelled from our aerated, clarified and pasteurized milk.

Same thing applies to our PURE CREAM.

SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY SALE

A MAMMOTH FIFTEEN DAYS OF BARGAIN OFFERING

A Mighty Call To Turn Merchandise Into Cash

All Men's Clothing and Furnishings Must Be Sold

THE ENTIRE $15,000 STOCK OF

H. J. ZACKS 422 GEORGE ST.

PETERBORO, ONT.

To be sold in FIFTEEN DAYS of marvellous bargain giving. Owing to the disastrous effect of war conditions on the trade, Mr. Zacks has planned an immediate clearance of every article of his $15,000 stock of Men's and Women's Ready-to-Wear and Furnishings in the store at away below cost price. This will mean a tremendous reduction, and the result will surely effect the desired object of a clean sweep, all lines being equally affected. The Ladies' Wear, Furnishings, Millinery and Furniture Sections are all being included in this great ANNIVERSARY SALE. The question of Profits or even Cost is entirely lost sight of, everything is of secondary importance to the great object of a tremendous stock clearance.

THE GREATEST MONEY-SAVING SALE of MEN'S AND BOYS' CLOTHING, SHIRTS, SOX, LADIES' SUITS, COATS, SKIRTS, HOSIERY, SHIRTWAISTS, HANDKERCHIEFS, GLOVES, FURS, RIBBONS, CORSETS, UNDERWEAR, MILLINERY, HOUSE FURNISHINGS, FURNITURE, ETC., ever held in Peterborough. Everything to be sold.

Never a Better Time to Buy Men's Clothing than Now	Ladies' New Winter Clothing at Remarkable Savings	Millinery and Smallwares at Unheard-of Reductions	Furniture and House Furnishings at Compelling Prices

Cost, Profit and Values totally disregarded. The Sweeping Anniversary Sale

IS NOW ON IN FULL BLAST

Never were prices so ruthlessly cut, never was an effort more determined. Profits are forgotten, costs are not considered. Store will be open ready for business at nine o'clock on Wednesday, Nov. 24th. The following items give only a faint idea of the Wonderful Bargains that you will find here. Telling about them fails to do them justice. You must see the feast to be able to appreciate it. Hundreds more that space does not allow of listing. Everything guaranteed as advertised.

Do You Ever Wonder How the Soldier in the Trenches Gets His Tobacco—Are You Going to Let Him Go Without?

2200 PACKAGES SENT

If your supply of tobacco or cigarettes is getting low all you have to do is to go to the corner or down town to replenish it.

But you ever wonder how the soldier in the trenches gets his tobacco? There are no stores there and he must depend on his relatives or friends to keep him supplied. What of the man whose relatives can't afford to send him tobacco? His friends sometimes forget to even write to him

Are You Going to Let Him Go Without Smokes?

If you are sending tobacco now come up to our meetings and investigate our organization, it will save you money and send more tobacco.

If you are not sending tobacco will you be one of 2,000 regular monthly contributors to the Citizens of Canada Tobacco Fund collected by the Overseas Club. Will you give 25 cents per month, approximately 1 cent per day? Your 25 cents will buy

1-5 lb. Canadian manufactured tobacco

50 Canadian manufactured cigarettes

Enclosed in this package is a postcard which the soldier uses to acknowledge receipt of tobacco and to thank you. These cards are addressed in Peterborough. Our first shipment of tobacco was sent on Oct. 18th, 1915, and it takes about two months for the cards to come back. We have sent 2,200 packages to date.

The weekly meeting will be held on Friday, Nov 26th, at 8 p.m. in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. Come up and hear the reports, etc.

If you wish for any information, please write, or call on the secretaries.

RATES ON GIFTS TO SOLDIERS

Ordinary Postal Rates to France in Force

OFFICIAL NOTICE TO PUBLIC

OTTAWA, Ont., November 26.—A memorandum explaining why it is not possible to arrange for the sending of parcels to soldiers in France free, was issued by Hon T. Chase Casgrain, Postmaster-General. It is as follows:

"The Department is in receipt of applications to have parcels addressed to soldiers in France sent free or at reduced rates of postage, there evidently being an impression that the department has control of these rates and could do as it wishes, but this is not so, as the question of postage is fixed by international agreement, so that it is not within the power of the Canadian post office department to undertake to carry the parcels free or at a reduced rate of postage.

"Under international law provision is made for the free transmission of parcels for prisoners of war but this privilege does not extend to parcels for troops engaged in active service nor is it within the power of the department to so extend it.

"The rate of postage required on parcels addressed to the troops depends upon the locality of the addressee. If the address is in England, the rate on parcels for England applies, which is twelve cents a pound, while if it is France the parcels are subject to the rates applicable to parcels for France, which are as follows:

1 lb., 32 cents; 4 lbs., 64 cents; 8 lbs., $1.02.

2 lbs., 40 cents; 5 lbs., 72 cents; 9 lbs., $1.10.

"These are exactly the same charges which existed for years between Canada, Britain and France before the war, and are the result of an agreement or convention made between these countries and Canada, and as these countries have not agreed to lower their rates between England and France, Canada has to pay to them the same rates as before the war and must charge the same postage.

"In all cases parcels for the troops must be addressed care Army Post Office, London, England, but this does not in any way affect the rate of postage which depends entirely upon the location of the addressee."

Austrians Are Annihilated in Crossing Ice

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26.—Intensely cold weather is prevailing all along the front in the eastern theatre of war, and already the rivers have begun to freeze up.

Attempts of the Austrians to use the ice on the Styr River for fording purposes resulted in the annihilation of an entire battalion. While the troops of the battalion were crossing the stream the ice gave way and all were drowned.

At other points on the front, Russian artillery is breaking up the ice with shells in order to prevent the Germans and Austro-Hungarians from crossing.

Last night's official report tells of an attack by Russians on the enemy near the village of Semikoutze, on the Stripa. The Germans were driven to the river and those who escaped Russian bullets were drowned in an attempt to cross the river. Over 100 killed or wounded were found on the scene of the action.

On the Dvinsk front, the Germans are now upon the defensive, although strong counter-attacks have been launched north of Illoukst in an effort to recapture the ground lost to the Russians on Tuesday. Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army has been driven from important positions in front of Dvinsk in the past few days and the Germans have suffered severe losses.

Notwithstanding this, the Germans still are making desperate efforts to advance in the direction of the Dvina. They have built a new road for the transport of ammunition and heavy guns. Huge quantities of ammunition recently have been forwarded to the regions of Itskul, Friedrichstadt and Jacobstadt.

The position of the Russian armies has been enormously strengthened, however, by an abundance of ammunition, the correspondent says. Gunners now show to infantrymen inscriptions written by workmen on ammunition boxes, which read in substance: "Don't spare shells. Plenty more are coming, comrades. We are working hard to keep you supplied. Cheer up."

Two Candidates For the Mayoralty

Ald. J. J. Duffus is Still Undecided —The Aldermanic Prospects

There is very little stirring in connection with the forthcoming municipal [illegible]. So far to-date only two men have announced their intention of contesting the vacancy that will be caused by the retirement of Mayor R[illegible]. They are Ald. G. W. Green and C. M. J. J. Hartley.

Ald. J. J. Duffus may jump into the ring later on. During the week expected he will [illegible].

Ald. G. W. Green's entry into the mayoralty race will leave a couple of vacancies in the West Ward. There are a number of likely aspirants for the position, as one or two perennials who crop up each year with unfailing regularity only to retire after Nomination Day. Other wards claim a few prospective candidates, among whom is ex-Ald. Duncan, who may contest the aldermanic vacancy in the South Ward.

Called On Ontario Government to Close All Bars

Clubs and Liquor Shops During the Period of the War, the License Not to Be Re-Issued Without Vote of People

Special to The Examiner

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—At the annual meeting of the General Reform Association of Ontario held to-day in the Temple Building, N. W. Rowell called upon the Ontario Government to close all bars, clubs and liquor shops during the period of the war, the licenses not to be re-issued without the vote of the people. If the Government were not willing to do this, he then urged that the people be given an opportunity to vote on the question.

Canada's duty to the Empire was the chief topic discussed by the various speakers, and took the place of party questions usually discussed at such meetings.

Mr. Rowell spoke strongly against the cutting out of the calling of an Imperial conference in London, where the Colonies could learn more definitely of the best way they could assist in helping the Empire in this crisis of time. He also lauded the fact that Canada was doing the best of all the free countries within the Empire.

Among the speakers on a platform to Mr. Rowell were Hon. Geo. P. Graham and Hon. W. J. Mackenzie, K.C.

FOOD PROBLEM CRITICAL SAYS COLOGNE JOURNAL

COLOGNE, via London, Nov. 25.—The Volks Zeitung in a sharp article urges the Reichstag, which meets next week, to call the government to account for its failure to deal adequately with the problem of supplying foodstuffs.

In supplying the German nation with provisions, it says, at present the most important military question, and one which must be carried through before winter, the Volks Zeitung says.

"This doubtless will be recognized by the supreme army command, whose orders will find no opposition. We recommend the appointment of an economic dictator in military clothing."

The article closes with an attack on Herr von Stein, recently appointed Under Secretary of the Interior on the ground that he has not dealt energetically enough with the food problem.

Do Not Care About Greece

German Diplomacy Loses and Critics Adopt Indifferent Attitude

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The attitude of Greece is being watched here with the tensest interest. She must decide soon, in favour of the allies or of the Central Powers.

Germany is prepared for either eventuality. A high official of the Foreign Office said to me today:

"Greece is balancing in the air. She must decide immediately which way she will turn. The German government awaits this decision with cool reserve, for it need hardly be emphasized that we are prepared for all military eventualities."

Maximilian Harden, editor, says: "All depends on which side will have the bigger army available. If Kitchener succeeds in assembling a large force in Greece, that country will not attack the allies."

Major Moraht, military critic, says:

"Greece will try her utmost to wriggle out of the difficult position created by the Entente without going to war either way.

"But Greece will disarm the Serbian troops crossing her border. If she should do this, the Central Powers could consider it a casus belli.

"It is my belief that, had she so desired, Greece would have decided in favour of the Entente long ago."

Should Greece go with the Entente it could no longer save Serbia. Our armies and Bulgaria's would have to fight against the army around Saloniki, but the road to Constantinople would still be kept open.

Captain Persius, naval critic, says: "In case of decided against the allies, Greece would have to sacrifice her harbour cities, including Athens. For myself, I cannot judge whether the Greek government is prepared to make such sacrifices.

"However, the allies troops now landed at Saloniki would be a valuable pawn in the hands of Greece should she declare war against the allies. These troops could be held as hostages."

Municipalities Are Being Sued

Actions Against Stratford and St. Mary's Allege Pollution of River

STRATFORD, Nov. 26.—Both Stratford and St. Marys are defendants in actions to be tried here at the non-jury sittings of the high court before Chief Justice Meredith. St. Marys Milling Company seeks damages for diverting a creek into a stream and an injunction to stop further pollution. John Murray, Downie Township, has for years had an action against Stratford for pollution of the river Avon river by effluent from the city sewage disposal works. The result has been repeatedly deferred as the city has spent many thousands of dollars improving the plant from time to time. The latest improvements ordered by the Provincial Board of Health and costing $40,000, have been completed.

Reaches Binghampton, N. Y. and Has to Descend Owing to Dizziness

TORONTO, November 26. Aviator Victor Carstrom, who left Toronto yesterday morning on flight to New York, got within 200 miles of the American metropolis. He was obliged to descend at Binghamton, N.Y., on account of dizziness. Today he will continue on the last part of his journey.

A despatch from Binghamton last night stated that Carstrom had alighted safely on the grounds of the Broome county Club near Hopper, seven miles from that city. Mr. Carstrom left the Curtiss Aviation School at Long Branch at 9.46 a.m. on the 325 mile trip. There was a strong head wind but he was reported over St. Catharines at 10.45, and was sighted about noon at Rochester. After that no news was received from the aviator until he landed at Binghamton.

A despatch from Rochester in the morning stated that he had been sighted there, this puzzled the officials of the school, who figured that he must have got out of his way. According to the route marked out, he should have travelled about 100 miles south of Rochester, following the Erie R.R. tracks. It was presumed that he found his mistake and got back to the right route as Binghamton is on a straight line to New York. No word was received by the officers here from Carstrom last night.

PARNELL STREET RESIDENTS OPPOSE REMOVAL OF TREES

At a meeting of the Board of Works last night with Alderman Green presiding, it was announced that the deputation to wait on the Provincial Board of Health to-day would be composed of Mayor Buller, City Clerk Armstrong, City Engineer Parsons, City Solicitor Gordon, and an alderman from each ward. They will present the plans for the sewage disposal plant and its location with a final hope that they will be unopposed.

David Henry wrote, objecting to the removal of three trees on the north side of Parnell street, near the corner of Park street. He stated that the trees were a considerable distance from his home and did not keep light from reaching it.

Ald. Edgar: He did not say anything about the light not reaching the street.

Ald. Green: No, he apparently considers it from the standpoint of his own property.

Investigation of the City Engineer's blue print of the street showed that these trees are only twelve feet apart and with the removal of these particular three, the remaining trees would be 24 feet apart, which more nearly approaches the standard distance between trees.

Mayor Buller stated that Mrs. Frank Christopher also objected to the city's proposal to remove trees from in front of her residence.

It was decided that Ald. Green and Mr. Parsons should see these Parnell street citizens and endeavour to come to terms with them.

The by-law states that citizens who object to the removal of trees may be recompensed for the planting and erection of such trees, but the decision in regard to their removal remains with the city Failing mutual agreement as to compensation, the owners would probably have to bring suit.

May Remove Tree.

Mrs. Singleton, 181 Stewart street, asked for permission to remove a tree which is heaving the cement walk in front of her property. She offered to pay for its removal and to plant another tree in a better position. This request was granted on motion of Mayor Buller, seconded by Ald. Langford.

Will Erect Poles.

The Utilities Commission requested permission to erect five poles on Cedar street west, three on Hunter street between Bethune and Shrubrooke streets, and five on Argyle street between Gower and the Nichols Hospital. City Engineer Parsons's report recommending the granting of the request was adopted on motion of Ald. Edgar, seconded by Ald. West.

Total, against union 31.

$400 BAIL FOR CHAS. BREWER

Peterborough Man Will Be Allowed Out on Certain Conditions

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Nov. 26. According to a decision at Osgoode Hall today, Chas. Brewer of Peterborough, charged with attempting to murder his wife, will be admitted to bail of $4,000, himself in four securities on conditions that a satisfactory medical certificate be forthcoming. He is said to be 65 years of age and suffering from hardening of the arteries.

Police Are Looking For Murderer

Superintendent of police Cameron, of Montreal, has written to the Chief of Police concerning one Alphonse Varin, alias Joe Racine, alias Raymond, who is wanted to murder. He is a cook, aged about 35 years, height 5 feet 6 inches, weight 150 lbs, dark complexion, chestnut hair turning gray, brown eyes. Effect: scar back of left hand, near the wrist, vertical scar on centre of forehead near root of hair, two upper teeth centre to left are gold filled. The chief was asked to use every means to cause arrest and if arrested to hold and wire.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT BAGDAD

Bagdad has a population of about 150,000. The Province has sunk formerly of great importance as transit trade, though still considerable, has been reduced by the diversion of American trade routes to Persia. Import are European cotton goods and India cotton goods, foreign sugar, coffee, cardamoms, pepper and tobacco. Exports are wool, sheep, goats, skins and hides, opium, carpets, and dates. The annual trade (1910) amounted to $17,500,000. River craft ply between Bagdad and Basra on the Shatel-Arab River, the port of transshipment for ocean steamers. The streets are narrow, unpaved and dusty while the Tigris is used both as a sewer and as the source of the water supply. The buildings, of yellowish brick, are insignificant, except for the beauty of coloured tiles in the interiors. But the palm and date trees, closely planted in the considerable space between the houses and the numerous mosques give the city a picturesque appearance.

The old city was on the left bank of the river where a tomb called by tradition, that of Zobeida, wife of Haroun-al-Raschid, is one of the few reminders of the city of the caliphs. The foreign consulates are said to be on the site of Haroun-al-Raschid's palace. In the vicinity, several Moslem shrines or tombs of sacred personages, that have hundreds of pilgrims to visit them yearly. The walls of the city were partly destroyed about 1870 to make room for the construction of the present [illegible] past. Are never carried on [illegible] and merchants of the wall [illegible] with those of the gates are used [illegible] The climate [illegible] extremes, and [illegible] great extremes.

Bagdad was [illegible] the ruins of Ctesiphon by Al-Mansur in 763 It was enlarged and improved in the ninth century by Haroun-al-Raschid commemorated in the Arabian Nights.

New York city budget for 1916 will be about $214,000,000 or approximately $15,000,000 larger than that of 1915, according to a semi-official estimate made.

CARNEGIE 80 YEARS OLD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Andrew Carnegie celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary yesterday in quiet fashion at his home here. A few friends asked for a birthday message. He said: "All goes well with me. The world grows better, and we are soon to see blessed peace restored, and a world court established, which, in the words of Burns, 'Man to man the world o'er shall brothers be for a' that.'"

BROOMS WILL BE DEARER

Brooms, necessities in every home, are going up in price, and it is expected that the increase in price will amount to from 25 to 50 per cent. The reasons for the advance in price are many, failure of the broom corn crop, the impossibility of procuring materials, and the increased export since the war.

Surface Drainage System Needed To Relieve Sewage Disposal Plant

When the sewage disposal plant shall have been completed the city will doubtless concentrate attention upon the diverting from the sewers the surface water which should be removed by a separate drainage system.

There are hundreds of houses in the city which have their eaves connected with the sewer for the purpose of easily disposing of rain water. And since the sewer empties into the river there is no objection to this practice. But when the sewage has to be pumped across the river to a disposal plant somewhere in Otonabee, it is self-evident that the demand on the pumps should be maintained at as low an average as possible. Hence surface water must be diverted from the sewer, for the reason that after heavy rains and in the spring the sewage pumps would be overwhelmed and would be called upon to perform what should be an unnecessary task. The disposal plant is not to be erected at the cost of many thousands of dollars simply to strain rain water, and Mayor Buller remarked at the Board of Works meeting last night that an additional pump will have to be used in the construction of a system of surface drainage. Most of the city's streets are now directly drained into the river. The plans of the Engineering Department have not been made known, but there is not much likelihood that the city will lay a duplicate system of surface drainage to empty directly into the river. It may be, however, that eye troughs which are now connected with the sewer will have to be disconnected when the sewage pumps commence operations.

With Other Municipalities.

The average cost of board at the Victoria County Gaol for the past year was seven and two-third cents per day, or eighty cents a week.

Ottawa's Population Less.

Ottawa's population, according to official figures issued by the Assessment Department to-day, has declined 1,632 in the past year. The figures for 1914 were 101,780; for 1915 they are 100,163. The decrease is attributed to enlistment.

Allies Are Much Stronger in the Serbs' Positions

SALONIKI, Nov. 26.—The French troops have greatly improved their position on the extreme left of the allied front eastward from Krivolak and a considerable amount of ground has been gained during the last few days, including several important heights. Along the rest of the front calm is reported, except that at Strumnitza the usual artillery duel continues. Several Serbian officers have arrived here from north Serbia. They report conditions under which the Serbian army is fighting as improved a good deal of late.

Referring to the retreat of the main army, I am told it has been carried out with what must be regarded as a minimum of loss for such difficult operations. It must not be forgotten, too, that our allies have been stubbornly disputing the ground all the way, yet the losses are well under 5 per cent. of the total number of effectives.

The Bulgarian army under General Boyadieff on the Lovtcha-Prilep salient which can only be termed a failure. This goes a long way to improve further the outlook for the Serbs. The scene of the victory was midway between Vranja and Nish, and the danger to the Bulgarians in that particular district is obvious. It is reported that on account of this setback the enemy recalled some portions of his troops from before Monastir and that may have some effect on the Bulgarian campaign in Macedonia.

HEAVY SUBSCRIPTION TO THE WAR LOAN

TORONTO, Nov. 25. Interest in the Canadian War Loan continues at fever heat. At all the branches of the several banks and the various financial houses handling the issue large numbers of subscribers besieged the offices throughout the day. Amongst the tenders for the Loan, the largest single subscription received is that of the Canada Life Assurance Company, which has tendered for $1,500,000 of the Loan.

"CABIRIA"

When the Itala Film Company of Turin, Italy, were casting Gabriele D'Annunzio's scerairo masterpiece "Cabiria," they were balked for some time in filling the character of Maciste, a Numidian slave. According to the scenario, Maciste was to be a man of unusual size and strength and when no one could be found who suited d'Annunzio the directors tried to prevail on him to be content with a smaller man, but they were unsuccessful. D'Annunzio insisted upon a Goliath.

A short time later d'Annunzio, while strolling through the shipping districts, was attracted by a crowd of people who were evidently very much interested in the unloading of a ship. Approaching he saw the object of their interest, A huge man, veritably a small giant, was casting hogsheads about as though they were mere paving blocks. One look was sufficient to convince him that here was the object of their search: a man with the qualifications for the part of Maciste. He was immediately engaged, but the hardest task was still to come, for it required several months of coaching to teach him how to walk correctly and the necessity of gestures to make one's self understood in motion picture photography.

"Cabiria" will be exhibited for the first time in this city at "The Grand" for three days commencing Thursday, December 2.

The Roy Studio took some soldier photographs of the officers and men of the 93rd Battalion for the Christmas number of the Examiner this morning. Group pictures were taken of the officers, of the non-commissioned officers of Nos. 1, 2 and 3 platoons, together, and of Nos. 4, 5 and 6 platoons, the band and signallers.

At a recent concert given by B Company, 59th Battalion, Kingston, several Peterborough people appeared on the programme. The little three-year-old son of Sergt. Clayton sang three songs, which were highly appreciated. Capt. Park also contributed a song, both of them adding materially to the programme.

The 93rd Battalion will attend divine service in East City on Sunday, half going to St. Luke's and the other half to Mark Street Methodist.

To-day's orders announce the promotion to the rank of sergeant of Pte. John Playford, who is back in khaki after ten days at home.

Twenty men have been added to the ranks of the 93rd Battalion so far this week—that is, twenty have come on the strength. A number of new recruits who have passed the doctor have not yet reported for duty.

In the last issue of the "Canadian," an English publication which devotes considerable space to Canadian military news, has a photograph of a number of Canadian Bank of Commerce men enjoying a banquet at Folkestone. Among them is noted prominenty, Pte. H. P. Weir, of the 78th Battalion reinforcements to the Winnipeg Grenadiers.

The arrival of Gunner Mordie McGill and Pte. Gordon Fallen this morning brings the total of Peterborough boys who have returned from the European firing line to their homes to thirteen. The list is as follows: Capt. Ackerman, Pte. Mesey, Pte. Stenson, Pte. Phipps, Pte. Wm. Levoir, 2nd Battalion, Sergt. Cooper, Corp. King, Gunner McGill 4th Battery, C.F.A., Corp. Playford, B.A.S.C., Corp. Payne, 1st Wiltshire Regiment, Lce.-Corp. Martin, 2nd Rifle Brigade, Trooper Percy Parrington, Strathcona Horse, and Pte. Gordon Fallen, 14th Battalion. Four others, Ptes. M. Mowry, 21st Battalion, and Ptes. Curtis, McKnight, and Levoir were invalided home from England.

WINTERFIELD FORCED OUT.

American Citizen Not Wanted in German High Finance.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—At the annual meeting of the Berlin Electricity Works, opposition was concentrated against the election to the board of directors of Hans Winterfield, one of the leading directors of the National Bank of Germany, on the ground that although he is a former German officer he has become and remains an American citizen. After sharp personalities had been indulged in, Mr. Winterfield finally withdrew his candidacy.

The element which fought Winterfeld's election now threatens to raise the question of his Americanism in connection with the directorate of the National Bank of Germany. An article in one of the afternoon newspapers demands to know whether Mr. Winterfeld, who it says not only remains his American citizenship, but also is married to a Frenchwoman, should not, during the war, be replaced in the management of the bank by a good German.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—That certain evidence regarding Capt. Boy-ed, German Naval Attache, will not be introduced in the trial of the four Hamburg-American Line officials for illegally furnishing supplies to the German commerce raiders because of the attitude of the State Department was hinted to-day. The Department, it is reported, has informed United States Attorney Marshall that Boy-ed was acting within his rights in distributing certain funds. It has been suggested to Marshall that it is understood that the State Department will be displeased if Boy-ed's name is again given prominence in the present trial.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The capture by the Italians of fresh Austrian trenches on Monte Calvario, which overlooks Goritz, is officially reported from Rome to-day. The fall of Goritz is not mentioned, however, and reports of it current Thursday night are disbelieved.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Henry Ford left New York to-day, hoping to win before night the approval of both President Wilson and Cardinal Gibbons for the peace ship that is to sail for Europe on Dec. 4. Ford will talk over his plans with Cardinal Gibbons at Baltimore. He will urge the Cardinal to lend his influence to the Christmas peace mission by accompanying the voyagers to Europe. From Baltimore Ford will go to Washington, where he will accompany Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the member of the British Parliament, and Mme. Rosiker Schwimmer, the Hungarian peace advocate, to the White House to present the plans to President Wilson. Mrs. Snowden and Mme. Schwimmer will present to the President the resolutions adopted by the Women's Peace Congress at The Hague. They will urge upon the President that he issue a call at once for a conference of the neutral nations with a view to ending the world war. Though the peace ship Oscar II. is scheduled to sail one week from to-morrow, many important details of the trip are yet to be arranged. Ford has given out a list of ten prominent persons who have accepted invitations to make the voyage. The liner will touch at Christiania, Copenhagen and Stockholm, he announced. The Peace Congress will probably be held in Holland.

Ford's secretary announced to-day that Chancellor David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford University, has accepted an invitation to accompany the peace voyagers.

Wrigley's Gum Saved a Life

Interesting Episode of the European Battlefields

Here is an episode from the world's greatest war. A human life was saved by Wrigley's Chewing Gum. Such a circumstance is a striking illustration of the profound importance of little things in big affairs. We Examiner readers will be interested in this account, clipped from the London Express of November 10, 1915, and reproduced here verbatim.

November 1st, 1915.

To Messrs. Wrigley's Ltd.,
London

Dear Sirs:—Having just arrived home with the last batch of prisoners of war from Germany, I thought you would be pleased to hear of the little experience I had when I was wounded, in fact, I owe my life to your Chewing Gum.

It was in September, 1914, when we were stationed at Lyndhurst for training purposes prior to our leaving for the Expeditionary Force, I purchased a large quantity of your Spearmint Chewing Gum in the village of Lyndhurst, and took some to Belgium with me. I was wounded by shrapnel in the right thigh, fracturing it at Ypres 28th October, 1914, when my first thought was for water. Suddenly I thought of the Chewing Gum I had in my possession. I was lying in a turnip field for five days from Monday to Friday, till I was picked up by a German officer. During that time I had nothing but the Chewing Gum to moisten my lips and keep me going.

I am writing this letter especially to let you know how I appreciated your Chewing Gum. There is no doubt had it not been for that, I would have died, as I could never have existed. I would have informed you before, but we were under great restrictions with regard to correspondence, and I left it until I came home.

I hope you will accept this as an honourable testimonial, as it is the absolute truth.

I beg to remain,
Yours respectfully,
(Signed) Henry Towler,
2nd Border Regiment,
3rd London General Hospital,
Wandsworth Common, S.W.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WHY PITCHERS SELDOM RANK AS REAL PLAYERS

Few Can Hit or Field Because as Kids Weakest Be the Batting

Pitchers seldom can hit or run bases, and they are usually poor fielders in any position except their own, whose constant practice makes some of them rather good at handling bunts, though this cannot be said of all of them by any means.

The reason for this inability of pitchers to do anything but pitch is simple. Pitchers are not ball players, except in a few individual cases. Nearly all professional ball players started their careers when youngsters on the lots in games of one old cat and choosing sides.

Why Pitchers Are Weak.

In these boyish exercises the really good natural players who could run, field and hit were not allowed to waste their talents on the slab. They were wanted to play short-stop, first base, or centre field. Almost anybody who could throw a ball up to the plate would do to pitch, but the active youngster was drafted for positions where his speed and agility counted more for his side.

This means that the slow, awkward lad, without much athletic skill, was thrown into the pitching position, while the good hitters cavorted in other locations. This fact, for it is a fact, accounts for the usual inability of the pitcher to play any position but his own, and for his poor batting and base running.

Seldom Become Real Players.

He was not a regular ball player to start with and he seldom becomes one. Of the numerous qualifications of the average player he possesses few. He learns to curve the ball, and if he is smart he practices control of his various brands of stuff. He also acquires some proficiency in handling the comparatively small number of fielding chances which come his way, but in general he is a good deal of a joke as a ball player.

There are few pitchers who can fill any other position on the team with success. A few are good hitters, but most of them are a load to carry at the bat, so much so that there has been a good deal of agitation looking toward removing the pitching from the batting order and having only eight men bat around. This change has never been made, and probably will not be, but it illustrates the general feeling that a pitcher is not a real ball player.

Sisler an Exception.

An exception to this rule exists in the person of George Sisler, the University of Michigan star, who finished the season with the St. Louis Browns. Sisler is said to be the greatest all around ball player since the days of Buck Ewing. He is a first class pitcher and is also a star in several other positions. As a pitcher Sisler can hold his own with any man in the big leagues. In addition to his pitching ability he is a great first baseman and a wonderful ground covering outfielder.

Besides his ability along defensive lines Sisler is a hard and consistent hitter and a great base runner. President Bob Hedges of the Browns declares he is a more valuable player than Ty Cobb and believes him to be the greatest athlete in the modern game. Sisler is one of the few pitchers who can qualify as a ball player.

There are a few others who are pretty good hitters. Doc Crandall, formerly of the Giants, was always clever with his bat, and one year led the National league in batting. The best pitchers have usually taught themselves something about hitting. Such men as Matty, Mordecai Brown, and Walter Johnson, while they cannot be rated as regular batters, have been wise enough to try their best when at the bat and have often helped win close games in a pinch by their confidence.

Walter Hits 'Em Hard.

Johnson, especially, is a long hitter when he hits at all and make more home runs than any other pitcher. It is noticeable that the best pitchers are usually much better hitters than the second string men. This is simply because they are smart enough to see that a hit from their bats once in a while will help them to victory, while the inferior hurlers are satisfied to let the rest of the club do the batting and devote all their own attention to the defensive end.

Brains tell in all departments of the national pastime, and it is almost invariably true that the really classy performers are such because they have more gary matter than the average player.

Willie Hoppe.— The phenomenal billiardist, who made a new record in New York recently. He ran 388 points in the final match with Welker Cochran, whom he beat by 500 to 18. Cochran was allowed 200 by handicap, making his official score 218.

Harvard Football Team Make Money

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov 24 The Harvard football team attracted nearly $225,000 in gate receipts during its season of nine weeks, it was estimated to-day, and the gross returns to the Harvard Athletic Association will be close to $325,000. The expenses of the football team will amount to $30,000 or $35,000, leaving a net profit from this year's team of more than $285,000.

More than 165,000 persons saw the Harvard team in action this season. The record crowd was at the Yale game last Saturday when 49,000 persons paid 998,000 to attend the game. The second largest crowd was at the Princeton-Harvard game at Princeton, N.J., when 38,000 persons paid $68,000 to witness the contest. The Harvard-Brown game attracted 20,000 persons, and the Cornell and Penn State games both drew a gate of 15,000.

Percy D. Haughton, the Harvard head coach, characterized this year's team as the best one that has been turned out at Harvard under his direction, exceeding even the eleven of last year, when Hardwick, Brickley, Bradlee, Pennock, Logan, Francke, Trumbull and "Jeff" Coolidge played. It was the opinion of Mahan that that this year's team was better than the one that beat Yale 36 to 0 in the New Haven Bowl.

In defence of an established system for coaching football players, Mr. Haughton said:

"I have heard it said that Shevlin of Yale, disparaged the football system. Without reference to either Shevlin or myself, I think I may say that the result of Saturday's game speaks plainly in favor of a system and shows the value of established channels through which the players are forced before they come to their big games."

The Harvard Crimson to-day asserted that Saturday was the greatest day in the history of Harvard football, since the score of 41 to 0 established so many new records in connection with the Harvard-Yale series. Haughton also said that last Saturday was the happiest day of his life.

The members of the present senior class at Harvard will be graduated in June and can say that during their four undergraduate years they saw Harvard humble her greatest rivals, Yale and Princeton, in every one of the games played. As a result of the Princeton and Yale victories by Harvard the student body is financially well off at the close of the present season. Princeton was the betting favorite in its game with Harvard, and the Yale men had such confidence in their team after its victory over Princeton that they bet 7 to 10 and 6 to 10 with the Harvard men. As a result the Cambridge students can now do their shopping early.

AUSTRIA OBJECTS TO SPY CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Baron Zwiedinek, Austro - Hungarian Charge d'Affaires, called at the office of Mr. Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, to make a complaint against what he characterizes as a general newspaper propaganda being carried on against Herr von Nuber, the Austro-Hungarian Consul General at New York.

The complaint was regarded as a cover for a determined effort on the part of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy to force a retraction from the United States of the statement recently issued by the Department of Justice linking Herr von Nuber's name with charges made by Dr. Goricar through the Providence Journal.

The Austrian Embassy seems to believe, and the State Department to admit, that in this case the Department of Justice has made public use of the name of an Austrian official in connection with charges which it cannot substantiate. The State Department brought the matter to the attention of the Department of Justice, but that department has not yet taken any formal action. Investigation into the Goricar charges are still proceeding. It is known that engagements have been made by officials of the Department of Justice for Saturday which are expected to bring forth important developments in connection with these charges.

As to Baron Zweidinek's complaint against the newspaper propaganda, it is recalled that at the time the Goricar charges first appeared a threat of libel was privately made. So far as known, the Austrians have not resorted to this method provided by American law for the prevention of unwarranted newspaper charges.

Mr. Lansing would not make known what action he might take, but the opinion prevails that the rule of international law requiring foreigners to resort first to legal remedies for wrongs done them will hold in this case.

BRITAIN PREPARED, PALMER DECLARES

Correspondent Says Former Deadly Ammunition Shortage Is a Thing of the Past

MERE FLESH AGAINST GUNS.

In That Way, He Asserts, English Suffered 100,000 Casualties in First Months of Great Conflict.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. — Frederick Palmer, who was The Associated Press representative with the British Army, told a large audience at Carnegie Hall last night, in a lecture on "My Year of the Great War," details of Great Britain's shell shortage and how it had affected the first year of the war. The British Navy and the small English Army he said, were the only two forces that were prepared. From conditions in England, France and Belgium he drew a lesson of preparedness for the United States.

"People keep asking me about the dark secrets of the British front," he said. "There are none now. As I lived with the army for many months, I ought to know. There was a secret a year ago, however—a very dark one—and it existed even six months ago. It could not be told because that would have been telling the Germans how short of shells the British were.

"In the great battle of Ypres, a year ago, when the Germans tried to gain the Calais ports, the British fought with flesh and blood against the German artillery. And even as late as last May I used to see signs like this up in the trenches: 'Our daily ration of shells — three passed over this morning.' Meanwhile the Germans could at any time concentrate five shells to the British one. British gunners were limited to the number of shells they might fire a day. British soldiers stuck to their trenches under hellish German shell fire, fighting with their rifles alone, and a limited number of machine guns. This was one of the reasons which prevented the British from holding a longer line.

"England not only had to make ammunition for her own troops, but not until the history of this war is written will we realize how England had to make ammunition for her own troops and at the same time answer her own defence. At the same time Greece refuses, the correspondent learns, to intervene in favour of the allies unless her own interests are threatened.

The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company, on the other hand, says the Greek reply is "friendly, meets the Entente powers' demands and gives all guarantees that are considered essential." The correspondent, however, remarks that King Constantine has been successful in his main contention, which was that Greece should remain neutral. Athens public opinion is considering the possibility that Bulgaria will attempt to annex Greek as well as Serbian Macedonia, in which case Greece, with her army at least partially mobilized, would at once take the field to defend her territory, an action which would align her definitely on the side of the Entente.

Contains None of the Vague or Evasive Expressions in Other Notes

LONDON, Nov. 26. — Although the reply of the Greek Government to the demands of the Entente powers is described as satisfactory, and as furnishing a basis for the settlement of the questions at issue, it appears that the situation has not yet been entirely cleared up. In reply to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Minister, said that the Government was not in a position to make a statement regarding the situation in Greece as it related to the allied powers.

A Rome correspondent telegraphs that he is informed from diplomatic sources that Greece, after offering guarantees not to disarm Serbian or allied forces retreating into Greece, promises also the partial demobilization of the Greek army retaining part of her troops under mobilization in order to provide for soldiers without adequate ammunitions, while England's new army was only in training. The difference between having adequate and inadequate artillery to support an attack is the difference between walking into a trench whose fire has been completely smothered, dugouts turned into graves for the defenders, and machine guns buried, as compared to charging into machine guns and in face of shell fire. The British army fought without adequate artillery support, but the new army has it.

"For a month before I left the front the British had superiority of gunfire, and the German infantry attacks all failed. The initiative had changed to the British side. Before I left the front I saw four or five hundred British guns, most of them not built before the war began, commanded by gunners who had not received a day's training before the war, lay a perfect swath of fire along the German trenches, destroying the barbed wire with their shrapnel and changing the German trenches into irregular heaps of earth mixed with sandbag rags and splinters.

"The United States has furnished about 5 per cent. of the munitions used by the Allies. Neither Lloyd George's new munition factories nor those in the United States will be turning out their maximum capacity until early spring. Then, for the first time, the British Army, and in fact, the whole allied front, will have sufficient shells. They will be able to make three weeks' steady bombardment, instead of seventy-two hours of prefatory bombardment, as in the Champagne offensive. The casualties, in any attack, are increased ratio to the amount amount of shells expended as a rule, and probably, England has suffered a hundred thousand casualties for not having had sufficient guns and shells at the start of the war, when the British contemplated sending not more than 120,000 men to the continent.

"It was not want of training that kept the new army from being sent to the front. It was want of munitions. Excellent company officers could be trained out of raw material, but the difficulty was in the staff organization.

"If it takes the British Navy and 2,500 auxiliaries to hold the line from Iceland to the English Channel, how large a navy will it take us to defend the Monroe Doctrine and the whole American continent? If our navy is not as good as the British, ship for ship, the fault is not with our officers and men. In England they have left the work of experts to experts. The amateurs have kept their hands off the navy."

Pte. Fallon and Gunner McGill

and a litter of all kinds were strewn about, with the awful recklessness of war. It was a picture never to be forgotten. At Festubert the 14th had a more adequate idea of the nature of the work ahead of them. They played a considerable part in that engagement, but their casualties were vastly lighter than at Ypres.

Burying the Dead.

The advance made at Festubert was over grounds where the British and Germans had previously fought and had dug themselves in without the chance of burying their dead. As a result the stench was "fierce" at the time of this second battle and when the British had consolidated their new positions, burying parties were sent out to bury these putrefying bodies.

"We buried them in the holes made by the big shells," Private Fallon stated, "but it was awful work. When you would catch hold of an arm to drag a body from a pile of debris the arm separated from the body so long had it remained in that place. The bodies were deposited in the shell holes and covered with earth."

Private Fallon stated that he had been hit by a bullet and was later helped from the field. He was finally removed to an hospital in Bristol. While it was a great experience to have passed through it was no "pink tea." Machine gun fire was hard to face, but Private Fallon had least liking for shrapnel, which was not only turned on the trenches, but also swept the ground during advances. After Festubert he saw one batch of seven hundred prisoners who had been taken in that engagement. In spite of the trying conditions the men have to face they stand up under it wonderfully. In fact Private Fallon saw only one man who lost his nerve. It was at Ypres, and the soldier, who was something of a "nut" at any time, threw himself on the bottom of the trench nerve-shaken and without self-control. He got on the nerves of his comrades and was finally taken back. "I heard he had his head shot off later," Private Fallon stated, "but he came over on the same boat with me." But this was an exceptional case, and it is really a matter of wonderment that they are not more numerous.

Private Fallon returns pleased with the treatment he had received. He has not yet been discharged. Gunner McGill got his discharge but neither of these boys are sure of their exact status for the present.

Tobacco a Great Help.

Private Fallon stated unreservedly that the boys greatly appreciate the tobacco that is sent to them. It is most beneficial under the stress of the life at the front, and there was certainly no mistake in continuing the supply.

Great Munitions Plan is Being Worked Out

Patriotism and Production Will Have a New Meaning in Canada

NEW ORDERS FOR CANADA

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—Patriotism and production soon will have a larger meaning in Canada. A great munitions plan is being worked out. It is proposed to tremendously extend Canadian capacity for producing gun projectiles, to have very substantial proportion of the Russian, French and British shell orders filled in Canada, and to have the business financed by banking houses and other financial institutions of this country. Shell orders which have been filled, or which are being filled in Canada, have reached the tremendous total of five hundred million dollars. More than two hundred and fifty manufacturing firms are engaged upon the work. The munition business is to be organized in such a way that all large orders for munitions can be handed to this country and taken care of in the most expeditious and economical manner possible. It is intimated that further immense orders are coming Canada-ward this winter.

LACK OF PASSPORT COST $10.00

LONDON, November 24 Jack Wilson, a former New Yorker, who is a familiar figure in London hotels, called at the American embassy to-day to get an American passport in order to travel through England without police interference.

Mr. Wilson, who is an insurance agent, and who has been living in London for several years, was arrested in Bristol last Saturday because he happened to be in a prohibited area and was without a passport.

He informed the New York Times correspondent to-day, that he had been on a two weeks trip through England, going into half a dozen prohibited areas without a thought of a passport but that the Bristol authorities apparently became suspicious of him He failed to register with the police on arriving in Bristol, never dreaming, he said, that such a formality was necessary.

As he left his hotel on Saturday morning a detective stopped him saying he was wanted at police headquarters. Wilson and the detective rode in a taxicab to police headquarters where the officer in command spoke of his failure to register and suddenly asked if he had a passport. Wilson admitted that he had not and the officer remarked that he was sorry but they would have to detain him as a prisoner. After six hours detention Wilson was taken before a magistrate who inflicted a fine of ten dollars advising Wilson to hury back to London and equip himself with a passport, and also to register himself with the police the next time he got into prohibited areas.

Wilson sat for four hours in the embassy to-day before he got the passport.

ICEBREAKER "MINTO" SOLD TO CZAR'S GOVERNMENT

OTTAWA, November 25.—The Canadian icebreaking steamer Minto has been sold to the Russian Government for use in keeping the port of Archangel open during the coming winter. She sailed to-day with a Canadian crew for Archangel, where she will be handed over to the Russian Government.

Canada has done a considerable service to the Russian Government in the matter of providing icebreaking facilities that the flow of supplies and munitions to the winter port of the Czar's empire may be unceasing. A year ago she sold the Earl Grey for the same purpose and it has been doing splendid service since. With the lack of success which has so far attended the Dardanelles project, the maintenance of uninterrupted communication through Russia's northern harbors has become of more importance than ever, and hence the sale of the Minto.

The Minto was built in Dundee in 1899, and especially designed for the winter navigation in Northumberland strait she is 325 feet long, of 1090 gross tonnage and 2900 indicated horse power. She will be replaced by the government steamer Stanley, while next year the new giant ice breaker which is being built but which has been held up by the war, will be completed as an addition to the icebreaking equipment of the Marine Department.

For paring potatoes in quantities a carborundum-lined metal cylinder has been invented, against the sides of which the tubers, are whirled by a revolving bottom plate.

EYE TALKS SERIES

IMPORTANCE OF THE EYE

A man or woman has no more precious possession than that of eyesight. Deprived of the use of the eyes we are helpless, and in proportion to the condition of the eyesight, so is the handicap for business or pleasure measured.

If eyesight were turned into dollars and cents, we would be extremely careful of it. Money means working capital, and eyesight is our greatest necessity as an earning power. Can we then be too careful of our most valuable asset? We ask perfect security for money, then also ask for proper qualifications from the specialist who treats your eyes.

BERLIN REGULATES PRICES FOR GAME

BERLIN via London, Nov. 25.—The German Government has adopted maximum wholesale and retail prices for game. The retail prices for venison range from 40 pfennigs to 180 pfennigs a German pound. The price for wild game is fixed at 110 pfennigs a pound while the rate for hares is 150 pfennigs each and pheasant cocks 350 pfennigs each.

The garden should be dug in and turned, leaving the earth loose. If new soil is being used the sod should be turned under to a depth of four inches to ensure rotting. Vines, dead leaves or weeds should be burned and the ashes, together with a quantity of good stable manure, if available, should be dug well in.

FOWL SUPPER AT BREALLY'S SCHOOLHOUSE

The Salvation Army Sunday School Braellys held a very successful fowl supper at the S.S. Hall last night. The place was packed to the doors, and a programme given by the orchestra of the 93rd Battalion Band was very much enjoyed. There were speeches by Mr. Oliver, superintendent of the Lily Lake S.S., Mr. R. C. Braund, superintendent of the S.A. Temple S.S., Mrs. (Adjt.) McElhiney, and Sergeant Leader, of the 93rd Battalion Band. Adjt. McElhiney acted as chairman.

WEDDING BELLS

GODFREY—LEAHY.
The marriage of Miss Helen Kathleen Leahy, daughter of Mr. Wm. H. Leahy, Auburn, and Mr. Wm. H. Godfrey, of this city, was solemnized at the rectory of the Church of the Immaculate Conception by Rev. Father McColl on Wednesday evening. Miss Kate Sheehan was bridesmaid, while Mr. Stephen Leahy was best man. After the ceremony a dainty wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, where a number of friends were assembled. Many beautiful presents were received by the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey left later in the evening for a short honeymoon. They will reside on Hunter street east.

ALLIED OFFENSIVE SOON IN THE BALKANS

4000 TROOPS LANDING EACH DAY AT SALONIKA

125,000 ALLIED TROOPS IN BALKANS

THOUSANDS MORE ARE ON THEIR WAY

101,000 SERBS ARE PRISONERS SAYS BERLIN

LONDON, Nov. 27.—An official announcement has been made to the commanders of the Allied troops at Salonika of the guarantees given by the Greek Government relative to the freedom of action of their armies. Press despatches from Athens say that the French and British forces landed at Salonika have now attained important proportions. The Patris of Athens gives their number at 125,000. These forces are abundantly supplied with arms and ammunition. Some 40,000 or 45,000 more men are said to be on the way to Salonika, at which port 4,000 troops are debarking each day. Earl Kitchener has obtained permission from the Greek Government for the Allied troops to land at Greek ports other than Salonika, according to an Athens despatch.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Serb prisoners in German, Austrian and Bulgarian hands now number 101,000, reports to the War Office announced to-day.

TO CO-OPERATE WITH ENTENTE POWERS.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—That Italy, which has hitherto played practically a lone hand in the European war, will co-operate fully with the Entente Powers henceforth is confidently expressed here to-day as a result of Kitchener's visit to Rome. The Allies did not greatly feel they needed Italian aid until the German drive through the Balkans began. Owing both to Italy's geographical position and to the fact that she can spare a large number of troops for a new campaign, her assistance in the Near East would now, however, be valuable.

It is to enlist Italian aid, it is believed, that Kitchener is in Italy, and opinion is general here that he will be successful.

Diplomats say that the main thing will be to satisfy the Italians that they will get the possessions they want on the Balkan Peninsula and in Asia Minor, even though the Greeks should ultimately join the Allies.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—An Allied offensive on a large scale seemingly is about to begin in the Balkans. British troops, hitherto in small force as compared with the French in the Near East, are reported landing in large numbers to-day at Salonika. The Serb line before Monastir is holding firmly. Trainloads of Allied soldiers are arriving in the town to aid in its defence. The news that French aviators have bombarded Strumnitza furnished the first assurance in several days that operations in South-Western Bulgaria are still progressing.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—By releasing clouds of asphyxiating gas along the front between Forges and Bethincourt, on Friday night, the Germans gave the French the impression that a general assault was about to begin. The French troops were on the alert to repel it, but no attack followed, the official communique announced to-day. In the Meuse region and elsewhere, said the report, conditions are unchanged. A French military aeroplane fell into the River Aisne, but two airmen with it swam ashore.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Norwegian steamship Klar, 500 tons, was sunk by a German submarine. Eight of the crew landed to-day.

ATHENS, Nov. 27.—Germanic forces now control all of Northern Serbia except for operations of guerilla bands of Serbs who are continually harassing and intertering with the operations of the invaders.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Major Moraht, in the Tageblatt, estimates that about 75,000 men of the Serbian army have reached, or are about to reach, Albanian and Montenegrin soil. He figures also that 130,000 have been captured and as many more killed, wounded or sick.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 27.—The French soldier whose confession to the German military authorities led to the arrest of Miss Edith Cavell, the English nurse, whom the Germans executed at Brussels, committed suicide on Thursday by hanging himself in a military prison, according to advices from the Belgian capital to-day.

ATHENS, Nov. 27.—The Serbs captured Krushevo, south of Prilip, from the Bulgars to-day.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—About forty prominent persons have accepted Henry Ford's invitation to make a trip to Europe on his peace ship, it was announced this afternoon. The names may be made public when Ford returns from Baltimore this evening.

BALTIMORE, M.D., Nov. 27.—Cardinal Gibbons to-day heard the plan of Henry Ford to get European war soldiers "out of the trenches by Christmas." But, like President Wilson, he withheld judgment on the proposal.

CITY DEPUTATION HAS RETURNED FROM VISIT TO TORONTO

Provincial Board of Health Reserves Decision Respecting Site for Sewage Disposal Plant

TWO PROPOSED SITES

The Provincial Board of Health has reserved its decision in the case of the city's application for the Board's approval of a site for the sewerage pumping station. A deputation, comprising His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Green, Edgar, Evans, Langford, City Engineer Parsons, and City Solicitor Gordon waited upon the Board yesterday with the above result. The townships of South Monaghan, North Monaghan and Otonabee were represented by Mr. E. A. Peck, Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, and Deputy Reeve E. Deyell, and about twenty ratepayers. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for a number of private interests.

Two Plans Submitted.

Plans of two locations were submitted by City Engineer Parsons. One plan concerns the H. P. Kennedy property, which was objected to by the ratepayers, and the other deals with a location on the Wilson property.

The civic deputation was anxious to have the Board approve of the two sites so as to facilitate negotiations when the time comes to purchase one of the properties. Objections were made respecting the smell that such a plant might create.

After the pros and cons of the matter had been threshed out, the Board decided to reserve their decision.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT BY BOYS' CLUB

Held Last Evening in the Ashburnham Hall—In Aid of the New Rink

The Boys' Club of Mark street church, Ashburnham held an enjoyable concert in the Hunter street hall last evening. The boys intend having a rink this winter at the corner of Hunter and Mark streets and it was on behalf of this laudable enterprise that the entertainments last evening was given. The hall was well filled with the friends of the boys, and as a result quite a good sum was realized. The chair on this occasion was taken by Mr. J. J. Turner Jr., who after a few introductory remarks, announced the following numbers:

Selection—St. James' choir.
Vocal solo, "The Homeland"—Miss Emmerson.
Recitation—Master Percy Luther.
Musical selection—Lozier Brothers.
Vocal solo—Mr. E. Wand.
Selection—St. James' choir.
Vocal—Mark street church male quartette.
Vocal solo—Miss Austin.
Comic number—Pte. Robt. Hendry.
Vocal duet—Mr. Jack Smith and Miss Hinchcliffe.
Address—Rev. Mr. Whatton.
Vocal solo—"My Ain Folk"—Miss Hinchcliffe.
Banjo selection—Mr. Frank Clark.
Selection—St. James' choir.

At the conclusion of the programme a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the artists who took part, it being moved by Harry Nellist and seconded by Harold Quinn.

"London's a dreary sort of place, and the smoke's something awful!" the returned countryman was telling his awed village friends. "It's so thick, the air is, that I wonder anything grows there. I planted some corn in a box on my window sill, to remind me of home, and what do you think came up?"

One suggested wheat, while another thought oats more likely. But most of them remained silent, looking at their venturesome friend with respect.

"All wrong!" said the returned traveller presently. "A policeman came up and told me to take the box down at once!"

ALLOWANCES TO THE DISABLED SOLDIERS

PETERBORO' BOY TO BE HONOURED BY THREE NATIONS

Sergt. Reuben Beavis Has Received D.C.M. From the King and French Legion of Honour and is to Get Russian Cross of St. George

HAS THIRTY-SEVEN WOUNDS

Further details in connection with the heroism of Sergt. Reuben Beavis whose home is in East City and who was one of the well known Peterborough boys to go to the front with the first Canadian contingent, have been received by a relative of Mr. E. H. Mann in the following letter from the Agent General for Ontario in England. Sergt. Beavis is a native-born Canadian and is widely known in the city.

London, Eng., Nov. 8, 1915

E. H. Mann, Esq.,
Mgr. Mann Lumber Co.
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I beg to inform you that while visiting the Canadian wounded in this country on October 27th, Mr. J. M. Clark, a representative of the Ontario government, saw your friend Sgt. R. Beavis, No. 6496, 3rd Battalion, who is suffering from 37 wounds, shrapnel, bayonet and bullet. He has lost one leg and the sight of one eye. He is receiving attention in the London and Counties Hospital, Epsom, where he is very comfortable and able to be up and about.

He is looking very well and making splendid progress, but his spine still bothers him. The Germans drove a sword three times through his groin, ruining him for life.

He has been presented with the D.S.M. by the King, the Legion of Honour by the French Government and the Cross of St. George is coming from the Czar of Russia.

We will see that his wants are supplied and everything will be done to make him as comfortable as possible.

Respectively yours,
R. REID.
Agent General for Ontario.

Gift to Mother.

His Worship Mayor Buller has received a copy of the above letter and is of the opinion that something should be done to recognize the honour that has been brought to Peterborough as a result of Sergeant Beavis' gallant conduct. He proposes to suggest that on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough, free transportation to the Old Country be granted to Mrs. Beavis so that she may visit her son during the convalescent period and if possible return to Peterborough with him.

It is evident from the communication that the nature of Sergeant Beavis' injuries will totally incapacitate him and it will remain for the city to supplement the compensation provided by the Government. Mayor Buller proposes to have the matter placed in the hands of the special committee appointed to deal with the question of adequately providing for returning soldiers.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS AT BIG FOOTBALL GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—From forty to fifty thousand soldiers and sailors and plain civilians, like President Wilson and his intended bride, Mrs. Norman Galt, are gathered here to-day, to witness the great national test of supremacy on the gridiron between the Army and Navy football teams. Odds this morning are greatly in favour of the Army, but the Navy supporters are confident.

Come to the Scotch Supper at St. Andrew's Church with St. Andrew's Ladies on St. Andrew's Night, Nov. 30th. A good programme. Supper served from 5.30 until 6. Tickets 25 cents. 2d-125

Statement From Local Patriotic Officer Shows What Temporary Grants Have Been Made to Some of Peterborough's Men Who Are Back From the Front.

TO ALLAY APPREHENSION

Referring to the circumstances under which the disabled or partially disabled soldier returns to his home or to the locality in which he resided previous to enlistment there exists some very serious misconception. It is, if one takes comment on the street, the impression that the returned soldier is turned out and sent on to his destination with practically no resources to tide him over a period of convalescence.

This view is seen in the remonstrances that something must at once be done for the relief of the disabled man. This call is one eminently proper and the more insistent it is the more likely that some provision will be made. That is recognized. But to allay public apprehension the following particulars are printed which are taken from the official returns made to the local patriotic offices. It is assumed by the authorities that the sums allowed will do for immediate necessity, and while the several cases are being determined by the Pensions and Allowances Board. It must be recollected that this is our first war participation to any great extent, and that we are gradually learning to do a whole lot of things of which previously we had no experience and no opportunity of gaining knowledge.

In the case of the reservists who return the circumstances are different, should he return as partially disabled he is looked after as is the Canadian soldier, but at the expense of the British government. If the return unwounded he is in the position of a man who has had a contract, honourably filled its conditions, been paid his wages and leave employment. No extra allowance is made so it is understood. He may enlist again, as many good men whose services are of the greatest value, are doing. He is then a Canadian soldier and will participate in the Canadian allowance. Both British and Canadian dependents are cared for by the Patriotic Fund.

Following are the official notations, and while the matter may be considered a private one the public are concerned in what is being done. It may be explained that on leaving for his destination the soldier is given $100.00 and the balance forwarded in monthly payments. The case is in the meantime before the Pension Board for permanent adjustment.

STENSON, C. W.—This soldier, suffering from bronchitis and rheumatism, and has been discharged by the Medical Board as unfit for further military service. Three months pay, etc., amounting to $247.50, has been awarded him pending the decision of the Pension Board. His permanent disability is assessed at 25 per cent. for three months.

LEVOIR, W.—Three months pay, etc., amounting to $230.00 with permanent disability assessed at 25 per cent. for three months.

MOWRY, M. J.—Three months pay, etc., amounting to $820.10, and disability at 25 per cent. for three months.

PARRINGTON, P.—Three months pay, etc., amounting to $371.40 and disability at 50 per cent. for six months.

COOPER, J. C.—Three months pay, etc., amounting to $276.22, and disability at 10 per cent. for three months.

All of these will be determined by the Pension Board as to disability in the future and allowance therefor. The case of Mr. Cooper is one particularly distressing. Suffering from gas poisoning and shock he is practically a nervous wreck. All sympathy is expressed for the returned soldier and for the family which finds the bread winner totally helpless. But no doubt, so far as allowance can alleviate the case, such will be made and should be liberal.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, NOV. 27, 1915

THE BULL DOG WATCHES.

It is not well "to shout till we are out of the woods"; but when under the convoy of the British navy 104,600 Canadian troops are carried across seas without the loss of a man the British Jack Tar deserves a pat on the back.

GOOD INVESTMENTS.

The City Trust was moderate in its subscription to the war loan, with its modest $20,000. The little town of Welland has subscribed $50,000; and with good justification The sinking funds held by the town could not be invested better than in a loan that nets five and a half per cent. It is estimated that the additional interest receipts of the town compared with what the funds at present yield, will be $1,200 per year for ten years. Would it not have been well if the money were available, for Peterborough to have invested in the loan a larger sum than $20,000?

FUTILE PEACE TALK.

A great deal of newspaper space is wasted over the premature peace propaganda that is being urged by some whose interest in humanity is more to their credit than their judgment or knowledge of the temper of the Entente Powers. The crusade for peace is untimely. Peace cannot be even thought of, so long as the power that provoked the war in enmity to the highest human interests of the world, is unbroken. We can't ask a shepherd to lay aside his gun so long as the wolf that is destroying his flocks is still ravening; while his fangs are undrawn; while his power to do evil, remains. Great Britain went to war with Germany reluctantly, andigladly; reluctantly because she dreaded the dreadful suffering and loss; gladly because it was her duty to avenge an outrage, and redress a wrong upon a weaker nation, the forerunner, with success gained, of like European and world-wide outrage. She will fight to the bitter end for her scrap of paper, and for the disarming and subjection of the world's enemy; and her allies from imperial Russia, gallant France and conquering Italy, to bleeding Belgium and ensanguined Serbia, will wage the fight till the destruction of the destroyer of peace will make peace proposals something more than the impossible absurdity they are, with the end ungained for which we and Britain and her allies are fighting, and will continue to fight, till victory comes and the conditions of permanent peace are created.

CANADA'S CROP WEALTH.

We have been from time to time informed of the tremendous grain yield of the Canadian West. Figures, prepared with a keen regard for accuracy, that makes them of official authority, and published in another column, confirm previous reports This later report puts the grain yield of the West—three provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — at 690 million bushels, and its value at 462 million dollars. It is fortunate for Canada that it has its teeming West, as it is fortunate for the West as well as the east, that it has such splendid soil opulence. While the total value of the grain crop is not liquid, and will not come into general circulation as cash, even half of its value is an important item in national commercial and industrial prosperity. If money distributed helps prosperity, Canada is helped this year in a great way. With half a billion of money distributed through the execution of war orders, with, at least, a quarter of a billion derived from grain crops, Canada will have in circulation in the immediate future three-quarters of a billion dollars, or 94 dollars for every head of our population. The war struck us hard in the beginning, but it seems to be working out to the advantage of our material prosperity. Though the loss of so many valuable Canadian lives, and the assumption of so grave financial responsibilities, by the country, will not be offset by never so much prosperity and money gain, yet in the main we stand to gain by this terrible strife. Canada through the war, and the splendid share she has contributed, takes higher rank amongst the countries of the world. She has been sternly interpreted to herself, and revealed to the world as a country with a great imperial spirit, as a country of unshaken loyalty to the ideals of imperial integrity and human freedom. If we call discharge of national duty national sacrifice, Canada has sacrificed much, but has been, and will in the long run, be the gainer; and now, as in years to come, the boast "I am a Canadian," will have a grander, fuller meaning, than was the comparatively empty vaunt, "civis Romanus sum," in the mouth of a Roman, when Rome was in the zenith of her greatness.

PARTIAL VS. COMPLETE REPRESENTATION.

One cannot much wonder at the Kaiser seeking to justify his policy and course of action when one sees a newspaper justify the ward system in municipal affairs. But mutatis mutandis the two things are, very much the same in principle, trying to make wrong right. Nor is there just ground for the pharisaic claim that the municipality of Peterborough is better than other places, as is made by a local paper—we have no municipal scandals like Toronto and Hamilton. "Local civic government will compare favourably with that of any city in the Dominion."

That is the very point; the pith of the contention. It is because the general result of the present system of municipal management is defective, that leads The Examiner and others who regard these things dispassionately, to demand some improvement that will raise the general level of efficiency of civic government. The Examiner has made no "attack upon the board of aldermen." Its object is to secure by some means an improvement; and in the case of Peterborough it is suggested, that in default of more radical measures, such as the inefficiency of municipal government leads many aldermen, including the head of the board, to entertain in the form of a commission, we should make some advance by abandoning the ward system, for a general vote in the election of aldermen.

It is not to the point to discuss fully the relative merits of the two ways. It is enough to say that in addition to providing relatively, ineffective men, the ward system destroys at once the principle of representative and responsible government. By the ward system we elect collectively ten aldermen, two for each ward, so that one ward is represented by virtue of its vote by two men, while the rest of the city electors have no direct representation outside of the two men they elect in their ward. Ratepayers have a voice in the election of only two out of the ten members of the Council.

The ward system not only disfranchises the general body of electors, but it strikes at the root of the principle of responsible government. The essence of this is that representatives can be called to account for their actions. If representatives do their duty well, they can be approved, or if they default, they can be disciplined. But with the ward system a representative can only be dealt with by the comparatively few electors of his ward. No matter how bad a public servant he is, eight-tenths of the ratepayers have no voice—no opportunity to express the condemnation he deserves; and if he has ward pull enough, he can secure re-election and snap his fingers in the face of the general body of electors

Not satisfied with upholding the ward system, which strikes at the root of two great British principles of government — representative and responsible government — the local paper must needs advotate the exotic un-British expedient, the referendum to displace principles of government great statesmen have wrought for, fought for, and brought by the shedding of blood. The referendum which reduces the great principle of selfgovernment to ineffective absurdity, limited in its application to special matters, and impracticable in the application of general government, originated in Switzerland and gains considerable favour in the United States where there is, as we now it, no real representative or responsible government. The President and his cabinet have as much arbitrary power, are as responsible to nobody, exercise as irresponsible power for their term of office, as the Kaiser of Germany, or as an alderman elected under the ward system.

We have the referendum now as far as it can be wisely applied in the matter of money by-laws, concrete questions of policy, etc.; but it is utterly unsuited in principle and applicability, to the general government of a municipality. There is an infinity of civic matters that cannot be reduced to the "yes" or "no" of a referendum.

The referendum as a substitute for representative and responsible government, would be no improvement of the present system, which it is universally admitted, is attended with unsatisfactory results. It is founded upon the assumption that the people know what they want. This is true only in a limited sense. They may do so upon matters of sentiment or policy, but in the matter of details, in technical matters, they have to trust to men qualified to deal with such matters, on the same principle that we employ a physician or a lawyer or an architect, to deal with matters that we cannot, from the nature of circumstances and conditions, do for ourselves; and we could as reasonably expect to have any of these make a referendum to us as to expect our qualified representatives to refer to the people the question of settling the outfall sewer or he Hydro-Electric question. We elect men to deal with such matters, and they will be better attended to if we take measures that will help us to select the best men — be put into a position to vote for the men to do our business, and cease to be disfranchised in this matter as is practically done under the ward system of electing representatives.

WESTERN GRAIN CROP WORTH NEARLY A HALF BILLION

An estimate of the crops of the three western provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, has just been made by the North-West Dealers' Association, as follows:

	Acres	Bushels per acre	Yield	Value
Wheat	12,540,000	24.5	307,230,000	$276,507,000.00
Oats	6,021,000	51.2	330,000,000	165,000,000.00
Barley	1,163,000	34	39,542,000	23,851,200.00
Flax	390,000	9.2	4,304,000	6,809,200.00
Total yield, bushels			680,076,200
Total value				$462,235,400.00

Stupendous as these figures are they are believed to be, if anything, an underestimate of the crops and its great value. The North West Grain Growers' association represents in its membership all the leading grain dealers in Western Canada, as well as practically all the members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, so that the estimate rests on the highest authority. No pains or expense were spared in gathering the necessary data.

In arriving at an estimate of the values, 90 cents was allowed for wheat, 40 cents for oats, 60 cents for barley, and $1.55 for flax. Distance from market and differences in grades were duly considered. The outstanding feature of the crop is that for the most part it is grading high.

An estimate of the wheat situation as it existed on November 6, shows further the enormous wealth still in the country:

WHEAT SITUATION—NOVEMBER 6.

	Bushels
Wheat inspected to date	109,206,900
In store country points	34,400,000
In transit not inspected	8,400,000
Feed, seed and in country mills	35,000,000
Balance in farmers' hands yet to market	121,203,000

There thus is remaining in farmers' hands for delivery the enormous total of 121,203,000 bushels of wheat. Of the barley crop of the west not one-tenth has yet been marketed and even smaller percentage of flax has yet left the farmers' hands. There are also still in farmers' hands and awaiting export to the east or to British and European markets, millions of dollars worth of oats. At a conservative estimate there is still available for sale on the farms of the west, wheat and flax of the value of $115,000,000.

It is not mere blatant optimism that sees in this condition a renewed era of prosperity for the Canadian West. The West this year has really harvested two crops in one, that with the high grade and prevailing good prices will go far to enable that healthy liquidation that must precede a return to right conditions.

That the prosperity of the farm will reflect itself in the cities and industrial centres of the west must follow as a natural course. Already in Winnipeg there is to be noted a marked improvement in commercial and industrial activity. The valuable crop returns have produced a more hopeful feeling. But aside from the crop factor, war orders and the provisioning and care of 10,000 troops for the winter season have contributed materially to the activities of the city. Labour is well employed. There is a distinctly better feeling in most lines of trade. Winnipeg enters upon the winter of 1915-16 with a feeling of justified optimism.

EXPECT TWO YEARS OF WAR.

French are Confident, Says Professor Basch, Trusting in the Army

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Professor Victor Basch who holds the Chair of Aesthetics at the Sorbonne, Paris, arrived yesterday from Bordeaux on the French liner Touraine, to attend the closing ceremonies of the Panama—Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, and to deliver a series of lectures on French literature, poetry and art at the principal American Universities.

"We have made mistakes," he said, speaking of France's part in the war, "and so has England; but to-day France is on a war footing, with men, arms, and ammunition. Her soldiers fight well because they are fed well, and they know that their women and children at home are fed, which gives them stout hearts to do their duty in the trenches before the enemy. Every woman gets 25 cents a day and 10 cents for a child, so that, with the money she earns herself, the family is better off than before the war.

"I am the Vice President of the Ligue de Droit de l'Homme, which was organized during the Dreyfus crisis in France, and our duty now is to seek out the families of the soldiers who have been killed and break the news to them as gently as possible. It is a very sad office to have to carry out, but I have been surprised at the fortitude displayed by the French women in their time of anguish. They all realize the men are dying that the young children at home may live and grow up in a free land.

"In France we expect the war to last another two years. Next Spring our army will be superior to that of Germany because it will be kept up to its full strength during the Winter months with well-fed and well-clothed soldiers."

At one of the recruiting camps some recruits were being put through the riding tests. One man didn't know much about horses but trusted to luck to get through. He had not properly adjusted his saddle, and on mounting he swung—saddle and all—right under the horse's body between its legs, where he was suspended for a few seconds.

"Hi there!" yelled the non-com., in derision, "call that ridin', do you?"

"Oh, no, sergeant," was the instant answer, "that's a new trick for the Dardanelles. Riding under here is a fine protection from the sun."

GLADYS VANDERBILT MOTHERS 300 ORPHANS

Has Turned Szechenyi Palace in Budapest Into a Popular Asylum.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 25—Countess Szechenyi, formerly Gladys Vanderbilt, according to advices from Budapest, turned her palace on Andrassy Street into an orphanage, and there are now harbored 300 children under 10 years old whose fathers have been killed in the war. The orphans over 6 years of age go to school daily under charge of a governess and those under 6 receive kindergarten instruction from a male teacher.

A visit to the Szechenyi palace has become one of the popular features at Budapest, and the street often is filled with people looking on at the orphans playing in the gardens. Whenever the Countess appears the children surround her, calling her "Mother Gladys," and the crowds outside cheer.

CONSTIPATIENTS

Read This—

It must be remembered that the bowels should move freely once a day to ensure perfect health. When such is not the case the poisonous waste material is absorbed into the system, thus producing a self blood poisoning.

The causes of Constipation are many and varied. Among the more common may be mentioned poor stomach digestion, a deficiency of bile in the intestines, a lack of secretion in the bowels, and a want of the natural muscular contraction of the intestines from above downward.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, sold everywhere at 25c and 60c, stimulates and restores the stomach digestion, increases the flow of bile into the intestine, causes a flow from the intestinal glands, and restores the natural downward action of the intestines, rendering it easy to secure a free action of the bowels, which is one of the most important requisites to health. 1

BOYS FRAMED UP ROBBERY

Young Messenger Pretended He Was Tied Up and Gagged.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—An alleged assault and robbery at McGill University last Friday was a "frame up," admitted Leslie Fox, a sixteen-year-old messenger, who claimed he was tied up and robbed of over $50 on the stairs of the engineering building by two other boys, Samuel Fedore and Charles Bennett.

They met Fox in the engineering building, handed him the rope with which he was to be bound. Fox turned over to Fedore, who was the leader, the money in the pay envelopes, which was to be divided equally.

THE KNOCK OUT

HOW many rounds before the KNOCK OUT? That knock out blow, when "MR. OUT-OF-TOWN TRADE" gets his final "wallop" from HOME INTERESTS. Are WE in training for it? Here is a fight in which the interests of the entire country are ONE. It is ALL of us—you and me and OUR children and OUR neighbours, OUR town and OUR neighbouring towns—AGAINST this one evil. OUR champion is OURSELVES—All of us, welded together into ONE co-operative whole. WILL OUR man win? And when? It all depends on us. If we THINK as ONE MAN, act as ONE MAN, trade at home as ONE MAN, then we are in good training for that final knock out. In reality WE are not at the ring side. WE are IN the fight. In this picture we see OURSELVES, arrayed as HOME INTERESTS, triumphant.

French Headquarters Near Strumnitza Station, Nov. 20.—With permission of General Sarrail, in command of the French troops in the Balkans, I have spent an interesting day at the French front on the Belasitchitza Mountains, in the north part of the so-called Doiran enclave Serbia.

It is a picturesque corner. This is Serbia's Macedonian Ultima Thule. The higher mountains to the north are Bulgaria. The first radiance of the white dawn illuminates the Krusscha Mountains to the east, and the Pirok Peak on to the south, and these are Greece.

A breakfast time General Baillond received me, and placed an officer and a motor car at the disposal of our small party, so that we might visit the French position to the right of the line in this part of the country. We sped along past camp after camp. Here were the French, there the British. The batteries were hidden in corners, and activity was everywhere. The place first to be visited was Hill 116, which the French took only a few days ago after a severe fight. The towerlike eminence was pockmarked with shell holes, and shrapnel bullets could be picked up by handfuls. From there we crossed the Bulgarian artillery fire zone to reach Hill 516, which dominates the surrounding region. "In single file!" the officer cried out to the little party, and just at that moment the enemy's shrapnel began to scream overhead and burst on the brow of the hill to the south. The aim was wide or the range too long, for the shells found a harmless billet on the vacant, bare hillside. Hill 516 was much as it was when the French, a few days ago, put the Bulgarians out of their position there. The hill having been thoroughly searched with heavy shell fire, the French took it with a splendid rush, and their losses were well under 150. The Bulgarians lost at the lowest estimate 500. One trench half a dozen yards long had fifty of the enemy's dead in it, and many dead were found on the top. Rifles were abandoned by the hundreds, cartridges by the thousand. The Bulgars save several times attempted to retake the hill, but have been easily repulsed.

A striking feature of this new campaign is its complete dissimilarity to that of France and Flanders. There are no lines of elaborate trenches. The latter consists of shallow dug-outs at the brows of the hills and at any convenient spot. They are only a few yards long. They are broken and shrub-covered, the ground providing excellent cover. Little concealment is required, as the enemy is not provided with aeroplanes.

The French positions struck me as being very strong, though it should not be forgotten that the fighting in this campaign is as yet in the nature of manoeuvring for position until the definite advance begins.

I also visited the extreme right of the position here at Gradeets. That village was carried a few days ago by a brilliant French dash, and strong positions beyond the village were taken and consolidated immediately after. During the last day or two the fighting on the Cerna front has been more severe than elsewhere. A fierce combat in the gorge of the River Rajec, a tributary of the Cerna, mark of the furthest point of the French advance from the direction of Drenovo, on the right bank of the Cerna. The French, however, hold a strong position in the gorge and at an important bridge head at Toysarts. This is the controlling point of communication between the strong French position on the heights of Archangel, facing Gradsko on the Saloniki-Nish Railway and dominating the route toward Veles. To-day light infantry is in possession of the gorge, which makes a strong position, though open to fire from the heights in possession of the enemy.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Hessburger, 19 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

General Marston was attending court at a small country town when a young attorney made a motion that was denied by the court. The young man remonstrated against what he thought was the wrong ruling of the judge so vehemently did he do so that he was fined $10 for contempt of court. An older attorney took the matter up and he was fined a similar sum. Still another who thought that he stood a little better with the judge endeavored to straighten the matter out, but he too enriched the coffers of the state by paying a "ten spot" for contempt.

General Marston was then seen to rise in his seat and advance to the clerk's desk. Taking his long pocket book from his pocket he took out two $10 bills and laid them on his desk.

"What is that for?" said the judge.

"I want you to distinctly understand," said the general, "that I have just twice as much contempt for this court as any man here, and I am paying for it."

BRIGHTER CHILDREN

Children are probably brighter to-day than a generation ago—but are they stronger? That's a grave question. So many pinched faces, dulled eyes and languid feeling make us wonder if they will ever grow into robust, healthy men and women.

If your children catch colds easily, are tired when rising, lack healthy color, or find studies difficult, give them Scott's Emulsion for one month to enrich their blood and restore the body-forces to healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion is used in private schools. It is not a "patent medicine", simply a highly concentrated oil-food, free from harmful drugs. It cannot harm; it improves blood; it benefits lungs and strengthens the system. Your druggist has it—refuse substitutes.

WAR'S AGONY MAKES LIFE DEARER THAN EVER, SAYS WINTER

Hospitals Tell Tales—Nursing and Doctoring Reach Higher Standards of Perfection.

It is sometimes said of the great war that it has cheapened the value of the individual life, says the London Daily Mail.

This is a piece of false reasoning. Its logical application would be that the doctor should take less care of his patient, the parent less care of the child, the community less care of the weak, charity less care of the unfortunate, and (to pursue the idea still logical) that the engine-driver for instance, should take less care of his living freight.

It is poor tribute to the countless heroic who are fighting for us to maintain that this thing for which they are fighting is of little worth. For what are they fighting for but for the lives, the freedom, and the futures of all us civilians? And what were most of them, a few short months ago, but civilians themselves. The gallantry and manhood of our country have gone forth to war not out of abstract patriotism so much as out of concrete affection for their women, their children, and their fellows who are too old to join them. With the greatest generosity that can shine in humanity they have gone forth to wager their own lives against lives that they love. It is just because the individual's life still remains as dear and hugged by him as it ever was—and as nature intended it to be—that the glory of the soldier's offering is so great. If you belittle the value of civilians life you obliquely belittle the value of the soldier's life and the cause for which he risks it.

Life Dearer Still.

It would be the worst of all endings of this great agony of the world if we are to accept the paradox that it has cheapened human life. It would be a revision to pure paganism. It would be Prussianism triumphant and the kaiserdom of humanity. The gage was flung down by Germany because the new paganism of Germany believes that the individual's life in only a pawn for the "state". The gage was taken up by the allies because the old Christianity of European civilization believes that the individual's life is dear to him, but that without freedom it would be worth little. If the losses of war are to dull us to the value of the life of the individual it will be a negative of all human progress. If we begin to cheapen life, we begin to cheapen the care of life. We would no longer be greatly troubled if, taking the law in their own hands, citizens lynched a suspect, if fire ravaged insufficiently guarded cities, if terrible accidents came of carelessness, if the hard struggle of the fittest trod the weak into the mire.

So far from having cheapened individual life, the greater of all wars will end in a far greater appraisment of it. "Children are stock," say the cottagers in the country villages, and by that they mean stock that carries dividends at maturity. So all we individuals have now more than ever become stock to the state, and it will be for the days of peace to see that the stock is not less cherished but more cherished.

The great scientist dying now during Armageddon is a still greater loss to his England than he would have been before August 1914; the young mother slain in a street accident is a greater loss to-day; the victim of preventable disease or of a railway accident, or those who fall in the hard-breathing race of toil—all of them are worth less than those lives in ships and trenches, they are yet human bullets for the state.

There is a great deal of can't talked about this unimportance of the single life. It is just because the single life is so valuable to the community, so precious and brief to the individual and irrecoverable when lost, that we are moved, and properly moved, to the grief that passes tears when we scan those daily casualty lists and their record of ineffably notable oblation. Everyone has experienced how much more poignant that emotion becomes when instead of a list of perhaps three thousand you look in some illustrated paper on a page of photographs of perhaps only twenty of the slain. It is simply because they have immediately become individuals each of them an individual in features, characteristics, and expression, each of them more certainly still an individual in that strongest instinct of all nature, and sacrifice of which is their greatest glory, the instinct of the individual to survive, the spirit in the individual that makes life a possession of more joys than sorrows, more sweets than bitters, more pleasures than pains, a thing of eternal and conguine expectation, a thing of loveliness that he can hand to no heir or assigne, his own, and only his own.

Facing a New Future.

The war has not made human life worth less; it has made it worth more. It has made the individual's life worth more to the shrunk community that will need each individual life so much; it has made the individual's life worth more to himself. At the end of the war there will not be a man or woman in Europe who will not be like an ant put to work to repair a smashed nest. Already the life of every civilian individual has become a tool in the hand of the state or else why the National Registration? Life has become worth more to the individual because, for better or worse, every individual of us stands at the gate of an entirely new life. In August 1914 the history of the world went round a blind corner. We are beginning to realize that it was not an era but an aeon that ended in those days. The "optimist" and the "pessimist" agree like that, whatever befalls, our old world will never come back to us. We stand on a new planet and we confront a new existence.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. G. Morgan, Huntsville, Ont., writes:—"I wish every mother and especially young mothers knew the value of Baby's Own Tablets. They have certainly worked wonders with our baby. She was troubled with colic and constipation and cried all the time, but the Tablets soon put her right and she is now a fine healthy child." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A drill sergeant was drilling the recruit squad in the use of the rifle. Everything went smoothly until blank cartridges were distributed. The recruits were instructed to load their pieces and stand at the "ready," and then the sergeant gave the command:

"Fire at will!"

Private Perilous was puzzled. He lowered his gun.

"Which one is Will?" he asked.—London Tit-Bits.

FORESTERS SWELL RANKS.

Big Percentage Has Gone to the Front.

Probably no other profession in this country is able to show such a percentage of enlisted men as that of forestry. A rough estimate made by one of the professors in the Faculty of Forestry, Toronto University places the number of foresters enrolled in the practice of forestry or allied occupations at 62 and the number enlisted to 20th October, at 20 or 7% enlisted. Reports in Ottawa for recruiting 27 have enlisted.

In other words of the Canadian foresters engaged in their profession 32 per cent. have enlisted, while of the students 37 per cent. have enlisted. The two combined show an enlistment of 30 per cent. which is now the two per cent. enlistment for the country. There is probably a greater percentage of enlistment than from any other profession in Canada's experience.

A Smooth, White Skin That Defies Weather

During the coming months of biting winds and intense cold you who would keep your skins smooth, white and velvety should turn your attention to mercolized wax. Nothing else will so effectively remove a chapped, roughened or discolored surface. By gradually absorbing the weather-beaten cuticle, the complexion is kept in perfect condition and even the beauty of expression appears more pronounced. If your skin be blotchy, pimply, freckled, coarse, sallow or over-red, why not shed it? One ounce of ordinary mercolized wax, to be had at any druggist's, will completely transform the most unsightly complexion in less than a fortnight. Use the wax nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.

If weather, age or poor health has marred your face with wrinkles, here's good news. You can quickly remove every line by using a harmless, refreshing face lotion prepared by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in 1/2 pint witch hazel. The finer, smoother skin, the more youthful appearance, even after one application will astonish you.

If they arrange to buy at a time when it is most convenient for the merchant to care for theirs, they profit still more, either in further saving or in special advantages. So it is with the club.

This club is an actual form of co-operative buying, through which savings, privileges and advantages are possible in the purchase of standard pianos and player pianos.

This club is to be organized at once and will be limited to 50 members. The membership is $1.00, but this is refunded if you do not buy or if your application is rejected.

The only requirement of a club member is that he is in the market for a piano or a piano-player. By joining the club you are under no obligation to buy, but if you want to buy you will obtain every club advantage if you make your purchase before Xmas.

But remember, although you may have until Xmas to make your selection, the club will be closed as soon as 50 members are secured "join now," is the safest way.

THE INSTRUMENTS

This Club is run in co-operation with the old established firm of J. M. Greene Music Co., Ltd.

It is for an order of 50 Christmas Instruments now within the next few weeks that they are willing to give all the advantages offered to the members of this Club. Such a sale of 50 instruments at this time is actually worth these sacrifices to a house like Greene's.

PLAYER-PIANOS

If it is a Player-Piano you want, you may select from Greene's complete line of "truly Canadian" Sweet Toned Ennis or the "Artists Choice" New Scale Williams Player-Pianos.

These Player-Pianos are made by the old established firm. The Williams Piano Co., Ltd., of Oshawa who have made Pianos for 66 years. Their instruments are Canada's best known—the choice of the world's great musicians for Canadian use. Greene's have thousands of satisfied Piano-Players.

STATISTICS CONCERNING INFANT MORTALITY IN PETERBOROUGH

Average Number of Deaths From Enteritis For Thirteen Years is 2.25 Based on an Assessed Population of 20,150—Extracts From the Report of Dr. George Clinton, District Officer of Health.

The thirty-third annual report of the Provincial Board of Health covering the work of the past year contains the appended statistics concerning the number of yearly deaths in Peterborough from enteritis. Considerable attention has been given to infant mortality by the local health department. One of the most serious losses under the general heading "infant mortality," is that known as enteritis. This is a form of intestinal trouble common to infants.

Assessed population 20,150
Maximum year 4.6.
Minimum year 92
Average for thirteen years 2.25
Average yearly deaths from enteritis, 1902-13 2.17
Average number of births for year, exclusive of still births registered, 1902-12, 367
Births registered in 1914 476.

Dr. Clinton's Report.

In the same report, Dr. George Clinton, District Officer of Health, for District No. 4, of which Peterborough city and county forms a part, has the following to say:

Summer Resorts.

During parts of July and August accompanied by Dr. Bell I visited all the summer resorts on Kawartha Lakes, Lake of Bays, Lake Muskoka, Mare Lake, Peninsular Lake, Sparrow Lake, in all about 125 places.

We first published the requirements regarding sewage disposal, water supply, care of garbage, and screening windows with the exception of three places which were notified that unless required changes were made the places would be closed for 1915.

On three of the passenger boats on Muskoka Lake they have tanks for sewage which is sterilized by steam before discharging into the Lake. The balance of the fleet to be supplied with similar tanks for season of 1915. I understand that this is the first place in America where the problem of sewage disposal of steam boats is as complete as this system. All supply boats were notified that they would be required to have either chemical or dry earth closets.

All the hotels that had waterworks had septic tanks and sub-soil drainage. Others had dry earth closets. No closets were discharging direct into the lakes.

Slaughter Houses.

Many have been inspected, and very few are found to be up to the requirements. A number had to be condemned. Now that we have new regulations, and a copy given to each butcher, our work along this line should be easier, more especially if we can secure an active local sanitary inspector.

Scarlet Fever.

On January 8th made a special trip to Bethany to investigate a report of carelessness in looking after an epidemic of scarlet fever. On reaching there I found Mr. Preston, M.P.P., was secretary of the local Board of Health, and Dr. Clarke, of Pontypool, Medical Officer of Health.

Everything had been done to stamp out the disease and the complainant acknowledged his report was only from rumours.

Roumanians Say Their Policy Is One of Self-Preservation

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—One of the last issues of the Balkan Courier, published by the Servians at their former capital, Nish, contained a long explanation of Rumanian attitude written by a prominent Rumanian statesman.

"When it comes to declaring war," writes the Rumanian, "we are bound to tell you frankly that we are too weak to defend ourselves. You will understand that you in Servia are surprised at Rumania's inactivity in the face of Bulgaria's attack on you. But our attitude is dictated by the circumstances which we have to face. It were a matter of a conflict between Bulgaria and Servia we should not hesitate to take up arms on your side, as indeed we did in 1913. Unhappily this is not a war with Bulgaria only, but it is a question of participating in the terrific struggle between the Germanic powers and the Quadruple Entente. Servia has not been attacked by Bulgaria but by Germany with Bulgaria as a subsidiary ally.

"Now that the great Powers of the Quadruple Entente are sure of the enormous and lasting advantages which accrue from the intervention of Italy, Portugal, the Balkan Peninsula and Greece, they will also [illegible] We all know what Germany would do if she [illegible] We know what the Quadruple Entente will do. You know well enough what the Quadruple Entente [illegible] at the Quadruple Entente [illegible] Sept. 5, 1914 [illegible] Rumania [illegible] peace [illegible] let us remain absolutely [illegible] during the war. But respect [illegible] the [illegible] Russia and Italy [illegible] of its own free will [illegible] result is that [illegible] situation the Quadruple Entente [illegible] obliged to conclude a separate peace [illegible] shall be adopted and [illegible] even though [illegible] but a [illegible] neutral [illegible]

"Now will you [illegible] our [illegible] circumstances [illegible] country, and particularly Rumania [illegible] with her duty [illegible] to [illegible] be stifled, must take [illegible] for the [illegible] [illegible] turn for the [illegible] Quadruple Entente [illegible]

The final victory of the Quadruple Entente is certain. We do not doubt it, but it must be admitted that this victory is likely to be long delayed. The English on their island, can afford to wait for victory, but Rumania cannot afford to incur the hostility of Germany and Austria while waiting for the end of the war, for in the intervening period she might easily suffer the fate of Belgium and share the destruction meted out to Serbia. You Serbians may say that this is a selfish policy. I assure you it is merely a policy of self preservation. You cannot reasonably demand that we should expose our country to the terrible danger of making a merciless enemy without possessing a guarantee that his opponents will support us."

A telephone which is claimed to be explosion proof and flame proof has been invented in England but may [illegible] or anywhere that explosive [illegible] present.

WALSH CASE WAS DISMISSED

Plaintiff Brought Action Against the Township of Asphodel

NORWOOD, Nov. 27.—The adjourned sitting of the Division Court case of John Walsh vs. the Township of Asphodel was held in the Council Chamber, Norwood, before His Honour Judge Huycke. Walsh's suit against the township was for a claim of $27.00 for refund of taxes and road work. A large number of witnesses were subpoenaed, including the township officials, Hastings bank manager, and others.

Mr. F. D. Kerr of Peterborough acted on behalf of the township. Mr. Walsh did not employ any lawyer.

The Judge, after hearing the evidence, dismissed the case with costs against the plaintiff for the second day's sitting. The Township was charged with the costs of the first day's sitting.

HUGE SHELL ORDER COMING

Proposals Under Way Involve Great Extension of Work of Making Munitions for Allies.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—Proposals now under way involve a very large extension in the work of the Canadian Munitions Committee. The baking [illegible] are called upon to [illegible] to [illegible] and have all the [illegible] financed by Canada, while a [illegible] proportion of Russian and [illegible] as well as British, shell orders are expected to be secured for Canada.

The shell orders given in prospect amount to about $300,000,000. This [illegible] very greatly increased. Hitherto all payments have been made from British funds. Hereafter the business is to be financed in Canada, British [illegible] of exchange being taken by the Canadian banks.

Better Than Wheat Crops.

Messrs. Hellens and Brand, who recently came to Canada as representatives of the Right Hon. Lloyd-George, are now working on the plans for extending the scope of the committee's operations to include orders from all the Allies, and it is figured out that there will be a tremendous development in the munitions business.

AUSTRALIANS' HEROISM ON TORPEDOED SHIP

"Not Afraid to Die!" They Cried—General Gave Life For Others

LONDON, Nov. 24—Details of the perfect discipline maintained by the Australian troops when the transport Southland was torpedoed some time ago have been received by Captain C. E. W. Bean, the official press representative with the Australians at the Dardanelles.

The transport was carrying the men to Lemnos. The torpedo tore a hole forty feet by twelve on the port side. The men turned out immediately, ran straight to their proper places, and lined up. Their officers shouted "Steady, boys, that's the one thing! Steady!

The Southland was listing heavily to port. Afterward the list changed with a lurch to starboard, but the men stood there. The discipline was perfect.

In the forward part of the ship they could see a hatch broken in and water washing about the dark spaces of the hold, with the bodies of some of their comrades who had been killed by the explosion floating about in it.

"Bad luck, that two and a half months in the desert should end in this!" said one.

"Are we downhearted?" called another.

"No!" they all shouted. "Are we afraid to die?"

"Are there enough boats for all?" one of the men was asked by his officer. "I don't know," was the reply. "The best thing we can do is to cut down some of those horse boxes in case they are necessary." So a party set to work with might and main, chopping down part of the temporary fittings.

Meanwhile some of the boats were launched, but owing to the haste one or two overturned. An order came: "Six men wanted to jump into the sea and right an overturned lifeboat." Six men came forward instantly, dived over, righted the overturned boat, and baled her out.

By 12 o'clock the last boat had left the ship. It contained the General and his staff, who were traveling by this ship. During the long wait the men amused themselves by singing songs.

There remained on the Southland the Captain, officers, some members of the crew, and a number of Australian officers and men who had volunteered to stoke the ship and bring her to port. The vessel eventually reached Mudros.

One of the officers who saw the incident states that General Linton was seen in the water, swimming well. Some one shouted to him, "How are you getting on, Sir?" He answered, "I'm doing all right. I'll see the others first."

Voice of The People

Dear Sir,—Looking through one of a paper the other day I notice an instance of a man who is giving up his real business to go to the Patriotic Fund. Who is the authorities of this city to allow or refuse that young man to do so when children who have been working ever since their parents could walk should be allowed to do so. It is all right making them look after themselves in many cases than the actual giver. In my opinion it should never have occurred. What some of the officials in the office is of this awful war office is an benefitting.

Trusting you will find room for this in your valuable paper I remain,

Yours etc.,

A Subscriber to the Patriotic Fund.

MINSTREL SHOW BY T. A. S. WAS FINE SUCCESS

Played to Capacity Crowd and Many Could Not Gain Admittance—Smooth Performance and Real Talent

WITHOUT A HITCH

The boys of St. Peter's T.A.S., assisted by several of the older members, scored another minstrel success in the entertainment they staged last night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum. It was a finished performance and pleased the large audience present. The songs were well chosen and were placed with capable soloists. The chorus was strong and nicely balanced.

Throughout the first part was a good line of jokes by the men in black and altogether this section was bright, snappy and ably handled. The orchestra proved a valuable aid to the evening's concert. Their selections were pleasingly rendered, and Miss Gorman's accompaniments were most acceptable. Mr. Vincent McCabe made a fine impression as interlocutor, and made the most of his opportunities. Messrs. George Lynch and James O'Brien had a prominent part in the programme and made a hit with their monologues and jokes. The dancing specialties were uniformly good.

While it is scarcely fair to the others who without exception got their songs across in fine style, to single out individuals, it might be remarked that Mr. Ed. Bartley and Mr. Ed. Hanrahan sang particularly well. The quartette also deserves a reference. Mr. Houlihan, Mr. Quinlan and the Murty brothers provided an exceptionally good display of dancing only surpassed by Mr. Geo. Lynch's stunts. Mr. Will Mohler's exemplification of modern terpsichore in comedy vein with his song was very gracefully done. In fact the whole programme was of uniform standard with talent approaching professional calibre. Only a few of the boys who appeared last night were in the concerts of several years ago, indicating the successful coaching of the older members who lend their assistance.

The Programme.

Opening Chorus "Night Time Down in Dixie Land" Solo, V. McCabe "Ysplanti" Frank Grady
"When I was a Dreamer" Ed. Bartley.
"Tulip Time in Holland" Leo Picard
"Gasoline Gus" Murty Brothers.
"Caroline"—Joe Clancy
"My Little Girl" E. Cronin
"The Big Bass Viol" Ed. Hanrahan
"Everybody Rag" Will Mohler.
"Little Gray Mother" Will Collins.
"Alabama Jubilee" Sam Houlihan.
"When You're a Long Way from Home" Arthur Costello
"When I Leave the World Behind" Jos. Minicola.

Olio.

Monologue—George Lynch
Hard-shoe buck and wing—Dave Quinlan.
Trombone solo—D. Memmo.
Quartette selection—Will Mohler, Jo. Minnicola, Ed. Hanrahan and Ed. Bartley.
Waltz clog—Sam Houlihan
Monologue—Jas. O'Brien
Buck and wing—Murty Brothers.
Closing Chorus.

The endmen were S. Houlihan, J. O'Brien, W. Mohler, F. Grady, M. Murty, and Ed. Murty.

The orchestra was composed of the following: Piano, Miss Marion Gorman; cornet, Jos. Minnicola, trombone D. Memmo, 1st violin, V. McCabe, 2nd violins, J. McCabe and J. Conlon, drums, Frank Lynch.

"Knocker 8499" Beats Out His Knocks

November 26, 1915.

To Editor of the Examiner

Dear Sir,—It seems to be the general opinion of the best element of our city that there is and has been for some time something wrong with the system and the management of our municipal affairs. If someone would go to our banking institutions, mercantile or manufacturing industries and stop the management from discharging, criticising, or finding fault with their employees because at the present time to do so would be unpatriotic, then the working class would be in the same position as the Government officials and the municipal authorities. And why not? This would place a number of working men on Easy Street for the winter, and under those circumstances some of them would be easy enough to work would never end.

Of course, our Mayor and board of aldermen are above taking advantage of anything of this nature. Were not the honours that they enjoy thrust upon them, they would not make tools of electors by catering to the narrow minds of some of them in order to get such a thankless job. Of course we wanted them in every case more than they wanted the honour of being our representatives. If some of them were shovellers in most of them were hand-picked by the workingmen, and if some electors do not get the same consideration as others, that may be the price they are paying for their independence (it comes high sometimes) if one is not satisfied and has no scruples. We have lodges from twenty-five cents up and the greatest is not always the best, so let him get on the mat with the rest of the gang.

Taking everything into consideration, this bunch that is running the city selected and appointed might be worse if we stopped spoon-feeding them. We must not say anything about shady transactions in connection with paving contracts, as then they would come back and call us knockers. It would be wrong for the working class to call their attention to the fact that their interests were neglected in regard to receiving a fair share of the money paid out in the city for munition of war. They would be called kickers. They would tell us that the working class should not foul their own nest, and that would be right, for God knows it is dirtied enough by the big interests and those elected and appointed to keep it clean. As the working men are not real estate dealers, they should be given some legitimate reason why they should boost the town.

As a well-regulated city, we have not got them all beat, the working men are still able to work; his family is small, but large families are not fashionable now. Anyway, some of them have got to sweat for bread for many others; they must be intellectually weak, as they have to work with their hands. This was a good old honest way when father was a boy; honest men are not all frozen out as a means of getting up in this age, it is very much out of date, strictly started yet. We ought to be thankful for not having started to kill each other. We are a liberty-loving, neighbourly people, who would not believe all we hear about others who differ from us in politics and religion if it did not suit our party to do so.

Knocker 8499.

LITERARY RAMBLES

A few days ago, whilst engaged in sorting some private papers, I came across an old tin box, containing a heterogeneous collection of receipts, letters, cancelled insurance policies and other useless documents. Delving among these, and with little thought of discovering anything of more than negative value, my hand brought to the surface an ancient scrap-book. I recognized it at once as one of my very oldest possessions. It was forty years since I had pasted anything into its pages and fully twenty since I had even opened it. Strange as it may appear, I did not welcome its re-appearance with any degree of warmth. Knowledge of much of its contents had long since faded from my memory, but certain amateur efforts at versifying with which I had embellished its blank spaces certainly had not. I feared to face them and it was with an effort amounting to positive pain that I at last freed myself to gaze once more upon the outpourings of my boyish muse. I have no intention whatever of inflicting any of these gems of poesy upon my readers. They are doing no harm where they are and their publication could not possibly add one iota to the satiety of nations or lessen by one drop the misery with which the world is now brimming over. But there was much that was of interest in the printed matter and I offer herewith a few odd items for the delectation of my readers.

The first thing that strikes the eye is an account of a steam yacht built by the English firm of Thorneycroft & Co. for Baron Rothschild, for her use on Lake Geneva. This vessel," the item reads, "although only 91 ft. long by 13 1-2 beam, just large enough to contain the accommodation for a lady's comfortable cruising on the lake, was attained and kept up a speed greater than that of any ocean steamer afloat, and only equalled perhaps, by some of the largest American steamers." This paragraph gives a tolerable insight into the advance made in steam navigation since that time, for the article goes on to say that the speed guaranteed was 18 English statute miles per hour in a run of two hours. To do the yacht justice her actual time was 43 miles in one hour and forty eight minutes. She was thought a wonder in those days.

The next item we come to concerns the early ritualistic troubles of the Church of England. One of those who suffered for standing firm to his religious convictions was a Mr. Tooth, rector of Hatcham in Surrey. Mr. Tooth was placed in durance vile for contempt of the Court of Arches. It is curious to note how the general outlook has changed in forty years. To-day the very practices for which Mr. Tooth suffered imprisonment are widely in vogue and are engaged in without comment. For a time he was the most talked of man in England. Someone made merry at his expense in the following high class quatrain:

"If Hatcham Tooth sticks to his jaw
And drives the Church distracted,
Will not he stopped or obey the law
That Tooth must be extracted."

And Punch waxed humorous as follow. The sympathy of the English Church Union with Mr. Tooth may be heightened by a feeling peculiar to Englishmen, admiration of an offender who shows himself game. Undoubtedly the contemner of the Court of Arches is game to the back-bone, but the game is too high."

Turning over a page we come to a graphic account of the grand Durbar held at Delhi on the occasion of the proclamation of Queen Victoria as Empress of India. The part dealing with the reception of the Khan of Khelat and his followers, who had never till then seen steamboats, railways or telegraphs, makes instructive reading. The authorities seem to have had considerable trouble in keeping the Khan and his suite from pocketing the knives and forks which were laid for them at their meals.

Then there is a long and very graphic description of service at St. Helena, by an ex-soldier, who was one of the guardians of the Emperor Napoleon. A most interesting account is given of Napoleon's last days, of the preparations made for his interment and of the general fear Sir Hudson Lowe, the governor of the island, has been held up so often in an unflattering light as a man of harsh character that it is refreshing in regard to his behaviour to his men. He wasn't a bad gentleman, a very kind, nice man. I've seen him nearly a time with his lady and two daughters nice young ladies they were. They used to keep a carriage drawn by two bullocks. I've seen 'em come to the church where was near Boney's quarters. He would lean on his pew door and he would never sit down till he had everyone. Boys ain't all accommodated with seats. If he saw a bare-footed man a shave without a seat, he would beckon to him and see him seated." "Boney was the fattest man I ever saw the calves of his legs and his cheeks too, you might see them shake as he was walking and yet he had not the ruddy, healthy look our people have. He would carry a stick about as thick as my walking stick with an iron spud at the end and if he saw a weed he would always smite it up anywhere where he went." This man was one of the bearers at Napoleon's funeral.

Next we have a full description of the State entry of the Duke of Marlborough into Dublin as Viceroy of Ireland. One sentence in it shows how fast time flies. "There came over with H.E. Grace's family his grandson, Master Winston Spencer Churchill, who was held up in his nurse's arms and cheered by the people."

Two or three pages are taken up with an account of the then fresh discoveries of Dr. Schliemann at Mycenae, in Greece. Mycenae is one of the most ancient places in Greece and these discoveries of Dr. Schliemann threw a flood of light upon the earliest Greek art, particularly in the department of pottery. They were the first important finds of the early class a class which has since been recognized in many ancient Greek settlements and now goes by the name of Mycenean. Dr. Schliemann made a present of his treasure trove to the Greek nation and most of the objects found are now in the museum at Athens.

Many other items in this little scrap book might be commented on but space forbids. Enough perhaps has been written to show how very interesting, instructive and valuable a scrapbook may be made, especially so if the items contained therein are properly tabulated and indexed.

PARK ST. BAPTIST BIBLE CLASS HAD PLEASANT EVENING

The Young Men's Bible class of the Park street Baptist church held an oyster supper and social time in the school room last night that was very much enjoyed. A musical programme was provided by Sergt. Major Bert Hartshorn and his brother. Norman and Fred. Walter Faint, Jim Shotton, Harry Goodwin and Mr. Dodsley. A very pleasant evening was spent. Rev. Donald Brown presided.

Yonkers became a city in 1872 and had a population of 79,803 in 1900, which swelled to 91,418 in 1905, a percentage of 2.70 of 4.6. Rochester is the only other city which excelled this rate, its gain equalling 16.4.

THE GRENFELL OF THE PACIFIC

A Sailor Parson and His Work---Capt. Smith to Be in Peterborough

Few religious enterprises have more fondly appealed to Peterborough people than Dr. Grenfell of Labrador. It will be of interest to learn that the equally wild and isle-strewn coast of the Pacific is being cared for by just such another man, though with a different personality. John Antle will be in Peterborough on Monday.

John Antle was born on the wild coast of Newfoundland, we might almost say cradled by the rocks and hailed by the ocean winds. He is a son of a sea captain and as a boy sailed and managed his own boat. After ordination, he plunged at once into mission work, first as a sailor-missionary along the Atlantic coast then for a while in the United States then in Vancouver City. But the sailor instinct was strong within him and in 1904 he set off in a boat built by his own hands to take a summer holiday as far as Alert Bay. He met the loggers as he went and greatly attracted them by his manly, straightforward ways and ready sympathy. It was then he found his life-work.

Now look at the men for whom he is giving his time, talents, money—yes, his very life. The loggers carry on the lumber work on the coasts of the Georgian Gulf. They chop and saw the gigantic trees, cut them in lengths, follow them down the skids roads, work the donals and engines, act as foremen, etc. Their wages are from three to five dollars a day. They are naturally manly, generous, and frank as out-of-door workers often are, but denied of necessity, the comfort and enjoyment of home and friends, they turned for solace to the drinking saloons with which the settlements abound. Body and soul the men were being ruined, their earnings of weeks squandered in a few hours.

Before Mr. Antle began his work of redemption, there was not one to hold a helping hand—to dress their wounds in the frequent accidents to which they are exposed from falling logs and other danger. When a man took ill or had a limb broken, he would have to wait the chance arrival of a boat, or else die in the woods unattended and often alone. No doctor, no nurse, no church, no Gospel. The heart of the missionary was stirred to its very depths with compassion. Returning from his holiday he represented earnestly what he had seen, pleading earnestly for help. Enough money was collected to build and equip a Mission ship, and the brave little craft the Columbia—plied busily day and night on her errands of mercy with her devoted captain at the wheel or holding Divine service in the cabin or alleviating the sufferings of the wounded.

Later on, hospitals were erected with nurses and doctors. This was the beginning of the great Mission, which now extends from Alert Bay to Van Anda.

The burden was growing too heavy for the young life that had stepped into the breach against the forces of sin and suffering; so again, Mr Antle came home to plead the cause of the logger, in Canada and the Old Country. The result was a fine, new Mission-ship, built at a cost of $25,000, equipped with al necessaries for the work. The Church of England service is held in the cabin which contains the Lord's table, surmounted by the emblem of our faith; and the surgery can boast of a complete outfit, even to the X-ray apparatus, which has been instrumental in saving many a lumberman's life. As to assistants, Mr. Antle no longer works alone; a few others are sharing the splendid work which he continues to direct.

Captain Antle has kindly undertaken to give an informal lecture describing the scenes of his heroic labours, in St John's School House next Monday evening, illustrating it with beautiful limelight views. No admission fee will be asked.

LIQUID CATARRH REMEDIES USELESS, ONLY RELIEVE, NEVER CURE

They go direct to the stomach, have very little effect on the lining of the nose and throat, and entirely fail to cure. Only by cleansing the air passages, by relieving the inflammation and killing the germs is cure possible. No combination of antiseptics is so successful as Catarrhozone. In breathing it you send the richest pine balsams right to the seat of the disease. Irritating phlegm is cleared out, hoarseness, coughing and hacking are cured. For a permanent cure for Catarrh, nothing equals Catarrhozone, get it to-day, but beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers sell Catarrhozone, large size containing two months treatment, costs $1.00, small size 50c, sample size 25c.

THE SPLENDID SERB.

By your old mens bones on the mountains,
By the blood of your youth on the plains,
By your sisters unashed for your holy dead,
By the children of your slain,
Ye who fought till no fight availeth,
Oh Serbs 'tis the hour to shield
All that is left of your people—
The hour to yield!"

Hark! on the hill-winds ringing
O'er the thundrous drums of war,
From the snowy height of Kara Dagh
To the valleys of Vardar,
The splendid Serb had answered
From a patriot's soul of flame,
Better to die in honor
Than live in shame!"

It is said ... it is done. "Till we perish
We fight and we ask not why.
Back from our blackened homes and fields
Till we've nothing left but the sky,
Till the last last man on the last low hill
Shall cry as death calls his name
Better to die in honor
Than live in shame!"

O world of men and sorrows!
In words of immortal light
The whole of the art of living
The creed of eternal right
Comes down from the Serbian summit.
For each man's soul the same
"Better to die in Honor
Than live in shame!"

BRITISH GUNS DEMOLISH MANY ENEMY TRENCHES

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The following official statement was issued last night by the War Office:

Gen. French reports that our artillery has successfully bombarded many portions of the enemy's trenches during the past four days, destroying wire entanglements and reaching their parapets. To the bombardments the enemy made little reply. The enemy artillery, however, has been active north of Albert, north of Loos, north of Ploegsteert and east of the Ypres.

"On the evening of the 22nd the enemy made a heavy bombing attack on a mine crater held by our troops south of the Bethune-La Bassee road, but was repulsed. Mining has been constant on both sides during the last few days. On the 23rd we exploded a mine north of the Bethune-La Bassee road and occupied the crater. On the 24th the enemy exploded a mine south of Cuinchy, causing some damage to our trenches. A hostile bombing attack against the crater was repulsed. Thursday the enemy exploded mines near Carnov and Givenchy.

"On the 25th 28 of our aeroplanes successfully bombed a German hut encampment at Achiet le Grand, northeast of Albert. The enemy replied with a single aeroplane, which dropped bombs near Bray, doing no damage."

RUPTURE IS CURABLE

Results Not Influenced by Age or Length of Time Standing. Reports Expert.

Rupture is not a tear or breach in the abdominal wall, as commonly supposed, but it is a stretching or dilation of a natural opening, says J. Y. Egan of Toronto and New York, the noted appliance specialist who will visit Peterboro, Oriental Hotel, Tuesday and Wednesday—December 7th and 8th. The "Cusatrus" as now used and approved will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete comfort, but is intended to assist nature to close the opening in the shortest time known to medical science without an operation. This appliance has received highest awards wherever shown, producing results without harmful injections or other aids. Mr. Egan has testimonials from our own section for inspection. If interested call, he will be pleased to show you same without charge.

A PATRIOTIC BIRTHDAY PARTY

The Kitchener Patriotic League are holding a birthday party at the home of Mrs. Eyers, 108 Antrim street, on Wednesday, December 1st, from 3 to 6 and 7 to 10 o'clock. The proceeds of same for sox for the boys in the training camps and the trenches.

The League have sent out a great many invitations, but have found it impossible to reach every one of our citizens who would like to have a share in this good work and so extend a very cordial invitation to everyone who would like to do do his or her bit for our boys in the trenches.

The invitations are gotten up quite unique. A small sack with a sock painted on it is sent out with each invitation, coppers to be placed in the sock, amounting to the years that the donor has attained. The sack then to be brought or mailed to the above address on Wednesday next. Tea will be served during the afternoon and evening.

Home made candy and many articles suitable for the Christmas season will be on sale. There will also be a touch and take table and a good programme, including the orchestra of the 93rd Battalion.

AN EASY WAY TO INCREASE WEIGHT

Good Advice For Thin Folks

The trouble with most thin folks who wish to gain weight is that they insist on drugging their stomach or stuffing it with greasy foods, rubbing on useless "flesh creams," or following some foolish physical culture stunt while the real cause of thinness goes untouched. You cannot get fat until the digestive tract assimilates the food you eat.

There is a preparation known to reliable druggists almost everywhere which seemingly embodies the missing elements needed by the digestive organs to help them convert food into rich, fat-laden blood. This modern treatment is called Sargol and has been termed the greatest of flesh builders. Sargol aims through regenerative, reconstructive powers to coax the stomach and intestines to literally soak up the fattening elements of your food and then pass them into the blood, where they are carried to the starved, broken down cells and tissues of your body. You can readily picture what result this amazing transformation should produce as with increased weight the cheeks fill out, hollows about the neck, shoulders and bust disappear and from 10 to 30 pounds of solid, healthy flesh is added to the body. Sargol is absolutely harmless, inexpensive, efficient.

Leading druggists of this vicinity have it and will refund your money if you are not satisfied as per the guarantee found in every package.

NOTE—Sargol is recommended only as a flesh builder and while excellent results in cases of nervous indigestion, etc., have been reported, care should be taken about using it unless a gain of weight is desired.

"The Last Judgment" On Friday, Dec. 3rd

Announcement cards are out for Spohr's "Last Judgment," which will be presented on Friday, 3rd December, in the George Street Methodist Church under the direction of Mr. J. H. Renwick.

The proceeds will be devoted to the Patriotic Fund.

The soloists are all local talent, including Mrs. Renwick, Misses Charlotte Hanson, Etta Kemp, Evelyn Bentley, Ida Sanderson, Mrs. Rehill, and Messrs. Edward Jones, Jno. Anderson, Asa Huycke, Fred Miles, Charles Thorpe.

Miss Pearl McKee will play the piano accompaniment and Mr. J. H. Renwick will preside at the organ. His past productions of oratorios have been so meritorious that another success is expected in the "Last Judgment."

Why Tod Sloan Was Chased From Old England

"Tod Sloan, a former jockey, was arrested yesterday on a deportation order under the Defence of the Realm act, which permits the deportation of an alien without the necessity of assigning a reason.

"A French actress named Dherlys, who played in the French revue at the Garrick theatre, was arrested with Sloan. She will be sent to France with her mother. The ground of arrest in both cases was the charge of keeping a gambling house. Others, after being mentally

The doctor with the recruiting campaign to be conducted by the 93rd Battalion in the Peterborough Canal Railway Company has granted the battalion the privilege of placing advertising banners on the company's cars. Full advantage will be taken of the opportunity. In this and other ways the officers of the 93rd intend to remind the young men of Peterborough of their duty. There were enough young men lining the streets this morning watching the parade to remark one officer, "to fully complete the strength of the battalion. Those are the men we expect to get into our ranks before long."

The band of the 93rd Battalion, accompanied by Sergt-Major Mills and Master Percy Luther, left at noon to-day for Millbrook, where they gave a concert this afternoon. They were entertained at dinner by the ladies of Millbrook and are scheduled to return on the 5:20 train this afternoon.

BASKETBALL.

There will be two basketball games at the Y M C A to-night at 8 o'clock. The Bankers will play the Collegiate team for the first game, while the Excelsiors will go up against a team from the 93rd in the second match. These games are free to the public.

The running station on Simcoe street is being converted into a club room for the men of the 93rd. Some of the soldier boys, who are carpenters and painters, are doing the work.

SHOWING CONFIDENCE.

It Has a Strong Influence In Making Business and Good Times.

Pessimism is about the worst of optimists are a trifle bromidic, so instead of harranguing for optimism I have a few instances of the influence that comes from putting a good face steadily toward bad fortune, and contrariwise the bad effect of moaning because business is not better.

"How's trade?" I asked a stationer. "Trade!" he exclaimed. "Trade! There isn't any. Things are rotten." Now if I had had any intention of buying anything from him, which I had not, that depressing statement would have gone a long way to keep me from buying.

"How's things?" I asked the boss of a men's furnishing store a few hours later. "Little quiet, just now," he smiled, "but I can't complain. We have run ahead of last year and prospects are good." I felt like buying a new hat because the cheerfulness of his reply made me feel that money was coming to me.

"How's trade?" I asked a tobacconist. "Good," he replied emphatically. "Little slow today, but trade is mighty good with me, coming right along," and I bought a cigar.

Confidence is the influence that makes good times because it quickens trade. But if all business men were to croak about bad business, would not that influence make us all very careful about doing anything? We would all want to sit tight and wait. The way to get good times is to face the world hopefully and go to work. The croaker is a trade killer.—Inland Stationer.

HAD NO SENSE OF HUMOR.

He Couldn't Clearly See the Joke the Boys Had on Him.

Some people have absolutely no sense of humor. A little London urchin ran into a baker's shop and, placing a half-penny on the counter, asked nervously and timorously, "Mister, 'ave you a 'alfpenny buster (bun)?"

"Thanks, mister. Would you mind a-shovin' it down my back?"

"Down your back, my little man! Why down your back?"

"Cos, sir, I'm only a little un, and if those chaps outside know I've a buster they'll take it, and I am so 'ungry, I am."

"Dear me, how wrong of them! Come round here, my little chap. There—there, it is down your back."

The boy ran off. In an instant another entered—a bigger boy.

"I say, mister, 'as a little boy just been in 'ere?"

"Yes."

"And did 'e buy a 'alfpenny buster?"

"Yes."

"And did 'e 'ask you to shove it down 'is back, as us big fellows would take it?"

"Yes."

Out rushed the baker. In a trice the big boy collared the till and bolted.

Potatoes Are Being Shipped From the West

They Are Laid Down in Ontario For About Five Cents Less Than the Present Market Price

A NEW DEPARTURE

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in the Canadian Grocer this week:

In Ottawa, Montreal and Toronto this week the potato situation is no so tight that there has been another advance. As the trade and public alike know this situation has been very firm for several months now because of the rot which has got in into the potatoes owing to the wet weather, and the potato crop has suffered a series of advances. There are however other happenings to affect this. This week for the first time in the history of the vegetable market in British Columbia has sent potatoes down east. These are now coming into Toronto and what is more they are laid down here for about 5c less than the present market prices of either Delawares or Ontarios. This new departure of British Columbia is significant in two ways. First of all it is significant because it is an extra line in which the West is joining the East. A couple of years ago hogs were sent down East from Western Canada for the first time and the West comes again and helps again in the matter of food provisions by sending potatoes to Eastern Canada. There is an excellent crop in both Alberta and British Columbia this year. The second way in which this news is significant is that it will help to relieve the tightness in the market of the price of potatoes. More competition means of course an easiness in the market, particularly when these potatoes are laid down here for the first time at a lower than the present market levels obtaining in Toronto.

CANNED GOODS

The canned goods situation grows interesting because gradually one runs the less every canned goods are firming up and getting dearer in price. About three or four months ago canned tomatoes, peas, beans and corn were selling in Toronto and Montreal for 75c to 80c per doz less than what they are selling for today. This is a noteworthy advance. Canadian packers some time ago predicted that the price of tomatoes would be at least that much higher by the end of the year and as prediction has already come true and three months to the month of the year to go. There is a large export of these canned vegetables to England, particularly to the men in the trenches, and the pack for them has not been anything like as large in Canada this year. Last year was a bad year for canned goods in the Dominion, but this has certainly proved better so far, and high prices are obtaining. It looks as if the trade and the public alike can look for still higher prices in the case of tomatoes although corn and peas are not quite so likely to advance. They may do so however.

SPICES ARE UP.

A good many English products are on the rise again towards higher prices. Among the changes this week are noticed that mustard in quarter pound tins is up 30c per pound, white pickles, preserves and malted vinegar are all showing advances from a few months ago. Other lines on the move are capers, curry powders and marmalades. The trade will welcome the new tips about walnuts which arrive much earlier this year than they did last. Grocers remember with no very pleasant feelings that last year the shipments were late on and they only just got on the trade in time for the very last Christmas customer.

Young man, said a rich and prosperous old gentleman, I was not a wage slave when I did not always ride in a motor car of my own. When I began life I had to walk.

You were lucky replied the young man, when I first started I had to crawl. It took me long time to learn to walk.

EASTERN FRONT LOOKED TO FOR GREAT CAMPAIGN

"Watch Russia" That is the Word That Comes From a Reliable Source—Germans Evacuate Mitau and Withdraw Along a Wide Front From Riga.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Special Cable.)—"Watch Russia." That is the word that came to-day from a reliable source. It lent strength to rumours that have been circulating among military men for several days that the eastern front will produce one of the greatest campaign of the war this winter. Reports that Germans have evacuated Mitau and are drawing back along a wide front from the Riga region, brought further confirmation. It is no longer a military secret here that the Russian line has been strengthened two-fold by the arrival of fresh troops, large supplies of ammunition and big guns. The war of the Balkans, now engrossing public attention, will soon fade from the limelight. It is believed here the ferocious fighting of the past weeks will be only a forerunner of destructory Franco battling. The Franco-Flanders front is expected to produce no more big drives from either side until next spring. The task of furnishing the real talk of the war this winter, according to London rumours, is reserved for the Czar's new armies of three million men. Russia is preparing for a new offensive, it is hinted here, that will sweep down on a narrow front toward Prussia. Corps after corps of the newest Russian legions, from the Steppes of Siberia, the great province of Archangel and the provinces of Volhynia, Viatka and Perm, fearless fighters, trained and well equipped, are moving toward the Russian front, ready to join hands with Germany's worst enemy—winter.

WOUNDED MURDERED

Serb. Soldiers Already Injured were put to Death by the Bulgars, Says General Vassich, Commander of Southern Serb Army.

KILLED THEM WITH KNIVES

MONASTIR, Nov. 24 (Delayed)—The murder of wounded Serb soldiers by the Bulgars is charged by Gen Vassich, commander of the Southern Serb Army recently dislodged from the Prilep district, and now concentrated near the Greek frontier to defend Monastir.

The Bulgars crowded up to the Babuna Pass battlefield at night he declared, "killing my wounded with knives."

From the advanced line of Serb trenches before Monastir the General stared gloomily to-day at the burning village to the northward set on fire by the Bulgar invaders. All the country through which the Bulgars have swept is a wilderness. Far houses are smoking ruins. Villages have been looted.

Though Babuna Pass and Prilep have been lost for the time being the Serbs with French reinforcements are still active in the district. They are ready at the first opportunity for the dash to recover ground they have been driven from by the Bulgars superior numbers and equipment.

NO MARCH FROM SUEZ TO BAGDAD

British Press Bureau Denies Berlin Report of Feat of Colonial Troops

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Official Press Bureau issued a statement to-day concerning a wireless despatch from Berlin which was published in the United States alleging that a British force of 150,000 men had been thrown back on the Turks at Kut-el-Amara with heavy losses. The despatch also said the British army of Mesopotamia consisted of Canadian, Australian and Indian contingents that had been withdrawn from Egypt.

"A number of statements in connection with the operations in Mesopotamia," says the Press Bureau, "should be noted. One is that a single soldier from either Canada, Australia or India has ever attempted to make the amazing march from the Suez Canal to Bagdad."

Soldier of Fortune — by Randall Parrish

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

"You'll need a waterproof of some kind. It's raining outside. Wait a moment. There will be a coat in some of these staterooms."

I found one, a fisherman's slicker, and wrapped her in it. It was a world too big, but I tightened the belt and turned up the skirts, so she managed to walk.

I led her forward slowly, so that the dapping of the oar-skins against the stair rail would not be heard. The steady patter of rain on the deck planks drowned what little noise we made, and as we emerged into the hood a gust of wind drove the moisture into our faces. I could feel my heart thump, yet it was more because of her proximity than any excitement of adventure. So far as I could perceive, peering out into the storm with hand shading my eyes, the way was clear, and, bidding her stoop low, we slipped back along the narrow deck passage into the shadow cast by the boat.

"Now," I said, "step on my knee, and I'll help you over. Don't hurry—only be quiet. That's it. Now just let me lift you. Steady yourself with the tackle."

She peered back at me over the side of the boat, her hair shining with moisture.

"Now are you coming?"

"No; I shall have to remain here and lower the boat. Turn about and face the stern. Now take this knife. Don't drop it. The moment the boat touches the w[ater] an instant before, if possible, [h]ope you have hold on the[m] rward and cut the other. You [a]nd?"

"I— ink so. I am to cut this first and then the other?"

"Yes. Now don't fail. You see, we are launching this boat above the screw. There is bound to be suction. If you cut as I say you will drift off bow on to the course of the vessel and will float free. Otherwise the boat is likely to be swamped. You see what I mean?"

She nodded.

"The quicker you can get to that second rope," I added seriously, "the better for your chances."

"But—but what are you going to do?"

"Jump for it as soon as you are fairly afloat. I'll be aboard before you know it. Are you ready?"

She was looking forward, and her hand gripped mine. Her failure to answer and the sudden pressure of fingers was a warning of danger. I glanced back across my shoulder. In front of the cabin stood a man staring at us. His huge bulk even in that darkness told me it was Herman.

I heard his heavy step on the deck as he came slowly forward around the bulge of the cabin. The very manner of his advance told me his uncertainty. Something had occurred to arouse suspicion. He had heard a noise or seen a shadow and was investigating cautiously. He came up to the stern rail, standing still, a huge bulk in the gloom, his gaze on the swinging boat. Then, unsatisfied, he leaned forward and began to explore with one hand. Apparently he touched something strange—the edge of her skirt it must have been, for there was a bit of cloth in the lifted fingers. Noiselessly I arose to my feet, planting myself firmly on the wet deck. There was but one means of escape now, and, big as the fellow was, I must accept the chance. Another minute would mean discovery, and his bull voice would roar the length of the ship. He neither saw nor heard me, his whole attention concentrated on the boat. Without warning, putting every ounce of strength into the blow, I struck, landing square on the chin. There was a smothered groan, and he collapsed, hurled back bodily, his arms flung up, I heard him thud against the rail, his great form bending to the shock, and then he went over, whirling through the air.

"What is it?" she asked, her voice barely audible. "What has happened?"

Her voice seemed to recall me instantly, to restore my numbed faculties.

"Why, really I hardly know," I answered, yet stepping back to grip the ropes. "The fellow had hold of your dress, didn't he?"

"Yes. Oh, I was so frightened! And—and then he jerked me horribly."

"That was when I hit him. I must have got the big brute just right. He went overboard."

"Is—is he down there—in the water? Do you—you suppose he is drowned?"

"I don't see what else he could be."

"I—I cannot bear to think of it!"

"Now, see here," I said, coming back to my senses. "This is all foolishness and losing us time. I'm not sorry he is out of the way. It was either his life or ours. Have you got the knife?"

"Yes."

"Then get hold of that stern rope. I am going to lower away."

She obeyed me, but it was mechanical, her eyes still fixed upon the water.

"Be quick now," I said sternly, and my hand pressed her shoulder. "Your life depends on your promptness."

I loosened the ropes, permitting them to run slowly through the blocks. There was no creaking, and I rejoiced at the ease with which I sustained the weight as the boat descended. Slowly it sank below into the darkness until it was merely a black, shapeless shadow outlined against the water. I felt the strain on my arms as the swell gripped its keel. Then the stern swung free, and I knew she was scrambling forward, knife in hand, for the other rope. Almost before the boat could swing about the second stay dangled, and all my straining eyes could perceive was a dark, indefinite shadow drifting out of sight astern. Without uttering a sound or wasting a second I flung from the rail.

"It's all right!" I called loud enough for her to hear. "Throw out an oar on the left and hold her. I'll be there in a minute."

I made it, almost breathless, when I finally gripped the gunwale and hung on to regain a measure of strength.

"Oh, thank God," she exclaimed, staring at me; "I—I thought you were lost!"

"Don't think of it. The danger is all over. You needn't pull on the oar; just hold it straight out. That will keep the boat's head forward."

"Can you get over the side?"

"In a moment—yes; as soon as I get my breath back. Did you notice any alarm on board the Sea Gull?"

She shaded her eyes with one hand, holding the heavy oar against her body, and looked ahead.

"No; I was not thinking about that—only of your danger and my awful position. I was never so frightened before."

"Can you still see the vessel?"

"Just a shadow against the sky. I—I think she is moving straight ahead."

"Then we have not been missed nor the mate. Doubtless he was going below for his supper. Now lean well over to port—yes, the left—and balance the boat. I am going to climb in."

CHAPTER XVI.

The Open Boat.

WITH a struggle, I made it, rolling over the low gunwale, the water draining from me into a pool at the bottom.

"You are a fine, brave girl," I said sincerely, unable to restrain my admiration.

She dropped her head and began to sob.

"Oh, no, no! I am not," she replied tremblingly. "I am such a coward. You cannot know the terror I have felt."

"Of course. But my being here makes a difference?"

"Always," she confessed frankly. "Somehow I can never be afraid with you. But—but what shall we do now?"

"I hardly know what to put you at. Oh, yes! Here is a tin, and you can bail out this water sloshing about in the bottom. That will be valuable service."

"What will you do?"

"Rig up the sail the best I can in the dark. There is breeze enough to give us some headway and ship the rudder."

"Do you know which direction to steer?"

"Not now, but I have a compass in my pocket. A northeast course would be sure to bring us to the coast, and towns are scattered along. I found that out from Broussard yesterday."

TOOK THE ADVICE OF HIS FRIEND

Stomach Trouble and Rheumatism Relieved By "Fruit-a-tives"

MR. L. LABRIE

594 Champlain St., Montreal.

"I have been restored to health by taking 'Fruit-a-tives'. For two years, I was a miserable sufferer from Rheumatism and Stomach Trouble. I became very weak, had frequent dizzy spells and when I took food, felt wretched and sleepy. I suffered from Rheumatism dreadfully, with pains in my back and joints and my hands swollen.

A friend advised me to try 'Fruit-a-tives' and from the outset, they did me good. After I had started the second box, I felt I was getting well and I persevered in the treatment. I can truthfully say that 'Fruit-a-tives' is the only medicine that helped me.

LOUIS LABRIE.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the famous medicine made from fruit juices. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

OXO CUBES at the War

The value of OXO CUBES to all branches of His Majesty's Forces has received remarkable endorsement in numerous letters received by OXO Ltd., and the Press, from those on active service and in training.

OXO CUBES exactly meet their needs. They take up little space; are easily carried and can be converted quickly into a hot nourishing drink which, with bread or biscuits, will sustain for hours.

In the home, OXO CUBES are handy and good for many purposes ready in a moment as a warming, strengthening and sustaining beverage. For Soups, Stews and Gravies they are an economical substitute for fresh beef. OXO CUBES save time, trouble and expense.

THE SURGEON'S GLOVES.

He Wears Them While Operating Since He Can't Get Clean Hands.

While the surgeon's success depends to a large extent upon his hands, they are at the same time a source of the greatest danger to himself and his patient.

No process has yet been discovered which makes it certain that a surgeon's hands are free from microbes and incapable of carrying infection to a patient. This is why the good surgeon will not perform the most trivial operation without first covering his hands with properly sterilized gloves.

Prolonged scrubbing with soap and running water, followed by another thorough scrubbing in from 70 to 80 per cent alcohol, removes the outer layers of skin and bacteria and makes the surface of the hands sufficiently clean.

But there still remains the danger that many microbes which stay concealed in the tiny crevices at the base of the nails or hair grounds will be forced to the surface by perspiration and the use of the hands in handling instruments and make an infection of the wound possible. While practical experience shows that his danger is very slight, yet its possibility is sufficient to make it undesirable ever to operate with the bare hands.—New York American.

SHOOTING THE RAPIDS.

Feats of the Arab Boys of Egypt, Who Are Expert Swimmers.

Among the most expert of swimmers are the Arab boys of Egypt. Like all other boys, they are fond of displaying their skill before strangers. This is how they shoot the rapids of the Nile:

Seating themselves astride a log of wood about six feet long and buoyant enough to support them waist high out of water, they ride it with the seat and gestures of a jockey and with hands and feet keep it straight with the line of the current.

The fall is shot with an ease and grace that do away with the sense of danger one would expect to feel at seeing a human being hurled along amid such a boil and turmoil of waters, but once at the bottom the youngsters have a hard struggle to induce their "horses" to turn out of the course.

To do this they avail themselves of the impetus acquired by the log in its shoot, and, throwing themselves full length upon it, they seem, with a sudden stroke from the left leg and arm, to drive it and themselves out of the current.

To fail in this would be dangerous even to Arab swimmers. Immediately below lie ugly rocks on which the heavy stream breaks with great violence.—Exchange.

They Were Solid.

Which bonmot leads me up to the story that a teacher in one of the west side schools told me the other day about a little girl. Her parents, it seems, had been celebrating their silver wedding, and little Rosie the next morning, with commendable family pride, was boasting of the quality of the presents received.

"There was a whole set," she said, "of solid silver teaspoons."

"Are you sure, Rosie," asked the teacher, "that the spoons were solid?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply triumphant; "solid silver—triple plate."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Candle Power.

In computing candle power it must be remembered that as there are many different sizes of candles the rate of burning and intensity of light radiated would vary, so that the standard candle, upon which England and the United States agree, must be used. This standard candle is made of pure spermaceti, exactly round, seven-eighths inch in diameter and of a length such that six weigh one pound, and with wick adjusted to burn 120 grains of spermaceti per hour. And the 1,000,000 candle power searchlight must emit a light equal to 1,000,000 standard candles.

Maybe He Got It Back.

Brown and Jones were leaning on a polished counter and talking intimately. Then said Brown to Jones:

"Look here, old man. Suppose you were to come around to my apartments one of these days and should walk up to my room and, receiving no answer to your knock, should come in and find my lifeless body stretched out cold across the bed. Now, in a case like that, what would you do?"

"I'll tell you," answered Jones after thinking it over. "I'd institute an immediate search for the $5 you have owed me for two years."

The New Woman.

"The new woman is a commanding figure. Man buckles down to her.

"Man, the conqueror, when he would win a woman in the past, brought her to the dust. Today, on the contrary, he brings the dust to her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Remarkable Power.

A dear old lady was taken one day to a musical service in a Boston church. She had heard much about the fine voice of the soprano and was prepared for a treat.

She sat in rapt enjoyment until the service was over and then turned a radiant face toward her escort, who was a young grandson.

"Dear boy," she said, "you've given me a great treat. Her voice is perfectly beautiful. It made cold chills run all up and down my spine."

"It's too bad, grandmamma," said the boy, "but she didn't sing today, though she was there. The gentleman next me says she's been suffering from a bad cold, and one of the chorus had to sing the solos for her."

"What, dear?" said the old lady, looking momentarily distressed. Then her face cleared, and she patted his arm reassuringly.

"Never you mind," she said. "We can come again some time. But, after all, if she can make me feel that way without singing I don't know that it would be wise for me to hear her. Now, would it?"—Youth's Companion.

She Gave Herself Away.

Judge Davis was one day in his private office when he was president of the senate and acting vice president. A woman came into the room to see him. He turned and said, "Well, madam, what can I do for you?" She was neatly dressed in black, with an air of extreme poverty. She told a wretched tale of sorrow and suffering, winding up with the climax that she and her little family were actually starving and had not tasted food for two days. The judge seemed deeply moved. He excused himself for not attending to the case for the moment, as the senate was nearly ready to open. He looked at his watch with an air of vexation, as if it were not going, and said, "Can any one tell me what time it is?" His visitor pulled out a gold watch and told him the time. The judge said, "Can it be true that your children have been without food for two days when you have a gold watch in the house?" The woman ... the point of the judge's question ... and bounced out of the room ... as I need scarcely add.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

As many as 72 different kinds of wood are used in the manufacture of umbrella handles, canes and whips.

If curtains are allowed to dry thoroughly before being starched it will be found that they will last clean longer.

Food articles that are damp should never be left in ordinary paper. Paper is made of wood pulp, rags, glue, lime, and similar substances, interpenetrated with acids and chemicals. When damp it should not be allowed to come into contact with things that are to be eaten.

In knitting it will be found much easier when casting on stitches, if using very large needles, to introduce an ordinary steel needle in place of the large one held in the right hand. Use the steel needle for knitting the stitch and pass it over the large needle. This is done only when casting on stitches.

The simplest way of dealing with moths is to keep them out of the house altogether, and this can be done at the expense of a few pints of turpentine. Sprinkle the rooms with this once a week, or thereabouts, when the moths begin to hatch out, and they will all die or leave the building. Repeat it if they appear again. Sprinkle a little in drawers where woollen clothes are, and the moths will not come near them.

Children are very fond of treacle pie. To make this you will need 1 lbs. of flour, ½ lb. of breadcrumbs, ½ lb. of treacle, 6 ozs. of dripping, juice of one lemon, and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Make a paste of the flour, dripping, baking powder, a little water, then line a greased pie dish with part of it; warm the treacle in a basin and work in the breadcrumbs gradually; lastly add the lemon juice. Then spread a layer of this mixture in the paste, now put another layer of paste, then more treacle, repeating till the dish is full, but finish up with paste. Bake in a good oven for three-quarters of an hour.

Brown—"They say Green has been wandering in his mind lately." Black—"Well, he's safe enough, he can't go far."

Most of us believe in doing to others as we would have them do to us. But we generally wait for them to do it first.

ISSUE PRICE 97½

A FULL HALF-YEAR'S INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON 1st JUNE, 1916.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE LOAN WILL BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY.

In the event of future issues (other than issues made abroad) being made by the Government, for the purpose of carrying on the war, bonds of this issue will be accepted at the issue price, 97½, plus accrued interest, as the equivalent of cash for the purpose of subscriptions to such issues.

10 per cent on application,
7½ " " 3rd January, 1916,
20 " " 1st February, 1916,
20 " " 1st March, 1916,
20 " " 1st April, 1916,

The instalments may be paid in full on and after the 3rd day of January, 1916, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Applications, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. The bank will issue a provisional receipt.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch of any chartered bank in Canada, and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the January instalment.

Scrip certificates payable to bearer will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds without coupons.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada.

Holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds with coupons, payable to bearer or registered, without payment of any fee, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert, without fee, into fully registered bonds without coupons at any time on application in writing to the Minister of Finance.

The issue will be exempt from taxes, including any income tax, imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

The loan will be repaid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary or Victoria.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Recognized bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications which bear their stamp.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 30th November, 1915.

Finance Department, Ottawa, 22nd November, 1915.

War Hits London Clubs Severe Blow; Many Close

Pinch of War Felt Particularly in Famous Institution of West End, Where Magnificent Quarters Are Maintained Now at Heavy Expense to Mere Handful of Members

One by one the West End clubs are closing their doors for the duration of the war, and others, which have been very well patronised since the war began, are finding it necessary to make drastic reductions in their staffs. Many clubs which are now closing their doors have been in existence for a century or more.

In the Pall Mall district alone there are seven clubs which will be closed during the war. These are the Junior United Service, with 2,000 members; the Naval and Military, with 6,500 members; the Junior Naval and Military, with 2,000 members; the Junior Constitutional, with 2,000 members; the United Service, 2,000; the Motor, 3,000; the National Liberal, 5,500; the Naval and Military, 2,000; the Public Schools, 2,000; the Automobile, 7,000; and the United Service, 2,000.

Of course there are important ladies' clubs also, which include the Ladies' Army and Navy, with 2,800 members; Ladies' Imperial, 2,500; New Century, 2,000; New Electric, 1,000; and others equally important. To be considered also are the clubs of the artistic and literary world, literary clubs and similar places with hundreds of members on the list.

However strong the period through which they have passed since the beginning of the war, few clubs have suffered to the present extent. From inquiries in authoritative quarters the consensus is that the great political clubs, like the Carlton, the Reform, Junior Carlton, and Conservative, together with Arthur's, the Athenæum, Marlborough, St. James' and others, struggle with heavy subscription losses, varying from £1 10s. to £2 2s., will maintain their membership at about normal. So, too, will unattractive, though popular, clubs in the heart of the West End, such as Brooks's, which is the haunt of diplomatists, Boodle's, and others, where the card tables are always well patronised.

With the end of the war, many clubs will reopen and will not be put to any expense in many instances. A period of severe financial stress is looming ahead. Many club committees are raising loans for buildings. The death of these famous institutions is the only prospect.

'No Treating' Order Reduces the London Bar Receipts

Special Despatch

LONDON, November 9.

Early as it may be yet to judge the effects of the "no treating" order upon the drinking habits of the metropolis, that it has resulted in diminishing consumption is clear.

The secretary of a huge club with a membership which, while select, is not too exclusive, told a correspondent that the result of the order had been roughly to reduce the consumption of drink by about forty per cent.

The manager of a well known West End hotel which possesses a popular bottle and bar complained that since the order his daily receipts had fallen by amounts which fluctuated between twenty five and forty per cent.

"I think my experience is that of the great majority of hotels," he said. "Where a man formerly brought in a friend or two and stayed some time drinking, he now comes in alone, has a drink and goes away. There has, of course, been some treating in cigars and cigarettes, but the additional profit from that is infinitesimal compared with the loss on the liquor."

The same story is told by the majority of public houses, and it seems more than likely that the Kensington licensees who have received a reduction of their rates on the ground of decreased earnings have set an example which will be followed all over the metropolitan area.

Naturally one turns to the statistics in the police courts, and it is significant that in practically all districts a perceptible reduction in the cases of drunkenness has occurred. Curiously enough this seems more noticeable in the western and central than in the eastern. At Old Street, for instance, there has been no reduction in the cases and the Magistrate has publicly expressed his disappointment. At Tower Bridge there have been about thirty less cases than at the same period last year. These figures are rather in excess of other courts and can hardly be taken as fair evidence of London as a whole. But at certain western courts where the total number of cases is rather greater than at Tower Bridge, the cases have fallen very considerably.

But the last few weeks are hardly a fair criterion, for pensions are usually paid quarterly, and the general experience is that the September quarter day results in an increase of drunkenness during October and seasonal industrial migrations, such as that of the hoppers, also swell the lists in those districts to which the workers return. So that, taken as a whole, the effects of "no treating" order may be considered very satisfactory from the point of view of the promoters.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT! STOP DANDRUFF AND BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Hair Stops Falling Out and Gets Thick, Wavy, Strong and Beautiful

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair, fine and downy at first, but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, abundant hair and lots of it, surely get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, just try it!

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The original model of the dress shown in this illustration was provided by one of the most successful Paris modistes—Jenny. Of course the style has been varied to suit American requirements and tastes, but the main features have been retained.

The blouse is of the jacket type, the edges coming down straight in front, with a soft draped vest in the centre. The collar is wide and of sailor shape. The sleeves are plain at the shoulder and fit the arm to the wrist.

The skirt is a straight model, with the fulness at the top gathered or pleated around the waist and with the lower edge corded or tucked, with a small frill at the base of each group of cordings or tucks, producing the effect of a double skirt, while in reality it is only a single one.

This idea is much liked for taffetas, which has enough body to cause the little frills to stand out as if they were the edges of a flounce. The soft, deep plaits at the top are also becoming to the average figure and may be taped into position without this restraint being visible from the outside.

Voile is also a pretty material for such a style and even a simple gingham will gain much from the beauty line which marks this unusual costume.

The dress pattern, No. 7302, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires with tucks in skirt seven yards of 36 inch material. 1¾ yards of 22 inch silk for girdle and trimming.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"CABIRIA"

Mr. Swingle Bates returns from the pastures to his home in Catana, on the slope of Mt. Etna, and is met by his wife and little daughter Cressa. Suddenly the peace of the evening is rent by the rumbling of Mt. Etna which has been quiet for ages. Terrified, Bates's household rush to their private temple and offer sweets and incense to the gods to calm the fury of the elements. Their prayers seem to go for the girl in the night again still, when the Sicilian people are awakened by the sudden rumblings of the earth. Mt. Etna has again broken into eruption and a terrible earthquake accompanies it. The slaves, and with them the Greek Cabiria's faithful nurse, and her charge, vainly seek safety among the falling walls, when they discover a great subterranean passage which leads to where the treasures of Bates are hidden. The eager slaves, leaving board stalls there, load themselves with the booty and flee. With them go Cressa and Cabiria. They emerge into the open at the edge of the bay. Here they have just left, undisturbed by the earthquake, Bates and his wife between the horns of Cabiria, whom they believe buried under the ruins. The fugitive slaves divide the booty and Cressa receives a ring with the seal of Bates on it as her share.

As the earthquake continues the slaves, pressed on by hunger, continue their flight and arrive at the seashore where they find an apparently abandoned boat. The endeavour to escape in it, but the owners, Phoenician pirates, arrive. Cressa and Cabiria are made prisoners and are taken to Carthage where they are sold as slaves on the market place. Karthalo, the high priest of Moloch, buys Cabiria with the object of offering her up as a sacrifice to the Bronze God.

At this time, between the first and second Punic wars, Fulvius Axilla, a Roman patrician, and his slave, Maciste, are living in Carthage, under disguise, spying on the movements of the rival republic. They frequent the wine shop of "The Striped Monkey," kept by Bodastoret.

Karthalo visits the chamber of the Temple where the children for the sacrifice are kept. He chooses Cabiria as a sacrifice to Moloch. Croessa vainly endeavours to save Cabiria, pretending that she is ill and therefore not acceptable to the god. But her subterfuge has no effect and Cabiria is doomed. Croessa is punished for her fraud and left unconscious by her tormentors. Recovering, she flees and arrives at a solitary place where she overhears Fulvius and Maciste speaking. Croessa recognizes Fulvius as a Latin and implores him to save Cabiria. She offers him the ring of Batto, saying, "Accept it as a token of piety. The ring will be as a charm. If you save, you will be saved." Fulvius accepts the precious undertaking and with Maciste and Croessa enters the Temple, mingling with the worshippers. As the priest is about to consign Cabiria to the flames which rage inside the enormous monster, Maciste fells the priest, and seizing Cabiria, flees with Fulvius and takes refuge in the wine shop, "The Striped Monkey."

At this time Hannibal, the Punic general is crossing the Alps and is menacing Rome. The news is brought to Carthage and heard by Bodastoret, who, anxious to be rid of his unwelcome guests, tells Fulvius, and decides to attempt flight during the night. But Bodastoret secretly advises the priests of Moloch of the proposed flight, and as Fulvius and Maciste are carrying Cabiria, pass the public square they are attacked by the howling mob. They flee in different directions. Fulvius saves himself by plunging into the sea from the high walls of Carthage, and Maciste, hard pressed, takes refuge in the garden of Hasrubal, chief of the Carthaginian Republic.

That night Massinissa, the Numidian king, has been promised the hand of Sophonisba, the beautiful daughter of Hasrubal. Massinissa sends her a costly gift and begs that she meet him at moonrise in the garden of the palace. Maciste, with Cabiria, arrives just as Massinissa and Sophonisba meet. "Protect her and the gods will protect thee," says Maciste to Sophonisba, and places Cabiria in her arms. Sophonisba, to save her good name, hastens away with the child. Massinissa cannot betray Sophonisba, and is obliged to say he has seen no one. On the word of the king the priest leave, taking Maciste with them. He is sentenced to be chained to a millstone for life.

Later we again meet Fulvius Axilla, serving under the banner of the Roman Proconsul, who is besieging Syracuse, the ally of Carthage. The Roman fleet is burned by the genius of Archimedes, who concentrates the rays of the sun on the ships. Terrible panic and confusion reign on the ships, and Fulvius, vainly attempting to make headway against this panic, is pulled into the sea by the sailors. The current draws him into the shore near Catana, and when he has lost all hope of safety he is rescued by servants of Batto, who recognize the ring on his finger. They bring him to their master's house, and here Fulvius Axilla relates the history of the ring and promises his host that should Late again take him to Carthage, he will seek Cabiria.

Meanwhile, Syphax, King of Cirta, has dethroned Massinissa, who ventures into the desert. Hastrubal, to gain a strong ally against Rome, obliges Sophonisba to marry Syphax. Scipio has brought the war in Africa, which he already holds and Massinissa, who is anxious to take revenge against Syphax, who took away his kingdom and fiancee, is fighting with Scipio in the hope of crowning himself King of Cirta. Under the banner of Scipio, Fulvius Axilla also serves. Knowing the country, he offers to enter Carthage and spy out its defences. Forming a human pyramid the daring Roman succeeds in arriving at the top of the high walls of the enclosed city and immediately enters it.

That same night Hastrubal holds war council and Karthalo, the high priest, starts for Cirta to induce Syphax to attack the army of Scipio.

Fulvius Axilla, when he has accomplished his duty, remembers Maciste and Cabiria, whom he has not seen in ten years. He goes to his old friend, Bodastoret, the wine shop keeper, who has prospered with the money he received for his treason. Bodastoret is terrified at seeing Fulvius, who assures him that he only wish to see Maciste, his faithful slave. Bodastoret accompanies Fulvius to the mill where, unseen, Fulvius sees Maciste turning the grinding stone. Fulvius and Bodastoret return, but the following night, while Bodastoret sleeps, Fulvius goes back to the mill, where Maciste, his strength redoubled by unexpected reinforcements, succeeds in breaking his chains. Both flee, followed by the guards.

Meanwhile Karthalo, who has arrived in Cirta, has persuaded Syphax to attack the Romans, but Scipio, having heard of the impending assault has moved his army to a more advantageous point, and when Fulvius and Maciste arrive at the place where the camp formerly was they find it deserted. At the same time Massinissa has attacked the camp of Syphax, and succeeds in setting it afire. The soldiers of Cirta, fleeing from the burning camp, encounter Fulvius and Maciste wandering without hope in the desert, and both are taken prisoners and brought to Cirta. Here the news of the unexpected rout arrives at the moment when Karthalo is about to leave, but Cirta must close its gates against the arriving foe and Karthalo is obliged to remain in the besieged city. The prisoners are condemned by Sophonisba to die of starvation and thirst. But Elissa, the favourite slave of Sophonisba, takes pity on their sufferings, and during the night brings water to them.

Massinissa has now arrived under the walls of Cirta, and directs a fierce attack against it. Sophonisba, grieving for the plight of her country, has a terrible dream. She dreams that all are saved through her, the wrath of Moloch being vented on her people. She awakes to find Karthalo [illegible] that the girl be rendered [illegible] Elissa [illegible] Karthalo, who has already cursed the [illegible] Elissa [illegible] her brother [illegible] Maciste. WOMEN USURPED MEN'S JOBS IN BIBLICAL TIMES

PHILADELPHIA, Nov 20 - Proof that woman's economic independence, her property rights and ability to make contracts in her own name and her own right, in many respects are advanced no further to-day than they were approximately 4,000 years ago, is to be found in the translation of several small tablets in University of Pennsylvania Museum.

These tablets belong to the Nippur collection and were presented to the museum by the Babylonian Exploration Fund.

One tablet contains a description of the payment of temple stipends, in corn and other commodities, as well as money. The part most significant points out that a woman was able to take the place of a man and at the same salary. After stating the terms of taxes, the translation of the inscription reads that "meanwhile, one man had died, the salary of another had been reduced, that of a third had been raised, while a woman had taken the position of another man with the same salary." The approximate date of this tablet is 2,000 B.C.

Received Same Salary.

It is probably the earliest record, according to the translators, of a woman in public service, and certainly the earliest record of a woman displacing a man at a similar salary.

Evidence that women held property is found in another record, which describes the rent of tribute which a woman owner of an estate received from her tenants. An additional fact brought out by this record is that pork was an important article of diet in Babylonia 4,000 years ago. The description applies to Rhabatum, a priestess of the sun god in Sippar, who leases her house with a special stipulation that, in addition to an annual rental of three shekels of silver, her tenant "shall provide her with three portions of pork, and thirty 'ga' of beer at three festals of the sun god." It is thought that no "ga" of beer has reference to a cask probably resembling the barrel in use to-day.

An interesting marriage contract which, in all probability, was entered into freely and thoroughly understood by both parties, though severe in its terms, provided that either in the event of his or her infidelity to the other, shall pay certain penalties and forfeits. "Belshazzar and Anaitabis," it reads, "agreeing to return her dower and to pay damages if he dismiss her. She forfeits dowry and pay the same fine in case of desertion."

Dowries Common Then.

Giving of dowries by the fathers of brides was one of the earliest sacred customs of Babylonia about the year 1875 B.C., from which time the earliest record is preserved. The manuscript which contains the particulars of the marriage dowry, is the largest early Babylonian record of the kind known. No evidence is to be found that the custom was practised except by the nobility and priests and priestesses. Enumeration of the servants and animals given as part of the marriage portion are found on the tablet, together with the amount of gold and silver set apart for jewelry, the dresses, precious stones, furniture, vessels and other objects given as dowry by Awil-sin to his daughter about to be married to the son of a priest.

Slaves were dealt in freely and in some cases gained their independence either through their own services or the beneficence of their masters.

ECZEMA AND SORE EYES

"My daughter suffered from inflamed eyelids and eczema on her head," writes Mr. H. W. Lear, Port Plantford, Sfld. "The child was in a bad state and suffered greatly. The doctor failed to help her and on recommendation of a friend used Dr. Chase's Ointment, which made complete cure. With a grateful heart I write you this letter."

LOOKING FOR WORK

Everywhere men complain about work, even boys and girls in school or business find work tedious and irksome, but it isn't the work half so much as their own lack of physical strength that makes it hard.

Rich blood, strong lungs and healthful digestion make work pleasurable in business, in school or even house work, and if those who are easily tired who are not sick, but weak and nervous would just take Scott's Emulsion for one month and let its pure concentrated food create richer blood to pulsate through every artery and vein, let it build a structure of healthy tissue and give you vigorous strength you would find work easy and would look for more. Insist on Scott's.

The Merganzer, 1905 tons, was owned by the Cork Steamship Co., and sailed from Cork, Ireland. The Hallamshire was of 4,420 tons, and its home port was Glasgow.

ONTARIO MEN'S GOOD RECORD

MONTREAL, Nov. 20 - W. D. Robb, superintendent of motive power, announces that two of the annual fire brigade competitions for employees of the Grand Trunk System have been won this year by the men of the car shops at London, Ont.

Employees fire brigades at the various main repair shops, round house, terminal and other large buildings have long been an institution on the Grand Trunk.

The organization comprises hose and hook and ladder companies the members of which are supplied with coat, helmets, rubber boots, etc. The men are regularly drilled and reside within easy distance of the shops in order that they can respond promptly to an alarm.

The company recognizes the work of the men composing these fire brigades in many ways, granting additional free transportation to themselves and families and awards prizes in the annual competitions amounting to $250.

The London team was won this year by No. 2 Company of the Car Shops at London, and they were also winners in the "wet" race, while the hook and ladder race was won by a Montreal team from the Car Department.

Monastir Was Serbia's Most Prized Acquisition In the War With Turkey

Second City of Turkish Macedonia—Important Strategic Point in Mountain District—It Had a Population of 60,000 and a Thriving Trade in Normal Times.

LONDON, Nov. 22 — Monastir, where the Bulgarians were never expected to arrive, is the last place in Serbia, hard upon the Greek frontier, and defended by lesser mountains on every hand," the National Geographic Society says in a bulletin. "It was one of the most prized acquisitions made by the Serbians after the war in 1912 of the Balkan League with the Ottoman Empire. By means of schools, propaganda, Serbian committees and Serbian priests the people of all this southern territory were long carefully prepared for an ultimate union with the little kingdom. The Serbians pursued the same tactics here that the Bulgarians and Greeks pursued for years in their endeavours to win the upper hand in the Turkish province of Macedonia. Monastir was to the Serbian ambitions what the port of Salonica was to the Greeks and the Bulgarians.

"Monastir was the second city of Turkish Macedonia. It did a thriving business, even under Turkish rule, and the Serbians entertained great hopes for its future. Moreover, the mountain city is one of the important strategic points in the Balkans and when under Turkish rule it was made a base of military defence and offence of the same rank as Adrianople. Here were located the headquarters' offices of a Turkish army corps, for the roads from the port of Salonica on the Aegean Sea from the port of Durazzo, on the Adriatic Sea from Nish, the ancient capital of Serbia, and from the important fortress of Adrianople met and crossed here. The Serbians have strengthened the defensive works of the city since their occupation, and it is to-day an important factor in the keeping of ways open between Serbia and Greece and Serbia and Albania.

"The city nestles in a bowl sweeping in the mountain clusters at an altitude of 2,049 feet. To the west the mountains rise to a height of more than 8,000 feet. All the mountain country around is heavily wooded while the broad valley is carpeted with fruitful fields. The port of Salonica, where the Allied troops landed, is 85 miles distant to the south east. Constantinople is 400 miles to the east. Belgrade is 260 miles to the north and Nish 155 miles. The nearest point of the Bulgarian frontier, at Strumitza, is only 65 miles away.

"A railway line connects Monastir and Salonica, with which city most of the Serbian town's trade is done. The export products of all Southern Serbia are assembled at this place and sent to the Grecian port, while the imports are distributed from the same centre and from Uskup. The city has a population of 60,000, and an annual trade of the value of $2,000,000 during normal times. Considerable gold and silver work for export is done here, but the staples of Monastir's commerce are flour, grain, cloth, skins, tobacco and carpets. The town has large barracks, a military hospital and a number of private educational institutions.

Conviction Recorded By Police Magistrate Dumble Was Upheld

The Appeal of Harold Sanderson Who Was Convicted of Selling Deteriorated Milk Was Dismissed With Costs by His Honour Judge Huycke—Fine Was Reduced From Fifty to Twenty Dollars—Vendor is Held Responsible for the Condition of the Milk.

Judgment on the appeal of Harold Sanderson against the conviction of Police Magistrate Dumble, respecting a conviction that was registered against defendant for selling deteriorated milk was handed down this morning by His Honour Judge Huycke. City Solicitor G. N. Gordon appeared for Sanitary Inspector Spence, while Mr. J. D. Kelly acted for Harold Sanderson.

The judgment was as follows:

Sanderson vs. Spence

An appeal by Harold Sanderson from a conviction by D. W. Dumble, Esq., K.C., Police Magistrate for the Peterborough police district, whereby the said Harold Sanderson was convicted for that he, the said Harold Sanderson, on the 22nd day of September, 1915, at the City of Peterborough, in the County of Peterborough, did unlawfully sell to one Ernest Spence, an inspector appointed by the Board of Health of the City of Peterborough, a quantity of milk, to wit, one quart, which said milk was then and there deteriorated by the addition of water thereto, contrary to the provisions of the Public Health Act, R.S.O. (1914) Cap. 218, Sec. 92, Par. (a), and amending Acts, and contrary to the form of the statute in such case made and provided, and imposing a penalty of $50 and costs.

The case was argued before me and I reserved judgment, and I have carefully considered the evidence and the arguments of counsel. I am at the close of the case I was satisfied the milk had been watered and that Mr. Sanderson did not intend to contravene the enactment as to illegal sale. The matter considered too fairly—either these facts are proved on the evidence. The only question is whether the conviction is right in law. I am of opinion that it is not. I am of opinion that the conviction should be quashed and the appeal allowed with costs. I have to add that I am of opinion that the defendant should not be convicted unless it was clear to me that I have to say

Gordon Craig

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

"Yes, only you must have obtained something to substantiate your word."

"Precisely. I was coming to that. I have letters from my father which should be sufficient. You have seen Judge Henley's writing?" and he handed me a half dozen missives. They were without envelopes, each beginning simply, 'My Dear Son,' relating principally to mere conditions on the plantation, and occasionally expressing a desire for the wanderer to return and assume the burden of management. That they were in the crabbed and peculiar handwriting of the old judge was beyond all question, and the dates covered several years. I read them through carefully puzzled by their contents.

"There are no envelopes?"

"No. I never keep them. Why?"

"Only that no name is mentioned they begin so alike. My Dear Son."

"I never thought of that, he admitted somewhat surprised, but can supplement it by showing you this picture taken three years ago at Mobile. Of course you will recognize myself, but may never have seen a photograph of Judge Henley."

"I never have."

"Well, that is his likeness and there no doubt [illegible] it. Does this satisfy you that I am what I claim to be?"

In truth it did not, for I would have believed nothing in opposition to the positive statement of the woman that he was not Philip Henley. Yet under other conditions divorced from what I knew the letters would be conclusive. Were they really addressed to him or had he stolen them? If the latter, then how had he succeeded in getting his picture on the same plate with Judge Henley's? Aware that even the slightest hesitancy might awaken suspicion I answered quickly:

"It would seem to be unanswerable. What hurts my pride is to have been made such a fool of."

"That's nothing Craig. We have all had that experience. I stand ready to give you a chance now on the winning side. There will be more money in it for us both. What do you say?"

"I should prefer to know more about your proposition."

"It has nothing whatever to do with the Henley matter. That is practically settled already, so you will not be further involved with the girl."

"You would oblige me by leaving her name out of the discussion then. I'm exposed coldly."

THERE are many many men who go through the Examiner every day and read the advertisements and wonder if advertising would help their business. The quickest way to find out is to talk to the Examiner's Advertising Dept. There is no obligation. It costs nothing. Just phone 1600.

He chuckled, well satisfied with his diplomacy.

"We cannot obliterate her entirely. Pretty enough to be useful, too. I imagine, if she can ever be brought to view this affair from the right angle."

I gazed directly into his eyes, barely able to keep from throttling him.

"Drop it," I said sternly. "The girl is to be left alone if I have any part in your scheme. Now I want to know what is expected of me. May I ask questions?"

"Certainly. Fire away."

"Where are we bound?"

"Spanish Honduras," lazily, but spreading out a map and tapping it with his finger. "Puerto Cortes, if we can make that port safely; if not, then somewhere along the coast between there and Trupillo. There will be signals."

I leaned forward, startled out of my self restraint.

"Honduras! Good Lord! What are you—a filibuster?"

"Hardly," with a short laugh. "That is too dangerous a job and not money enough in it. I prefer to do my revolting through others and cop the swag. That's the safe end of the game. It happens to be Honduras just now; I have been equally interested in other untrodden countries. In truth, friend, I am a patriot for revenue only."

"You mean you furnish arms?"

"For a suitable consideration, yes. In strict confidence I will state that securely packed away in the hold of the Sea Gull, largely in boxes labeled machinery, are 20,000 rifles, six rapid fire guns and a sufficiency of ammunition for a small army. Once safely landed, the profits of the voyage will total $150,000 gold."

"You mean to retain the lady on board?"

"Unless she prefers to jump overboard."

"And what have I to do with all this? You said you had use for me—what use?"

CHAPTER XII.

I Join the Sea Gull.

"YOU chance to be the very sort of man I need. The devil could not have sent me a better," he said, with some enthusiasm. "You are an American soldier, the best drilled men in the world for irregular service. You can understand that the longer I can keep those fellows down there fighting, the more I will sell. Good! that is part of my business. And the better they are drilled the longer they will keep it up. That is what I want you for—to help make that mob of rags into an army. You can do it, and I am willing to pay the price."

"I perceive your point," I said at last, facing him. "But what is there in it for me?"

"I perceive your point," I said at last.

"A good round sum," he replied. "More than you ever made before, I warrant, not excepting the promises made you in this Henley will case. We'll talk the details over later."

"Who is responsible for my pay?"

"See here, Craig, the case stands like this. The revolutionists down there asked me to find them a competent drill master, and they will pay royally. They've got the money, too, scads of it. There will be no trouble on that score. Besides, I need a reliable man ashore to look after shipments. We have to land our goods in a hurry, you understand, at night, without check-

IS IT A COUGH?

Ontario Women's Advice.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I am a great believer in Dr. Pierce's medicines. I am speaking from the actual use of them and the great benefit I have derived therefrom. Shortly after my marriage I began ailing, had a very bad cough and got very thin and was run down. My people thought I was going into a decline. They got 'Golden Medical Discovery' and this medicine completely cured me."—Mrs. AMELIA HIBBARD, 26 Grecver St., Hamilton, Ont.

Kilbride, Ont.—"When I was only eleven months old my mother procured 'Golden Medical Discovery' for me, which cured me of congestion of lungs and whooping cough. I have taken it several times myself since and about one year ago I gave it to my two children for whooping cough. They recovered very quickly with no bad results, after taking one bottle. I have recommended it to quite a number of late."—Mrs. W. J. JENKINS, Kilbride, Ont.

The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated and the body is wasted by emaciation, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in most cases effect a permanent cure.

Get Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to-day from any medicine dealer; it is a powerful blood purifier, so penetrating that it even gets at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system.

Depend upon this grand remedy to give you the kind of blood that makes the skin clear, the mind alert, the vision keener, and puts ambition and energy into the entire body. You will not be disappointed. For free advice, write Dr. V. M. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

ing up. I can answer to name you something pretty nice on the side to assure myself a square deal."

"It looks good," I confessed, but still hesitating. "Only I shall have to have it in writing and more in detail."

"We'll talk that over in the morning; it's late now. Take the third stateroom, starboard; it's all ready for you."

"Then I am no longer to consider myself a prisoner on board?"

"And I have the freedom of the deck?"

He smiled grimly, gazing intently at me.

"That is safe enough, I reckon, even if I questioned your interest in this adventure. There must be ten miles of water already between us and the coast. There are no limits on your liberty, but I wouldn't advise your going forward at present, not until the men understand the situation. They're a hard lot."

"Revolutionists?"

"Who is first mate—the German?"

"Yes; Herman; a fine sailor. Was with the Hamburg people until he had a wreck. The creole Broussard is second, and two of them together could tame a cargo of wildcats."

I took his hand, feeling the sinewy grip of his lean, brown fingers, and turned to the door. The single lamp in the main cabin was turned low, only faintly illuminating the interior. In the quiet I could feel the movement of the vessel and realized there was some sea on, although the engines were being operated only at half speed. This seemed odd if speed was desirable, as I supposed it must be on a voyage of this nature. I was not in the least sleepy and sank down in the first chair to think, my eyes on the captain's door.

What Henley meant to do with the girl was problematical—I had not thought to ask—but he either intended putting her ashore in Honduras or else holding her prisoner on board until the Sea Gull returned north. Either contingency was bad enough, and the suspicion flashed suddenly across me that the final decision would depend on how kindly she might receive the attentions of the captain. Nor did I question the result. I had not known the lady long, but in that brief time our relations had been sufficiently intimate to yield me a good insight into her womanly character. There would be no yielding, no compromise.

I felt my teeth lock, my hands clinch in sudden anger.

I may have remained there for a quarter of an hour, motionless, thinking over every incident. No one disturbed me. The captain was still in his stateroom, where once or twice I fancied I heard him pacing the floor. The steward had apparently retired for the night, although it was not late, as a glance at my watch proved. My eyes traced the doors on either side, ten altogether, each plainly numbered, and I opened the one assigned to me and glanced within. Except that it was more commodious and contained a washstand at one corner, it did not differ greatly from the other forward where I had been held prisoner.

I wondered which of these others might be hers and paused silently from door to door, vaguely hoping for some sign of guidance. They were all tightly closed, and I dare not try the locks, as I was certain one, at least, of the under officers would be sleeping below. My round had brought me to the second door on the port side when in the dim light I perceived something lying at my feet and stooped down to better determine its character. It was the end of a very narrow light blue ribbon, apparently caught beneath the door. The door was numbered "5." Whether by accident or design, she had left the one clew I most needed. I thrust it into my pocket, but the soft touch of the silk seemed to bring back to me a sense of caution. I knew the door was locked and assured myself there was no space beneath. If I was to communicate with her other means must be employed. What? This was the second stateroom on the port side. Judging from my own, the width of each room would be about six feet. There ought to be no difficulty in locating her porthole from the deck above nor in attracting her attention.

The one thing I desired now was to re-establish myself fully in her confidence, assure her I was at liberty on board, able and willing to be of service. This necessity overshadowed everything else. If I could discover means of communication we could plan hopefully, assured of co-operation. This seemed possible, the way to its accomplishment open. Shadowed from observation by the thick butt of the after mast, I wrote a few lines hastily on the back of an envelope, thrust it into my pocket and ventured up the companion stairs.

A glance sufficed to convince that I was alone and unobserved. The deck was unobstructed aft, except for a small boat swung to davits astern and the cabin transoms. These last were elevated some three feet, but considerable space separated from the rail. I slipped into this opening on the port side, crouching in the dense shadow until again assured I was alone. My position afforded as good a view forward as the darkness would permit and likewise enabled me to see into the dimly lit cabin below. I was not watched or spied upon. For the first time I began to feel free.

With a glance below at the unoccupied cabin I stepped back and paced off the distance until convinced that I had safely located where the porthole of No. 5 should be. I leaned over, seeking to trace its outline by some reflection of light from within, but the receding side of the vessel baffled me. Yet, assured that I must be correct in my measurements, I marked the spot on the rail and began search for some means by which I could open communication with the girl below.

Mark Twain Story.

He was lunching one day with a friend in a cafe. Two over dressed young men entered, and the first said in a loud voice:

"Waiter, bring me some lobster, a bottle of white wine, and a chop. Just mention my name to the chef, to assure that everything will be done to my liking."

The second said: "Bring me some sole with peas, and tell the chef who it's for."

Mr. Twain gave his order a moment later. He said, with a wink at his companion: "Bring me a half-dozen oysters, and mention my name to each of them."

A FOUNDERED NATION.

The Nation Armenia is clearly a foundered nation. The Young Turk has deliberately sunk it. Where Abdul Hamid slew his 300,000, Enver Pasha of the figures of Lord Bryce is accepted, has slain 800,000. The main facts of the story which Lord Cromer told to the Lords were admitted by Lord Crewe, and Lord Bryce's appalling details were merely supplementary. The whole Armenian country has been swept of inhabitants. Shiploads were deliberately drowned in the Black Sea; great droves of men and women have been transplanted to uninhabitable regions, dying by the way, the women stripped naked and throwing away their children in despair of feeding or carrying them. Only a remnant of this intelligent and industrious nation is now left. Germany's responsibility for this crime is direct. She is admittedly indifferent, it is charged against her in the United States, that some of her consuls have aided individual massacres. In her Pagan mood she dissociates herself from Christian humanity; nevertheless, she stands today under a load of guilt unexampled in modern history.

WHY HE LEFT IT.

An Irishman in London was holding forth to some companions on the good points of his native country. "It is the cheapest country in the world to live in," said he. "You will buy a fine salmon for sixpence and about a dozen mackerels for twopence." "And, Paddy, why did you leave that blessed and cheap country?" "I left it because I didn't happen to have either the twopence or the sixpence about me," replied Paddy.

Comfort and Cure For Baby's Skin Troubles

Dr. Chase's Ointment Cured When Baby's Body Was Covered With Distressing Eczema

If every mother could try Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing, skin irritation and resulting eczema which tortures so many babies, what a blessing it would be for the little ones.

This letter will give you an idea of what a wonderful work this Ointment is doing in the way of bringing comfort to children who are so unfortunate as to contract eczema. It is so easy for this trouble to develop from chafing or irritation caused by the clothing, and so difficult to get it cured, that Dr. Chase's Ointment is appreciated when once its healing qualities are known.

Mr. M. L. Duscles, Postmaster, Dugnayville, N.B., writes: "I believe it my duty to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for eczema. My baby was seized with eczema and his face and arms were covered with this terrible disease. After trying all sorts of ointments the disease continued to spread until it covered the entire body. When the itching became bad he would scratch himself and was sometimes found in his cradle covered with blood. Hearing about Dr. Chase's Ointment I bought two boxes and before this was all used the child was cured. That was a year ago, and there has been no trace of eczema since. I recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all who suffer from eczema as being the best treatment in the world for itching skin diseases."

Dr. Chase's Ointment is for sale by all dealers at 60 cents a box. It is a good idea to keep it at hand along with the bath soap to be used for roughness of the skin, chafing or irritation. Prevention is so much better than cure. Powders clog the pores, but Dr. Chase's Ointment cleanses the pores and thereby keeps the skin soft and smooth. Sample box free if you mention this paper. THE PENALTY OF UNTHANKFULNESS

Gratitude For Mercies Enhance Their Value.

Unthankfulness Breeds Discontent and Undermines Happiness—True Christians Accept Their Life's Experiences Cheerfully, Knowing the Lord's Measures to Be Just—They Alone Can Give Thanks in the Full Sense of the Word.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

Montreal, Que., Nov. 21.—Pastor Russell spoke here to-day on the subject of "Thanksgiving." His text was "Giving thanks always for all things unto God." (Ephesians 5:20.) He said in part:

Our experiences in life are to a considerable extent what we make them. Bible students should be philosophers—every one of them. Why? Because the Wisdom from Above is the noblest science and best instruction. As St. Paul declares, it tends to promote the spirit of a sound mind—and a sound mind is necessarily a philosophical one. Murmurers and complainers are not philosophers, but the reverse. A sound mind tells us to take things as they are, to make the best of them rather than to quarrel over them and find fault with Divine providence and make ourselves and everybody else in our environment miserable.

True Christian people in every land and under all conditions have found plenty of cause for thankfulness, even though they have had their share, or more, of life's difficulties. Nor was this thankfulness because they had mastered the Divine philosophy and understood the WHY and WHEREFORE of the present reign of Sin and Death. They accepted their portion of life's joys and sorrows by faith, believing that their portion was measured to them by the Lord, and that full obedience and submission, with cheerfulness, was their duty.

We are ready to concede that the world, awakening from the sleepy superstitions of the past, can readily find many excuses for declining to be thankful. If we mention some of these it will not be by way of endorsing them, rather to show the unthankful masses that we recognize their viewpoint but do not agree with it. We would point them to the better course of thankfulness and proportionate happiness.

To their complaint that they have fewer and smaller blessings than their more wealthy neighbors, we remind them that the poor of this favored land habitually waste more than would make very thankful some of the poor of other lands. We remind that under Divine blessing upon the soil and Divine blessing upon human skill conveniences and comforts have multiplied about us so that the "common people" of our land have home comforts and conveniences and educational facilities and parks and libraries, well paved and lighted streets, and cheap transportation such as were not dreamed of in our grandfathers' days, nor enjoyed even by the rich. Let us not greedily ask more along these lines until we have fully appreciated present privileges and blessings and returned thanks therefor.

"But," says one, "our forefathers were superstitiously thankful, and we must avoid that. They gave thanks to God for the sunshine and the rain. We have learned that these are provisions of nature; and we thank nobody for them. Our forefathers thanked God for escape from feudal slavery; but we see that they should have rebelled against feudalism and bought their freedom with their own courage." Our forefathers thanked God, if they were sick, that they did not die and go to eternal torture. We are coming to the rationalistic idea that they should have thanked their physician for recovery from sickness and should not have believed in an everlasting future of torture; for so far as we can see that teaching is all humbug.

"Intelligent people of the world have no more knowledge than ourselves respecting a future. We agree with the college professors that our race is progressing by an evolutionary law of nature; that God has nothing to do with it; and that there is no future life for us except in the sense that we, in the future, will be represented on a higher plane of living by our evolved children. You will perceive, therefore, why we consider Thanksgiving Day a piece of medieval superstition."

Our reply to this reasoning must be along two lines: first, philosophical; second, analytical:

(1) Are not these increasingly large numbers of pantheistic and atheistic evolutionists unphilosophical? They admit that they have blessings far beyond anything known to their forefathers, and they admit that their unhappiness has increased in proportion as these blessings and reasonings respecting them have been received. Would not a true philosophy tell them that if happiness is their aim and desire, their loss of happiness is not due to the increased blessings, but to the improper and unthankful manner in which they have received them? Would not philosophy alone, apart from the Bible or religion, have warned them that, even if their theories were true it would be unwise to cultivate them in their own minds and in the minds of others?

(2) Let us now analyze the foregoing complaints. Who can prove to us that there is no living and true God—that there is merely a god of nature, a blind force? Who can explain to us the power which holds our earth in its orbit around the sun which has given us summer and winter, cold and heat; and which has given us mountains and valleys, hills and plains, in pleasing variety and loaded with minerals most useful to us and merely waiting our Heaven-directed genius to bring them forth for the blessing of our race, and to make of earth the Paradise of God?

What philosophy can prove to us that these things have happened by chance and that we are wrong in accepting the Scriptural suggestion "Day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night showeth knowledge and there is no place where their voice is not heard"—proclaiming an all-wise and beneficent Creator? We know that the wisdom and beneficence of our Creator were hidden from our mental view by our superstitions and irrational creeds of the past; but now, as the electric light has superseded the tallow candle, so God's Word to-day is shining forth to those who have eyes to see its beauty.

Let us not boast ourselves as possessed of so much greater courage than had some in feudal times. Let us note, on the contrary, that the patriotism which demanded and obtained the Magna Charta of our liberties was as noble and courageous as any that we have to-day, or more so. Our freedom from some of the superstitions of the past is the result of the spread of education; and we must thank neither ourselves nor our forefathers for this widespread education. We must thank the Lord for it. It came upon the world in spite of the opposition of the rich and the indifference of the poor. It came because God's due time for it had arrived.

The Scriptures fully assure us that this is a special mark or evidence that the New Era of Divine blessing prophesied in the Scriptures long ago, is now at hand. Compare St. Peter's words (Acts 3:19-21) with the words of the Prophet Daniel (Daniel 12:1.) Rightly understood and appreciated, the very arguments used to oppose God are grounds for sincere praise and gratitude and hope for the future.

To Higher Critics and Evolutionists.

The law of sin and death is referred to in Scripture. We grant, as all thinking people must, that the teaching of the creeds formulated in the Dark Ages respecting the torture of the dead are absurd; and more than this, we hold that they are unscriptural, that they were conjured up under superstitious fears, and that certain symbolical pictures of the Bible were wrested to the support of these misconceptions of the Divine character and Plan.

But does the rejection of those absurd theories disprove an intelligent Creator and disprove the Bible declaration that He is a God of Love, and that there is a [illegible]

If a pain attacks you in the back you should stop and think what it is and what causes it.

If the kidneys are at fault—and in nine cases out of every ten they are—you should attend to them at once, as it is impossible to have a well, strong back unless the kidneys are performing their functions in a proper manner.

Anyone with a bad back should appreciate how to get a good one. It is a very simple matter. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They regulate the kidneys, and there is no further excuse for any kidney trouble to exist.

Mrs. E. J. Graves, Oshawa, Ont., writes: "My complaint lies with my kidneys. I have suffered no end of pain with them, and with backaches. I had tried everything, so I thought, until a friend advised me to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I did try them, and one box helped me fine, so I got another, and now feel that I cannot recommend them too highly to anyone suffering with kidney trouble."

tion of the present reign of Sin and Death, and a rational basis for hope for the resurrection of the dead under the glorious Reign of Emmanuel, the Prince of Life, and the blessings which His Kingdom will surely bring to every member of our race? That the human family is in a weak and depraved condition, mentally, morally, and physically, is beyond dispute; and evolutionists have not proven the Bible in error in its explanation that present mental, moral and physical weakness is proof of the degeneracy which came to our race as a result of sin. Consanguinity between the human and the ape has not been proven; but if it HAD BEEN there would be just as much ground for reasoning that a monkey or an ape is a degenerate human as for claiming that humanity are evoluted apes.

In opposition to this irrational theory we note that mankind in general, even those of humble birth have organs of the mind which they rarely use, and which cannot, therefore, be said to be evolved by them; and those organs are not the lower but the higher ones, the nobler ones. Those qualities of mind are present but dormant, merely waiting to be quickened into activity. This fact favors the Bible view that mankind are FALLEN, and that few are living up to even the best of the impaired organism which they possess.

The evolutionary theory, that we should live and die simply for the advancement of future generations may prove an incentive to some; but in our judgment these will be few. Of far greater interest is the Bible teaching that the present is the NIGHT TIME, in which our friends and neighbors and ourselves, one by one, fall asleep in death; and that God's Infinite Wisdom and Power and Love have provided a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and unjust—the just to glory, honor, and everlasting life; the unjust to a glorious condition very different from the present reign of Sin and Death—under the Reign of the Prince of Life with glorious opportunities, for a thousand years, of uplifting blessedness. Then everlasting life will be the reward to the faithful and appreciative.

We have noted that unthankfulness means discontent, and that discontent means unhappiness and misery. Who then can afford to be unthankful, or to take the road of unbelief, which surely leads thereto? St. Paul draws our attention to the fact that much of the degradation of the heathen should be directly traced to unthankfulness. He declares that the Headship of the Almighty over all creation, and His unlimited power are clearly manifested in the things of nature.

He declares that the heathen "are without excuse, because when they knew God they glorified Him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations and their foolish heart was darkened. Professing themselves to be wise, they became foolish and idolaters. "Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness, through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonor their own bodies between themselves." (Romans 1:20-22.) Unthankfulness to God was not punished directly nor threatened with a future punishment. Acting automatically it separated the unthankful ones from their Creator; and their course became downward, degenerate.

The spirit of unthankfulness as a malady threatens our present civilization with death. Year by year this sentiment has been growing; and discontent, when fully hatched out, will be the viper of anarchy, for whose virus there is no human remedy.

We thank God that although this awful anarchy foretold is near at hand, and is beyond human ability to cope with, yet Divine Love has promised to intervene to save the unthankful world by the establishment of the Messianic Kingdom in power and great glory, for the blessing of all the families of the earth, for the making straight of all the crooked paths, for the opening of the eyes of understanding, that all may see the Truth.

The Thanksgiving of Christians.

St. Peter, addressing Christians says, "What manner of persons ought YE to be?" Similarly, we might say How earnest should be the thanksgiving of Christians! But alas! Thanksgiving Day with us has lost much of the religious import known to our forefathers. Notwithstanding false doctrines inculcated by man-made creeds, our forefathers believed the Bible record of man's original perfection, his fall into sin and condemnation, the redemption accomplished through Jesus, and a restoration to Divine favor thus made possible. These truths constituted the foundation for a living faith in God and led them to give thanks for the harvest of the year, accounting that if every good and perfect gift comes directly or indirectly from the hand of God it should be received accordingly and acknowledged.

To-day, however, we have the form of godliness without the power, because the precious fa[illegible] has been well-nigh destroyed by the Higher Critics and Evolutionists, who for the past fifty years have been laboring constantly to this end, and with wonderful success. Well does God ask the question, "Who hath believed our report"—who believes the Divine Record, or Message, and who sees the Arm of Jehovah connected with the world's affairs?

Anyone having lost faith in the Bible and its God has therefore little left except a form of godliness, without its power. Nevertheless, here and there in all nations and all sects of Christendom are to be found loyal souls, bewildered by the present trend of affairs, and crying out to God for further light, and appreciating and giving thanks for every blessing, even though they do not understand the philosophy of their own experience.

The Morning-Star Dawn.

St. Peter declares that the sun[illegible] burst of the New Dispensation or Messiah's Kingdom will be preceded by the Morning Star, which will shine into the hearts of God's faithful people in the early dawn, to herald its approach. The Sun of Righteousness has not yet risen; but many of God's people are noting the clear light now shining upon the Divine Word, and are realizing that it comes from Him and that He is preparing them through a better understanding of the Bible, to appreciate the glorious sunlight of Divine mercy which will soon overspread the world and scatter the darkness of earth's superstition, sin, and death.

And so, as we get the matter rightly adjusted before our minds, we get the true understanding, the special enlightenment needed in our day, and we are enabled to rightly divide the Word better than did our fathers, so that to-day we can see, as our fathers did not see, the teaching of God's Word respecting the "High Calling" and "Restitution"—the spiritual portion of blessing for the Church, and the human portion of blessing for the world. We also see something about the times and seasons—Which apply to the Church and which apply to the world.

We are not to forget that the Lord promised that He would guide His people in the way of the Truth and show them things to come. We are to "STUDY" to show ourselves approved—study the doctrine, and endeavor to have our course of conduct harmonize with it—study to perform faithfully the duties of a loyal soldier of the cross of Christ.—2 Timothy 2:15.

Such alone are able to give thanks in the highest sense of the term; for they, better than others, appreciate the Divine Program and can fully endorse the words of our text. I urge all of this class to be very thankful, singing and making melody in your hearts to the Lord in respect to all your affairs, and waiting patiently for the full development of the Divine Purpose, assured by faith it will prove exceedingly, abundantly more than we could have asked or thought. I urge the remainder of mankind to cultivate thankfulness to whatever extent they can see and appreciate the Divine character, and to exercise faith therein. There is a blessing in it, not only for the present life, but as a preparation for the life to come.

Let Christians give thanks that by the grace of God their eyes and ears of understanding are opening to a better knowledge of the Divine character. Let them give thanks, not only for redemption from the death sentence, but also for their Call to saintship and its consequent sufferings in this present time and its promise of reward of glory on the spirit plane by and by. Let the world give thanks also, in proportion as they are able to discern God's goodness and mercy toward the human family—that eventually through the channel of the glorified Christ—Jesus, the Head, and the Church, the Body—the Divine blessing will be extended to every member of Adam's race, giving opportunity to all to attain to life everlasting with full human perfection and a world-wide Eden upon this now sin-cursed earth. Whoever gets the proper view of the Heavenly Father's character will thereafter be able to celebrate Thanksgiving Day much more intelligently and happily than ever before.

IT WAS KINDNESS TO LET THE BABY DIE, SAYS DOCTOR

A Surgical Operation Would Save Life but Imbecility and Criminal Career Would be the Result

CHICAGO, Nov. 20.—The Bollinger baby, a defective mite, whose mother, on professional advice, decided it should not undergo an operation which probably would save its life, died last night.

The principal physical deformities of the baby are the closure of the intestinal tract, paralysis of the nerves of the right side of the face, and absence of the right ear, blindness of one eye and malformation of the shoulders. Dr. Haiselden who officiated at the birth, noted the absence of a neck. The brain he found to be only slightly subnormal, but the cranial nerves were absent or undeveloped.

Nature blundered when Mrs. Bollinger's baby was born, D. Haiselden, chief of the hospital staff, told the mother that a surgical operation would save the baby. He also told her that the child would grow up to manhood malformed, mentally defective, and probably become a criminal.

Conscience Clear.

"I have no doubt I will be called a murderer," said Dr. Haiselden today, "but my conscience tells me it would be wrong to let the child live. I will do nothing to hasten the death of the baby, but nature will be permitted to complete its bungling job."

Mrs. Bollinger, the baby's mother said she was reconciled. "I love the child as much as I love my three healthy children," she said. "but I would rather it should die than be an imbicile or a criminal."

The baby, born after its mother had been seriously ill with typhoid fever, came into the world last Friday.

Some Other Views.

The question of whether the plan to permit death to take a baby under such circumstances was put to several prominent Chicagoans today and here are their answers:

Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, social worker—"if possible, the child should be saved. Every child, once it is born, has the right to live."

Dr. John B. Murphy, noted surgeon—"We have no right to form judgment on whether an infant should live or die. I would not feel should live or die I would not feel

Peter Hoffman coroner of Cook County—"A life is a life, regardless of its condition or the future one might guess it would have."

Rev. A. H. W. Anderson, rector All Saint's Episcopal Church—"The terrible handicap under which this child was born makes it an act of mercy to let it die.

Dr. Isaac A. Abt authority on children's diseases—"If I were convinced the child was doomed to a life of misery and possibly imbecility. I would let nature take its course."

Dr. Charles B. Younger—"Physicians have no right to take life It is their duty to prolong it."

Born for a Purpose.

Miss Harriet Vittum, of Northwestern University Settlement—"I cannot help but feel that the child was born for some purpose."

Louis E. Phillips, Christian Scientist: "I would do the kindliest thing by leaving the child alone for nature to fulfil its own destiny. None can say how the intelligence back of the phenomena of the universe will express itself."

WEAK, AILING CHILDREN

Made Well and Strong by Simple Remedy

Here is another letter that has just come to our attention, showing the power of Vinol to build up health and strength for weak, puny, ailing children.

W. A. Smith, of Shanesville, Ohio, says:—"My little child was puny, weak and ailing, could not rest at night and would not eat. I learned about Vinol and tried it, and within a week noticed an improvement. The child's appetite improved, it slept well strength and health were soon built up. We think Vinol is excellent for weak, puny children."

Vinol is a delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, containing beef peptone, which creates an appetite, tones up the digestive organs, enriches the blood and creates strength, children love to take it.

We ask all parents of weak, sickly, delicate children in this vicinity to try Vinol with the understanding that we will return your money if it fails to benefit your little ones.

ODD SCENES AT SALONIKI WHERE ALL SORTS OF PEOPLE ARE

French and Greeks Exchange Salutes But the British Acknowledge Only Their Own Officers

SALONIKA, Greece, Nov 20—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The very approach to Saloniki foreshadows the presence of war The long reach of the Gulf of Saloniki reveals a continuous procession of ships going and coming, and from their standards trail the most unexpected flags: Roumania, Belgian, Dutch, Russian, Egyptian—all engaged in some way in victualling the foreign troops concentrated on the doorstep of the Balkans.

Huge trans-Atlantic lines, French and British, laden with soldiers, glide toward the harbor, whose entrance is guarded by a common tug metamorphosed into a warship by armor and a mounted gun or two. The warship at the gate of Greece's second port flies the French, not the Greek flag. Each entering vessel is hailed and while not visited, is requested to give an account of itself before it is permitted to press the gateway in the steel net, whose presence across the narrows is marked by a line of floats

Strange Animated Scene.

Within the harbor, whose safety is secured by this net, against submarines, the scene is even more animated. Not since the last Balkan war have so many ships gathered before Saloniki. Out in the roadstead lie French and British warships, and one Italian man o' war. To defend the interests of Greece a tiny Greece destroyer hugs the shore a pigmy among giants of war

If the harbor of Saloniki is a conglomeration of strange flags and of every class of ships, it is as nothing in comparison with the quays Not Port Said nor Marseilles ever knew so polyglot a babel or saw such a kaleidoscope of costumes. There are French "poilus" in the sky-blue uniforms, French Alpine chasseurs, Tam O'Shanters on the side of the head; French colonial troops—Turcos, Senegalais, in baggy khaki bloomers and short gaiters; French marines with red pompons on their round caps, French dragoons, with horse tails in their helmets, French officers of every description; French sailors, and, commonest of all, calm red-trousered French territorials. Now and then these carts draw to one side to make room for a column of Greek mountain artillery. Again straggling lines of Greek infantry take the right of way.

Tommy There Too.

Afoot, bands of British Tommies push their way down the crowded streets. British officers, canes in hand, sweep the sidewalks from side to side, driving the countless itinerant vendors into the street French salute Greek; Greeks salute French But the British salute only the British

Cosmopolitan as are the inhabitants of Saloniki at any time, they are more so than ever now, increased as the population has been by refugees from Siberia, Macedonia and Thrace Among the permanent inhabitants, to judge from the streets, Turks seem to predominate

When Night Falls.

Beside the Greeks, the Jews and the Turks, the quays of Saloniki are picturesque also with bearded hook-nosed Leventines of non-descript nationality Porters that might have stepped from the Arabian Nights.

When night falls the lights at the mastheads and in the portholes of the assembled ships spring out At the docks a huge Frenchtransport is unloading its cargo of human beings The shouts of the men, the clank of cranes come across the water without ceasing the whole night through

At midnight the cafes close The lights in the harbor go out one by one. Patrols of soldiers with bayonets set—French, Greek, British—march up and down the pitch-black side streets in search of stragglers. Save these there are no signs of war.

Britain's Ceaseless Watching of Sea That Has Nullified All Threats of German Craft

The First Lord of the Admiralty has announced that the losses inflicted upon German submarines have been formidable. By doing so Mr. Balfour crystalized the stories told by the naval men who have come in from the North Sea to those who move amongst them in the anchorages on the eastern seashore But very little has been said so far about the methods followed by the navy in tracking and destroying the latter day pirates of the seas, and not very much about the number of German submarines which have been accounted for by the fleet A great deal might be said on both points. There are 2,300 trawlers, minesweepers and other auxiliaries on duty, outside the regular service, keeping the North Sea clear We always believed there was about 3,000 ships at work round our coast, and what is this matchless armada searching for on the lone wastes?

So far as the smallest patrol vessels are concerned, they have their month so divided up that more than half of the 30 days is spent on actual patrol work, and for about one-third they lie at their moorings, ready at any moment to go out and reinforce a given unit. The remaining few days they are in the harbor and the men are on shore leave Take the men who are patrolling given tracts. They do ten miles either way—back and forward, back and forward, no change, no variety—looking, watching, ever ready. Night and day there stands the gun layer, his own master as to when he should fire To watch these vessels from land, even at long intervals, as they pass back and forward grows tiresome What is it to those on board whose eyes must never relax and whose watchfulness must never waver? In fine weather life is passable, but take it on the dirty winter nights they pass through. Where is the sport in living under conditions which pile torpedo boats above high-water mark, a March gale tossing them ashore like corks—and the gales of the North Sea are as fierce and bitter as on any ocean, for the terrible northeastern laden with the ice of Norway comes cutting deep into the sailors who man even the ships that patrol the Scottish firths. The cruisers on patrol are not so unfortunate in going to an anchorage after a short service or in obtaining the benefits of recuperating by a 'few days' more leave Respites from active service are now happily more numerous than in the anxious days when we thought the German fleet might come out, but it was a melancholy experience to move slowly about the North Sea, day after day, week after week, and month after month—nothing in sight but water, and no one on board knowing where they were, except the captain. It was an intense vigil, with ever the danger that the fate that overtook the Hawke and the Pathfinder in broad daylight might overtake them at any moment.

The losses inflicted on the German submarines have been formidable; they are more than formidable, they are irretrievable When this war started we had still to acquire actual experience in fighting the underwater craft We had to learn, but after the Hogue, the Cressy, and the Aboukir there was a lull to the losses of the Pathfinder and the Hawke, and there was then a long interval before the Germans sank the Formidable. But we have grappled with the difficulty, and we have means for tracing submarines immediately they enter given areas that are amongst the most carefully guarded secrets of the navy. But what is common knowledge amongst those acquainted with naval work is that we can trace a submarine travelling under water through a curious formation of the wave it creates on the surface

Our sailors are now trained to pick out this wave Even laymen in navigation will readily understand that if there is a large object under the water, approximating a thousand tons, even at a considerable depth it will cause a displacement on the surface. This wave is not easy to pick out on the tumultuous sea, but we can do it, and, moreover, once we get on this wave there is no difficulty in following it, for the submarine is constantly sending up little air bubbles. Once on this track the submarine is doomed. It has no escape. But there are not many German submarines now We keep sinking them, towing them in, blowing them up.

Life in these submarines is on a razor's edge The Germans know that the fearless, tireless British navy has swept from the sea the bulk of its submarines It takes years to train the high-skilled men for submarine work If they have many boats left—and the facts are against them having many—they cannot have capable men or skilled officers to work the most delicate machine in the whole service of the sea.

MRS. WORTHINGTON

Sues for Divorce, Says He Confessed

NEW YORK, Nov 19 A divorce action based on the alleged confession of Edward H. Worthington, son of Charles C Worthington, a capitalist, of Shawnee on Delaware, was begun in the Supreme Court by Mrs Janet B. Worthington. She accuses her husband of misconduct with several women and narrates instances of his alleged neglect She is the daughter of United States District Attorney Barnett, of Stroudsburg, Pa.

Mr Worthington is said to possess wealth through inheritances from his mother and relatives. When the late Mrs Julia H Worthington, his mother, divorced her husband he set apart a trust fund of $250,000 for her benefit She received the income until her death, June 8, 1913, and left a will distributing the principal among her children

Charles C Worthington objected that the fund was to revert to him at her death and succeeded in recovering it He is said to have liberally provided for his son, who lives with him. Henry R. Worthington another son, is president of the Worthington Steam Pump Company

Gets $80 Monthly Alimony.

Although Mrs Worthington explained to Justice Gegerich that her husband does not deny the charges of misconduct against him, the Justice said he could not allow her more than $80 a month as alimony at present. He asserted that the wealth of the father had nothing to do with the amount which he could award to the wife pending trial of her action. Until Edward H Worthington has received his various inheritances and has again obtained a satisfactory position the wife will be deemed any substantial menace, it is said She received $750 in counsel fees

When Mr Worthington received papers in the action at Shawnee on Delaware, he said that his attorneys were endeavouring to adjust his difficulties with the attorneys of his wife The action was in the nature of a surprise, he asserted He now is employed by the Shawnee Mower Company at $100 a month, the concern being owned by his father The husband declares that he may be forced to pay for his board at his father's home in the near future and that he has only $5 in the bank His other income consists at present in $50 a month from realty left to him by his mother.

Mrs Worthington says she was married in Welland, Canada, in 1906, and that the misconduct of her husband with "various women" occurred during the last two years There are two children of the marriage, Edward Hodder Worthington six and John Norton Worthington, two years old, now living with their mother at No 644 Riverside Drive.

From 1911 to 1915 Mr Worthington was employed by the Power Specialty Company as a salesman, with a Western territory. In September 1914, he told his wife that he was going to pass a few days at the home of his father Mrs Worthington says, and did not return at all After a time he wrote to her, she says, his letter stating that he had $7,000 in insurance in the event that anything should happen to him He reminded her that at the death of his father he would receive $60,000 and would receive another $40,000 under the will of Theodore Miller He already held an interest valued at $24,785 in the estate of his mother

Mrs Worthington was known familiarly as "Jack" to her husband Last August he wrote to her suggesting that their differences be arranged He was in Chicago at the time, and she telegraphed a reply that she would come on at once In return he telegraphed that she must not come because he was about to leave for Kansas on business, the wife says She went to the offices of the Power Specialty Company, at No. 111 Broadway, and found out that he had not told the truth, she declares

Mrs Worthington says she went to Chicago September 1 and stopped at the Congress Hotel, where her husband said to her: "Yes, 'Jack,' I have been unfaithful to you It happened down at the end of my territory with a married woman It you forgive everything and let me come back and live with you again I will make a complete confession."

The two returned to this city and then went to the home of his sister, Mrs Julia Sawtelle, wife of Edward Sawtelle, at Englewood, N. J Mrs Sawtelle received $130,000 by her mother's will Mrs Worthington says she was in distavour there because of a misunderstanding of the relations between herself and her husband. She says she said to her husband before Mr and Mrs Sawtelle: "I want you to tell both Julia and 'Ned' before me that I am blameless in this affair and that you had no reason for your treatment of me this summer." Mr Worthington is said to have replied

"That is true 'Jack' is right I have not any reason for doing as I did

Demands He Confess.

The wife says that she told him he must tell all about his unfaithfulness unless he wanted her to do so He replied that he would tell Mr Sawtelle "alone," it is said The two men took a walk, the wife says, and when they returned Mr Sawtelle was much more cordial to her than he had been before

"What is the first mention of a bank? When Pharaoh received a check on the bank of the Red Sea and Moses crossed it

Stomach Was Bad.

Could Eat Hardly Anything.

When the stomach gets out of order the whole system seems to become affected in one way or an other The breath becomes foul, the tongue furred, the appetite becomes disturbed, nausea and vomiting occur, there is a rising and souring of food caused by the acidity of the stomach, and the stomach and bowels become distended causing flatulency Unless these symptoms are met with immediately, dyspepsia or some other serious trouble is liable to follow as a consequence

That grand old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that there is not another medicine on the market to-day that can compare with it for the cure of all disturbances of the stomach

Miss Lillian E. Phillips, Plumweecop, N.B., writes: "My stomach was so bad I was in pain and misery I could eat hardly anything I had been treated by skillful doctors for it, but they did me no good I was giving up in despair when I happened to hear of Burdock Blood Bitters You can't think how fast it helped me, for I had only taken two bottles before I was better I will recommend your medicine very highly to all my friends and sufferers."

His Rivals.

In Turkey it often happens that marriages are arranged affairs—arranged by the parents of the man and the woman. Such was the case, says Demetra Vaka in Harem-ik, with Halil Bey and his bride They had never seen each other, and at first it did not look as if the match would be a good one, since the lady was burned deep in German philosophies, in which the gentleman had little interest

By the time I had parted from Halil Bey's fiancee I was so filled up with high ideals that I kept thinking "Poor Halil Bey!"

The next morning I found Halil Bey in the garden very impatient to hear all about his fiancee

"Tell me, he cried out as soon as we had shaken hands 'is she beautiful?'

"Very," I answered, 'but, my poor boy, she is crazy over Kant and Schopenhauer'

"Who are they?" he bellowed, thunder in his voice and fire in his eyes "Tell me quick, and I will draw every drop of blood from their veins!"

"I have no doubt," I said, "that in a fist to fist encounter you would have the best of them, but they are both dead and gone, and only their miserable books are left to fight against."

"Oh," he laughed, "is that all? I think I can take care of that."

As events turned out, he did.

The Restful Life.

"We must live rhythmically if we would live healthfully," writes Grace Dawson in "How to Rest and Be Rested" "To live rhythmically we must not always strain tense nerves and muscles We must learn to relax, that we may know how to economize our nervous and muscular power so that some part of us will always be resting while another is at work. This is living by the law of rhythm. It is the secret of working tirelessly, resting restfully, resisting disease, throwing off morbid feelings, of living healthfully and feeling zest and enjoyment in our lives."

We are living unrhythmically "when we lie awake in the night with harassed, with anxious, worrying thoughts, when we rush to the station in great anxiety and reach it in such good time that we catch the train before the one we went for; whenever we get a feeling of being 'rushed' or 'driven' or 'tied to time'"

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, sure notes advancing age We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance Your hair is your charm It makes or mars the face When it fades, turns gray and look dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur restores its appearance so gradually no one can tell you have applied anything. Everybody knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur darkens beautifully and evenly. Your hair seems a sponge or soft brush which you run through it. By morning the gray hair disappears, after another application or two it becomes beautifully restored, dark glossy and lustrous and looks years younger.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The overblouse has established itself as a prime favorite for summer dresses It takes many forms, but none prettier than that shown in the accompanying illustration In this gown the overblouse is shaped like the lower half of an ordinary loose bodice, and is cut away in an ornamental line at the top. Straight straps pass over the shoulders and hold the material in place Under this is worn an ordinary shirt waist, which is made in the regulation manner It is plain in both front and back and has a wide collar at the open neck The sleeves are inserted with the normal armhole and may be left with a loose edge or gathered in at the back of the arm just below the elbow.

The skirt has a deep, fitted yoke which may have raised or regulation line at the top. To this is joined the lower portion of the skirt with a seam in front and back and with the gores circular. There is a cuff facing for the lower edge, but this may be omitted if preferred.

There is quite a fancy for these dresses with a plain blouse of crepe de Chine, voile or organdie, while the outer portion of the frock is of wash silk, taffetas, gingham, linen, pongee and other materials.

This would be a pretty model for a travelling dress of serge or gabardine with a waist of thin silk or crepe de Chine.

The dress pattern, No. 7299, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure Medium size requires for dress with skirt facing 4⅝ yards of 36 inch material with ⅞ yards of 36 inch width for the waist

This pattern can be obtained by sending cents to the office of this paper.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

A Tremendous Allied Offensive At The Dardanelles

A New Fleet Of British Submarines In The Balkans

ATTACKS ON THIS COUNTRY PLANNED BY U.S. GERMANS

British Embassy Receives Reports Specifying Cleveland, Buffalo and Other Lake Ports as Points From Which Attacks Were to Be Made---Reports of Serbian Victory Over the Bulgarians Has Been Confirmed---To-day's War Bulletins.

WASHINGTON, Cleveland, Nov. 22.—Buffalo, Toledo, Detroit, and other Great Lakes cities have been specified in the reports to the British Embassy as points from which an attack on Canada was to be launched by German reservists, the British Embassy said to-day. So far, however, nothing has been discovered to warrant a protest by this government, it was said.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The report of a big Serbian victory over the Bulgarians at Lekovats, on the Nish-Salonika railway, has been confirmed by messages from the Serbian Legations at Athens and Geneva.

ROTTERDAM, Nov. 22.—A tremendous offensive has been begun by the Allies at the Dardanelles, said a Constantinople despatch to the Koelnische Zeitung to-day. The Dardanelles offensive is regarded here as Lord Kitchener's negative answer to suggestions in England that the Gallipoli campaign be abandoned, following Sir Ian Hamilton's recall from the command of the expedition. General Munroe, who succeeded him, is understood to have recommended that the troops engaged in the Dardanelles land campaign be withdrawn, considering them engaged in a hopeless task. The London Cabinet War Council decided, however, not to take so important a step without further advice, and Kitchener visited the Peninsula in person a few days ago to look over the situation.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—In a hot attack with bombs, Australian and New Zealand troops at the Dardanelles have gained fresh ground on the west shore of the Gallipoli Peninsula. They occupied part of the Turkish underground works in the Anzac zone, killing many of the defenders.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—By forcing an entrance into the Lab River Valley on Sunday the Kaiser's troops are now in a position to strike direct for the Serb centre, midway between Mitorvitza and Pristina, about 30 miles east of the Montenegrin frontier, an official statement announced to-day.

BERLIN, Nov. 22.—Great activity by the French artillery in the Western war zone was reported in to-day's War Office statement, between the Meuse and Moselle, in Champagne, and east of Ipneville. On the Eastern front "a feeble Russian advance" against Illuxt Cemetery was repulsed north-west of Dvinsburg, said the War Office.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 22.—Britain has added a big new fleet of submarines to its E boat forces in the Baltic. A British cruiser and a torpedo boat flotilla convoyed the undersea craft on their voyage from the English coast. It was learned to-day that this was an explanation of recent stories of naval activity in the Cattegat.

PARIS, Nov. 22.—"Grenade fighing is in progress in the Artois region," stated to-day's official communique. "In Lorraine there have been patrol encounters. Otherwise the situation is unchanged and comparatively quiet."

ROME, Nov. 22.—Advices from Athens to-day indicate that the King and the Government fear a revolutionary outbreak as the result of indefiniteness in the Grecian war policy.

Large bodies of troops are patrolling the streets and guarding the royal palace, and the King and Cabinet are in session continuously. The impression prevails in many quarters that King Constantine will be forced by his own people to submit to the British Allies' demands.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.—H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General, this morning forwarded a big subscription to the Canadian Government War Loan.

Although the Canadian War Loan was only thrown open to subscribers this morning, its complete success is already assured. The chartered banks of Canada will alone take up 50 per cent. of the loan. They have notified the Minister of Finance that they will subscribe $25,000,000 of the loan. The life insurance companies will contribute about $10,000,000. When it comes to allotment, however, the private investors of small sums will be given the first consideration.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Greece's terms for entering the war on the side of the Allies are that her army be reinforced with 500,000 Anglo-French troops or that definite arrangements be concluded with Roumania for a joint Greek-Roumanian invasion of Bulgaria.

A source close to the Greek Legation making this statement today added that Greece would be forced to make her choice between the Entente and the Alliance within a few days.

"By the way, I played a round with Tom McGregor the last time I was here. Grand player, McGregor!"

"Aye," said the caddie, "but ye could bate McGregor noo."

"Do you think so?" exclaimed the gratified visitor, well aware of McGregor's prowess.

"Aye," drawled the caddie, "McGregor's dead."

GERMAN LIE IS NAILED

LONDON, Nov. 22.—"Absolutely false" is the Admiralty's official answer today to the German charge that Great Britain is sending transports with troops and munitions to Salonika disguised as hospital ships. The British official denial was given in the newspapers, with the additional comment, "British hospital ships always have been and always will be used under the conditions prescribed by Geneva and The Hague conventions.

Former German Consul General at New York and Other Officials of the Hambourg American Line Are Now on Trial

A GIGANTIC PLOT

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The government began closing in to-day upon the men who have directed the bomb plots, fires in munition works and the fomenting of strike disorders in the interests of warring European powers.

Karl Buenz, former German Consul General at New York, and other officials and employees of the Hamburg American line, went on trial before Federal Judge Hows, charged with fraudulently conspiring to furnish supplies to German commerce raiders. Before another fortnight the government expects indictments to be returned against at least half a dozen alleged ring leaders in bomb and munition plots, including one or two women prominent in American society. The Grand Jury will hear nthat a fund of at least forty million dollars was at the disposal of one man for the purpose of stopping shipment of munitions to the allies at any cost.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The name of Ambassador Von Bernstorff and Capt. Boyed and Von Papen of the German Embassy, mentioned to-day at the opening of the trial of the four Hamburg-American officials charged with filing false manifests and violating neutrality of the United States. Assistant U. S. Attorney Wood asked each German if he knew any of the German diplomats personally or had had any dealings with them. No jurors had been accepted when the court recessed for luncheon. One talesman after another was excused when he admitted personal feelings either for or against Austro-Germans.

Military Funeral This Afternoon For Member of 93rd Battalion Who Died on Friday Afternoon—Many Orders Issued To-day—Eye-sight Test is to Be Modified—Another New Battalion in This District—To-day's Military News

After an impressive service in the armouries conducted by Hon. Major Davidson, chaplain of the 93rd Battalion, the body of Pte. Fred Sawyer, A company, 93rd Battalion, who passed away on Friday last, was escorted to its last resting place in the Little Lake cemetery this afternoon by sorrowing comrades of the 93rd. The body was escorted from the dead soldier's residence, Concession street, to the armouries by a firing squad from No. 1 platoon and the pall bearers. Inside the drill hall, Hon. Major Davidson conducted the solemn service, after which the funeral cortege was formed.

The firing party, in charge of Sergt. Wm. Theobald and composed of members of No. 1 platoon marching with rifles reversed, led the impressive procession. Then came the band of the 93rd playing the Dead March in Saul, and then the hearse with the coffin draped in the Union Jack and with the pallbearers marching three on each side. The bearers were all members of No. 1 platoon, as follows: Lance Corp. P. Smith, Pte. Walton, Pte. S. McCabe, Pte. J. Bacon, Pte. Pear and Pte. Sid Allen. The members of A and B companies followed the hearse with the officers of the battalion. The rank and file of the 93rd wore their great coats. The members of the Army Service Corps, who are in Peterborough, marched with their infantry comrades.

At the cemetery the impressive details of a military funeral were carried out with the firing of three volleys over the grave of the dead soldier and the sounding of "The Last Post."

The service at the armouries was conducted by Hon. Major Davidson, chaplain of the 93rd, assisted by Rev. W. H. White, rector of St. Luke's, Ashburnham.

The signalling section of the 93rd Battalion has been organized by Lieut. Gilfham, with Sergt. Ecobichon as signalling sergeant. The section had its first lectures this morning. The following have been placed in the signalling section so far: Ptes. A. Edwards, Frank Crowell, M. Shaw, A. Burrows, C. Ferguson, E. Francis and A. Knox, while Signaller E. Watson, transferred from the 50th, will join the section to-morrow.

The following recruits have passed the medical examination for the 93rd Battalion in the past two days:

Jos. Abraham, 188 Parry street.
John Miller, Perth, Ont.
Stanley Roote, 467 Gamble-ten street.
Thos. Dowling, Bridgenorth.
Arthur W. Millgate, Bellefonto.
Laurence A. Meyson, 303 Stewart street.
Chas. Kethele, Peterborough.
Frank Smith, Omemee.

In the casualty list to-day appears the name of Pte. Leslie Jewell, of the 39th Battalion, who is given as seriously ill. This is undoubtedly Pte. Jewell of Peterborough, who left here with the 57th quota to the 39th Battalion. Pte. Jewell was a traveller for Hopwood's before he enlisted and resided on Water street. In the casualty list his next of kin is given as St. Catherines.

Easier Sight Test.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The Militia Department is preparing a modified eye test for recruits, which will not be so stringent as that now in use. The test in use now is the same as that used for the South African war, where much of the rifle fire was at 2,000 yards and upwards. There is not the need of such keen eyesight for the fighting in France, and the test has been made much less difficult in England for this war, because the rang of rifle shooting is comparatively short.

The modified test will allow a lot of men to join who have not been able to do so in the past. It is estimated that fully 25 per cent. of all the men who apply are turned down on account of their eyes.

Another new battalion will be raised in this district, to be known as the 130th of Northumberland with Lieut.-Col. Floyd as commanding officer. Lieut.-Col. Floyd is attached to the 9th Infantry Brigade.

Col. Hemming received word of the above new battalion to-day, but has no idea who the officers will be until he confers with Lieut.-Col. Floyd who will come to headquarters next week.

Kingston, Nov. 22.—It will be welcome news to many men who have been refused the chance to serve their country because they were an inch or so under the regulation height, to know that the 59th Battalion is making arrangements to reorganize a bantam company.

The action of the battalion officers should meet with general approval as there are many men physically fit for service who are just a slight margin under the height of five feet two inches required by the regulations. It is proposed to accept men of five feet one inch or probably five feet. There should be little difficulty in raising the company.

The Kingston Standard says: Seven recruits, five of whom are Canadian born, and two English born, arrived in the city yesterday afternoon from Peterborough to join the 43rd Battery. The men were recruited at Peterborough by Lieut. Brock. Among the men was Harry O. Windrish, who walked from the Soo to Coldwater, where he got a lift through the courtesy of a railroad man who carried him gratis to Peterborough. The men were: Arthur Horsfield, Kenneth McClelland, Fred Primeau, C. E. Hill, Kingston, Asa Downer, Douro, Harry O. Windrish, England and Frank Godfrey, England.

With the arrival of the seven men yesterday, Peterborough's contribution to the 43rd Battery now totals 126 men and five officers.

The band of the 93rd Battalion is going out on a recruiting mission the latter end of this week, when they will play in Port Hope, Cobourg and Millbrook. The band will leave on the morning G.T.R. train on Friday for Port Hope, where they will give a programme. They will then march from

CHARGE OF VAGRANCY WAS NOT SUSTAINED

Mrs. Oliver Was Discharged in Court This Morning—County Constable Archie Moore Gives a Statement of His Connection With the Affair.

WANTS AN INQUIRY

In this morning's session of the County Police Court, a charge of vagrancy preferred against Mrs. Alice Oliver, was discussed by Magistrate Langley, after considerable evidence had been heard. The information was amended by striking out the name of Alexander Oliver. The latter died in the County Jail following his arrest by County Constable Moore.

The examination of the witnesses was confined to evidence bearing on the charge against Mrs. Oliver. Mr. F. B. Kerr appeared for the latter and on her behalf, entered a plea of not guilty. He later assigned the case to his partner Mr. McElderry.

County Constable Moore demanded that an investigation be held, as his reputation had been injured by a letter appearing in the public press, in which it was charged that the late Alexander Oliver had been improperly treated.

Questioned by County Constable Moore, Andrew Hogg, at whose home Alex. Oliver was arrested on Thursday evening, said this morning, he visited for the first time the place where the Olivers lived. He saw a stove, a mattress, some quilts and two raw turnips. The mattress and quilts were dirty. Rolled up in paper was part of a loaf of bread.

Oliver Asked for Bread

Last Wednesday he had given them some bread, Oliver having asked for the bread.

"Did you complain to anybody about the couple?"

"I complained to Reeve McIntosh and Councillor Bell. I thought they were in need and considered them to be the poorest people I had ever seen." He had seen Mrs. Oliver hauling wood along the road.

On Thursday afternoon he saw Mrs. Oliver sitting beside the stove in the house. When the auto arrived at his yard, he heard County Constable Moore suggest that Mrs. Oliver leave the auto and go into the house and get warm.

At this point Magistrate Langley asked for evidence bearing on the charge of vagrancy.

Not Properly Clothed.

Witness did not think the woman was properly clothed. The constable asked for a coat, and on securing one placed it on Mrs. Oliver. She was also given a cup of tea by witness's daughter. Oliver was using abusive language toward the constable. He did not see the constable shaking Mrs. Oliver. "I brought he was—not Mrs. Oliver right."

Several times during the passing Oliver had asked him for bread. He did not know of any trouble caused by the couple as he lived three miles distant. He had feared that something would happen the couple, and that they might be found dead. When he saw the woman on the road she was not properly clothed and what clothing she wore appeared to be dirty.

Reeve McIntosh and Secty. Monaghan said that complaints had been made to the council regarding the destitute circumstances of the couple. One of the councillors had been sent to interview them and try to persuade them to go to some home.

Once again Mr. Kerr insisted that the evidence be confined to the charge and Magistrate Langley pointed out that he was not to discuss evidence.

Continuing, the witness said the house in which the Olivers lived was not in a tidy condition.

Mr. Kerr submitted that the poor people and the poor circumstances.

Action by Council

"We had a meeting here last Wednesday and took action on a motion that went through council and witness who wished to tell what took place. I called Mr. Moore on the telephone that night. We also had the advice of Police Chief Thompson. We wrote to the Home of Refuge at Lindsay and as yet have had no reply."

FRAGMENTS OF A GERMAN TAUBE IS SENT TO PETERBORO'

Interesting Souvenir of the European Battlefields Sent to Peterborough Men—One Recalls an Incident Described Several Times in the Press

A GERMAN CAP BADGE

The Examiner was shown two very interesting souvenirs of the European battle field to-day. One was a fragment of a German "Taube" or aeroplane which was sent to Mr. Chas. Duggan of Peterborough by a relative, Pte. Patrick Duggan, formerly of this city, who is at the front with the first Canadian contingent.

The souvenir, which consists of a piece of the cooling fan of the Taube, has an interesting history, inasmuch as it formed part of the German aircraft that was shot down in the Canadian lines a few weeks ago, an incident that was mentioned by Lieut. Matthews and other Peterborough boys in recent letters. Mounted on the Taube when it descended was a Canadian machine gun which had been captured in the second battle of Ypres.

Another souvenir displayed to-day was a cap badge taken from the helmet of a dead German officer and sent to Pioneer Sergt. E. Banner of the 93rd Battalion by a relative in the French army.

MEETING OF THE GOLF CLUB

Board of Directors Re-elected—Money Donated for Patriotic Purposes

A meeting of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club was held on Saturday afternoon, when the following directors were re-elected: Messrs. P. Campbell, D. Mulholland, B. D. Hall, A. H. Stratton and E. G. Patterson.

The sum of twenty dollars was subscribed to each of the following Patriotic Fund and the Overseas Tobacco Fund.

WOMAN FAINTED ON GEORGE STREET

A woman who gave her name as Mrs. Rheinsburg, 346 Aylmer street, fainted at the corner of George and Charlotte streets on Saturday evening, shortly after six o'clock. She was carried into McDermid and Jury's drug store, after which she was removed to her home. She was accompanied by Police Constable McArthur.

Gospel Hall

There was a good attendance at the Gospel Hall last evening. The speaker, Mr. T. C. Young, took for his subject the well familiar text John 3.7. "Ye must be born again." He said that it was one of John Wesley that he preached one thousand sermons from that text. The speaker showed that man in his unregenerate state was at enmity with God, and quoted Rom. 8.7. "The carnal mind is enmity against God, for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be," so that if a person died without being born of the spirit and was admitted into heaven, there would be an enemy of God, a rebel, a sinner in heaven, and what kind of a heaven would that become? He said there would be war very soon in heaven. Hence the Great Preacher and Teacher said, "Verily, verily I say unto thee except a man be born again he cannot enter the Kingdom of God" Jno. 3.5.—Com.

"If I were to die, you would never get another husband like me." "What makes you think I'd ever want another husband like you?"

ENLIST YOUR SAVINGS.

If we can't enlist to fight with a gun, perhaps we can enlist our spare money in the Canadian war loan, and in this way assist Canada very substantially in waging war. The Canadian war loan for fifty millions is now offered for public subscription, and is sure to be readily subscribed. Hardly had the lists been opened than His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, forwarded a subscription for a big slice of the loan. There are two or three reasons why this loan should speedily be fully subscribed, or even oversubscribed. One is that by doing this Canadians will show confidence in themselves, and in the financial resources of the country. We have always been borrowers from abroad; but if we can take up a loan of fifty millions it will show that we are more self-contained than we have shown ourselves to be in the past. Then we shall show the enemies of Canada and the Empire that we can stand the acid test of sincerity by loosening our purse strings in the greatest cause that has ever appealed to our people. We shall show in addition to what we have done, that we are as ready to embark our money as our men in the fight. Then not the least attraction of the loan is its gilt-edge character—undeniable security and good earning capacity. The bonds are offered at 97½, and the interest rate is 5 per cent., which will net considerably more. The denominations of the bonds will be from $100 to $5,000, so that the small capitalist will be able to invest savings that now only bring three per cent.

SIR WILFRID'S SEVENTY-FOURTH.

On Saturday, Nov. 20th, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Canada's grand old man, passed with alert and elastic step, the seventy-fourth milestone in the journey of life, "still," as he himself has put it, "clear of eye and sound of step," and still clear of mind and sound at heart, a Canadian of Canadians, a staunch imperialist and still a mighty factor in the public life of the Dominion, and in the politics of the Empire. His birthday brought messages of congratulation from all parts of Canada, as from the chief countries of the Empire. Sir Wilfrid is a political knight sans peur et sans reproche and, in his personal and public life, sans tache. Few men have given greater, more devoted, more disinterested and fruitful service to Canada and the Empire than Sir Wilfrid Laurier has done in his forty or more years of public life; and at three score and fourteen he is still fit; still in the harness, beloved and trusted leader of a great party, and even in an ex-official capacity wielding a benign influence upon public affairs, unprecedented in the case of any other Canadian statesman. He has been a unifying force in confirming the fundamentals of Canadian nationality; and as highly as he is esteemed for the patent results of his services, history alone will give him the full credit for the steady way he has stood by Canada through all his public career, but never more steadily and staunchly than in the country's hour of test, through which she is now passing. Ad multos annos, Sir Wilfrid.

THREE-CENT STAMP DEMANDED.

It may not be timely in one sense to worry the government just now when it is up to the eyes in war work, but it is timely in another sense to call attention to one little thing which is a fly in the ointment to a great many million persons many million times. Our government has many departments, and while some, like that of the Minister of War, are busy, other departments are not engaged in much more than the mechanical routine of administration. For instance, the Postmaster-General, is not so much occupied that he cannot give attention to the little matter of stamps. Everybody feels the inconvenience and annoyance of having to use two postage stamps when one would much better serve. We don't complain very much over having to spend an extra cent whenever we stamp a city or other letter; but we are annoyed at having to lick two stamps when one operation would answer. We have to put the value of three cents upon our letters now; and it would be an immense convenience to have a three-cent stamp. We have no longer penny postage. The exigencies of revenue demanded that we should practically revert to the old-time rate, three cents for every letter. The stamp question gives another illustration of how often we do things without thinking, or without thinking far enough. When Finance Minister White decreed the war stamp he felt that we should feel a patriotic glow of sacrifice in sticking a war stamp alongside the regular two-cent stamp. He found that the war stamp issue was ignored and very soon permission was given to pay the war tax by any equivalent of the war cent stamp. Now he must know that the public is somewhat disgusted over being compelled to use two stamps, not on account of the additional cost, but of the additional inconvenience. In demanding a three-cent stamp one is not guilty of thereby criticising the government. So warm a friend of the government as the Mail and Empire, whose loyalty to its party is never allowed to be forgotten, demands a three-cent stamp. The basis of such a demand, outside the party organ, is not criticism, but common sense and public convenience. It may seem a small matter to become concerned over the denomination of a stamp; but great things are made up of the small in bulk. The ten or twelve millions of yearly postal revenue comes from the sale of so small a thing as a one-cent or two-cent stamp. By all means give us a three-cent stamp, and thus eliminate the millions of pin-pricks the public receive every day over the necessity of using two stamps when one would do, not only as well, but much better. We should then have a warstamp we should be proud of instead of the washed-out and disreputable defaced, one-cent stamp that now passes current.

HOME NEWSPAPERS FOR THE FRONT.

For some time to come we need not expect to find an end of all the little, but effectively great, things we are called upon to do for our fighting Canadian soldiers. An infinity of local agencies, from the Red Cross to the Cent-a-Day Club, is in operation, furnishing an infinite variety of little things to cheer the soldiers in the hospitals or in the trenches. It seems there is need and opportunity for another little agency to bring the biggest little cheer to the fighting lads — home newspapers. We at home, with our comfortable, fireside, slippered, home-circle experience of the home newspaper, can form no conception of the wild welcome the home newspaper gets from the man in the battlefield bivouac. We, however, know how we fret and fume and prance, and, some few of the more degenerate of us, swear, if our daily newspaper is not delivered to the minute. If we do this among comfortable surroundings, with full easy lives and the happy course of living pursuing the even tenor of its way, we can sympathize with the nowaless plight of the soldier boys, wet and weary, seeing every day the same sanguinary sights, hearing the same thunder of the big guns, and the same ripping air-split of rifle shots, etc., etc., and deprived of nearly all the commonest comforts we enjoy. How much more welcome would be the rare relief from trench work, if the boys were welcomed when they fell back with a home paper, which they would read all over, even to the patent medicine and skin-fit corset advertisments. How deep the interest they would take in reading of who enlisted, who is back, broken and bruised from the war zone, and how we welcome him; what we are doing from day to day in looking after our warriors at war to show our appreciation; of who's dead, of who's born, and who's married; whether or not the city money is still falling into the outfall sewer; how the incinerator sins; who got the snow ploughing contract; who are the candidates for the mayoralty and aldermanity; and a thousand and one things we interest ourselves in at home, and value more lightly than the warsick, homesick soldiers in the fighting line would do. How we could thus cheer them, is worth thinking about. Why can't we get some organized way of getting the home newspaper to the away-from-home soldier lads? It seems that the matter could be easily managed and managed. Could there not be some arrangement made with subscribers to carefully save their daily newspapers to be called for at regular intervals and sent regularly to the front. Isn't it worth trying? It may seem to us a small thing but, every little helps; every little comfort we can bring to the soldiers in the wallow and welter of the trenches in another bright spot in the fighting man's monotonous and strenuous life—every moment next door to death.

ARM-CHAIR CAMPAIGN CRITICS CO-OPERATE WITH OUR ENEMIES

The critics of the British campaign may be divided into two classes—those who know something about what they are talking about; and those who don't. Naturally the latter are in the great majority, and therefore make the most noise. It is interesting and instructive to note that those who have actually seen something of the military operations are generally optimistic; those who have not are apt to be pessimists. The latter class cannot do very much to help the nation and the one thing they could do they won't—that is to hold their silly tongues. They must talk about things they do not begin to understand, if only as a slight tribute to their own self-importance; as a delicate recognition of their own transcendent perspicacity.

Mr. Sydney A. Moseley, an official correspondent who labours under the disadvantage of knowing something about the Gallipoli operations through having seen a good deal of them under favourable conditions declares in an article in the Contemporary Review, that the situation in the Dardanelles has never been so bad as some of these washerwomanish experts have made out. He says: "I confess I have little patience when I think of these pseudo-patriots spouting on what should be done—minding everybody else's business but their own. I am at heart a pessimist; in war time I am an optimist, firstly because it is half the battle, and secondly because then the battle is never lost till it is won, and we are far from losing the battle in the Dardanelles. It will never be believed that the lowering of our morale has been caused—and is being caused—by idle gossipers in mess tents and wayside taverns."

He is convinced that the Dardanelles will be forced. It is just a question of sticking at it. At one time it was an axiom that however difficult a task we would stick at it. Now some of us begin to funk it instead. And the worst sinners among these old washer-ladies have not so much as seen Gallipoli, and would not know a mess tent from a mushroom. They might recognize a wayside tavern, because they would be aided by a fine natural instinct and a wide experience. Certainly it seems to indicate a falling off in British stamina when so many of our people get so easily discouraged. Mr. Moseley remarks: "The disloyal pessimists have said that so far as the naval part of the campaign is concerned, it is a closed chapter. We have run away from the Austrian and German submarines. I believed that until I got out there, and when I say that the neighbourhood of the Dardanelles is simply packed with warships, which are daily pounding away at the Turkish forts and positions as they did from the first, the public who have been fed up with gossip of our enemy's agents and our own frightened friends, will scarcely believe it. But it is so. We have the situation well in hand. Except for the Gulva landings, of which I shall speak later, we have every reason to feel proud of our accomplishments in a very difficult campaign. No other nation could have done better."

We may feel sure that no other nation could have done as well. Everybody knew that the Dardanelles was a big problem to tackle. But why cannot our lugubrious washerwomen leave it to the enemy agents to do their own croaking? Why need our frightened friends join in the chorus to discourage our own people, to weaken our influence with the Allies and the neutrals, and to stimulate the drooping courage of the hungry and war-weary Huns? To call pessimism just now disloyal is not too strong an expression, and it has not a particle of justification in existing conditions or in the knowledge and mental capacity of the critics.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

DIDN'T SAY ENOUGH.

An American woman writer describes an interview with the Queen of Greece, and pictures her as most womanly. Also the Queen "talked freely about the war" expatiating proudly on the "wonderful German organization." However, her womanliness did not happen to say anything about Belgium, the Lusitania, poisonous, poisoned wells, baby-killing, Miss Cavell or the Ancona:—Ottawa Journal.

SENDING CANADIAN NEWSPAPERS TO THE FIGHTING CANADIANS

It is a difficult matter to keep the troops at the front constantly supplied with recent Canadian news. It has been impossible to devise any system for the official distribution of Canadian papers on a large scale. The following letter, however, from Lady Mabelle Egerton, a daughter of Lord Brassey, who is in charge of "The Coffee Shop," Reve Gouche, Station, France, indicates that the sending of Canadian papers to points where Canadian troops are passing through would be one way out of the difficulty:

Lady Egerton says: "I receive a large number of Canadian papers each week which are very much appreciated by the men who pass through this coffee shop. Some of them have never seen Canadian papers elsewhere. It would be a convenience if each bundle was marked as to the area the papers come from. The Ottawa papers are marked outside, but not the others. I get comparatively few Ontario papers, and the men from Ontario are much disappointed. From British Columbia I get a great many. Sometimes when I have heard of a large Canadian contingent going through the junction outside here I have sent papers out to meet them."

The best way to ensure that the Canadian soldier gets his home papers is for relatives or friends to send individual packets through the mail. Failing that, it might be a good idea for each community to appoint a newspaper committee to look after its men in this respect. This is a small matter which if properly attended to would greatly increase the soldier's comfort. Bundles of newspapers sent to the Red Cross along with other literature go to the hospitals and do not reach the men in the field. The provision of newspapers for the troops in the field is beyond the proper scope of Red Cross work.

THE LAW AND ITS WAY OF DEALING WITH LAW-BREAKERS

To Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,— If the citizens of our city depended entirely upon the civic authorities and others who find it necessary to proclaim their goodness of heart from the house tops (in order to make a livelihood) to look after the old and the poor, there would be many a shocking case similar to what took place last week.

I agree with Mr. Kerr that a searching inquiry should be made and all the facts should be brought out, and if some of the people have been placing too much dependence upon the law, the professional moralist and alms giver, show them their fault. In every community there is a certain element that will not hesitate to make personal capital, political or otherwise, out of circumstances of this nature. Peterborough is well supplied with individuals of this kind, judging from the way some of our outcast and fallen women have been advertised for their benefit. Thank God we have many noble charity workers who are not of the limelight variety and they feel the disgrace of this Oliver tragedy very keenly.

When law is enforced only for the protection of the public it is a bad state of affairs, but when justice and law are administered in a particular manner to advance their political or material interests first of those in authority and the public afterwards it is even worse. It is time the citizens woke up to the fact that there is something rotten in the state of Denmark. The law says that a drunken person may not be supplied with liquor. Is it not a fact that shortly after seven o'clock any Saturday evening there are a number of drunks to be seen upon our streets? Where do they come from? I may not know what the law calls a drunken man. If some of those to be seen are not drunk then some one ought to ring up the ambulance as they must be very sick or crazy.

To one who knows the business and the way it's conducted the enforcement of the liquor law is a farce in this city and it is played for political benefit. A poor unfortunate married man with a large family who has none too much sense at any time, and to whom to serve liquor to would be a crime, was released from gaol two weeks ago. He was served with liquor frequently and sent home to his wife and family in a beastly condition. If the authorities did not know where and by whom he was served, why? The neighbours knew that he was selling things out of the house to get money for liquor. When he got drunk the police knew the hotelkeeper had no more use for him; he was again arrested.

No liquor dealer knows the capacity of his customers and when he sees his victim getting more than he can handle the law says he must stop. It also says he cannot allow drunken men around his place of business; he must get the brute away. It is none of his funeral if the police get him or that he gets home to his wife and family. He gave him his money's worth and obeyed the law. We sell him this privilege and with the money we pay the policemen and keep a farm to place him on when the poor unfortunate is no longer any use to himself or anyone else. Any one who has an interest in the poor and the old (and who should not) knows that all shocking tragedies are not made public or do not take place in the takes an interest in the poor and the if the people of this city do not control their thirst for wealth and position we in a few years will have nothing on the German for kultur.

If a merchant or a manufacturer is willing to spend good money for advertising, to ask you to try his store or his product, it stands to reason that he must have something worth offering. Otherwise you would not go back, or you would not again purchase the product, and the first sale would be the last. In that case advertising would NOT pay. It only pays when it brings continuous patronage, and to do that there must be real value given. That is the reason advertised stores or products are almost invariably good. It will pay you to patronize the advertisers.

Dominion War Loan

Every Man's Duty to Subscribe

At this moment it is incumbent upon every one—whether of large or small means—to subscribe to the New War Loan.

By lending your money to your country you directly contribute to the shortening of the war, to victory for the Empire and to lasting peace.

Apart from your patriotic duty the loan is extremely attractive from an investment standpoint.

Your Security is the Credit of the Dominion of Canada

Telegraph us at our expense the amount of your subscription and we will place it promptly. Prospectuses and application forms will be mailed upon request.

Appeals to the Canadian People To Support Loan

OTTAWA, Nov. 22—In a brief statement issued last night by the Minister of Finance announcing that the Canadian war loan of $50,000,000 is now offered for public subscription attention is drawn to the fact that "the Government confidently appeals to the Canadian people to support this loan, and thus further demonstrate the strength, unity and solidarity of the Empire, and our invincible determination to prosecute the war to a victorious conclusion."

The Finance Department has sent out about a million prospectuses of the loan, which were available for distribution this morning. These prospectuses and the newspaper advertisements contain full information as to the mode of subscribing and all the conditions of the loan.

There is little doubt but that the whole issue will speedily be subscribed for. The preliminary intimations received by the Minister of Finance as to intending subscribers for large amounts justify the prediction that a loan of twice the size could be successfully floated. Later a second loan may be required.

It is worth noting in this connection that Canada's war loan of $50,000,000 will enable the Dominion to finance its share of the war expenditures for almost four months.

The issue is to total $50,000,000 of 6 per cent. bonds, maturing December 1st, 1925, and repayable at par. The issue price is to be 97 1-2, and a full half year's interest will be paid on June 1st, 1916.

Applications accompanied by a 10 per cent. deposit of the amount subscribed must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank, and such forms may be had at any bank or the office of the Receiver-General. Ten per cent. must be paid on application, 7 1-2 per cent. on January 3, 20 per cent on February 1, 20 per cent. March 1, 20 per cent. April 1, and 20 per cent. on May 1, 1916. All payments are to be made to the bank, to the credit of the Minister of Finance.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, and $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

Subscription lists will close on or before November 30.

A despatch received this afternoon states that the Duke of Connaught placed a subscription of generous figures the moment the loan was announced.

BLUE CROSS FUND.

An Appeal.

I'm only a cavalry charger,
And I'm dying as fast as I can
(For my body is riddled with bullets—
They've potted both me and my man);
And though I've no words to express it,
I'm trying this message to tell
To kind folks who work for the Red Cross—
Oh, please help the Blue one as well!

My master was one in a thousand,
And I loved him with all this poor heart
(For horses are built just like humans,
Be kind to them—they'll do their part);
So please send out help for our wounded,
And give us a word in your prayers—
This isn't so strange as you'd fancy.
The Russians do it in theirs.

I'm only a cavalry charger,
And my eyes are becoming quite dim
(I really don't mind, though I'm done for,
So long as I'm going to him);
But first I would plead for my comrades,
Who're dying and suffering, too—
Oh, please help the poor wounded horses;
I'm sure that you would—if you knew.

Flat Backs
Below The Waist Line

In the ordinary Corset—lacing behind—it is simply impossible to achieve this line. Try it—see for yourself—come to this store and be fitted in the special models approved by the world's best designers and see the change.

Gossard Front-Lacing Corsets have always met the demands of the leading couturiers — and in every style centre of the world you can see fashion leaders whose figures owe much to Gossard genius.

Flat backs are wanted by 8 out of 10 women, only in Gossards are they perfectly attained, Models as low as $2.75, others as low as $3.50, $4.50, $7.50 and up, give the new figure line.

A trial fitting will not obligate you.

BATTALION PARADED TO CHARLOTTE STREET CHURCH

"It takes more courage for a man to be a moral hero than a hero on the battlefield." These words were addressed to the 93rd Battalion, C.E.F., by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, B.A., at the special service that was held yesterday morning in Charlotte street Methodist church. The speaker referred to the words of Lord Kitchener, who in the course of an address to a body of troops leaving for the front, enjoined the men to live in the character of a true British soldier, fear God and honour their king. This, said Rev. Mr. Wilson, reveals the mind of the British Empire. They represent principles that have made the Empire worthy of any effort that could be made to maintain its integrity. It would be a tragedy for men to die for a nation that was unworthy of it.

The Dry Canteen.

The speaker commended the action of Major General Sir Sam Hughes for having introduced the dry canteen. His text was taken from second Samuel, fifth chapter, first and second verse, "Then came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, 'Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh.'

Also in time past, when Saul was king over us, thou wast he that ledest out and broughtest in Israel, and the Lord said to thee, 'Thou shalt feed my people, Israel, and thou shalt be a captain over Israel.'

"The words of the text," said the speaker, refer to the palmy days of Israel. She might have been risen but she never saw an age when she was grander. The people were united and were loyal to their leaders. The speakers compared the empire of the Israelites with that over which floats the Union Jack.

Not One Conscript.

"Who would have thought," said Rev. Mr. Wilson, that sixteen months ago, boys who laboured on the farm and in the workshops, would go forward to cover themselves with glory on the battlefields of Europe in defence of a national heritage. It goes to show that peace of a hundred years duration did not breed decadence in the British Empire. These are stormy and glorious days for King George. He finds around him over four hundred million people and not a conscript on the battle line. It goes to show what a wonderful empire this is, bound together by strings as fine as silk and as strong as steel. There is scarcely a sunset that does not look upon the face of a Britisher who has died for England's sake. Her drum-beat is heard around the world. We are fighting not for a nation but for a lasting eternal peace," said the speaker in conclusion.

Order of Service.

The order of service follows:
Prelude, March in G—Smart.
Doxology.
Invocation.
Hymn 50, "All People that on Earth Do Dwell."
Prayer.
Anthem, "The Son of God Goes Forth to War," Geibel.

Hymn 01, "O God of Bethel, by Whose Hand."
Sermon.
Prayer.
"God Save the King."
Benediction.
Postlude, march, "Naaman"—Costa.

The Roll of Honour.

"Our congregation is not a large one," said the Rev. J. P. Wilson, "but we have thirty-six in uniform, three sleep in soldiers' graves. I have only one son, and he is in uniform."

Following is the names of those who have enlisted:

Overseas—

Frank Austin, Charles Barratt, E. W. Hopkins (prisoner in Germany), T. L. Arnott, Reginald Heaslip, Victor Carton, Bruce Sloan, A. B. C. Throop, Capt. (Dr.) Stanly Walsh, Capt. (Dr.) B. E. Kelly, J. In Memorium—

Geo. Minorgan, Wm. Gibson, killed in action; John Lightfoot, died in Barracks, Winnipeg.

Her Reply.

A benevolent citizen, while walking along the road, spied a little tot weeping. So he walked up to the child and said:—"Now be a good boy and stop your crying." The child replied, "I can't." "But why can't you?" "I can't." "Well here's a penny. Tell me why you can't be a good boy and stop crying." "'Cause I'm a girl."

ST. CECILIA

The Memory of the Patron Saint of Music is Honoured This Day

Written for the Examiner by Frank Russell

St. Cecilia, whose feast-day occurs to-day, (November 22), is usually looked upon as the patron Saint of Music. At the present time musical associations, termed 'Cecilian Societies' exist almost everywhere in the Old Country.

Who St. Cecilia Was.

This saint, so often glorified both in poetry and fine arts, is one of the most venerated martyrs of early Christian times. According to the "Sacramentarium Leonianum," we find that Cecilia was a virgin of a senatorial family, and a Christian from her infancy. Having incurred the hostility of the prefect, one Turcius Maximus, she, after a glorious profession of her faith, was condemned to be suffocated in the bath in her own house.

Her Attempted Execution.

But as she remained unhurt in the overheated room, the prefect caused her to be beheaded in that place. Three blows of the sword of the executioner failed to effect their purpose. Unable to sever her head from the trunk, he fled, leaving the virgin bathed in her own blood. She lived on for three days, dying then from her wounds, and at her death was, by order of Pope Urbanus, buried in the resting place of bishops and confessors, viz., in the Catacombs of Callistus, in Rome.

During the three days that elapsed between her attempted execution and her death, she provided that her house should be turned into a Church.

The exact date of her death is very uncertain. According to some authorities it was placed at about A.D. 177 by others at A. D. 230 by another at A. D. 250, yet still another locates it as A D. 302.

An Early Christian Church.

As early as the fourth century a Church was built in her honour in the Trastevere quarter of Rome which is still preserved. This Church was rebuilt during the period 817-824. It was restored about 1599.

Recent excavations, beneath this Church, disclosed remains of a Roman building, presumed to have been her house, and in a side chapel of the Church there have long been shown the remains of the bath in which—traditional history says — she was put to death.

In Art.

Saint Cecilia is shown in the attitude usual for martyrs in the Christian Art of the early centuries; that is to say, with a crown of martyrdom in her hand. Since the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, an organ has been given her as an attribute. In this way St. Cecilia has been brought into close relationship with the art of music.

Patroness of Music.

In 1584, the Academy of Music was founded in Rome and St. Cecilia was made patroness of the institution, consequently her veneration as the patroness of church music, generally, became still more universal.

Butler, the historian, says the reason for her being venerated as the patroness of music, was owing to her assiduity in singing the divine praises, the effect of which she often heightened by the aid of some instrument.

An Ancient Legend

Relates that on one occasion she so enraptured an angel by her harmonious strains that in order to visit the saint, he quit the abodes of bliss. It was to this tradition that the famous English poet, Dryden, refers in his

"Ode for St. Cecilia's Day."

At last divine Cecilia came
Inventress of the vocal frame;
The sweet enthusiast from her sacred store,
Enlarg'd the former narrow bounds,
And added length to solemn sounds,
With nature's mother-wit, and arts unknown before.
Let old Timotheus yield the prize,
Or both divide the crown;
He rais'd a mortal to the skies;
She drew an angel down.

Celebrated in Verse.

Some of the greatest English poets, such as Chaucer, Dryden, and Pope have laid poetic tributes on the Shrine of St Cecilia. Dryden's famous ode is, however, usually considered the greatest.

Aso in Art.

The most famous paintings of this saint are those of Raphael at Bologna, Carlo Dolce in the Dresden gallery, Domenichino in the Louvre at Paris, and Rubens in the Berlin Museum.

And In Music.

About the end of the seventeenth century the practice of holding concerts on St. Cecilia's day became prevalent.

That this saint was held in high veneration may be judged by the fact that many masses were composed in her honour.

The sixth anniversary of the opening of the Church of the Sacred Heart was celebrated on Sunday by a general communion at the early masses, by Pontifical high mass at 10:30 a.m., and vespers at 7 p.m., sung by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, and by adoration of the Blessed Sacrament during the hours between the conclusion of High Mass and the opening of vespers. Rev. Father Kehoe, of St. Augustine's Seminary, Toronto, a member of the Carmelite order, preached in the morning and evening.

Rev. J. J. O'Brien, the pastor, stated in his announcements, that there have been 42,875 communions during the past twelve months, an increase of 7,895 over the number during the preceding year. Bishop O'Brien referred to these figures when he addressed the congregation in connection with the occasion of the anniversary. "I was astonished," His Lordship remarked, "to hear that the number of Holy communions received during the past year was almost 43,000. For this parish which numbers about 825 souls this is a magnificent thing and shows the devotion, the zeal and goodness of the people. I recall the eves of other anniversaries, of first Fridays, of holidays, the lines of men, unbroken until long after nine o'clock, waiting for confession. It was a sign that the men were in earnest about their salvation, and to partake of the sacraments."

Bishop O'Brien paid a tribute to the spirit of generosity in members of the parish who had helped to fittingly furnish the church. He mentioned that this had been the church of his pastorate. On the first Sunday, the altar, the sanctuary and choir did not have some of the embellishments it now possessed, but whatever was wanting then was made up by the expressions of goodwill and loyalty from members of the parish. His Lordship reminded the members to be thankful for the graces and mercies received during the past year. He was deeply gratified to learn that many members of the congregation were attending mass every day and receiving daily, and many others, weekly communion. "Oh, if we would only live by that Bread of Life, if we would make an effort to look after our spiritual welfare as we do after our temporal success!" The striving for our salvation hereafter was the greatest of wisdom. His Lordship referred to frequent communion by the children and urged the necessity of right influences at home to co-operate with the influences of the church and school that children might reflect in their lives the truths of Catholicity.

Turning to the future, Bishop O'Brien said that the next year and the next six years would bring their crosses. If new burdens are to be borne it should be remembered that the grace of God will give strength to the shoulders. "Continue to pray in God's holy faith and divine charity for his graces and blessings, and that we may live more kindly and more neighbourly one toward the other; and in this you will be storing up merit in the Kingdom of Heaven." His Lordship asked for prayers for any persons who may have been neglecting the advantages offered by their parish church.

"And behold I am with you all days even to the consummation of the world"; St. Matthew 28:20.

Basing his evening sermon on this text, Rev. Father Kehoe said that it is not strange that Catholics who are assured of the faith that is in them should pray for the spreading of the holy faith. The spirit of Penticost came never to return according to the words of the text. We are even told that we are grafted to Christ, Himself, "I am the vine, you are the branches." "There is not one of us," Father Kehoe continued, "who does not feel that the most glorious thing the earth holds is the Catholic Church, and who would not give of his blood for the propogation of this church after the manner of the early martyrs if it were the will of God that it should be so. And yet when we pray for the spread of the faith, we feel that we are brought in opposition with the very will of God, for He could convert at once all to unity with the Catholic Church."

Father Kehoe traced the growth of Christianity from its beginning. At the death of Christ the soldiers who had crucified Him, witnessing the manifestations around them, beat their breasts and confessed unconsciously that this was indeed the Son of God. It was not necessary, he said, to follow the hurrowings of the early Christians into the catacombs where they sought refuge. Finally after centuries of persecution appeared Constantine bearing his banner with the mystice words "In this sign thou shalt conquer." Then the church began to grow and spread until it seemed that the "birds of Heaven roosted in its branches." Then it was, said Father Kehoe, that Ireland was converted, and St. Augustine implanted the faith in England. Thus the nations came in until the kingdom of the church seemed spread over the whole world. In the first years of the sixteenth century the shadows returned and it seemed that over night the church was deserted. In thirty-five years, from 1515 to about 1550, nearly two-thirds of the world parted from the church until it seemed that there were no Catholics anywhere in Europe. Father Kehoe said that now, after four hundred years, this great schism was breaking up and declining, and that Pope Benedict had called upon the people to pray for the conversion of Protestantism. Suppose the opposite should occur, that if this city were to become Catholic, if it were not truly such, or the world to be converted, if it brought in scandals as it did before? Father Kehoe said it was natural and logical for Catholics to pray for the spread of the faith. They know the consolations of their religion and what it means to live and die in the Church. Hence they should pray for those outside the Church that God may bring them in accord with it that there may be one fold and one shepherd.

THE GREATEST NEED OF THE WORLD TO-DAY IS LEADERSHIP

The People of St Paul's Listen to an Able Address on the Evolution of the Sunday School by Mr. Frank Yeigh of Toronto

Those who were fortunate enough to be present at the morning service of the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church were delighted with the excellent address delivered by Mr. Frank Yeigh, of Toronto, on the development of the Sunday School movement anad its relation to the problems of the day.

In introducing the speaker, the Rev. Mr. Pogue paid tribute to the Dominion-wide reputation of Mr. Yeigh as a man of literary attainments, a traveller and lecturer, and a Sunday School worker, who was in our midst as Director of the Boys' Conference.

Mr. Yeigh chose as his Scripture lesson the latter part of the second chapter of St. Luke's gospel, wherein we get a picture of Christ in the Temple discoursing with the Doctors, ending: "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man."

During the Golden Jubilee of Sunday Schools held in Toronto recently, there were a number of tableaux presented, representing the evolution of the great movement, the first one depicting the inception of the Sunday School over one hundred years ago, with Robert Raikes in his eighteenth century costume, and his rabble of street urchins: the gathering of the first Sunday School Class, with teachers paid to teach, and boys paid to come.

As in the case with all such movements the Sunday School met with opposition. Robert Raikes was attacked both in England and Scotland. The Scotch preachers viewed it with alarm; it would destroy the proper relation of the family to religion and strike a blow at the Established Church. Wherever Raikes went he was pelted with filth and dirty water, and had insults heaped upon him.

There was a man in England, however, who had the vision to see its possibilities for good. This was John Wesley. Said he: "Perhaps God has ordered this; who knows but these schools may become the nurseries for Christians?" If John Wesley could see the Sunday Schools of to-day he would realize that his prophesy had been right.

In due time the movement swept across the Atlantic and was met with equal hostility. In 1830 Lyman Beecher created a sensation in his home town by taking his own children to Sunday School as an example. In 1878 Horace Bushnell declared that the work of the Sunday School was the greatest work in the world.

Robert Raikes, at his death, was recognized as a public benefactor. His original class of twelve, "the ragged regiment," had increased to over a quarter of a million in the British Isles alone. He contributed to the world one of its greatest assets.

Contrast the Sunday School of Robert Raikes with that of to-day, with its army of thirty million. What a human array! No one can gainsay that one of the world's greatest forces is the Sunday School.

The speaker, in a most lucid style, contrasted the conditions of yesterday with those of to-day, and sought to show that the "grown-ups" go to Sunday School now as well as the children; that the primary department with its army of little tots, and the secondary division with children of the teen-ages, the crisis-age, (only one-sixth of whom remain in active connection with the Church), present golden opportunities for individual and world-wide service.

Space will not permit a more extended review of Mr. Yeigh's splendid address, the keynote of which was that the great need of the world to-day is leadership, and this can be best developed through the great movement known as the Sunday School.

Said he: "We are going to hear from these young men—these leaders among boys — in the years to come.

"Nothing is so effective as character based on the teachings of Christ.

"The Sunday School of to-day represents one of the most potent missionary forces—a modern crusade to bring the world to Christ."

—PAUL PENMAN.

DEVELOPING THE HIGHEST IDEALS IN THE BOYS

How Christian Leaders and S. S. Workers Can Best Serve the Interest of the Youths — Address by Rev. F. L. Farewell

How Sunday school teachers and Christian workers can best serve the youth of the community, in the development of what is best in boys, was ably brought out in an address by Rev. F. L. Farewell, of Whitby at the Mark street Methodist church yesterday morning. Rev. Mr. Farewell is in the city in connection with the Boys' Conference and his remarks were in the interests of the young manhood of the country. Mr. Farewell, previous to his present appointment as president of Whitby Ladies' College, was secretary of Epworth League and Sunday school work of the Methodist church.

In his talk about boys he said, the problem before the Christian leaders of the church to-day was to raise the boyhood and also the girlhood of Canada to the highest possible level. The Canadian people had the greatest resources any country would wish to possess, God had abundantly blessed Canada. Recently a conservation commission had been appointed by the Dominion government, with the object of conserving the wealthy resources of our land for future generations. One of Canada's greatest assets was its boy life and it was our duty to do all that was possible to develop it along the right lines. The church in the present day was called upon to take a greater interest in the play of boys. This could be done in two ways, first by supervised play and secondly by the building up of the social life within the Sunday school. Where play is supervised by a Christian leader, the best ideals of play life were developed. Boys usually belong to some "gang," with a fellow at the head who is looked upon as a hero. Boys were great for hero worship. It was the aim of the Sunday school to have leaders among the boys who would call out the best that was in them. "We are trying to build up the work among the boys on the 'gang' plan with a hero leader," said the speaker.

Boys at the age of fourteen and fifteen had ideals and ambitions for the future, when they grew to manhood. It was for the leaders to study these ideals and to encourage the boys to develop them.

The speaker urged his hearers to trust their boys, to give them work in the church to do. With the proper environment, with ideals to follow, these boys would grow into young men, ready to contribute the best in them to the service of Christ, whether in the world of business or as minister of God. The boys of to-day will be the leaders of to-morrow, ready to take their place in the various worthy vocations in the world.

At the evening service Mr. Dunnick of Toronto, delivered the address.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My boy, Frank, seemed weak chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

"CABIRIA" LEADS THE WAY

"Cabiria" is said to have been staged in five countries at an outlay of $200,000, with a cast of 10,000, and it will demonstrate a new and important function of the camera. An expenditure such as this and the payment of royalty such as d'Annunzio would never have been possible if it were to have been seen only by the people of Italy. But in "Cabiria" the producers created a motion tableaux for the world and the picture machine makes it possible to show the colossal spectacle everywhere. It points out remarkable possibilities, as performances which have hitherto been confined to one place, to which the multitudes had to travel, such as the Oberammergau production, the notable presentation of Joan of Arc by Maude Adams, at the Cambridge stadium, can in this way be given with unlimited expenditure and the run given to the entire world, through the medium of the camera, to see and enjoy.

Dropped Dead in The Post Office

Sudden Death of Mrs. Mary Stovell on Saturday Afternoon - Remains Removed to Toronto

Suddenly seized with a heart attack in the local post office, Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Mary Stovell passed away before medical assistance could be secured. Dr. Carmichael was called, but nothing could be done. Coroner Dr. Greer was notified and decided that an inquest was unnecessary, death being due to heart failure.

The late Mrs. Stovell, who was 56 years of age, had resided in this city for the past three years, making her home with Miss Fylnn, at 5 Dennistoun Avenue. She was the local representative of the Vivi Medicine Co. She was born in Markham. She is survived by three sisters, Mrs. R Hoss, Mrs. Lambert and Miss Fenwick of Toronto. Miss Fenwick came to Peterborough Saturday night and looked after the remains.

The body was shipped from Belleghem's undertaking parlours, Hunter Street, this morning, to Toronto, where the funeral will take place tomorrow from the residence of her sister, Mrs. R. Ross, 114 Havelock street, to Prospect Cemetery.

KINGSTON BOYS WERE ENTERTAINED AT Y.M.C.A.

The Boys' Work Conference, which closed in Peterborough on Sunday has been a big uplift to the work of the Association, especially of the boys' department. The members of the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Cabinet represented the Association in the conference, and many of the local church delegates are members of the local association, so we anticipate a good uplift in boys' work from the standpoint of the Y.M.C.A.

Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Meserve, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Galley and Miss Mignon Telgman served luncheon to the 50 members of the Kingston delegates in the new Y.M.C.A. dining room following the Sunday evening service. A short programme of music and speech-making was carried out with Mr. C. N. Meserve in the chair.

Addresses on the part of Peterborough Association were made by Messrs. P. M. Mcarrell, F. E. Kerr, G. L. Galley and Reginald Brown. Responses were made by Frank Newman, Dr. C. C. Nash, Sam Lilley, and John Kinch. Mr. Herbert Treneer, a former Kingstonian presided at the piano and a number of hymns were sung and the gathering dispersed, in time for the men from Kingston to catch the one o'clock train home. As Mr. Meserve was former secretary of the Kingston Association, it was a great personal pleasure for him to meet many of the members of the Association that he formerly served. As it is expected that Kingston will entertain the conference next year, a great effort will be made on the part of the Peterborough men to at least secure as large a delegation for the Kingston conference as that of Kingston in the conference that has just closed.

KITCHENER LEAGUE SENDS DIRECT TO TRENCHES

In the Examiner of a few days ago was a letter requesting information regarding parcels for the soldiers, and the information given was to the effect that Red Cross knitted articles went to wounded soldiers and not to the trenches.

The Kitchener Patriotic Club of the Red Cross wish it to be known that all their knitted articles go direct to the men in the trenches.

Everything of this nature has gone to the men in the trenches, and if any one desires yarn to knit into articles it can be had by arranging with Mrs. L. Knox, 481 Gilmour street, or Miss Mowat at the Peterborough Creamery.

WISE WORDS
A Physician on Food.

A western physician has views about food. He says:

"I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not cease with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health especially by hygienic and dietetic laws.

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying, that, in my own experience and also from personal observation, I have found no food to equal Grape-Nuts and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefit this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence.

"It is my experience that no physical condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach especially at breakfast to start the machinery of the human system on the day's work.

"In cases of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream; and I think it is necessary not to overload the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak to digest other food.

"This is written after an experience of more than 20 years treating all manner of chronic and acute diseases, and the latter is voluntary on my part without any request for it."

DELAY OVER THE SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT EXPLAINED

Informal Conference Between Representatives of the City and Township Councils Held on Saturday in Which the Difficulties Encountered Were Pointed Out by City Representatives.

NOT INTENTIONAL DELAY

At the last meeting of the City Council a letter was read from Messrs. Peck, Kerr & McElderry, solicitors for the townships of North and South Monaghan and Otonabee, protesting against the delay on the part of the city in acting on the order of the Provincial Board of Health to instal works for the disposal and purification of the sewage of the city, which runs into the Otonabee river. The townships felt that, so far as they could see, the city was not proceeding to carry out that order, while it was building another trunk sewer on Park street.

In order that the two parties, the township and the city, might understand each other better, an informal conference was held on Saturday afternoon at which Mr. Waterman, Reeve of South Monaghan, Mr. McIntosh, Reeve of North Monaghan, Mr. Devell, Reeve of Otonabee, and other members of the Township Councils, and Ald. Green, chairman of the Board of Works and the City Clerk were present.

It was explained to the township representatives that last spring the city, having selected a site and prepared plans for the disposal works, asked that they be approved of by the Provincial Board. Objections to the site selected were made by residents of Otonabee, and the Provincial Board refused to approve of the site selected, but said that a site at or nearly opposite Park street would be satisfactory. The city then had to begin again. Before doing so, in order to make doubly sure of their ground, as the city authorities had an engineer come from Montreal, go over the ground and report upon the site of the proposed pumping station, and he approved of it. A small committee was then appointed to try to secure options on sites at or nearly opposite to Park street, to carry out the recommendation of the Provincial Board. This committee opened negotiations with owners of the properties, and these negotiations were carried on for some time, as the prices asked were considered by the committee to be much higher than the values of the properties. The price of one was lowered, but not to a satisfactory figure, and the negotiations were continued.

Time was passing, and the committee feared that a satisfactory price would not be obtained, at least until the Provincial authorities would have become impatient, and the City Engineer was instructed to prepare plans for two locations in the vicinity indicated by the Provincial Board. When the letter from the solicitors for the townships was received, these plans were about ready and the Provincial officer had been informed that they would be ready to send to him in a few days.

These plans were taken to Toronto on Friday last by the Mayor and the Chairman of the Board of Works and submitted to Dr. McCullough, the Chief Officer of Health of the Province. Notices have been sent out by the Provincial Officer that the Provincial Board will consider any objections to the location on Friday, November 26th, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon at the office of the Board in Toronto.

The explanations given on Saturday went to show that there had been no intentional delay and no neglect on the part of the city to carry out the order of the Provincial Board and instal the disposal works, and that it was the desire and intention of the city authorities to construct the works at the earliest moment. The delay was regretted, but was owing to the site first selected not having been approved and to the time consumed in endeavouring to procure options on the sites indicated by the Provincial Board and in preparing the new documents to submit to that Board. These, as stated, will be considered on Friday next.

LOCAL CONFERENCE AN EARLY FRUIT OF THE BOYS' CONVENTION HERE

The final practical discussions in connection with the Boys' Work Conference were held on Sunday. Denominational delegations met in the morning from 9.30 until 10.30 o'clock, the Anglican, Methodist and Presbyterian, led, respectively, by Mr. Salisbury of Toronto, Mr. Farewell, and Mr. C. A. Meyers, in the George Street Methodist Church, and the Baptist Church boys assembled in Murray Street Church, led by Mr. Troyer, assisted by Chief Thompson. The purpose of these meetings was to check over the ideas from the Conference in regard to their application in the various churches and what plans each denomination proposed to take away, and put into execution.

At 2 p.m. the delegates divided into rural, city, town and city groups for similar discussion, as to the application of the ideas and plans in the various communities. Among numerous decisions announced, the Brockville boys intend holding a local conference, to be held in the near future. The Toronto delegates will hold three conferences, one in each of the East, West, and central sections of the city. Ottawa and other delegates have similar plans.

FINAL SESSION OF THE BOYS' WORK CONFERENCE

The closing session of the Boys' Work Conference was held last night in the George Street Methodist Church, and proved one of the most unique ever witnessed in Peterborough. The Church was filled to overflowing, the front of the auditorium having been reserved for the five hundred delegates: "The Makers of Canada." As the young men filed up the aisles the choir sang that stirring hymn of action: "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Reports of resolutions adopted by various subdivisions of delegates were presented by their secretaries, their chief feature being: a determination to achieve greater efficiency along the intellectual, physical and religious lines, and to render more telling service to their fellows in the name of their Master.

Mr. Frank Yeigh, in his usual happy style, tendered to the press, the churches, the civic authorities, and to the citizens, generally, the hearty thanks of the conference for the splendid manner in which they had been entertained.

The crowning event of the evening yes, of the conference, was the address by Mr. Albert E. Roberts, of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., New York, who, during the afternoon swayed a multitude of young men by his magnetic appeal to lead a better, a cleaner life, when, between sixty and seventy young fellows chose Christ as the King of their life, and over twenty-five re-consecrated themselves for higher service. It was an inspiring sight, indeed!

By way of introduction Mr. Roberts said it was a difficult thing for one to come from the other side of the line and propery enter into the spirit of the Dominion, when the very permanency of the pillars of Empire were at stake. In view of this, a gathering such as sat before him was fraught with tremendous possibilities for the present and for the future, representing as it did the flower of the youth of this province and Dominion. It would mean the outbreaking after a larger vision by the young manhood of the country.

Twenty-five years ago such meetings as these were unheard of, in fact they were an impossibility. Then a boy was a problem, now he is a power, even like the mighty Niagara, which existed for many years, but remained idle until harnessed up a short time ago.

These boys, said he, will have to face problems greater than ever confronted their fathers; they will require a better type of Christian manhood to combat this spirit of hate which is being sown in the hearts of the warring nations. Canada will be called upon for leaders to accompish mighty things.

The great work of the Christian Church will be to utilize the latent power of her young manhood, by devising ways and means of cooperation: the boys with the Church and the Church with the boys.

Just here the speaker touched upon the "gang" problem, and in a few humorous remarks, emphasized the duty of Christians to provide the proper type of companionship: to see that the gang was the right kind of gang; to teach that it is better to lose a game than to win dishonestly. The boys will welcome the suggestion.

Not only in his play, but in his physical and religious development it is possible to get beside a boy and lead him to a better, a higher life.

Christian people should put first things first, when they see such a lot of things to be done. The rewards of this service are many, the dividends are great.

Mr. Roberts, at the close of his inspiring address, called upon the delegates to sing their conference song: "Will You be Enlisted as a Volunteer?" after which they joined hands in an unbroken circle, and with heads bowed, each prayed silently for the fellow on his right, then for the one on his left, and finally for the whole group.

Mr. Yeigh then offered a prayer for the people of Peterborough, which was followed by the singing of "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

Paul Penman.

Boys Impressed With the Duty of Preparing Themselves to Be Worthy Men As Result of War

Saturday night's banquet in the market hall was the feature social event of the Boys's Work Conference. The programme of meetings demanded every other available period and as a result Saturday nights' affair was entered into with all the more zest.

A number of the ministers of the city were present with prominent laymen interested in Y.M.C.A. and Sunday School work. At a table elevated on a dias with a background of Union Jacks, Dr. Middleton presided with Rev. Mr. Grobb, Mr. A. E. Roberts, Mr. Paterson, Mr. Frank Yeigh and others on either side of him. It was a fine gathering of boys who doubtless appreciate the privilege which is their's, of listening to the advice and guidance of men who are making a life work of directing boys, "teen" age experts, as it were. And the future should have occasion to rejoice in the results they accomplish.

A thoughtful message from the firing line in France was conveyed by Capt. Forgie, who had many interesting episodes to relate of life at the front, and others upon which he was silent, like all the other men who have reached home. "If we are not beginning to look at things in a different light," he asserted, "a lot of the sacrifice made by the soldiers is going to be in vain." They had to begin to play their part, Capt. Forgie told the boys; to stand up for those ideals for which the men are fighting. Many people in England and in Canada were all too ready to listen to the things that had been told of the lives of the men of the 1st Division. It cut deeply into the lives of those men of whom Capt. Forgie said no defence was needed. By emphasizing a factor which entered into the battle of Ypres, he showed what stout hearts the first Canadian division possessed. They were practically untried troops, but they were subjected to a most trying ordeal. As they advanced to the positions from which the Turcos had fled in a panic, and blue-faced, either from fright or gas they were heavily shelled.

They met thousands of refugees but in spite of the unnerving conditions they faced panic, shells and gas marching up the road from Ypres singing "O Canada." "Something must have happened up there," said Capt. Forgie. "They were outnumbered ten to one, but the Germans failed to rush them."

Geo. A. Warburton.

The secretary of the Toronto Y. M. C. A. snatched a few hours from his busy round of duties to present to the boys the idea of personal duty in some way or other in connection with the war's demands. While the tax rate in Canada is no more than 5 per cent., in Great Britain they are paying as high as a 25 per cent. tax, and are facing a rate of 60 per cent. To come up to a level with the British people we have to pay the difference between thirty-five and five per cent. Canada has done nobly, Mr. Warburton said, but we haven't commenced to come up to the British people in both men and money.

One of the benefits of the war will be a greater appreciation of the institutions of our country. Two fundamental ideas are in conflict in the war. The idea of Germany is that of the absolute power of the monarch over the very last citizen of the realm, and the British idea that the King rules as the servant of the people.

And this conflict of ideas is realized by the men in spite of the statement of the neutrals that many of the soldiers are ignorant of the cause of the war. "It is because we do know what is at stake that we are sending our sons, and they are ready to go."

Mr. Warburton dwelt upon the changes which Canadian life should undergo during the stress of war. The idea had developed here that wealth, power and rank counted most, and the country had grown prosperous and boastful; but the effect of the war and its demands for sacrifice should show after all that in a country like this it is character that counts most. Men thought more of themselves than they do now. They are thinking more of service now. And in this regard, Mr. Warburton said the women had set an example in the great service they are rendering.

Mr. Warburton made a final plea for self-sacrifice with its fruits of abiding self-sacrifice. Man is or is not a Christian, not according to his creed, or church, or other institution, though all those things may be correct, but in the spirit of absolute and complete self-sacrifice for others; and that country is Christian in proportion to the extent to which its public life is saturated with that spirit. And I believe we live in a Christian country and belong to a Christian Empire. It takes a lot of pluck to make this sacrifice day after day for Christ, but it will bring you joy as deep as your soul is deep.

Mr Roberts' address made a strong appeal for the development of character, the greatest asset a young man may have, and the thing for which the Young Men's Christian Associations and the Sunday Schools are working. The world needs men who are ready to stand up and be counted. Boys must develop this thing if they are to be counted if they are going to live up to their full capacity. It includes the idea of self-sacrifice, putting yourself in the other fellow's place, not for our own sake, but conscious of the fact that you are doing something for God.

A New Way.

A furrier, wishing to inform customers that he would make up furs in a fashionable manner, out of old furs, which ladies have at home, appended the following to one of his advertisements:— "N.B.—Capes, victorines, etc., made up for ladies in fashionable styles out of their own skins!"

Mr. H. L. Troyer Spoke At Park Street Church

Mr. H. L. Troyer occupied the Park Street Baptist church pulpit on Sunday morning his subject being "The Inevitable Challenge." The High School boys of to-day will be called upon after this war is concluded to assume a large share in the leadership that must be borne.

In order that we may respond in a full measure to those demands there must be to-day an adequate preparation for efficient service. This is the present emergency, and it is for th challing that it is to come the youth of to-day must be developed. Mr. Troyer spoke in deail upon the qualities which must be trained in the young men.

After washing leather gloves rinse them in cold water, then soap again. This will prevent them from drying stiffly.

Port Hope to Cobourg, a distance of seven miles and will play at a patriotic rally at Cobourg that evening, afterwards being housed in the Cobourg armouries for the night. On the return trip on Saturday they will visit Millbrook and will arrive home in Peterborough on the 5.20 p.m. train. The tour of Bandmaster Hughes' splendid organisation is expected to have a marked effect on recruiting.

Lieut. Bertram of the 39th Battalion, was a week end visitor in Peterborough.

The band of the 33rd provided music for the banquet of the Boys' Conference in the Market Hall on Saturday night.

A comparison between the conduct of the delegates to the Boys' Conference and that of the men of the 33rd Battalion was made by many citizens on Saturday night and the men in khaki did not lose in the comparison. "Why that bunch of delegates made more noise and disturbance on the streets in one day that the 33rd has since it was organized," was one citizen's comment, while one of the 33rd remarked: "If we made as much noise as that our military police would have the guard room full and the whole town would say we were drunk." However, the pranks of the visitors were good humoured and no damage of any kind was done.

Signaller Ernest Watson, son of Provost Sergt. J. M. Watson of the 33rd Battalion, has been transferred from the 59th Battalion to the 33rd and will report for duty to-morrow morning. He arrived from Kingston this morning.

Fiske O'Hara Pays His Annual Visit to Peterborough, Nov. 30

Fiske O'Hara, under the direction of Augustus Pitou, Jr., will present his new play, "Kilkenny," at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday, Nov. 30. The story of "Kilkenny" is laid in Kilkenny in 1810, and is in three acts. David Conway is the guardian of Moina Carroll, and is anxious to marry his ward to Maurice Levine, a man of wealth, but a profligate. Conway has become involved, through speculation, in the Mexicana Gold Mine Company. When that bubble, one of the many of that age, bursts, he is facing ruin. He has deceived his ward as to her true age to delay making an accounting of the fortune left her by her father. A close friendship and sincere affection exists between Moina and the young Mrs. Conway. The latter knows Levine to be utterly unworthy to marry a pure, sweet girl like Moina. From 1808 to 1819 there existed in Kilkenny a company of amateurs, who gave performances for charity two weeks each year in October, during the "Kilkenny Carnival." Richard Desmond was the leading man and Moina Carroll the leading lady of this company. Playing many love scenes together, they naturally fell in love with each other. While Mrs. Conway favours the young lovers, her husband, upon learning of their attachment, is furious. He forbids Moina to appear at the theatre the following night, the last of the season, at the suggestion of Levine, asserting she must obey him as he is still her guardian and she is not of age. Richard, who rode to Castlecomer that morning, finds the record of Moina's christening in the chapel there, and discovers that Moina is a few months over twenty-one, and her own mistress. Levine suspecting that Conway lost part of his ward's fortune in speculation, tells him that he will aid him financially, and proposes to him that they abduct Moina that night and carry her off to the convent in France and put a stop to the growing attachment between her and Richard. Mrs. Conway sees her husband take Moina into the garden, while the guests are dancing. She follows them, and sees Levine throw his cloak over Moina's head, force her into a coach and drive off. She gives the alarm. Richard and his friends start in pursuit, overtake the coach and rescue Moina. In the last act Richard tells Conway he will marry Moina with or without his consent, that he knows she is of age, and that he will demand an accounting of his guardianship. Confronted with the proofs Conway breaks down, and influenced by his wife he confesses all, and begs for mercy. Richard compels Levine to apologize to Moina and leave Kilkenny.

Mr. O'Hara will be heard in five new songs, especially written for his use in "Kilkenny." He has been provided with a splendid supporting company, including Eileen Wilson, Marie Quinn, Anna Nichols, Mary Downs, Lisle Bloodgood, Elize Mason, Wm. J. Morgan, J. P. Sullivan, James Edwards, Henry Duffy J. E. Miller and Wm. T Sheehan.

THE CHILD ON THE ROAD.

(One of our wounded soldiers told the writer that the most piteous sight he had seen was that of a little boy who was travelling along the road alone when a shell killed him. He had a little placard pinned to his blue blouse entreating any kindly passer-by to take care of him and get him into safety, as his parents and friends were all killed and his home destroyed.)

By the side of the dusty road
As if asleep he lay.
A little tir'd out boy.
In the light of the soft Spring day,
By the side of the long white road,
With its shell-torn trees brought low,
He lay in the sun with his journey done,
The last of his line to go.

Some one had pinned to his blouse
A message short but clear,
Begging the passer's help
That small, frail life to cheer
Gone was his home, and gone
All that he lov'd and knew,
Down the long way he went on that day
Till the war tide claim'd him too.

By the side of the dusty road
Th' British soldiers stay'd
To lift that tumbled form
In death so unafraid.
To dash from manly eyes
The tears for one who trod
So little of that long white road
That led him safe to God.

Men, in your manhood's prime,
Can you still your old ways take,
While your brethren strain and sweat
The battle-lines to break?
Can you lie o' nights in peace.
Nor think, when the lights are low,
That the child forlorn who died alone,

—Augusta Hancock, in The Lady.

Silenced.

Same old story—hubby was growling about some bill of his wife's which he had just received.

"Seven pounds to your milliner," he enumerated, "18 guineas for your dressmaker, and—oh, this is too much—15 shillings for two bottles of perfume. Fifteen shillings for mere odors that fade away and die!"

Wifey was quite unalarmed.

"Yes," she replied, "odors that fade away and die and go to meet the 36 shillings worth of cigars you consume every month!"—Pittsburg Press.

Woes and Sorrows of Poles Under German Domination

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Some of the oppressive measures under which the unfortunate inhabitants of German Poland live and still manage, in their sturdy patriotism to maintain their nationalism, are told in an article written by the son of a retired officer of the German army, now living in Posen, Germany. The writer, himself a secretary in the German Foreign Office until his espousal of the rights of the Poles resulted in his disgrace and dismissal, is now in this country. At his request his name and address are withheld. Here he is known simply as Felix Tercza, and as such, a future American citizen, he writes of the glories of German "Kultur" in Poland.

"I have come to this country, first of all, because I am a Pole who has lived under the tyranny of Deutsche Kultur. What tragedy there is revealed to the Pole from Germany by that simple declaration cannot be understood by an American. I was born where the Prussian eagle waves in triumph over a people kept in subjection, but not conquered, by brute force and such subtle cruelty as only Deutsche Kultur can devise.

"It is said of the Russian that he race. The Russian cruelty is that of is cruel to his dependents of another the clumsy bear, who strikes awkwardly and tears and bruises. The cruelty of the German is that of refinement, of the kind which aims at crushing not the soul of the victim.

"And yet away from Germany the bumptious claims of responsibility for all achievements and of the power of the German government become rather ludicrous. In my father's home I was taught that Mikael Kopernikus and F. Chopin were Poles. In the schools our German teacher told us that they were Germans! In my earliest youth my mother whispered to me that the Polish King Jan Sobieski saved Europe to Christendom when he defeated the Turks in the famous battle of Vienna. In the German schools it is taught that the Turk was driven from Europe by the German 'Grosser Kurfuerst.'

At my home, when we were alone my father and my mother taught me the beauties of the Polish language as all good Polish fathers and mothers teach their children. When I went into a German school I remember so well the shock I received when a teacher lectured us on the Polish language. The language, I was informed, is only spoken by the outcasts, the revolutionists German, he said, was the only language for honest and educated men. Why, the Pope in Rome spoke that tongue, although he was born an Italian!

"My old nurse, when I was a child taught me the beautiful and melancholy songs which have come down to the Poles through many ages. At school I was asked if I could sing, and, in boyish joy, I said I could sing the Polish songs.

"Only German songs should sound from the throats in Germany, and the whole world" my teacher said harshly, and I was thrashed for the admission!

"These are only a few scattered incidents to reveal the complete attempt of the Prussian government to stamp out the Polish national spirit. Of course, the Poles resist this and hate their German oppressors, and it is for this reason that the Prussian Diet has passed the laws which are slowly strangling to death the Polish people.

"The Polish language is prohibited in the schools and in public life. No Pole may buy or sell property without the consent of the German government. Where a Pole owns property that is becoming valuable and is likely to make him a power in any movement there is a law which provides that a Pole may be dispossessed from his property. All that is necessary is that the government fix a price which must be paid. There is no appeal from this, and where a corrupt official desires a Pole's property all he needs to do is to set the government wheels in motion, have a ridiculously low price named, pay it and take over the property.

"I submit these few facts and others merely as an indication of how the Poles are cared for by the kind Prussian government. Were I to write all that I know I fear my life would not be very safe. This is melodramatic, but only too true.

"There is, for instance, the case of Vladislav Kolek, which is written on the records of the German government. Kolek fought in the Franco-Prussian war in the Prussian army and was a hero, so great a one, in fact that when he was picked up on the battle field after the battle of Bravelotte, on August 16, 1870, he had lost both legs. He was decorated with the Iron Cross and was given a pension of fifty marks ($12.50) a month for life and he was pointed out proudly by the government as a fitting example of how highly an honest Pole might be regarded.

"And then poor Kolek fell in love with a Polish girl in the afternoon of his life. The German government officials frowned at this seeming indelicacy. Why not a German girl? But his love persisted. The government cut the pension to twenty marks a month ($5).

"The Polish girl and the hero married and she loved her husband and went out to work for him. Then Kolek committed the crime of buying a few acres of land near Bytour, Poland, and he proceeded to build himself a house. This was too much from one Pole for Germany. The government refused the necessary permit to build. Kolek smiled, dug himself and his wife a cave and they moved into it. This infuriated the Prussians. Gendarmes were sent out to expel the insolent Pole, but he resisted. A gendarme drew his revolver and shot; Kolek reached for his gun and killed the policeman. A force of gendarmes brought up a cannon and blew the cave up, and with it Kolek, the hero and his wife.

"Cruel? Oh, yes, but how definite.

"There is again the case of Dray mala, a retired subaltern officer of the German army. He, too, married a Polish girl and sought permission to build a house, a permission naturally refused, for few Poles are permitted to own dwellings. So he bought himself a gypsy wagon, believing that he had the same right as a gypsy to live in a wagon. The government ordered him to sell this wagon or go to jail. He capitulated, remembering Kolek. Now he lives in a German-owned house.

"And now for my last illustration of Deutsche Kultur. In 1909 I visited my brother, who is a physician in a small country town in German Poland, and he told me the story of Sygmund Zajka Piaski, of Posen, Germany.

"One day a mother came with a crying boy to my brother. The right ear of this child was torn nearly off. The teacher, one Hermann Muelberg had done it, the mother said, because her son had spoken Polish to a companion in the school.

"The mother was given a certificate by my brother, with which she went to the public prosecutor. He frowned and told her she must have a certificate from the German official county doctor. She came back to my brother who took her to the county physician. He refused the certificate bluntly. My brother took her to a Jewish physician and he gave her the necessary certificate of injury, which in my brother's name was insufficient. The public prosecutor took this document and for three months the poor woman waited for justice. And when it failed to come my brother, aroused, presented the matter to a member of the Prussian parliament. He investigated the matter. The report handed to him exonerated the teacher and declared it was the unclean condition of the boy's ear which made it tear loose when slightly pulled.

"So you see what the Poles endure under this kindly system of the great German government, whose mighty Emperor is now waging such a magnificent war, in which thousands of my poor countrymen are being slaughtered.

"I am the son of a prominent man in Germany, because he has been a high officer in the German army. I obtained a post in the German Foreign Office, given to me by the government because I am a prominent Pole of family and circumstances and therefore it is well to show the other Poles how well the government treats its people.

"But, alas, I gave three lessons to some Polish children in our beautiful language, and gone are my honours. I fled to the United States to escape the nine months in jail which would have been mine had I stayed in Berlin. Now, every day I can read a Polish newspaper without fear of dismissal from the gloomy office in Berlin.

"So here in the United States I am going to seek my fortune, where no Pole is a Pole only, but a citizen, who can speak, read and write what language he chooses without fear or favour."

The lecturer on theosophy had concluded his long and able address, and stood looking at the audience.

"If there is any question," he said "that any of you would like to ask me before I sit down, I should be pleased to answer it."

Amid the deep silence that followed this remark an earnest looking man near the door rose up and said:

"I'd like to know, professor, if anybody has yet discovered a reliable and certain cure for corns.

"Every one in our family is some kind of animal," said Jimmie to the amazed preacher. "Why, you shouldn't say that!" the good man exclaimed. "Well," said Jimmie, "Mother's a dear, the baby is mother's little lamb, I'm the kid, and dad's the goat."

Brudder Johnson was a pompous negro who took an active part in church work. One night the preacher said:—"Brudder Johnson will you lead us in prayah?" "Ah'm sorry to disappoint de Lawd to-night, pahson," replied Brudder Johnson, "but Ah has a cold on mah chest."

"Yes," sighed the mother. "I am so often worried about my boy John. You have no idea how much concerned a mother is when her son is on the tented field." "Ah!" said the sympathetic listener. "And what regiment is your son with?" "Regiment? Oh, he isn't with the Army—he's employed in a travelling circus."

NOT ONE PLAYER OF LAST YEAR'S INTERMEDIATES IS LEFT IN THE CITY

Fans who have not glanced over the hockey situation recently may be surprised to realize that not one of the men who represented Peterborough in the intermediate series of the O. H. A. last season is left in the city. Three of the team are wearing khaki, another is making, and another in a member of the 93rd Battalion, while Mart Kenneally, for years the mascot of the Peterborough club, is in England as a motor car driver with the Canadian forces. Cyril Giroux and Fred Denison, of the 1914 team, are both in khaki, while Harold Knapman, Harold Morrow, and Orme Cavanagh, well known junior players, have also heard the call of King and country. As last year's Executive, with the exception of the manager of the Junior Club, were suspended by the O.H.A., practically all of last year's hockey group has disappeared.

However, some of last year's Juniors remain, and a number of players of more or less ability have become residents of Peterborough since last season, while among the ranks of the 93rd Battalion other players may be discovered before the ice comes.

A number of hockey fans are holding a meeting to-night for the purpose of organizing a club to apply for admittance into the O.H.A.

The Peterborough Hockey Club, players and Executive, is a thing of the past.

Skid Janes, the regular goalkeeper, is with the 40th Battery, Toronto, as is Jack Pethick, who performed on the defence here last winter. Ack Hunter, the other defence player, is a shell inspector for the Militia Department. Joe Dwyer, the spare goaler, accepted a position in Sarnia late last spring. Of the forwards, Maurice Park, the best goal-getter of the team, is now Capt. Maurice Park, of the 58th Battalion, C.E.F. Grover Halpin is in Detroit. Fred Kelly is in Ingersol. Ray Rose is making shells in the Ross Rifle Works, Quebec, and "Joe Moines" is "somewhere in Canada." He has been officially reported "missing" since last spring. Ed. Dillon, the trainer of the team, is now

COLLEGIATE HELD THE HARBORD TEAM TO TIE

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute Rugby team showed their class on Saturday afternoon, when they held the strong Harbord Collegiate Institute of Toronto to a 10-10 tie in a hard battle at Riverside Park. The weather was anything but favourable for rugby with the ground a quagmire and rain and snow falling during the afternoon, but in spite of the conditions it was a lively battle, and the excitement was keen from start to finish. Running plays were almost impossible in the bad going and both teams confined their tactics to line plunging and kicking. The good work of Long, Canniff and Eastwood featured the work of the Collegiate. The visitors had a heavy, fast team. They took the leadearly in the game on a fumble by one of the Collegiate backs, which gave them a good start, but the local team gradually overhauled them.

The teams were as follows:
Harbord Collegiate—
Flying wing—Norman.
Halves—Squires, Vokes, Fraser.
Quarter—Currie.
Scrimmage—Wessells, Purdy, Grey.
Inside wing—Houson, Miles.
Middle wings—Staughton, Keillor.
Outside wings—Gormed, Williams
Peterborough—
Flying wing—E. Smyth.
Halves—Jobbitt, Long, Eastwood.
Quarter—Stevenson.
Scrimmage — Brandon, Crawford Baden.
Outside wings—Green, Carmichael.
Middle wings—Austin, Smith.
Inside wings—Kirn, Canniff.

Heavy Fire Going On On Western Front--Another Drive Expected

PARIS, November 22.—Reports of the French fighting along the western front disclosing the fact that lively artillery actions are taking place at many points, is believed to be significant. The French, it is thought, are planning an important movement for which the artillery actions are a preparation. The official communique to-day dealt chiefly with the artillery activity and the War Office announced later that there was nothing to add to this previous communication.

It was a similar and heavy artillery preparation along the western front which the French employed before they made their great drive late in September, and broke through the German lines in the Champagne district, driving the enemy back to their second lines and taking thousands of prisoners. This was an offensive movement that extended all the way from the North Sea to Alsace. The village of Loos, mentioned in to-day official statement as being in the vicinity of the extremely lively artillery actions which are now taking place, was captured by the French at that time. During that drive the British reached the outskirts of Hulluch, which is also named in the latest official French statement as one of the points at which artillery fire is now very heavy.

London Irish, Heroes of Loos, Carried Football Into Battle

"On the Ball!" Was Cry That Carried Famous Rifles Forward to the German Lines in First Dash of Big Drive, and "Goal!" They Shouted When Ball Was Landed in the Trenches.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—One of the most stirring stories of British grit and courage in the war is undoubtedly that of the charge of the London Irish Rifles in the attack upon Loos.

Some of them actually played football right up to the German trenches; but this way only one of hundreds of instances of cool dare deviltry that marked a day which, according to Brigadier General Thwaites, witnessed "one of the finest actions of the war."

One of the wounded Irishmen, now lying in a London hospital, told a correspondent who called on him the first connected story of the great charge and equally great stand against tremendous odds.

"As soon as we heard the great bombardment start," he said, "we knew the big advance was about to begin, and for nineteen solid days the guns banged away, till, as one wit in the regiment put it, 'it was a wonder the shells didn't bally well jam together in the air,' so thick did they come over our heads. When we were ordered one night to the back reserve trenches and 'fed up well,' we knew the time was near. 'Fattening the calf for slaughter,' said we to ourselves.

"I can't tell you the pride we felt when we heard that we were actually to have the honour of leading the division. Our first objective was to be the Valley Cross Roads, which commanded the way to Loos and Hill No. 70, after taking which we were, if possible, to break through as far as Lens, the key to Douai. After three days' good food and rest we were marched into the first trenches late at night, laden with ammunition, kit bags and trench tools, and, in fact, everything we could carry.

Leading Way Into Battle.

"Our first job was to get over the parapet and start digging about three hundred yards nearer the enemy, and by dawn we had managed to make a sort of ditch about three feet deep all along our front. It was not dangerous work the first night, for the Germans had not spotted us, and we left off at dawn; but when they did spot the new earthworks and realised what we were up to the first thing they did in the morning was to start a terrific bombardment. We had to lie low all day until it was safe enough to go out again under cover of darkness and complete the job, for we were told we should have to stay in them the next day.

"I shall never forget that night. As we 'marched into battle,' to use the old expression, the General — God bless him!—said a few words to us which stirred us to our inmost souls.

"'The Empire expects great things of the London Irish to-day—remember that—for you have been chosen to lead the whole division.' But, heavens, you've got to be a soldier and to have been under fire and facing death for weeks to be able to understand what such words mean. No man can hear them and remain a coward, for you just feel that all the old people at home would scorn to receive your back unless you had done your utmost.

"A few minutes later we were crawling out into the open to finish the trench which was to be the springing off place for the great dash that we hoped would break the German lines. No sooner had we reached this place than the stillness was broken by the roar of the enemy's guns, and bullets and shells poured on us, the explosions silhouetting us momentarily every few instants, and revealing us hard at work.

"One set of our men, footballers by profession, made a strange resolution. It was to take a football along with them. The officer discovered this and ordered the football to be taken back to the base, which, of course, was carried out. But the old members of the London Irish Football Club were not to be done out of the greatest game of their lives—the last to some of them, poor fellows—and just before Major Beresford gave the signal the leather turned up again mysteriously.

Carried Football to Enemy's Trench.

"Suddenly the officer in command gave the signal, 'Over you go, lads.' With that the whole line sprang up as one man, some with a prayer, not a few making the sign of the cross. But the footballers, they chucked the ball and went after it just as cool as if on the field, passing it from one to the other, though the bullets were flying thick as hail, crying, 'On the ball, London Irish!' and they actually kicked it right into the enemy's trench with the cry, 'Goal!' though not before some of them had been picked off on the way.

"When we reached the German trench under a cloud of smoke, we found nothing but a pack of beings dazed with terror. In a jiffy we were over their parapet and the real work began. A kind of madness comes over you as you stab with your bayonet and hear the shriek of the poor devil suddenly cease as steel goes through him and you know he's 'gone West.' The beggars did not show much fight, most having retired into their second line of trenches when we began to occupy their first to make it our new line of attack. That meant clearing out even the smallest nook or corner that was large enough to hold a man.

"When it came to cold steel, which they can't stand, they ran like hares. So, having left a number of our men in the first trench, we went on to the second and then the third, after which other regiments came up to our relief, and together we took Loos. It wasn't really our job at all to take Loos, but we were swept on by the enthusiasm, I suppose, and all day long we were at it, clearing house after house, or rather what was left of the houses, stabbing and shooting and bombing till one felt ready to drop dead one's self. We wiped the Twenty-third Silesian regiment right out, but it was horrible to work on with the cries of the wounded going up all round.

The Facts About Hill 70.

"There seems to be some mystery about Hill 70 — as to whether it was taken or not. As a matter of fact, Hill 70 is some five or six miles across, and it is quite possible for the Germans and the English to be occupying it simultaneously without even realising that they were on a hill at all, so flat it is.

"Now, what really happened was this: Our men went clean over it in the first rush that carried them beyond Loos in the direction of Lens, which we had hoped to capture. Unfortunately, the Germans suddenly brought up tremendous reinforcements as soon as they realized that the loss of Lens probably would mean the loss of Douai, and concentrated their whole counter attack upon some fresh troops who had been out at the front only a fortnight.

"Luckily during the advance a large quantity of supplies had been moved up from our old trenches to our new trenches, which were nothing more than the Germans' third line of trenches turned round back to the front, the sandbag parapets having been moved sack by sack onto the other side and consolidated as well as time would allow.

"The battle now became terrific. It seemed as if the whole of Krupps was being chucked at us wholesale, while our own artillery was peppering away just as hard from behind our backs. It seemed as if they'd pop our heads off at times between them. 'Stick to it, lads,' said one of our officers. 'Everything depends upon your holding your position. If they break the line'—— He didn't have to finish; that was quite sufficient, and the words of the General came back—'Remember, you're Irish, and the Empire expects great things of you.

Long Wait for Relief.

"That was enough. If every Jack man of us had to go under we were determined to do so, but we wouldn't give in. 'Von Hindenburg is coming with half a million men!' shouted one German, as he advanced. 'Begorra thin, so much the worse for Von Hindenburg and his half million!' we shouted, and the fight went on.

"There we were, a long, long way from our own lines; in fact, nearly in the enemy's, isolated from every help and hardly knowing what was happening around us or what part we were really playing in the great struggle. The strain on the nerves [illegible] moment you [illegible] to drop from sheer exhaustion, but still you kept up, you couldn't, tell yourself how.

"So all Monday passed, and still no relief came; indeed, it was a question whether any minute we should not be blown to atoms and the line swamped with a rush of the enemy. We could hardly stand from fatigue, having been in action steadily since Saturday morning; but still we fought on almost blindly.

"'Fight on, lads,' said an officer, who was afterwards killed, poor chap. 'Remember the division looks to you. This is bound to end sooner or later. Let it be in a way that will never be forgotten when they hear of it at home in London and in Ireland.' So we fought on, and never a single German got nearer than a dozen yards from our lines. Soon we got the word that relief was coming under cover of the darkness. The announcement sent a terrific thrill of joy through us, for then we knew that we had won.

The After Battle Roll Call.

"The last few hours, however, were terrific. Our own shells had come to our rescue and under their shelter new troops came to relieve us, together with the stretcher bearers for our wounded. As soon as we got to the back trenches in safety a huge cheer went up from all the others, 'The London Irish—Hurroo!' and they shook us by the hand and took our rifles from our grasp and the kits from our backs in their eagerness to show their gratitude.

"The first few moments after the battle are very wonderful, for it is then that the roll call takes place and you see for the first time the terrible cost of victory. You hear pals calling out the names of pals and no answer coming back, and then the poor fellows who survive going round to get the last news. It's terrible. You see chaps who have stood the strain of battle like so many giants crying like children all alone.

"Then you see others around full of the enthusiasm of the great hour, taking out their pencils and scraps of paper and cardboard or anything in order to let the people get the first news of their escape as quickly as possible and saying that every one was telling how the London Irish had saved the situation.

"I put that down myself to the ordinary pride of regiment till we got it from the General himself, who assembled us together. 'Not only am I proud to have had the honour of being in command of such a regiment, lads,' he said, 'but the whole empire will be proud whenever in after years the battle of Loos comes to be written; for I can tell you that it was the London Irish who helped to save a whole British army corps. You've done one of the greatest actions of the war.'"

Never Begged.

Charles Hogg was the next witness called. He said he resided in North Monaghan and knew accused by sight. She had never solicited aid so far as he knew.

It was here that Magistrate Langley ruled out a number of questions asked by County Constable Moore. The Magistrate made it plain that he would not open up the court for the purpose of allowing the County Constable to justify his actions. The case before the court was one of vagrancy preferred against Alice Oliver.

"Can I explain," enquired Mr Moore, as he stepped into the witness box, presumably to give evidence. He said he felt annoyed at the way he had been "scandalized" by reason of the manner in which the case had been aired in the press.

Mr McElderry pointed out that the constable's mode of arrest was not impeached. "If you have been aggrieved you have the remedies, but this is not the time or place. The Court is dealing with a place of vagrancy against the accused," said Mr. McElderry.

Continuing his evidence, Mr. Moore said he was instructed to go down and arrest the couple. He went down in an automobile in company with Milton Howland. When near the Kincaid farm, witness met a woman whom he took to be Alice Oliver about fifty yards from where the couple were staying. He apprehended the woman after telling her who he was. She started to "whine" and said "I can't go." Witness said you had better come along with me, we are going to get a nice, comfortable place for you and your husband for the winter." She then requested permission to visit the house, which was granted. Accused started to light a fire, but was prevented by the witness. The accused had no quilts, as witness helped her to pull a pair of stockings off her hands. He then assisted her into the automobile, after which they proceeded to Andrew Hoag's, where the woman's husband was arrested. While on the way up the accused, according to Constable Moore gave him a severe tongue thrashing. She was very profane in her remarks.

Refused to Answer.

To Mr. McElderry, Constable Moore said he did not administer the customary warning.

"You brought her into Peterborough and then procured the warrant?" enquired Mr. McElderry.

"There was an understanding between Magistrate Langley and the Crown," replied the witness.

After further questioning, witness said he was unable to remember when he procured the warrant.

"You don't know whether you had the warrant with you when you arrested the woman?"

"I don't think I will answer that question. It has no bearing on the case, besides you objected to some of my questions," replied Constable Moore.

"Then you take it upon yourself to refuse to answer?" countered the counsel for defence.

"I think you will have to answer the question," observed the Court.

Witness replied by saying he did not remember whether he had the warrant with him.

He said he heard very little of the conversation that took place in the car between the accused and Constable Moore. Witness submitted that the Constable treated the accused very carefully. He did not know what took place in the Kincaid house. It was here that the Constable was alone with the woman.

Mr. McElderry asked the Court to discharge the accused on the grounds that insufficient evidence had been produced to warrant a conviction.

Magistrate Langey said he did not think there was any evidence to justify a conviction. It was a very unfortunate affair, he said.

The woman was taken in charge by Adjutant McElhiney, who will see that she is provided for until arrangements can be made to have her placed in the County House of Refuge.

Reeve McIntosh authorised the County Clerk to make the necessary arrangements for the woman's removal to the House of Refuge. This can be done in extreme cases whether or not the party has resided in the County for the required period.

COUNTY CONSTABLE ASKS COMPLETE INVESTIGATION

In reply to Mr. F. D. Kerr's letter in The Examiner on Saturday regarding the death of Alexander Oliver in the jail on Friday morning, County Constable Archie Moore desires a full investigation into the arrest of the late Mr. Oliver. If it is proved that Mr. Moore used any undue violence or harsh treatment in making the arrest. While no name was mentioned in Mr. Kerr's letter, yet Mr. Moore was the official who made the arrest, and he states that the implied charge in the letter is utterly unwarranted in so far as he is concerned. He is prepared to prove by the evidence of Mr. Andrew Hogg's son and daughter that he treated Mr. and Mrs. Oliver with every consideration in the fact of violent abuse. Reviewing the antecedents to the arrest, Mr. Moore said: "I received a telephone message on Wednesday evening from Mr. McIntosh, Reeve of North Monaghan, telling me of a couple that were down in the old Kincaid house in a starving condition, but that Mr. Andrew Hogg took over some bread. It was felt by North Monaghan people, and it was the wish of the Township Council that the old couple should be taken in charge until their friends or former residence could be located. It was feared that something might happen to them and it was believed that they would be better off in the House of Refuge. Mr. Bell, a Councillor, had seen them and wanted them to go to the House of Refuge, but the old man said they had been in the home in Lindsay and they had had enough of it.

Laid Information.

As a result of the conversation with the reeve I laid a complaint of vagrancy following the usual procedure. I went down to the Kincaid place and met Mrs. Oliver on the highway about 50 yards from the house. I drove past her and waited at the gate until she came up. I asked her where her husband was and she replied that he was at Hogg's. I told her who I was and that I wanted her to come to a place where she would be warm and well cared for during the winter. She said she wanted to go into the house, so I went in with her. There was no fire in the house, there was a hen and 2 or 3 chickens in it, and a dead one on a window sill. There was an old mattress on the floor with two dirty quilts or parts of quilts on it. The stove was an old one; there was no table and the only food I saw was two raw turnips. Mrs. Oliver walked out of the house of her own free will. I assisted her into the car and we drove to Mr. Hogg's, which did not take more than ten minutes.

Mr. Hogg came out and I asked him where Mr. Oliver was. He went around the edge of a shed and brought him. I took both the man and his wife into Mr. Hogg's house. I got an overcoat and put it on Mrs. Oliver and buttoned it close around her neck. I also got her a cup of tea. All this time Mr. Oliver was cursing and swearing at me using very abusive language. I wanted to get a coat for him but he wouldn't have it.

We started out of the house to come home. I took Mrs. Oliver by the arm but when I reached the middle of the yard I found to my surprise the old man with a sharp axe behind me. I left Mrs. Oliver and caught hold of the axe handle. In trying to take it away from him the old man cursed and swore and kicked at me, and raised as much of a row as he could. I coaxed him to behave and to come along quietly that it was only for his own good, but he swore he wouldn't. I got a handcuff on one wrist, but it came apart. I then asked Mr. Hogg for a rope. I tied it once around Mr. Oliver's legs to keep him from kicking, and around his body holding the upper part of his arms, but leaving his hands free. I did not want him to strike at me. Mr. Hogg's son and I lifted him into the auto. All the way to Peterborough I sat on the back of the front seat facing the old couple. I put a buffalo robe around both of them, but the old man kept knocking it off. He used abusive language all the way. We were only about 20 minutes coming in. I went to Magistrate Langley's office where I had an appointment with him and then went to the Court House, where we waited until Magistrate Langley arrived. A joint charge of vagrancy was laid before the old couple, and they were remanded until Monday morning. They were then taken over by the Court House officials."

Demands Vindication.

Mr. Moore further stated that it was his desire and that of the North Monaghan people to treat the old couple with every kindness. Mr. Hogg's son remarked to him that he should not have to put up with the abuse both Mr. and Mrs. Oliver used toward him. The County Constable declares without reserve that he did not use either of the old people harshly, but treated them as kindly as possible. Had Mr. Kerr withheld his opinion until this morning's court he would have other testimony than Mrs. Oliver's. Mr. Moore says he wants his conduct vindicated, and is confident that the Hogg family will show that he used no harsh treatment toward Mr. and Mrs. Oliver.

That the vagrancy charge against Mrs. Oliver was dismissed proves nothing in regard to the manner of the arrest of both of them. Besides no evidence was taken in regard to the charge against Mr. Oliver, for the reason that he was dead, and in fact nothing was brought out in regard to the justification of the desires of the North Monaghan residents and Council, that the old couple should be taken to some proper home where they could be temporarily and comfortably cared for until it was learnedd where they had come from with a view to sending them back either to friends or the Lindsay Home they spoke of.

Efforts Being Made to Include China in the Entente Powers

WASHINGTON, November 22—Efforts are being made by Great Britain, France and Russia to include China in the membership of the Entente now aligned against the Germanic powers. Disclosure of this fact directed the attention of officials, Washington to-day to a complicated situation in the Far East, the seriousness of which has not hitherto been realized.

It became known that in order to insure friendly relations between Japan and China, conversations and exchanges had been proceeding in Pekin and the European capitals looking to the formal entrance of China on an equal footing with Japan into the alliance that now includes Great Britain, France, Russia, Italy, Japan and Serbia.

Military participation by China in the war would not be expected, but the political necessity of adding China to the allies is looked upon by them as of vast importance. It was learned to-day that recently several Japanese warships were placed at strategic points along the China coast and that the possibility of internal revolution in China through the proposed change from republic to parliamentary monarchy had caused some Japanese officials to believe that munitions of war should be husbanded for emergencies. When the recent Japanese-Chinese negotiations were in progress Japan similarly felt forced to hold her ammunition supply for developments, a circumstance that is known to have embarrassed Russia considerably.

So far as is known here most of the conversations have been conducted at Pekin and it is not clear how far the proposal has been discussed with the Japanese Government at Tokio. The belief is general, however, that Great Britain, on account of the obligations of her allies with Japan, probably has consulted the Tokio government freely.

CHINA FAVORABLY INCLINED.

China's attitude has not yet developed, but in some quarters here the view is held that the Pekin government is favorably inclined to the Entente proposal, since the move would guarantee the integrity of China during the present disturbed condition of the world politics and safeguard her political interests at the peace conference. In fact some rumors have reached officials recently that the plan actually originated with the Chinese who saw in it a means of checkmating possible Japanese aggression.

Just what advantages would lie to Japan in acquiescing in the proposal are not clear, but it is suggested in well-informed quarters that by placing on a solid foundation the relations between China and Japan Japanese commercial interests in Japan might be immune from the possible disturbances which recurrent political friction might bring about. The feeling in China against Japan has been growing on account of the recent negotiations and the possibility that a friendly spirit might be developed between the two Oriental countries also is said to be a factor in behalf of Japanese approval of the plan.

Secretary Lansing declined to comment on the situation declaring that whatever had been received by the American government on the subject was confidential, and could not be disclosed.

ROBT. FAIR & CO., Ltd.

A NINE-STOREY DOXOLOGY FACTORY

Los Angeles Edifice Includes Auditorium, Gymnasium, Theatre, Hospital and Barber Shop.

"The world wants an electric-lighted, self-starting, 8-cylinder church," says the pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church South, of Los Angeles, and in the erection of Trinity Auditorium the requirements for a "1915 model" religious plant seem to have been adequately answered.

The completion of the 9-storey church building, with social rooms, motion pictures, hotel for men, roof garden, cafeteria, barber shop, gym king room, nursery, hospital and bowling alley, marks the largest enterprise in church building for the Pacific Coast, where many churches are breaking away from conventional ecclesiastical architecture and housed in "white temples" and the like, are showing that adaptability on which the Coast prides itself.

Activities of the church and Sunday school are confined to the first three floors and roof. There are 321 hotel rooms on the remaining floors and offices and club rooms of various religious and secular organizations.

In the hotel, all are outside rooms and many have sleeping porches and shower baths. On the roof there is ample room for tennis and basketball courts and an auditorium to seat five hundred. The roof garden is also used for entertainment features of the church activity. Typical of these was the 3-day boys' carnival of fun held during dedication week.

Movies a Feature.

The auditorium, seating 2,300 people, is fully equipped with stage, orchestra pit, the usual stage curtains, drops and footlights. In addition to the main auditorium are four others seating from three to five hundred persons. These rooms are being used for Sunday school classes, recitals, club meetings and social events.

Motion pictures begin the regular Sunday school service and are also used through the week when feature photoplays are presented to the public at regular motion picture show rates. The annual income from the auditorium alone is expected to be $15,000, while the hotel is expected to yield $75,000 annually, the cafeteria $10,000 and the club rooms and store rooms $10,000.

In discussing the new field of activity for the church, the pastor has this to say:

"Many churches need to wake up and step out of their shroud. A shroud is a very prim, conventional thing, but it is a poor fighting garb. The church needs to be belted and buckled for war, for in these complex days of strange forces we are facing a new moral Armageddon. Trinity Auditorium will stand for reverence of the past, but it will also seek to keep in touch with present tendencies and have a share in all movements for community uplift.

Labour For General Uplift.

"Most churches deal with the soul's salvation to the exclusion of the mind and body. The church has been getting a few people, the club a few, the lodge people, the clubtions a few. We have combined the advantages of all of these in one comprehensive institution. There is just enough difference between Trinity and other churches to make it interesting to many who have lost interest in religious work in general.

"Trinity Auditorium will not work along the ordinary circumscribed lines of a denominational church, but will labour for the general uplift of the community, and consequently will attract the attention of all people who are interested in the moral and intellectual improvement of the city."

Extremely Kind.

"My dear friend, I must ask you to lend me a sovereign at once; I have left my purse at home, and haven't a farthing in my pocket." "I can't lend you a sovereign just now, but I can put you in the way of getting the money at once." "You are extremely kind." "Here's twopence; ride home on the tram and fetch your purse."

ANOTHER GRAND TRUNK HOTEL.

The last addition to the great chain of Canada's hotels, built by the Grand Trunk System, is The Macdonald, Edmonton, Alta. This beautiful house, on the banks of the Saskatchewan, is described and pictures in a new booklet just issued by the Railway Company. The booklet is a very handsome one, containing a brief and concise description of this beautiful hotel, printed on India tint paper and illustrated with direct reproductions from photographs of the different rooms, the exterior of the hotel, and snapshots of Edmonton. The text is inserted in a cover printed in gold on hand-made paper, the tout ensemble making a very attractive publication, a copy of which may be had on application by writing to the Manager of The Macdonald Hotel, Edmonton, Alta.

"Mabel is engaged," "Whom to?" "She doesn't say in her letter. All that she knows is that his first name is Frank."

WEDDING BELLS

DOLEMAN—BAYLISS.

A pretty wedding was solemnized this morning at 44 Lafayette Ave., when Miss Mary Bayliss was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Doleman. The bride was charmingly attired in blue silk. Only immediate relatives and friends were present at the ceremony, after which a reception was held. Rev. Jas. Greatrix of St. James' church, officiated.

RODDY—LEFAVE.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Sacred Heart church, when Miss Delia Lefave became the bride of Mr. Michael Roddy, son of Mr. Patrick Roddy. The bride looked very becoming in a navy blue suit and a picture hat and a black set of furs, and carried a bouquet of carnations. She was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lefave. After the wedding they went home, where a dainty dejeuner was served. A very enjoyable time was spent in games and dancing.

She received many beautiful presents, including a handsome Morris chair from the groom's mother. Their many friends join and wish them many happy congratulations.

THE GUNBOAT.

The pride of Britain's navy lies with thunders all asleep,
And the men they sing their British songs along the open sky,
But the little modest gunboat, she's a-creepin' in to die!

The proudest ship that ever kept the honour of a King!
But nosin' down the roadway past the bones of other wrecks
Goes the doughty little gunboat with her manhood on her decks!

The proudest fleet that ever kept the king his atonement!
But down the death-sown harbour where a ship may find her grave,

Then sing your British chantmens to the ends of all the seas,
And fling your British banners to the derry Oceans' breeze—
But when you tell the gallant tale beneath the open sky,
Give honour to the gunboat that was not too small to die!

—Dana Burnet

Patient Not Pleased.

A man out of health was continually changing physicians. At one time he called in a young man just getting a practice. He told him all his ailments, and said he had symptoms of a serious heart trouble.

"Not necessarily," the physician replied.

This did not please the patient, and he said very irritably, "It isn't for a young physician like you to disagree with an old and experienced invalid like me, sir."—Unionist.

ANNUAL MEETING OF BUSINESS GIRLS' CLUB

Reports Show That the Organization Had a Busy and Highly Successful Year — Much Work Has Been Done.

THE OFFICERS ELECTED

The annual meeting of the Business Girls' Club was held in the Green Parlour of the "Y" on Friday, November 19, at 7.30 p.m.

The yearly report was presented as follows:

The Business Girls' Club was organized Wednesday, Nov. 25, 1914, when about 42 members were enrolled. Miss H. Dennison being president. The annual membership fee was decided upon as 25c.

The first two meetings were held in the Peterborough Typewriter Company's store, then Mr. Travers offered the girls the use of the Bank of Montreal chambers until such time as they could procure other accommodation.

The distribution of toys and candy to the girls, for some little children, who were otherwise unprovided for, was held in one of the stores of the Toronto Savings and Loan Building, kindly loaned for the occasion by Mr. Morrow, Mr. J. E. A. Fitzgerald supplying the coal for heating purposes and Messrs. Alexander & Miller attending to the lighting.

With an expenditure of about $100 about 288 pounds of candy and 510 toys were purchased, with some 15 donated, making it possible to remember 525 children at Christmas.

On Feb. 16 Miss Dennison resigned from the office of president and Miss Lillian Hall was appointed as her successor. At this meeting Miss Peacock placed the parlours of the "Y" at the disposal of the girls, at the same time offering a clubroom in the building should the girls become members of the "Y."

On April 16 a cheque for $15 was sent to Captain Grey, Kingston, being a donation to the Field Kitchen Fund of the 21st Batt., 2nd Overseas Contingent.

On April 23 the girls held a sheet and towel shower in the gym. of the Y.W.C.A. which was decorated for the occasion through the generosity of Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons and the Peterboro Floral Company.

The shower was open to the public and some 65 sheets, 117 towels, 6 wash cloths, and $44 00 in cash were donated for the Toronto University Base Hospital No. 4, and sent forward in due course.

The club is very grateful to Mr. J. M. Greene for engaging someone to make the sheets at his store; to Mr. Featherington, of the Peterboro Laudry for laundering the sheets and towels, and to Mr. Reid for transferring the parcels from the J. M. Greene Music store to the "Y."

At a business meeting held at the conclusion of a picnic at Jackson Park, July 15, $5 was sent to a little child in East City who is in rather unfortunate circumstances.

On Saturday, July 30, the girls attended a tennis tea at the Brinton Carpet Company, the courts being placed at the disposal of the girls for the afternoon through the kindness of Mr. Brock.

On Nov. 14 a cheque for $50 was sent to Kingston University Base Hospital, being a donation for two cots.

Beginning Oct 26, the girls are devoting every Tuesday evening to work at the Red Cross rooms in the Public Library.

Total enrollment at the end of the first year 83. Total meetings during the year, social and business, 18. Total attendance, 466. Average attendance, 25.

The girls wish to tender a hearty vote of thanks to all those who so kindly assisted them in many ways during the year, especially to the officers of the Y.W.C.A., for such material help in allowing the girls the use of the parlours for their meetings and to the press for their uniform courtesy and kindness in inserting notices, etc.

V. GUTHRIE, Secretary.

10,000 Bulgars Were Killed in the Fighting For Monastir

PRILEP, IMPORTANT SERBIAN CENTRE, IS IN FLAMES

Ancona Case Supposedly was the Topic of a Long Conference Between Foreign Minister Sonnino and Ambassador Page —Monastir has Not Yet Fallen.

GENEVA Nov. 23.— Prilep is burning, dispatches from the Balkans report to-day. The town is the important southern Serbia centre captured by the Bulgars last week on their march to Monastir. It is supposed the Bulgars set it on fire in reprisal for some act by the Serbs.

THE ANCONA CASE.

ROME, Nov. 23.— The Ancona case supposedly was the topic of a long conference between Foreign Minister Sennino and American Ambassador Page to-day. All information the Italian government has gathered concerning the torpedoing of the liner is understood to have been placed at the Ambassador's disposal.

No statement has been given out, but popular opinion inclines more and more to hold Germany responsible for the attack. The Censors' apparent indifference to newspaper attacks on the Kaiser is generally regarded as significant in its contrast with the pains taken by the authorities during the early stages of the Austro-Italian struggle to prevent anything from being said which might give offense to Germans.

10,000 BULGARS KILLED.

LONDON, Nov. 23.— Ten thousand Bulgars have been killed and wounded in the fighting for Monastir. The Bulgar forces attacked the town Saturday. Salonica advices say it was learned here to-day for the first time that the assault was repulsed. Repeated earlier reports were to the effect that the town had fallen.

VIENNA, Nov. 23.— The Austrian War Office admits the capture of Zan Martino by the Italians.

LONDON, Nov. 23. — Premier Asquith announced in the Commons that the government would introduce a Registration Bill on Wednesday containing a provision to extend the life of the present Parliament till the end of the war.

GENEVA, Nov. 23. — Austrian despatches report terrific fighting for the possession of Gerisla. The Red Cross has been overwhelmed with wounded. Italian reports claim success.

ROME, Nov. 23.—News of the blockade of Greece followed here by official announcement that Italy is acting in full harmony with the Allies and approves of it.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 3.—Extensive military preparations have been made near the Danish frontier as though to resist a siege. Several regiments have been sent to Alsen.

Great Anglo-French Fleet Ready to Strike Hard To Guard Troops From Treachery

British Press Hopes Greek King Will Bow to Will of People and Make Definite Cause With Allies Before It is Too Late to Avoid a National Catastrophe.

LONDON, Nov. 23 — Despatches from Athens report that Lord Kitchener had more than an hour's conference with King Constantine, followed by a brief interview with Mr. Skoulodis, the Prime Minister, and coincidentally with the fateful call of Britain's War Secretary on the King the newspapers of Athens published extras containing the communique issued by the British Legation declaring in the name of the Quadruple Entente an economic and commercial blockade of Greece. The announcement caused a panic in all circles, as it is recognized the hour for Greece has struck. Her King must now declare for the Central Empires, give to the Allies a satisfactory guarantee of the continuance of a benevolent neutrality or, by immediate action, prove that he is willing to submit to the wishes of the great majority of the Hellenic people by honouring the treaty with Serbia and ranging his army and navy on the side of the Entente, thus making for a Greater Greece.

The Greek Cabinet forwarned of the vigorous policy to be initiated by the Quadruple Entente, was in continuous session from nine o'clock on Friday night till three o'clock on Saturday morning, and information that it was unable to agree upon any definite course was followed by the manifesto of the Entente Powers.

Only one member of the Cabinet said to be Mr. Goumaris, the man whose threats to disarm the Serbians and Franco-British forces led to the allied warning that Greece must intervene in behalf of Serbia or demobilize, favoured casting the lot of the nation with the Central Empires. The King and the other Ministers insisted on maintaining the policy of benevolent neutrality, but they would not agree to give the definite guarantees demanded by the representatives of the four great Powers.

An immense crowd that witnessed the arrival of Lord Kitchener at the Palace cheered Britain's War Secretary as heartily as it did Mr. Denys Cochin, Minister of France, thus evidencing that the heart of the Greek people is with the Allies.

Despite the pessimistic tone of the British newspapers there still is hope the King will go with instead of against his people. If he does Mr. Venizelos will be immediately recalled.

Whatever the outcome is to be, and we shall not have a long wait, the great Franco-British fleet is where it can strike hard and protect the allied troops in Serbia from Greek treachery.

Of the French and British troops no news has been received. Apparently they are only holding their positions and can no longer hope to render assistance to the Serbians except by keeping a large number of Bulgarians engaged. According to German reports an effort will be made by the French and British to save the Serbian armies by sending troops through Montenegro and Albania but, with poor roads, it will take a long time for them to reach the battlefield.

Already the Serbians are making what may be their last stand near Monastir and also on the Pains of Kossovo. The Bulgarians, it is true, are being held up by unfavourable weather conditions, but they must be biggest at the gates of the Macedonian capital by this time, while the Austro-Germans and Bulgarians are slowly but surely pressing back the northern army.

The Germans announced yesterday the capture of Novibazar, and are, therefore, on the direct road to Mitrovitza, which has been the Serbian capital since Nish fell into the hands of the Bulgarians. Other armies are pressing in from the north the northwest, the northeast and the east, and even the Montenegrins, who have been joined by a Serb detachment, and who held their positions for so long, are being driven into their own mountains.

TEUTONS' OFFER TO ROUMANIA

Powers Striving to Keep Her Neutral

ROME, Nov. 23.—Germany and Austria-Hungary are understood to be asking Roumania to preserve her neutrality and at the same time offering certain concessions to her if she will interfere in the war on the side of the Central powers, according to information received here yesterday from reliable sources.

HUNS SICK OF WAR SAYS PRISONER

LONDON, Nov. 23.—One of the prisoners taken in the Canadian surprise attack on a German trench said they were being well fed, but he was glad to be captured, as all German soldiers are utterly sick of the war.

The Canadian medical services intend to secure their own hospital in London to accommodate 25 officers. At present officers are sent to private hospitals.

BURIAL OF THE "BRIDAL" CORPSE

Proxy of Society Girl's Phantom Lover is Interred.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—"Dr. Alleyne Hensley," the tatter demalion who went to his marriage in a coffin, will be buried, and the sexton's clods will close that strange postmortem escapade on which he adventured to Atlanta with the society girl, Julia Choate Crumley.

The proxy for Miss Crumley's phantom sweetheart is to be buried in the Arlington cemetery with full ceremony. He thereby escapes the grave that was dug in Potter's Field for the waif killed Oct. 31 in the Illinois Central freight yards.

A mysterious person representing the Crumley family of Atlanta, has made all arrangements with the Western Casket and Undertaking Company for the decent burial of the nameless "bridegroom." The body of the unknown tramp was returned to Chicago from Atlanta several days ago and taken to the Western Undertaking Company rooms where Miss Crumley had impressed it as her grim fiancee.

WOULD MAKE ONE DAY'S KILLING

Hudson Maxim's Description of the American Army.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov 23 - Hudson Maxim, addressing the Kansas City Commercial Club at its annual dinner, asserted that the only way America could be saved from war would be to have a big navy and powerful enough to stand successfully against any other navy in the world, and "an army big enough to save the country from the horrors of defeat and humiliating even should our navy be destroyed."

"Our army would make just about one good day's killing," Mr Maxim said. "Suppose the enemy should land at Boston or New York or at any of the ports between. Nothing we could do would prevent the invaders from capturing the entire country between the Alleghanies and the sea within two weeks.

"Any one of the great warring nations, if victorious, would have available several million war-tried veterans for a trial at arms with us, and should that foreign nation be either England or Germany it would have a navy far superior to our own."

One of Germany's New Dreadnoughts Sunk by Mine in Baltic

LONDON, Nov. 23—A despatch from Rotterdam says one of Germanys newest dreadnoughts struck a mine in the Baltic and went to the bottom. Thirty-three of the crew were drowned.

PARRY SOUND, Nov. 23. — The plant of the Canadian Explosives, Limited, has been blown up, probably by alien enemy troops now in charge. Nobody was hurt so far as is known.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Guns of the British fleet now command the Greek coast cities. It is believed King Constantine will give in.

ATHENS, Nov. 23—Another large contingent of British have reached Monastir and a Bulgar defeat has been confirmed.

PARIS, Nov. 23, — It is believed here the Balkan sky is now clearing in favour of the Allies.

REVOLT FEARED IN ATHENS

King Constantine Sees Compulsion to Yield to Allies

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. - A news agency despatch from Rome, yesterday says:

An anti-dynastic revolutionary outbreak is feared in Athens. Troops are patrolling the streets and occupying all strategic positions and a large force is guarding the Royal Palace.

The impression prevails that King Constantine realizes that he will be forced to yield to the Allies' demands

CHICAGO DRY DOCK LARGEST ON LAKES

Put Into Service Again and Will Employ One Thousand Men.

CHICAGO, Nov. 23—For the first time in eight years, the flood gates of a dry dock of the ship yards at 101st Street and the Calumet River, were thrown open, putting in service the largest dry dock on the great lakes. A 600-foot freighter, the George S. Baker, was the first to enter. A thousand men will be employed.

The drydock shut down eight years ago because of a strike. Recently $500,000 has been expended in improvements.

MILLIONS ARE MAKING SUPPLIES

Britain Has Huge Army of Men and Women Producing Shells.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Lord Murray of Elibank, director of recruiting in the Ministry of Munitions, in an interview published in Lloyds Weekly, says:

"More than a million men and women are labouring continuously turning out an ever increasing supply of munitions for the land war. Trades unions, fired with a desire to win the war for freedom, have surrendered rights won after centuries of fish ing—rights which must be restored after the allies have marched, as Mr Briand said, through victory to peace.

"These men are working from sixty to a hundred hours each week, and from every quarter I hear of the extraordinary zeal and efficiency of the many thousands of women employed in making shells.

"This great department is a marvellous success as the result of the superhuman work of Mr. Lloyd George, the splendid staff of business men who are supporting him and the working men and women who are doing much more than their bit so that the soldiers in the trenches may win the war."

Nearly 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian grain have come to New York since early August for shipment to Great Britain, Italy and France.

WAR DRILL IN SCHOOLS

German Youths Being Drilled Into Militarism at Early Age.

Purporting to write from Berlin, a correspondent of the Paris "Temps" describes how every school boy now has to learn war drill, and declares that, started at the outset in a burst of patriotism and emulation, the work is now gone about in real earnest as if even lads of thirteen, fourteen and fifteen may yet find themselves drafted to the battlefield.

They are taught to dig themselves in and make big trenches in the latest fashion, and special marks are given for all who prove themselves expert hand grenade throwers. Bayonet exercises are another branch to which particular attention is paid. Every school has, in short, simply become a kind of preparatory barracks.

Applying This Paste Actually Removes Hair

(Beauty Notes.)

Merely applying an inexpensive paste to a hairy surface, say beauty specialists will dissolve the hairs. This paste is made by mixing a little water with some powdered delatone; after about two minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple method not only removes every trace of hair but leaves the skin free from blemish. To insure success with this treatment be careful to get real delatone.

GETTING NO PARIS GOWNS

President Wilson's Fiancee Causes Denial to be Issued.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 23.— Both M. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President, and Miss Edith W. Benham, social secretary at the White House, denied the truth of despatches from Paris that Mrs. Norman Galt, fiancee of the President, is having difficulty in getting gowns in the French capital through Mr. Kussmann, of New York, because his name is German. The reports are not true, they said, because Mrs. Galt is not getting any gowns in Paris. It was generally agreed by those who discussed the matter that there is no possibility of a diplomatic question being raised.

A despatch from Paris says:

Late this afternoon the Paris Dressmakers' Association held an official meeting at which its original decision not to ship gowns ordered by Charles Kurtsmann of New York was formally re-affirmed.

STOMACH ACTS FINE! NO INDIGESTION, GAS HEARTBURN, ACIDITY

"Pape's Diapepsin" Fixes Sick, Sour, Upset Stomachs in Five Minutes

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain, unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them, if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas, causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

BRIDGENORTH HUNTERS GOT THEIR SHARE

Returning Party Report that the Deer Were Plentiful This Year

BRIDGENORTH, Nov. 22. — The Jopling hunting party returned with their complement of deer on Wednesday night. The party was composed of Jim and Fred Jopling, Isaac Elliott, Bert and Fred Dobson of the city and Jack Knot and C. Forsythe. Their hunting ground is at Stoney Creek. They report deer plentiful.

The McManus and Heard party returned with their complement of deer. They hunted in from Burleigh Falls. They report deer very numerous.

The Rev. Mr. Cruickshanks of the city preached the anniversary services on Sunday last. There were two services, morning and night. The church was comfortably filled at night and the free-will offering amounted to about $165.00. The Rev. Mr. Cruickshanks was a former pastor here about six years ago. He was stationed here for three years and his services here were very much appreciated. The Rev. Mr. Gall of the Gilmour Memorial church was in attendance and took part in the services.

At the close of Sunday school on Sunday afternoon the organist of the church was in the basement practising some of the children in singing when the caretaker locked up the church, with the result that the organist and her pupils were locked up for some time. Their only escape was by the window, which was a difficult task on a stormy day like Sunday.

The village blacksmith is busy sharpening up the horses for the roads as there is a lot of grain to be hauled out.

Chemong Lake is ready to take on her coat of ice any time now. The water in the lake is higher this fall than it has been for a number of years.

Soldier of Fortune — by Randall Parrish

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

The [illegible] standing on it I could feel inside the boat swung to the davits. It was a small, light boat, fashioned like a cutter, a good seagoing craft for its size. Two oars and a short mast, together with a roll of canvas, were stowed on top of the thwarts and secured by lashings. I cut one of these and drew forth about three fathoms of line sufficiently pliable for my purpose. The boat being ready for launching, the falls easily unhooked, and two pair of hands would be sufficient to lower it into the water. There was a locker forward I was unable to reach, but two water kegs, filled, were strapped under the stern sheets, leading me to believe the craft was fully equipped for immediate service. My mind filled with a daring hope by this discovery. I fastened the note to the end of the cord, weighted it with a bunch of keys and crept back to where I had marked the rail. Inch by inch I paid out the line, leaning well over. At last my ears detected the dangling of the metallic keys against the glass, and by manipulating the rope, managed to make them sound with clear insistence. I repeated the effort several times before there was any response. Then the port seemed to be opened cautiously, although no gleam of light shot forth. She had evidently extinguished her lamp before venturing to answer the signal, but I felt her grasp on the cord. Then it was left dangling against the closed port, leaving me to infer that she was reading the hasty note.

My line was again hauled taut, but as I straightened up, prepared to haul up the returning message, I saw the shadow of a man passing across the cabin below. He was already at the foot of the companion stairs; in another minute he would be on deck. There was no time to do otherwise, and I released my grasp of the rope, letting it drop silently into the water. I had barely turned my back to the rail when Healey emerged within six feet of me.

"Who is this? Oh, you, Craig?" he questioned sharply. "Not asleep yet?"

"Not even drowsy," I said, pretending as one I was far from feeling.

"You think favorably of my plan, I hope."

"I see no reason to refuse, if the pay is all right."

"It will be, trust me for that. A beautiful night this—the air as soft as June. I was about to turn in, but decided to take a whiff on deck first."

"Rather a captain's duty, is it not?"

"I believe so, in regular service, but this is decidedly irregular. The fact is, that while I am the owner of this vessel and technically in command, I am no navigator. I merely give my general orders and trust the seamanship to Herman. He is perfectly trustworthy and capable, and I never interfere. The last voyage I doubt if I was on deck twice, although, of course," he added soberly, "my word goes if I should care to exercise authority."

"What are those lights off yonder?" I asked, pointing.

"Shore lights."

"Then we are steering east?"

"A bit south of east, yes; odd course for Honduras, you think?"

"We are playing the game safe, Craig; that's all," he explained, both hands gripping the rail. "You see, we cleared for Santiago and are not anxious to be seen and reported by any westbound ships. Tomorrow we will be hidden among the islands off the west Florida coast. Then, as soon as it is dark we will shoot out under full steam into the gulf. The chances are we'll cross the lane unobserved. If we should intercept a liner, she won't identify us in the dark as we burn no lights. By daylight we'll be well beyond their lookouts and can steer a straight course."

The proximity of the man irritated me. I wanted to be alone, where I could think out some feasible scheme of escape.

"I have had enough for tonight," I said finally, "and am going to turn in."

"Best thing you can do," he coincided, but without looking toward me. "Will follow suit as soon as I smoke a cigarette. See you tomorrow."

When I awoke the sun was shining through the glass of my porthole, and, glancing forth, I caught the dazzle of the water. The vessel was motionless, apparently riding at anchor, the sea barely rippled by a gentle breeze. The breakfast table was set for one, and the black steward was lolling lazily in a chair. At sight of me he got to his feet.

"Ah trust thought you weren't never goin' ter wake up, suh," he said genially, showing his teeth. "Ah bin waitin' for yer mo'n two hours, Ah reckon."

"For me! Have the others eaten then?"

"Mostly, suh, mostly. De captain he nebber eat no breakfast. He say it ain't good for his libber. Yew, yew! But de mates dey both bin down."

"What time is it?"

"Jest 10, suh."

"Has Mrs. Healey breakfasted yet?" I asked.

"Who, suh?"

"The lady you have on board."

He scratched the wool on his head vigorously, glancing behind the mast as though uncertain what he had best answer.

"Ah reckon nobber know'd dat was her name, suh. No, suh, Ah nebber done suspected it. Yes, suh, she had her breakfast, but Ah reckon she didn't eat much."

"You served her here at the table?"

"No, suh; in her room, suh," his voice low. "De captain he unlock de door an' then lock it agin. You like sumpin in your cuffee, suh?"

I found the after deck entirely deserted, and there was no one visible on the bridge. Two or three sailors, the anchor watch, were forward engaged in some service about the capstan, and a fellow who swabbing the deck stumbling. I heard Broussard's voice at a distance, but could not locate him. However, as one paid the slightest attention to me as I stood looking and gazing curiously around, everything appeared peaceful enough. We were lying in a small harbor within a hundred feet of the shore. I sauntered forward toward the bridge, aiming to exchange greetings with the creole mate. Broussard was not a man to expect favors from, and I had hated him with the first glimpse of his face, yet he possessed one rather characteristic of impulsive speech and was that far more approachable than the gruff German first officer. Perhaps if he believed me an accomplice he might be led to talk.

"How you com' on so deck, m'sieur?" he asked, his eyes threatening. "I thought you down below, locked in all right," and he waved an expressive hand aft.

CHAPTER XIII.

Tables Turned.

I LAUGHED, but without paying him the compliment of looking at him.

"I've changed allegiance, that's all, Broussard. The captain treated me jamm last night."

"You wit' us? You go volunteer?"

"Well, something like that. I'm to be drillmaster or general for those tattered battalions down in the junk. What do you think of the job?"

He shrugged his shoulders and then grinned.

"Whoo ee dat!" and he swept his hands about in expressive gesture. "Roo—land, if only one gets the price, m'sieur. But, for me, I like to go, to move—not lie still an' rot."

"Of course," falling into his mood, "that's in your blood, I reckon. But the captain said we were only to bide here for a day."

"Maybe day, maybe week. No one knows how long. We wait till the sea is clear. Bah! The man 'fraid of shadow. He give me sheep, an' I show heem. He no duller, m'sieur. I know heem long while."

"How long?"

"Oh, mek, eight year."

"Then you can tell me if he is really Judge Healey's son?"

"Dat, m'sieur; 'tis sure I can. I hav' been WIth heem there' his brown hand outstretched landward. "Dere we get rot, hay, many tim time; besides, the judge he been on his stamp. Of course he was son; why you think not?"

"I am interested in knowing. I do not know very much about it, Broussard," I explained kindly, moving aside to the rail. "I came down much with another lady pursued into me, that's all."

"And so young woman." he persisted, discovering me change, "why she ronn?"

"For the same reason I did."

"Eyes like 'mash she have you, hay! Gosh! She sure fine lookin' girl, but!" —shrugging his shoulders—"'tis the captain not us mate, who may admire. No is de captains; nobody tell him got eye on gun even."

I left him and walked aft, across as I turned of the shore on the face. Yet even then, although burning with anger, I knew better than to remain. I FELL IN A FAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Agar's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can wash and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

BIG, HEARTY BABY BOY

Mrs. Beck's Fondest Hopes Realized—Health, Happiness and Baby.

Upper Lahave, N. S., Can.,—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles from which I was a great sufferer, so that I was completely run down in health. Other medicine did not help me, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong. I now have a big, hearty baby boy, and praise your medicine for the wonderful lot of good it has done me."—Mrs. ISRAEL BECK, Jr., Upper Lahave, Lunenburg Co., N. S., Canada.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they cease to look forward to a childless and lonely old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

[illegible] the Baltic within on my compass, feeling certain that wherever I might would be preferred to Hastings. I knew quite well enough to understand the character of the Sea Gull's captain. With unlimited power in his hands he was not an antagonist to be despised. Nor did I doubt his purpose. Now that he had seemingly won me over to his scheme he would turn his attention to her, fearing no move from interference. And he was Judge Healey's son or, at least, so these men believed who had been acquainted with him for years. The situation grew more and more complicated; it was no longer merely her sweet aptitude his will yet I could not doubt the truth of any statement she had made to me.

Broussard spoke to my direction for a moment, but made no effort to follow, and finally disappeared forward. There was nothing on sea or land to distract my attention, and I felt that I would be nearer to her below in the cabin than on deck. The skylight was closed, although even then it gave me a partial view, and, as I gazed through the clouded glass I perceived a shadowy pass. The next instant the negro steward emerged from the companion. Some swift impulse led me to crouch instantly out of sight, until the sound of his feet on the deck convinced me the fellow was going forward. I watched him cautiously. He stopped twice to glance back, but, perceiving nothing, finally vanished into the forecastle.

The negro's going forward left the captain and Viola Healey alone below. I crept to the door of the companion and then down the stairs.

The main cabin was vacant, but the door of No. 5 stateroom stood slightly ajar. Assured I should find it empty, my heart already beating furiously, I took a swift glance within. It in no way differed from the room which had been assigned me opposite, and everything was in perfect order. Evidently the girl had departed without a struggle, and with full expectation of an early return. Her small handbag lay on the berth unlatched, and a handkerchief, together with a pair of gloves, were upon the chair. That she had not gone on deck was a certainty, while the deserted cabin led me irresistibly to suspect the captain's quarters. He had dismissed the steward on some excuse, opened her door, and, using some pretense, or authority, had induced her to accompany him. What I could do to help her, to overcome him, was not evident. I was alone, unarmed, surrounded by men under his command.

THE BATTLE AUTUMN.

(By John G. Whittier (1858.)

The flags of war like storm-birds fly,
The charging trumpets blow;
Yet rolls no thunder in the sky,
No earthquake strives below.

And calm and patient Nature keeps
Her ancient promise well,
Though o'er her bloom and greenness sweeps
The battle's breath of hell.

And still she walks in golden hours
Through harvest-happy farms,
And still she wears her fruit and flowers,
Like jewels on her arms.

What mean the gladness of the plain,
This joy of eve and morn,
The mirth that shakes the beard of grain
And yellow locks of corn?

Ah! eyes may well be full of tears,
And hearts with hate are hot;
And even-paced come round the years,
And Nature changes not.

She meets with smiles our bitter grief
With songs our groans of pain;
She mocks with mut of flower and leaf
The war-field's crimson stain.

Still, in the cannon's pause, we hear,
Her sweet thanksgiving-psalm;
Too near to God for doubt or fear,
She shares the eternal calm.

She knows the seed lies safe below
The fires that blast and burn;
For all the tears of blood we sow
She waits the rich return.

She sees with clearer eyes than ours
The good of suffering born—
The hearts that blossom like her flowers,
And ripen like her corn.

Oh, give to us, in times like these,
The vision of her eyes,
And make her fields and fruited trees
Our golden prophecies!

Oh give to us her finer ear!
Above this stormy din,
We too would hear the bells of cheer
Ring peace and freedom in.

The last statistics show that there are 680,000 acres in the United States planted in peanuts. California is getting to be one of the peanut States that count.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A CASE OF HEDGING.

By GEORGE HERBERT BOHN.

When I was studying medicine, one afternoon I was in the dissecting room hurrying to get through with a subject before the building should be closed for the night. An examination was before me the next morning and there would be no opportunity to return to the dissecting room for some time to come. I had finished every member except a foot when time was up, and, stuffing it in a hand bag I used to carry needed articles between the city and the place I lived in the suburbs, I left the room, intending to finish my work at home.

On my way I made one of a game of whist in the smoking car with three strangers. Finishing a rubber just as my station was called, I hastily pinned up my bag and left the train. On reaching home I tossed my satchel on a table, made my toilet and went down to dinner. In the evening I went up to my room to go to work. What was my astonishment and chagrin on taking up the bag to discover that it was not mine.

I was in a pickle. Whoever had taken my own satchel on opening it would be horrified to discover a human foot. The fact would be reported to the police, and if the owner could be identified I would be subject to a charge of murder, followed by an effort to get rid of the corpus piecemeal.

The wise thing to have done was to report my loss to the police at once. I thought of this, but before doing so concluded to look into the bag I had taken with a view to discovering the owner. It was locked, and I was obliged to force it.

The only articles in it were bankers' books.

"Well," I said to myself, "whoever has taken my satchel is not likely to report his find, since by doing so he will incriminate himself. There is no necessity for my giving the subject any further attention."

Were it not for one of those strange coincidences that are continually happening my story would end here. A year after my exchange of satchels my house, or, rather, my father's, was robbed. I followed one of the men downstairs, where they had turned on the lights, and caught him by the coattail just as he was going out the front door. He turned and gave me a blow which knocked me down. He made his escape, but during the brief instant I saw his face I recognized my partner at whist on the journey when I had exchanged satchels. I wondered whether he had recognized me, but it occurred to me that he had not, for the light was at my back.

Two more years passed. One day while on a train a man took a seat beside me, and when I looked at him I recognized my partner at whist and in the same man the burglar who had robbed my father's house. My first thought was to summon the conductor and have him telegraph ahead to the police. My second was to turn up my coat collar and pull my hat down over my eyes so that the burglar would not know me. Then I remembered that he had only seen me once, since when I had grown a beard. Thus reassured, I made a remark to him. He replied, and we entered into conversation.

Now, it occurred to me that should I make a charge of burglary against him I would stand in a vulnerable position. He had been possessed of my subject's foot, and I was uncertain what, if any, use he would make of it to establish a counter-charge. I concluded to discover if possible what his intentions might be in this respect. I told him the story of the exchange of satchels as having happened to a friend of mine. He turned and after fixing a sharp glance on me said slowly:

"I see you are the man with whom I played whist and who went off with my satchel."

"And you are the man who robbed a house in M. two years ago and whom I caught by the coattail and recognized as he passed out. Suppose I give you away?"

"I can easily prove that I was a medical student and was taking the foot home for dissection."

"Not so fast, please. To head you off I learned of a missing man and secured evidence to prove conclusively that a man of your description was seen to murder the person who had disappeared. Then I turned over your satchel with the foot in it to the police."

Suddenly it dawned upon me how foolish I had been not to report the case myself. It would have blocked my opponent's game.

"If you report me," he continued, "persons supposed to be unknown to me will inform the police of your identity with the man whom my witnesses saw you murder. You will be arrested, tried and the best of circumstantial evidence furnished to prove that you had a grudge against him, murdered him and intended to protect yourself in case of discovery by the fact that you were a medical student studying anatomy."

A mental vision of one of those celebrated murder cases of which I would be the central figure and wherein half the people believed in the accused's guilt and the other half in his innocence came up before me.

"My friend," I said, "in the eye of the law should we inform on each other we would both be suspected of committing, which in the next ring we being proved criminals. I am quite sure I would be proved guilty. At any rate, I should be ruined. Go in peace."

Corn Products Entrained.

The president of a western railway system was spending the week end at the country house of a friend in New York when one evening some reference was made by a layman touching the commercial greatness of the country as evidenced by railway operations.

"What you say is quite true," observed the head of the big system. "Do you know that if the corn products in this country for the last year were loaded into one train the engine thereof would be entering the state of New Jersey just as the caboose was leaving Los Angeles?"

At this remark a woman present could not suppress her astonishment and incredulity. "How you men do exaggerate!" she exclaimed. "You know very well that even two engines could not pull such a train!"—New York Tribune.

ACID STOMACHS ARE DANGEROUS

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisurated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisurated magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

What does a lion weigh? Those who know the look of the king of beasts best and how small his little body really is will probably come farthest from the truth. About 300 to 350 pounds is a usual estimate, but a full grown lion will tip the scales at no less than 500 pounds. Five hundred and forty pounds is the record for an African lion. His bone is solid and heavy as ivory. The tiger runs the lion very close. A Bengal tiger killed by an English officer scaled 520 pounds. A tiger this size has, however, considerably more muscular strength than the biggest lion.

Hired His Newspaper.

Lady Taylor once took a friend to see the poet Tennyson and was rather coldly received. On Lady Taylor rallying him on his manner he said:

"Madam, I am a poor man, and as I can't afford to buy the Times I have it from the stationer. He charges me 2 cents for it, which entitles me to keep it an hour. Why will people select just that hour to come and call on me?"

His Periodicals.

"Do you take any periodicals?" asked the clergyman on his first round of parish visits.

"Well, I don't," replied the woman, "but my husband takes 'em frequent. I do wish you'd try to get him to sign the pledge."

You will like the rich strength and full flavor.

MOISTURE AND HEAT.

Why a Person May Feel Cold in a Room That Is Well Heated.

It often happens in winter that a person living in a steam heated apartment feels cold even when the thermometer shows the necessary degree of warmth in the room. Of course there is a reason for this and also a very simple remedy. The reason is that the air in the room is too dry. It does not contain enough moisture—and the remedy is, of course, to keep some water in the room all the time, so that it can evaporate into the air.

Our bodies, you see, are at all times exuding moisture in the form of perspiration. Now, this perspiration, even in winter, amounts to a great deal more than one would think, being measured in the pints. To evaporate water heat has to be used up, and, as the body is warmer than the air, the heat to evaporate this perspiration is taken from the body. Of course then the body feels cold.

Here is still another illustration of this fact: It has been shown by actual experiment that a man can stay in an oven heated to the boiling temperature of water and not get uncomfortably hot—that is, painfully hot. The heat makes him perspire, and the heat taken up by evaporation from the body keeps the body from getting hot. But suppose that the oven already contained in its atmosphere all the water vapor that it could hold. Then, as none could evaporate from the body, the drops on the body would soon get near the boiling point. So in the room referred to above, if it contains a good bit of moisture the evaporation from the body will not be so fast, and consequently the body will not feel cold.—New York American.

Gin Pills FOR THE KIDNEYS

What They Cured

Here's the remarkable experience of a Nova Scotian:—

"I was once a terrible sufferer with kidney and bladder troubles, and at times I would lose the use of my legs, and could not go away from home without some one with me. I was treated by different doctors for 3 years, and only got temporary relief. My son advised me to take Gin Pills, and after taking the first 2 or 3 doses I got relief. I continued to take them until I got completely cured. I owe my life to Gin Pills.

Yours very truly,

PLACID CHINESE WOMEN.

An Illustration of How Well Their Emotions Are Hidden.

"Chinese women are trained to show no emotion, to appear absolutely placid under all circumstances," says Elizabeth Cooper, author of "My Lady of the Chinese Courtyard." "I saw it illustrated at a reception given to the wife of one of the high Chinese officials. All the women of the foreign colony were at my house, about forty in number, and the great lady was announced. Every one rose. The room was a very long one, about seventy-five feet, and had a very highly polished floor covered with Persian rugs.

"The Chinese lady came to the door way, with a servant on each side of her to help her walk upon her tiny bound feet. At the entrance they left her, and she started to come to me; but, being absent helpless upon her 'golden lilies,' she stopped upon a rug, which slid upon the polished floor, and instead of swaying like the bamboo in the breeze as she came to me she sat down suddenly and slid to my feet to the consternation and horror of the assembled guests.

"She was raised to her feet, and, although she must have been covered with confusion and embarrassment that to make her first entrance into a foreign home, she gave her hand to me without a trace of emotion visible in her face or manner, nor did she apologize. One would think by her appearance that it was the usual mode of entrance into a room."

A Possibility.

"Did any man ever kiss you before I did?" he asked.

"Yes, dear!"

"Tell me his name, that I may thrash him."

"I'm afraid, Algernon, that he might be too many for you."

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or exposure in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, when even the kidneys and bladder then soon well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

An Ancient Industry.

It would be difficult to say where exactly and at what date the manufacture of cotton fabrics began. In comparatively modern times, says Country Life, it has become an industry of importance in Europe, but it has flourished in the east from a period too remote to admit of calculation. The Egyptians certainly used both cotton and linen materials, for fragments of such stuffs have been preserved among the other relics of their ancient civilization, and there is much reason to believe that the elaborate draperies of the Assyrians were cotton or muslins finely woven and of delicate texture. In China, too, and India the same kinds of material have been the common wear of the people from time immemorial. In fact, everywhere throughout the east cotton fabrics were produced and used long before the primitive Europeans had begun to develop any of the germs of civilization or indeed had ceased to be anything but skin clad savages.

Most Awkward.

An old, steady going farmer was accustomed to ride to the market town upon a rather bad tempered horse.

One day his man Bob brought the animal, which was especially vicious that morning, to the door, the horse trying to bite and kick and giving a good deal of trouble.

The farmer mounted the horse with some difficulty and began to walk it out of the yard when Bob, who still entertained ill feeling against the animal, picked up a stone and flung it at him with all his force; but, alas, his aim was erratic, and the missile struck his master on the head.

Half dazed for a moment, the farmer turned slowly in his saddle, and, not suspecting the real cause of the blow, he measured with his eye the horse's hind hoofs and his own head and, settling himself in the saddle again, started off with the remark, "Well, he allus was an ekard beggar."—London Scraps.

THIS SCHOOL GIRL HAD BAD FAINTING SPELLS

Was Weak and Run Down. But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Made Complete Cure

The most critical time in a girl's life comes during the school age, when she is impelled by rivalry to put forth her best efforts in studying for examinations. At the time she should have healthful outdoor exercise and abundance of fresh air, to keep the blood pure and rich, she is confined to her studies. Is it any wonder that she becomes run down in health and suffers from headaches, indigestion, loss of appetite and spells of weakness or fainting?

The case described in this letter is a good illustration and you can read here the splendid results of using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to help through this critical period.

"While attending school my daughter became weak and very much run down. She was frequently troubled with bad fainting spells, and nothing we tried seemed to do her any good. We were advised to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and did so with most satisfactory results. I am pleased to tell you that after using five boxes of the Nerve Food she was completely cured, and has no return of the fainting spells."

This statement is certified to by Mr. Hamilton Houston, Justice of the Peace.

The reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is so effective in cases of this kind is because of its extraordinary blood-forming influence. By creating an abundance of rich, red blood it strengthens the action of the heart, revitalizes the exhausted nerves and builds up the system in every way.

The appetite is restored, digestion improves, you rest and sleep well, and the new vigour and energy is felt in every organ of the human body. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is doing wonders for men, women and children whose systems have become weak and run down. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

WORST PLAYER.

As Grantland Rice tells the story, a certain English actor, whom we may safely call Jones-Brown, plays a persistent but horrible game of golf. During a recent visit to this country, the actor in question occasionally visited the links of a well-known country club in Westchester county, near New York.

After an especially miserable showing of ineptness one morning he flung down his driver in disgust.

"Caddie," he said, addressing the silent youth who stood alongside, "that was awful bad, was't it?"

"Purty bad, sir," stated the boy.

"Oh, I wouldn't say that, sir," said the caddie, soothingly.

"Did you ever see a worse player than I am?"

"No, sir, I never did," confessed the boy truthfully, "but some of the other boys was tellin' yesterday about gentleman that must be a worse player than you are. They said his name was Jones-Brown."—Saturday Evening Post.

German Cruelty to Polish Workmen Brings Revolt

To Avenge Hanging of Several Fellow Workers on Charge of Being Russian Spies, Artisans of Warsaw Destroyed Stores of German Ammunition and Gasoline

Translation from the Article "Warszawa" in the Polonia of October 31 and 30. By Mr. Jan V. Chelmicynski.

The Echo Polskie, published in Moscow, gives a series of sure and curious views from the Polish capital, of which the following are extracts:

General von Arnim was appointed the General Governor of Warsaw and General von Beseler the commandant of the same city. The counsellors to the former are Count Francis Kwilecki, Ligismond Dziembowski, who sold to the Prussian Government the land property Radzyna, and Count Hutten-Czapski, ancient officer of Prussian Hussars, a Germanized Pole.

From the very moment of their entry into Warsaw the Germans introduced their regime, holding in their hands the administrative and financial affairs.

The relation of the German Government toward Poles, which was from the beginning rather mild, grew day by day worse, especially from the moment when the Poles in their frank way claimed their rights and protested against creation of the Polish legion which Mr. Sieroszewski proposed to organize. The arrival in Warsaw of the Austrian General Pilsudski, who was at the head of the Austro-Polish legion, could not persuade the Russian Poles to this, and he was obliged to quit the Polish capital city after only one day's sojourn in it.

Owing to increase of prices of all kinds of provisions and also to the bringing to Warsaw of German foremen for the Polish factories, riots took place among the workmen, which led to many heavy punishments.

The Deutsche Warchauer Zeitung (a German newspaper started after the fall of Warsaw) says that on August 26 the following Poles suspected as Russian spies were hanged: Leonard Hecel, Charles Werta, Alexandre Mazurek, Jan Lwow and Constantin Afka.

As an answer to this cruelty toward Polish workmen great fires occurred on the same day in the stores of the Warsaw-Vienna railway station, where the warehouses were loaded with ammunition. In spite of all efforts to extinguish the fire the Germans lost several millions of marks. The day before a great explosion of gasolene took place close to Warsaw in the camp of Mokotow. After those two incidents many more persons were again arrested and court-martial will follow.

The street cars, electric and water supply are still fairly regular, but the gas supply suffers a great deal on account of the shortage of coal.

The crossing of the Vistula between Warsaw and Praga is accomplished by boats only, as the new pontoon bridge, the three old ones having been blown up by the Russians, is used by the troops constantly. As the pipes were destroyed Praga has neither gas, water nor electricity.

The German Government opened direct communication on August 28 between Warsaw and Berlin through Alexandrowo and Kalisz, with trains having dining and sleeping cars. The Warsaw-Siedlec line is also open.

The price of clothing is rather low owing to the great number of German merchants and there is also plenty of paper, but all provisions have reached very high prices and are scarce. Bread regulations will soon be introduced. Milk and butter cannot be obtained. Sugar costs 30 kopecks a pound. On tea, meat and tobacco the German Government has introduced a monopoly already. The exchange of the one ruble bill is at 60 kopecks instead of 100. The two-mark Prussian bill also is at 60 kopecks.

In the beginning of September street traffic was allowed till midnight. Most of the Polish theatres were closed by the German authorities, as the actors in their witty way made a sharp allusion against Germans. In the Grand Theatre German actors from Breslau give performances in German. Their first night opened with the "Black Eagle," by Morat.

The Poles work as they can for the benefit of their fatherland, expecting and hoping for the better days to come.

The telegraph office was opened lately in Warsaw for the public, but only to Germany and the part of Poland occupied by Germans. Despatches sent from Warsaw to Austria, Galicia and other parts of Poland occupied by Austrians are not received. The telegrams must be written in German, and nearly four cents a word is charged. The University and the Polytechnic School are to open soon.

The Austrians, with German help, are working with great speed on the railway to join Lemberg and Warsaw. It runs from the Galician frontier through Zamose to Lublin and then to Warsaw.

In Warsaw, Lublin and other places in Poland occupied by Germans and Austrians every day from dawn numbers of lines of poor wait before bakers' shops to get some bread, which for them is the only nourishment.

Warsaw inhabitants who wish to go out of the city must get a special written permission, for which a heavy tax is imposed. These permissions are issued only for the part of Poland occupied by the Germans.

MOTHER! GIVE CHILD "SYRUP OF FIGS" IF TONGUE IS COATED

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Clean Little Liver and Bowels

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother. See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs," because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

"TRAMP" DIPLOMACY.

A tramp approached a certain Kansas home the other morning, rapped on the back door and when the lady of the house appeared he began to clear his throat preparatory to telling his hard luck story.

"Get away from here," said the woman. "I never feed professional bums."

"But, madam, I am not a professional bum," said the tramp. "I am a psychologist traveling in the interest of science. I read character at a glance. In looking into the soulful depths of your beautiful eyes I read there that you are by nature a kind-hearted, gentle, generous woman. It is these noble impulses and the contemplation of charitable deeds that keep you looking so young and handsome."

"You poor, tired, hungry man," said the woman. "Come inside and I will give you some breakfast."

Pretty, Waving, Curling Hair Without Hot Iron

Let me tell you of a simple method which is the favorite of the belles of a certain exclusive social set. I am sure you would like to know of it because it will give your hair such a pretty curliness and lustre and permit you to do away with the ruinous waving iron forever.

Just get from any druggist a few ounces of ordinary liquid silmerine, and at night apply a little with a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the full length of the hair. In the morning you will have a real surprise, the fascinating, fluffy, wavy effect will appear so natural, and there will be no greasy, gummy, streaky or other unpleasant trace of the harmless liquid. You will also find this a splendid dressing for the hair.—Mona Morrow in the Club-Woman.

Mother's Cough!

If distresses you as much as her! Why continue to treat it by dosing the stomach (which is not ailing) with cough mixtures, syrups, tonics, and the like? You will never cure lung troubles by dosing the stomach. The Peps way is entirely different. Peps are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. These are breathed down direct to the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes—not swallowed down to the stomach—which is not ailing.

Peps contain no morphia, laudanum, nor any of the poisons which are found in many of the old-fashioned syrups. Peps are, therefore, best for aged people and for young children. Peps do not disorder the stomach; they sweeten the breath, are pleasant to take, and are the latest and best that science can offer for the treatment of coughs, colds, bronchitis and allied lung troubles. 50c. all druggists and stores, or fair price from Peps Co., Toronto. A New Kitchener Story

A sarcastic remark of Lord Kitchener's, which has hitherto escaped publication, is related by one who heard it. Soon after his appointment as Secretary for War he made an inspection of Woolwich Arsenal, which as all the world knows, had suffered from political cheeseparing in the past. Lord Kitchener stalked round the shops in dead silence, quietly taking everything in under his bushy eyebrows. At the conclusion of his tour he said grufly, "H'm! Seems to me this place has been run on a bit of emery paper."

Escaped From the Turks

This young Armenian girl narrowly escaped death at the hands of the Turks, having been rescued by a French force and placed on board a French battleship off the coast of Syria. She was armed with a revolver with which she was prepared to defend herself to the end.

AUSTRIAN GIRLS LOVE PRISONERS

Disgust and indignation are expressed by Austrian newspapers because of revelations made in connection with conditions at Linet and Santens, where large numbers of Russian prisoners are held. Young girls and women, they assert, have fallen in love with Russians, big, handsome fellows, and are corresponding with them and meeting them clandestinely. Every trick and ingenuity of feminity are resorted to in order to smuggle dainties to the Russians, so much so that the government has taken the matter in hand and will in future keep the prisoners under such a strong guard that no women will be permitted to have access to the barracks.

The chaplain of the camp in Wenne, in a sermon in his church, frankly declared that his observations have demonstrated that the Russian prisoners have in no wise encouraged the attentions of the young women, but that he must acknowledge with regret and disgust that young girls in his own school in the town were guilty of offences against modesty and decorum in openly flaunting their affection for the Russian soldiers. Physicians in the barracks also voice their indignation in the newspapers. As a result no woman can now approach the camps and any correspondence or dainties sent to the Russians will be confiscated.

Close Conversation.

Two close neighbours were in conversation. "Well," said the one, "you haven't any call to be proud; my father's taller than yours." "Bet you a tanner he ain't," was the retort. "Bet you he is," said the first youngster. "My father can see over the wall at the end of the garden. Yours can't." "Yes, he can," responded the other with indignation.

MAORIS IN THE WAR.

New Zealand Natives Display Savage Courage at Dardanelles.

"The Maoris entered into the charge with great dash, making the darkness hideous with wild war cries which struck terror into the hearts of the Turks. With the awful vision of their bayonets and rifle butts in the Maoris forged another link on the chain of the empire."

So cabled the English war correspondent, Ashmead Bartlett, the hero of August in a graphic description of the night attack by the Australasian troops which marked the operations centering about Suvla Bay, Gallipoli, and a thrill ran throughout all the native districts in New Zealand. The savage courage of the aborigines, a race which fought the British so valorously about 40 years ago was again exemplified—but this time in the British cause.

The Maoris have been treated considerately by the British for nearly half a century, as befitted an intelligent and gallant race, and now that England wants "men and yet more men," even from the remotest parts of King George's realms, they are responding to the call to arms quite as patriotically as their pakeha (white) neighbors. The animosities which were engendered by the Maori war (though these were disappearing thanks partly to intermarriage between Maoris and whites and partly to the paternal attitude of successive cabinets toward the Maori tribes) are now in a fair way to being wiped out by the opportunity which is being given a handful of the brown men to rely bayonets and rifle butts in far off Turkey.

Like all other South Sea races, the Maoris have their strong susceptibilities, one of which is toward firewater but again, like other Antipodean races, they are fighters to the backbone. It was, therefore, a question with the Massey Government when the demands of the war became pressing whether or not to recruit Maoris. That the decision in the affirmative which resulted in the first contingent of 500 men, was wise is proved by the conduct of the Maoris in the action described by Mr. Bartlett. The contingent "made good," so much so that a second Maori contingent is about to be dispatched to the front.

The solidarity with which brown men and white men from New Zealand are storming Turco-German trenches is illustrated by the fact that among the wounded in the Maori contingent, as a result of the Suvla Bay operations, were two descendants of Chief Wahanui. This chief was "the power behind the throne" in the disaffected district of the upper Waikato 40 years ago, and he opposed white government up to as late as 1880. He was wounded by a British bullet, but now these young King Country (as the district from which they enlisted is called) warriors who bear his name will carry back to their homes scars of wounds received in Great Britain's cause.

The wounded Highlander in hospital was very depressed, and seemed to make no headway towards recovery. He was forever talking about his bonnie Scotland," and the idea occurred to the doctor that a Scotch piper might rouse his spirits.

After some hunting around, a piper was found, and it was arranged that he should present himself outside the hospital that night, and pour forth all the gems of Scottish music the pipes were capable of interpreting. This he did.

When the astute doctor turned up the next morning he eagerly asked the matron:

"Did the piper turn up?"

"He did," replied the matron.

"And how's our Scotch patient?"

"Oh, he's fine; I never saw such a change," said the matron.

"That's grand. It was a fine idea of mine to get that piper," said the delighted doctor.

"Yes," said the matron, sadly; "but the other 30 patients have all had a serious relapse."

Meat of the Cocoanut.

"Your honor," said the lawyer, "I ask the dismissal of my client on the ground that the warrant fails to state that he hit Bill Jones with malicious intent."

"This court," replied the country justice, "ain't a graduate of none of your technical schools. I don't care what he hit Bill with. The point is did he hit him? Perceed."—Pittsburg Post.

STRAINED RELATIONS

Young Bilkins is an enthusiastic devotee of amateur photography. He always insists upon "taking" his family and friends posed in more or less artistic attitudes.

Not long ago there was an exhibition of the work of a local photographic club to which the young fellow belongs, and where were displayed the results of certain of his efforts to immortalize his family and friends. In one corner hung a group of figures twisted into the most extraordinary positions, the general effect being that of persons in various stages of paralysis.

"Who in the world are those queer looking people?" asked some one.

"Oh, those are some of Bilkins' strained relations," said a bystander.

Stayed Too Long.

Senator Jeff Davies of Arkansas tells this one on himself:

"I had an appointment to speak at a town in eastern Argansas on a Saturday, and I arrived on a late train the night before carrying nothing but a small hand grip. I went to a hotel near the depot. There was no one on duty at the hour except the night porter, and he was acting as porter, clerk and general overseer. I registered and he showed me to a room; but in a few minutes he came back and said:

"'Boss, my 'struction is, when a gemman haven't any baggage, to collect in advance.'

"'Why, I've got baggage,' I replied, pointing to the little grip.

"'I know, sir, boss,' he said, 'but you've stayed too long on that already.'"

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat and Take Glass of Salts Before Eating Brenkfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked, get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy, the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water, also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

7279

The fabrics which the present summer has brought us are nearly all marked by a softness of texture which seems to bid us employ as many draped effects as possible. All ideas in this direction seem to take the form of flounces or tunics, and the flounces are by far the more easy to make and in general the more becoming to the average figure.

The dress which we show in the accompanying illustration is among the most dressy of simple designs. It has a specially good feature in the underwaist to which the skirt is permanently attached. This underwaist is sleeveless and is low in the neck. Over it is worn the little bolero jacket, which has a small vest in front to which the flat collar is attached.

The material follows the mode of the moment in being gathered in front along the shoulder seam, while the back remains plain and extends far forward so as to produce the impression of a small shoulder yoke. The sleeves are plain. They follow the shape of the arm from shoulder to wrist, or if preferred they may be cut off just below the elbow and be finished with a cuff.

The bolero hangs loosely, well away from the underwaist, and a wide belt or girdle covers the intervening space. This is a sort of facing for the underwaist and does away with the need of any other.

The skirt of this dress has a deep yoke, and to this is attached a flounce which is made with a small heading and which has a plain band trimming above the hem. This band may be omitted if preferred, or it may be of lace with the material cut away underneath it.

The dress pattern, No. 7279, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires wwb skirt 6¼ yards of 36 inch material and ⅛ yard of 36 in. plain goods.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Bulgar Repulse With the Loss of 600 Captured is Reported at Vodoco---Bulgarians Have Been Repulsed From the North and a Big Battle is Looked For Hourly in the Monastir District---Italians Co-operate With Other Allies in Handling the Grecian Situation.

BERLIN CLAIMS CAPTURE OF 9,500 SERBS

LONDON, Nov. 23.—That Monastir can now hold out is believed here to-day. British troops are pouring in from Salonika to help the Serbs. Big guns are being mounted and the town's defences are being strengthened heavily. A fresh Bulgar attempt at an advance is looked for hourly. The Bulgarians have been reinforced from the North, but the Monastir defenders are now in a strong position. A big battle is expected.

A Bulgar repulse, with the loss of six hundred captured, is reported at Vodoco, just north of Vranya. All previous advices have indicated no large Serb body remained in that district. The French have been operating in its direction, but if they have reached it they must either have taken Veles, which has not been claimed, or passed it by a detour to the East.

ROME, Nov. 23.—Greece's serious position, if she continues to defy the Allies, was strongly represented by Foreign Minister Sonnino to the Greek Minister here to-day. Signs of great activity at the Foreign Office followed a long conference between the two. Whether this indicates an early Greek acquiescence in the Entente Powers' demands, or foreshadowed still further steps toward compelling the Athens Government to yield, was not revealed. It is no secret that Italy is co-operating with the other Entente nations in bringing pressure on he Greeks. The two countries have been closely associated diplomatically, so it is considered natural that Sonnino should have much influence with the Greek Government heads.

BUCHAREST, Nov. 23.—Huge quantities of military supplies from Germany are now pouring through Bulgaria for the Turks. Thus far, according to advices to-day from the Bulgar town of Rustichuk, 1,400 carloads of munitions, artillery and hospital necessaries have been landed at the Bulgarian Danube ports for transhipment by rail to Constantinople. Included in one shipment were two 15-centimetre guns for the Ottoman defence at the Gallipoli Peninsula.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Greece is believed to-day to have yielded sufficiently to the Allies' demand to have obviated the necessity for forcible measures of coercion. The conclusion is based on an official Foreign Office denial that Greek ships are being seized or detained by the British or that the blockade of her ports has been established. If the Athens Government had not at least promised to refrain from interference with the Allies' Balkan campaign, it is assumed both steps would have been taken. It is rumoured that Premier Skouloudis has resigned.

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The capture by the Austro-Germans and Bulgars of 9,500 more Serbs was announced in a War Office statement to-day, also fifty cannon and twenty-two machine guns.

PARIS, Nov. 23.—(French Official Communique). "Aviators have done most of the fighting on the Franco-German front in the past few hours. According to to-day's official communique, five aerial combats occurred in the Champagne and Argonne regions alone. Three of the encounters ended in the disabling of the German aeroplanes, forcing their descent; a fourth fell, and a fifth was set on fire and disappeared, enveloped in flames. In Belgium and Rheims region French aviators ascended and gave battle to German airmen. Two German machines were shot down in such duels in Belgium. In the Rheims district the German aeroplanes, two in number, were forced to flee.

"At the front," said the communique, "the situation is unchanged."

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Captain Boyed, the Military Attache of the German Embassy, was charged directly with activities in connection with the alleged Hamburg-American plot to supply German commerce raiders from American ports, when Assistant District Attorney Wood outlined the Government's case to-day. "When a man does an act once, there may be a question of intent," Wood said, "but when a group of men go about the country trampling upon the nation's laws a dozen or fifteen times as though they were scraps of paper, bad intent is apparent." Richard E. Wrigley, ship broker, the first witness, verified documents showing that he had negotiated for vessels to carry supplies for the defendants.

ROME, Nov. 23.—Cyclones and widespread floods are reported to-day from Sicily. Many persons have perished.

The loss of life is especially heavy at Licata. With railroads interrupted and wires down, details are consequently meagre.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Persian gendarmes in revolt against the Shah's Government, have made prisoners the British Consul in Shiraz and the English manager of the Imperial Bank of Persia, Foreign Secretary Sir Edward Grey announced in the House of Commons to-day.

The two Englishmen's imprisonment has been reported before, but the gendarmes' revolt was fresh information. The Gendarmerie is officered by foreigners, including many Germans.

Grey emphasized the fact that violence to the two Englishmen was without the Persian Government's cognizance.

LANCE CORP. G. LOOKIE, one of the non-coms. of the 93rd Peterborough Battalion.

PETERBOBO' BOYS HOME FROM FRONT ARE AT KINGSTON

Corp. H. King and Gunner Mortie McGill of the 4th Battery C.F.A. Are Now in the Elmhurst Convalescent Home

NOT DISCHARGED YET

Corporal H. King and Gunner Mortie McGill, two Peterborough members of the 4th Battery, who have been invalided home to Canada are now in the Elmhurst Convalescent Home in Kingston. They reached Quebec a week ago Sunday on the Metagama and their friends have been anxiously waiting for their arrival in Peterborough. Word has however been received that they have not yet been given their discharge but have been sent to Kingston, for further treatment. Speaking of the arrival of the wounded heroes at Kingston, the Kingston standard says:

"To the stirring strains of martial music provided by the splendid band of the 59th battalion, and accompanied by the hearty good wishes of the citizens who had gathered to meet them, twenty-six soldiers of this military division, several of them Kingston boys, arrived at Grand Trunk city station yesterday forenoon shortly before 11 o'clock.

Tired with their long voyage from England and their train ride from Canada's ancient capital, where they arrived just one week ago, all of them showing traces of their sufferings for their King and country, the familiar sights of the Limestone City and the presence of friends from whom the grim vicissitudes of war had separated them last summer, the men braced up as they heard warm words of welcome from the city's chief magistrate, and received hearty handclasps from the friends who had gathered to greet them.

Their arrival in the city was known to but few, in fact their train had arrived at the outer station before even the military authorities knew of its coming, and but for the timely action of Fred Davis, a member of the military police, who notified Mayor Sutherland of their coming, there would have been but few at the station.

MAYOR PREPARES WELCOME.

With characteristic promptness, Mayor Sutherland laid his plans for a civic recognition for the returning warriors, and as promptly put them into execution. He summoned the 59th band from St. George's Cathedral, where they were attending divine service, and as the train pulled into the station the familiar strains of welcoming music broke on the ears of the few assembled.

As the men detrained Mayor Sutherland greeted each one and as they assembled on the platform he briefly addressed the unit, expressing the high appreciation of citizens of their valorous conduct at the front, of the splendid example they had set for their fellow citizens and wishing them a rapid recovery from their wounds. His remarks were appended by those present, who felt that the men deserved all that could be done for them.

Maj. Hamilton, A.D.T., and staff of the division, was also at the station, and provided the autos for transferring the men to "Elmhurst" Convalescent Home.

After a few minutes with their friends the men were rushed into waiting taxis and driven to "Elmhurst" Convalescent Home, where they were registered in accordance with the military regulations. Afterwards they were driven to the British-American Hotel for lunch and last night they also had dinner at that hostelry.

The First Gun in The Big Campaign

Influential Deputation From the Various Townships Will Wait Upon the County Council During the December Session in the Interest of the Canadian Patriotic Fund—Liberal Response is Expected From the County Legislators.

Eighteen months ago our peoples were quietly looking after business, untroubled by any thought of war, and its responsibilities. Now we have it before us, as a part of our daily lives. We are embarked with the rest of the Empire on a struggle for freedom, not only in Canada, but throughout the world. Canada is playing her part well with her thousands of sons in the field and camps in training. We who stay at home must do our part.

So we have presented to us various activities. Each of moment and with worthy claim on our attention and resources. Not that any one of these has seriously touched our ability to give. We have not as yet felt anything of the stress and trial of war, speaking in a monetary sense. We have had the Red Cross, the First Aid, the Tobacco Fund, the Field Kitchen, and Regimental Funds, the Machine Gun Fund, and others. To all of these people have subscribed and liberally. There is as yet one activity to be remembered and helped—the Canadian National Patriotic Fund.

Last Year's Campaign.

One year ago the city was organized and the effort made. It was a success. The large sum of $60,000 in the aggregate was raised by municipal and from private sources, and divided between the Patriotic Fund and the local Relief. Both of these funds have accomplished much good. The Patriotic Fund has supplemented to the pay and seperation allowance of the soldier's family while the relief fund gave assistance to those in adverse circumstances brought on by the war. To replenish the Patriotic Fund an appeal will be made to our citizens the second week in December, that it may be a fitting anniversary of that of last year. No subscription will be asked for the Relief Fund. That is in such shape that there is ample funds for the future, and in any event unemployment is almost wholly unknown. It is anticipated that there will be little appeal to the relief fund this winter.

Side by side with the appeal to the city one will be made to the country. With the large enlistment going on, and the numbers of good men flocking to the colours from the townships of the county it is felt that the county will heartily come into the work. In anticipation of this men of the county have been invited to come to the city and form a deputation to wait on the Council of the County at the December session. The call that has gone out will bring the deputation together on the morning of Wednesday, Dec. 1st, at 11 o'clock, for a short conference. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the Council will be waited on, and it is expected that the claims of the Fund will be presented by several speakers from the County municipalities.

Grants From County Councils.

Experience of the year past has shown that a personal canvas of the rural municipalities is not only difficult but tedious. Men are not as easily accessable as in the villages, towns, and cities. So assistance to the Fund has been forthcoming in the form of grants made by the county councils, the cost of which is assessed on the properties. This plan is in large favour. That it is approved is seen in the fact that in the last two months counties have given very substantial grants. Four appeals are noteworthy—Bruce, $4,000 per month, for one year; Huron, $6,000 per month for one year; Wentworth, $4,000 per month for the year, and Lampton, $5,000 per month for the same period. This year is to date from the time of the passing of the local legislation by the several counties council. Hamilton (city) is engaged in a campaign, to go on about the same time as that in Peterborough, and is pledged to hand to the Fund $400,000. That will be a notable thing for the Ambitious City.

The Reeves and Deputy-Reeves of the several township councils, forming the County Council, have been communicated with. The Warden of the County has been advised and asked to receive the deputation. The Council will, no doubt, consider the matter on other days of the session and reach a conclusion. Following are those asked to be of the deputation, and it is anticipated that their kindly co-operation and assistance will be forthcoming:

A SLOW DEATH

Prejudice dies hard, and very often at a great deal of cost to the eyes. It may be you have a prejudice against wearing Glasses, while your eyes are far from comfortable and your sight disturbed. The kernel of the whole matter is: That if Glasses are to be worn, be very sure that the man you choose to examine your eyes is competent and worthy of your confidence, so that if he knows you are better without Glasses he will have the honesty to tell you so. We do not say that Dr. Lacey's (formerly Tait's) is the one place; there are honest oculists in every community; but we solicit your confidence with the promise that the best care and judgment will be given you.—410 George Street (opposite Examiner Office).

Cobourg Company To Be Transferred

PTE. CECIL KYLIE, a Peterborough boy with the 2nd Pioneer Battalion.

Recruits There Will Be Part of New Northumberland Battalion Under Col. Floyd—Peterborough City and County Will Have to Complete the 93rd--Battalion Orders

TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS

Although the formal transfers have not taken place, it is now certain that neither the company being raised at Lindsay or that started at Cobourg will be part of the 93rd Battalion and that, as announced several times before, Peterborough city and county must fill up the 93rd. The Lindsay company will go to the 109th Victoria and Haliburton Battalion, while the recruits at Cobourg will be part of the new Northumberland Battalion, which is to be commanded by Col. Floyd. The official transfers may be expected in a day or two. In the meantime Capt. Neilson and the other 93rd officers attached at Cobourg and Port Hope, Major Oxley of Peterborough, who has been on duty there, will be brought back to Peterborough for duty here.

As a result of the new developments the proposed trip of the 93rd Band to Port Hope and Cobourg, which was to have taken place at the latter end of the week, will be cancelled. With the recruits from the Cobourg and Port Hope districts going to the Durham and Northumberland battalions, there is little from the 93rd standpoint to be gained by visiting the Lakeshore towns. Instead, Lt.-Col. Johnston proposes to send the band to Norwood, Havelock and other points in the county to stimulate recruiting in this district.

To-day's Orders.

Headquarters,
Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 23, 15.

1. Duties.—

Orderly officer for to-day, Lieut. T. W. B. Martin.
Orderly officer for to-morrow, Lieut. S. J. Raymond.
Orderly officer for Thursday, Lieut. S. S. Dupuy.
Lieut. H. C. Gillham will until further orders, take charge of recruiting at Tweed and Madoc.

2. Parades—

Wednesday—9.30 to 10, physical training, 10 to 10.30, squad drill, sections 8-16, 10.30 to 11.30, orderly room, 10 to 11.30, interior economy, 2 to 3.30, squad drill with arms, sections 17-25, 3.30 to 4.30, company drill, sections 1-30.

3. Strength—

The following have been taken on the strength of the Battalion on the dates and companies placed opposite their names:

Ronald Turner, B Company
George Harris, B Company
John Head, A Company
Thomas O'Neill, A Company
Harry Stocker, A Company

The following transfer has taken place: Pte. E. W. Watson, 40th Battalion, C.E.F., has been transferred to the 93rd Battalion, C.E.F., and is taken on the strength from 24th inst. and posted to A Company.

4. Dress—

Battalion Order No. 21, sub-section 4 of the 22nd inst., is amended to read: Greatcoats will be worn by all ranks until further notice.

5. Inoculation and Vaccination—

All N.C.O.'s and men of the Battalion who were inoculated on November 11th, 1915, will parade to-day at 11 a.m. at the office of the medical officer for the 2nd inoculation and vaccination.

6. Command—

Lt. H. C. Gillham, signalling officer, will be shown on command from this date.

7. Leave—

Leave of absence from the 23rd inst. to 28th inst. has been granted to under:

Pte. W. Jackson
Pte. W. Johnson
Pte. J. Batt
Pte. J. N. Lowe
Pte. L. J. Hardy

T. J. Johnston, Lt.-Col.
Officer Commanding 93rd O.S. Battalion C.E.F.

There is a big supply of uniforms in the stores of the 93rd Battalion to equip all the men who have already enlisted as well as to fit out the large number of recruits expected in the next few weeks. A large shipment of caps, tunics, trousers, great coats, boots, etc., arrived yesterday afternoon and is being checked over in the quartermaster's department to-day.

LONDON SOLDIERS HAVE BAD CLASH WITH THE POLICE

Four London, Ont. Policemen Are Injured in a Riot on the Street—Soldiers Got Beyond Control

IGNORED THEIR OFFICERS

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 22.—London has had several street riots as a result of clashes between soldiers and the city police, but those that went before were pink teas compared with the fight to-night. There is no unanimity as to how the trouble started to-night, but a small riot on Saturday night, when several soldiers were put under arrest, and for which they were fined in the Police Court to-day, is supposed to have led to it.

In the mix-up at the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets a police constable was struck with a brick. He, with fellow-members of the city force, gave chase, and captured the man who it is alleged, threw the missile, and then it was a battle to get the offender to the police station, a few blocks away. The streets were jammed with people, and many civilians narrowly escaped injury. One girl was struck on the head with a stone which was hurled at a Dundas street car, now by which glanced back.

Most of the police were roughly handled, four receiving more or less severe wounds. P.C. Brunsden was badly mixed up in the scrimmage. Sergt. McDonald received a nasty cut on the face and P.C.'s McCulloch and Tapworth were assaulted by brick-bats. The police, however, by the aid of

A GRAND OPPORTUNITY NOW GIVEN YOU

Our Seventh Anniversary Sale Begins To-morrow—Even Greater Values Than in the Past

Every fall since H. J. Zacks located in Peterborough he has had an anniversary sale. This fall is the seventh differing sale put on by the store and owing to trade conditions effects of the war, and the closing out of the entire stock of men's wear, the sale out in prices this year is far-reaching proportions not before attempted by Mr. Zacks. In men's clothing and furnishings, which department is to be dropped by the store, prices will be cut in some cases to half regular price, and clothing such as suits, overcoats, pants, shirts, pants, underwear, etc., for men and boys can be most profitably purchased at this sale.

The ladies' wear, furs, millinery, furniture and carpet departments have all undergone extensive reductions in prices, and as there is a heavy stock of new goods the selections are large. Mr. Zacks guarantees the articles as advertised, and you are invited to look over the stock and note the values.

Zacks anniversary sale comes but once a year and it has proved most attractive in the past.

GOOD FOR CANADA.

Indications are that the Canadian war loan of fifty million dollars was fully subscribed the first day the lists were opened. That is something to be proud of—eight million people going down into their pockets at the rate of $6.25 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion. This result is a tribute to the liquid character of Canadian financial resources, and a tribute to the patriotism of the people—to their confidence in the soundness and future of their country. And fifty millions is just a farction of what we can do; for it is probable that the present loan will be greatly oversubscribed. The results show us what we can do, ant what we didn't think we could do, till we tried. We have been borrowing money from Britain to finance our share in the war, whereas the results show we can borrow all the money we want for this purpose from ourselves; and the unthinkable thing may easily come to pass that Canada may be able to lend money to Britain instead of borrowing it, if the little drop in the bucket we could lend could be noticeable in the immense expenditures the Mother country is making and must continue to make. Canada is beginning to cut some figure in the financial world, and in this has splendidly begun to measure up to the splendid work her soldiers have done in the field. We are proud that Canada has been promoted to one of the front seats she will occupy after the war is over.

THE MERCILESS AND MURDEROUS LAW.

Apart altogether from the merits of the question of the manner of the arrest of Oliver and his wife on a charge of vagrancy, there are revealed conditions that are a disgrace to our boasted civilization and humanity. Though the two unfortunates had been arrested as tenderly as possible, and brought to jail swathed in silken wadding, the disgrace begins at the jail. Not with jail authorities and officials, but with the cruel and heartless custom of pitchforking the poor, the helpless and the unfortunate in hard, cold, stone cells built for criminals. We are not far ahead of the Germans. We make poverty, and helplessness, and decrepitude, and hunger, and nakedness, a crime. The Germans make weakness and defencelessness a crime; and dearly they punish them as we dearly punish poverty. We make the gaol our Red Cross; our hospital: our refuge.

The fault is in the law, or the custom and practice the law permits and virtually enforces, of making the jail a house of detention for the temporarily insane; for the indigent poor; and it is no more fitted for the purpose than a barn. We keep inmates guilty of no crime in a jail built for criminals, for months. They may be ill, but there is no proper provision made for their treatment, not from the fault of officials, who be they never so kind, can only do what the conditions provide — and no one would think of building a hospital on the model and with the treatment equipment of a jail. We have seen the insane and weak-minded cooped up in jail for months, without the special treatment demanded, postponing curative measures till it is too late to have effect. We surely could have things arranged in a better way.

There was no other way provided by the law or conditions of building to deal with Oliver and his wife than to bundle them into separate cells, without a proper examination to ascertain their physical condition The result was that the poor man died in the night, without the presence or knowledge of his wife. It would seem an easy thing to have a portion of a jail fitted up as a temporary infirmary, where such cases could be given a medical examination, and their physical condition their state of health, and their need of treatment ascertained, before they are thrown into criminal' cells. With such primitive provisions taken—the most rudimentary suggestion of humanity—the life of the man Oliver might have been saved, and the hardships, injustice, and virtual cruelty, that from necessity attend the treatment of similar cases, would be avoided.

The law is heartless—like Sydney Smith's corporation, it has no soul. There is need that our lawmakers should take some measures to remedy the conditions involved in the treatment of our presumably insane, and our poor and destitute. Year after year, grand juries, make presentments to judges denouncing the crime of making poverty or misfortune a crime. The judge passes on crime. The judge passes forward these presentments to the authorities, who promptly pigeon-hole them to gather dust, while the bodies of the victims of the law's cruelty themselves turn to dust. Our legislators squabble, and fight, and spend money galore, in a thousand other ways, and leave untouched a system of treatment of the poor and unfortunate that would shame a German junker.

We must remedy these things before we can consistently open our mouths to deplore German frightfulness." We go to bed at night, and while we sleep in safety and comfort German Zeppelins are raining bombs on peaceful cities, and bombs are blowing the mangled bodies of women and children out of their beds. Last Friday night we lay in bed in comfort and safety, and wot not, not that a sadder tragedy than wrought by Zeppelin bombs was enacted in a criminal's cell close to our happy, comfortable homes. A poor old woman was tossing in her hard prison bed, frightened and dazed with the cruel suddenness of her exciting experience of the afternoon, while in another equally luxurious, cell, her husband lay struggling alone in his death agony, brought on possibly by the exciting experience of the afternoon. The husbands and wives of the poor love each other as do those of the rich. But we take no account of that. We carry out the law and the undertaker carries out the pauper corpse and there's an end of it, till the merciless law and the conditions permitted and created by it, bring on a similar crime against humanity and civilization.

VIRTUALLY WON BUT YET TO WIN.

If we, that is Britain and her Dominions, and her Allies, win this war, which we shall and must do, we must imitate Germany. This seems peculiar advice. But the wise nation will learn even from its enemies. It is not meant that we should imitate Germany in the atrocity and ruthlessness of her methods, but in the energy with which she is maintaining the struggle. She is bending every effort to the accomplishment of success, and is making unheard of sacrifices. We have often heard of the straits to which Germany is reduced—a good deal of truth and a good deal of error — but Germany throws everything into the melting pot of war. Food is scarce in Germany; women and children are hungry, but whatever the shortage of food, the army must be fed, and the women and children may go starve. That is the German way, but it shows her determination to try to win. In the past no consideration of humanity or human interest has been allowed to interfere with the prosecution of her war programme, and it is not allowed to interfere now. When Germany thought she would gain by slaughtering women and children, she slaughtered them. Now when, to her mind, it is necessary to starve her own women and children to feed her soldiers, the soldiers are fed. This policy forced upon her by the steady lessening of her food supply, is creating a great deal of suffering among the people. We do not need to depend for this information upon some imaginative newspaper correspondent, who has never been in Germany, but got his facts by looking across the border. The conditions in Germany are so bad that the heretofore subdued papers have been permitted to relax the muzzle and speak out. A great and influential German journal, "Forewarts," tells how the "note of popular misery," mingles with the blare of loudly trumpetted victories, that are no victories. In the following paragraph it is told how German dreams of triumph and conquest have given place to the conditions of starvation. The German newspaper says:

"The short, successful war, the spoils of victory, the wealth of Belgium, huge indemnities, annexation of colonies, trade which would make everyone prosperous and contented, and bring back the armies in triumph and splendor—that was the reward promised and dream dreamed. To-day the reality is growing daily farther from that intoxicating vision: in the sight of enormous and increasing losses in the field, starving women at home fighting for food for their children, the miseries of another winter in sight, with increasing privation, and no alternative but ruin, whether victorious or defeated, at the end."

There can be no doubt that Germans, both the militarist clique, and the people, are getting thoroughly sick of the war; and there can be no doubt that the authorities permit such outspoken utterances by a heretofore tightly muzzled press, in order to gradually pave the way to consideration of peace proposals. The conditions thus painted by the Germans themselves are an encouragement to us and an inspiration to renewed action. There is evidence that Germany has shot her bolt in this war, and that the efforts she is now making, after fifteen months of war that was to be decided in fifteen days, are a dying struggle. While her resources are tremendously impaired, the resources of the Allies, especially Britain and her Dominions, are still good. In Britain and France, and in Canada, there is no shortage of anything, except perhaps, of voluntary recruits. We have food and to spare; we have yet almost untapped financial resources. The immense favour and success of the Canadian war loan shows that the people have money, and the recruiting shows, that we still have men. While Germany is peopled with starving women and children, we, in Canada, have not felt the pinch of poverty in any degree; in fact, Canada is in a generally more prosperous condition that she was before the war broke out. But there is yet much to do to win. We must supply man and money yet for a while. Kaiserism and militarism will die hard and like the wounded anaconda, in their dying struggles, show capacity of doing great damage. We have got the war in hand, but our triumph is conditioned upon keeping up the fight, till victory is assured beyond peradventure.

OPPONENT OF FREE WHEAT

It is reported that the strongest opponent of free wheat in the Ottawa Cabinet is Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, who is regarded as the chief representative of the privileged interests of the east. It is also stated that the railway interests are secretly opposing free wheat to the very utmost of their ability. The publication of the huge profits of the big milling companies has rather upset the arguments of Mr. White and those of his colleagues who have been preaching the need of protection for these interests. In fact, it is now stated that the milling interests, or at least some of them, are sorry they exposed the enormous profits on the past year's operations.—Grain Growers' Guide.

He Sold Them.

An American, while one day walking down a street of a large town in Scotland, noticed on a sign over a shop door, "Portmanteaux, travelling bags, overland trunks," and so on. Thinking to take a rise out of the shopman, he went in, and the following dialogue ensued:

Yankee: Have you got any overland trunks?

Shopman: Yes, sir.

Yankee: Could you please supply me with an underland trunk?

The Obligations of Greece To Britain, the Allies, and To Herself and Her People

There is an impression in some quarters that Great Britain has as little business in Greece as Germany had in Belgium. It speaks badly for our acquaintance with imperial responsibilities, not to mention world-history, that such a view should obtain among us, but anything is possible in these days of local, if not limited, education, and widespread, if not unlimited, prejudice. The one big issue of the war was never more clearly marked than in the difference of the relations that exist between Germany and Belgium and Great Britain and Greece. It is the paramount issue between autocratic militarism and democracy.

Germany's presence in Belgium is a threat against liberty and constitutional government. Great Britain's presence in Greec is a threat against the bad faith of a king and for the preservation of constitutional government. Germany is in Belgium in violation of a treaty by which she guaranteed to protect the neutrality of the little nation. Great Britain is in Greece in conformity with the treaty by which she guaranteed independence and constitutional govrnment to the Greek people.

By he convention of May 7, 1832, Greece was declared independent under the protection of Great Britain, France and Russia. Prince Otto, son of King Louis I of Bavaria, was proclaimed king. It was not a wise choice, and after eleven years, during which Otto surrounded himself with Bavarians and assumed absolute power, he had to dismiss his favourites and accept a constitution.

Otto had the German taint, however, and lived in opposition to constitutional government. He was deposed in 1862. Prince Alfred of England, afterwards Duke of Edinburgh, and Duke of Saxe-Coburg, was elected by the people, who wanted the British type of government, but the three powers had bound themselves not to give the throne to any member of their ruling houses. Had Prince Alfred become King of Greece, the history of Europe would probably have taken a different course. His son, who is now a catrap of the Kaiser, would have had a differnt training in Greece, and the Greek nation would probably have been given a better chance to speak its own mind.

By the treaty of London of July 13, 1863, the change of dynasty was sanctioned by the powers, and Britain ceded the Ionian Islands as a token of good-will in 1864. At the end of that year King George was compelled to accept what has been described as an ultra-democratic constitution, drawn up by the national assembly. It has not, however, proved democratic enough to hold his son. It is still in force, being the sixth since 1829. The stormy experiences of Greece with her neighbours and her domestic strifes are within the recollection of most. Trikoupis and Delyannes were the two big figures up till 1905, when the latter was assassinated. The former died nine years earlier.

A secret patriotic society had played a large part in Greek affairs, the Ethnike Hetaeria, and the war with Torkey was precipitated by this body. In 1897 Germany proposed the coercion of Greece during the Cretan crisis, but Britain dmurred, with the result that joint action was taken by the powers and Greece was granted autonomy. It was apparently out of these troubles, and the war with Turkey that Germany shaped a course which led Constantine to the position he occupies. Germany never had any business with Greece and has none now. Great Britain and her allies, France and Russia, are bound by treaty to see Greec assured of her democratic liberties and government, and, no doubt, Lord Kitchener will be able to interpret Greek history to Constantine in a convincing manner that will leave no room for comment or emendation by the Kaiser.—The World.

CONSCRIPTION

The following poem, entitled Conscription, appears in the Preston (Eng.) Argus, and was given to the Examiner by one of the members of the 93rd Battalion:

Conscription, Sir? I'm with you there
Let all men equal stand,
But do you think Sir, that it's right for lusty, healthy men
To get good berths and do their bit with nothing but a pen?

There's Henry Charles Augustus Sleek
With relatives well placed,
Getting a "fiver" every week,
And no bullets to be faced.

Whilst other chaps gave up their work
To go and face the foe;
They are fighting now in Flanders
At a "Bob" a day or so.

Now, whose worth most, the fighting man
Or the man whose slinging ink?
The fighter, did I hear you say?
Yea that's what I think.

Then again there's Moneybags,
Let's conscript his surplus wealth;
The soldier offers all he has,
His life, his strength, his health.

Moneybags is taxed you say,
What's that to offering life,
And risking abject poverty
For the children and the wife?

So let us tax all surplus wealth,
And then at least we'll find,
Enough to keep in comfort those
That Tommie's left behind. B.B.

BARS OF STEEL FOR SONG WRITER

Swindler of Would-be Song Writers Gets Prison Term.

John T. Hall, accused of misuse of the mails in defrauding about 1,500 ambitious song writers, was found guilty by a jury in the Criminal branch of the Federal Court, New York, and was sentenced by Judge Foster to serve two years in the penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga.

Judge Foster said Hall's scheme was the most flagrant swindle that had ever come under his observation.

There is no excuse for an intelligent man, especially one who has himself written good music, to engage in such a despicable enterprise as you operated," said the Judge. Hall is the author of "Queen of the Moulin Rouge" and "The Wedding of the Winds."

A motion by George G. Battle, attorney for Hall, for the setting aside of the verdict was denied.

Hall accepted over 20,000 amateur ballads at from $10 to $35, from which the royalties were nil.

Belgrade Was Taken Because Germans Had the Bigger Guns

"A shell exploded in the throne room of King Peter," he writes, "and did great damage. It entered a window of the balcony on the second story of the palace, with its green caryatides that look so beautiful in the sunlight. Then the shell passed through the library, plunged through the floor, and then, entered the throne room, with its red curtains and red upholstered furniture. The furniture was smashed to pieces, and books, pictures, letters and papers, and also the golden eagles in the foyer were scattered all over the building. The aquarelle portraits of the ladies of the court are no longer recognizable. In the porcelain room a few things remain untouched. That one shell almost made a wreck of the palace. The Russian Embassy is also partly in ruins. Strange to say, the German and the Austrian embassies were untouched.

"The greater part of the city was spared. The greatest damage was done in the Kalimegdan and, the manufacturing district. The Kalimegdan is a pretty parkway along the walls of the fortress in the northern section of the city. This is now a very busy place. Motor boats, monitors, steamboats, coal barges and tugs can be seen going up and down the Danube, and on the shore pass troop trains and cars loaded with cattle, hay, flour and munitions. Towards the west winds the river.

"The German and Austrian armies stormed the city at two points. The commandment of Belgrade had a strongly fortified position in the northern part of the city around the Kalimegdan and the citadel. English and French troops served the guns on the ships in the harbor, while Russian gunners operated the big guns in the fortress. Our artillery worked with guns of the heaviest calibre. At midnight every light in the city was extinguished and only the searchlight in the Kalimegdan was now and then seen, looking very much like some spectre. The next morning our artillery began its real work and before noon three fires had started, one near the railway station, another near the slaughter house, and the third in the manufacturing district. In the afternoon the big guns in the fortress and those on the vessels in the harbour had been silenced and towards evening the first detachment of German and Austrian troops crossed the river and entered the city. They stormed the Serbian trenches behind the railroad station, which had been throwing a heavy machine gun and rifle fire into the ranks of the landing troops. The guns in the fortress on the Kalimegdan also began firing again. Our gunners answered them with telling effect thus saving our troops from being further shelled by them. The next day more troops landed and joined the detachments of the previous day. The Serbian forces then retreated and the city was ours."

Pat Got There.

An American and an Irishman were discussing the great things each had done. The American said, "Would you believe that one day I got out of my own house through a two-foot window?" "Sure," returned the Irishman, "that's nothing. I once walked through the side wall of my house without touching a stone." "Impossible!" exclaimed the American. "It's true," returned Pat with a smile. "I walked out through the front door."

112,000 TROOPS FOR OVERSEAS

OTTAWA, Nov. 23—A hundred and forty five battalions have so far been authorized in Canada for overseas service. Of this number, 90 battalions have been fully recruited. Forty-seven batteries of artillery have been authorized, and forty-three raised. In regard to mounted troops, twelve units have been raised. At the present time there are, roughly, 57,000 troops in France, 55,000 in Canada, and 50,000 in England.

Ten of the new regiments are being raised in Toronto, three in Montreal, two from Hamilton, two from Brantford, and the rest are scattered. Not all of those listed as heading the regiments will go overseas.

Major Lionel Webber, of Russland, a son of Major General C. E. Webber, proposes to raise a new regiment of Montenegrins and Russians in British Columbia.

Senator George Taylor has undertaken to raise a new regiment in Leeds and Grenville.

ANGELUS STRAFE' IS NOW POPULAR DANCE AT FRONT

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN CHAMPAGNE, Oct 21 (By Mail).—"The Angelus Strafe" is a new dance popular at the Front, but no cabaret boys in the U.S.A. will take kindly to it, nor will society be doing it this winter. Its other name is "a spilling the beans cannonade" and its object is to prevent the soldiers' dinner from being brought up. The artillery furnishes the music.

However, calm the day up to the Angelus hour, there is almost invariably a hot exchange of shells near sundown on every battle front to impede movements of troops, principal of which at this time of day being the food convoys from the rear, with hot dinner for the men in the front lines. Not infrequently the rolling kitchens are struck and the soldiers whose food was inside go without warm victuals. For them it means hard tack and "monkey," otherwise embalmed beef.

Old Rule Applies.

This might seem petty but officers assure you it is not. The old rule that the easiest way to reach a man's heart is through his stomach has been applied to war and both Germans and Allies recognize it. Nothing hurts the "moral" of an army more, or saps his supply of optimism quicker, than going hungry, and the sundown cannonade variously known as "spilling the beans" or the "evening hate" or the "Angelus Strafe," is speeded up pretty hot largely with that charming aim in view.

In the beginning the French were poorly equipped with "rolling kitchens" and company cooks, close up to the lines, with their stationary kitchens, like old fashioned wash boilers mounted on an improvished brick or stone oven were frequently blown out of existence by the enemy, making hot meals an intermittent luxury.

Cooked on the Fly.

The "rolling kitchen" made kitchen centres possible miles behind the line. The big boilers are on wheels something like an old-fashioned fire-engine, and the meals may be cooked on the fly when necessary. Advancing or retreating the men receive steaming hot victuals, and the food is better prepared, more palatable, more digestable.

When, as is the case at present, the line is stationary, the "rolling kitchens" prepare the food at their bases then move up a few miles to points not far back of the front trenches. From these advanced points not far back of the front the troops not actually on duty in the foremost positions while the men in these get their rations carried to them in buckets suspended from yokes. The roads these kitchens must travel, are sprinkled with shells.

British Soldiers Confined At Wittenberg, Germany, Suffer Keenly

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The British press bureau has published the reports of James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador to Germany, and members of the Embassy Staff in Berlin, relative to the condition of British prisoners of war in the camp at Wittenberg Prussia.

Lithgow Osborne reported that his whole impression of the camp authorities was utterly unlike that which he had received in every other camp he visited. Instead of regarding their charges as honorable prisoners of war, he stated, they apparently regarded them as criminals whom a regime of fear alone sufficed to keep in obedience.

"All evidence of kindly human feeling between the authorities and the prisoners was lacking," said Mr. Osborne, "and in no other camp have I found signs of fear on the part of the prisoners that what they might say to me would result in suffering for them afterwards."

Sixteen Overcoats for 278.

"I regret to state that after a careful examination of the camp and long conversations with the prisoners my impression is even more unfavorable than I have been led to expect.

"Upon my arrival at the camp I was not received by the general who acts as commandant, but by a major.

"There were over four thousand prisoners in the camp, of whom 278 are British. Among these I found only sixteen overcoats. The men, on the whole, are insufficiently clothed.

"The men told me that one of the British medical officers in the camp recently was struck by a German non-commissioned officer and this proved to be true.

Dogs as Guards.

"Many prisoners complain that dogs were brought in by German soldiers at night, and that in certain cases prisoners had had their clothes torn by these dogs. I asked the authorities whether they considered dogs necessary for the preservation or order, saying that at no other camp have I seen dogs used for this purpose, and they informed me that they considered it absolutely necessary, that dogs were needed to protect the German soldiers on duty. I was shown half a dozen of these dogs, which were of the usual police type.

"Two prisoners informed me that the conditions in the camp had unquestionably improved greatly in the last few months; that last year when an epidemic of spotted typhus existed the camp conditions had been indescribably bad.

"They said that they then implored the German authorities to put the British soldiers in barracks by themselves, as this was the only way to prevent an outbreak of the epidemic, which had been brought to the camp by Russians. This request was refused on the ground that the British should learn to know their allies better. Largely because of this 50 British military prisoners and 9 civilians died of the disease.

"The attitude towards the British prisoners seems to be based on suspicion. They have no opportunities for playing games or for exercise, except walking. I am sending a cheque for 2,000 marks to Capt. Vidal to be spent for the immediate relief."

Sir Edward Grey, after commenting severely on the facts mentioned, says that he much appreciates Ambassador Gerard's action in visiting the camp personally, and asks Dr. Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador to Great Britain, to convey to Mr. Gerard his cordial thanks for the reports.

Took Her at Her Word.

Mrs. Blough: I don't try to suit every one. I always want people to take me just as I am.

Caller: Glad to hear it, for we're in a big hurry. I'm the staff photographer for the Screecher, and the Sunday editor sent me out to get a snapshot of you——

Mrs. Blough: Good, heavens! Wait till I run and frill up in bit and put on my best silk dress, and my best and sweetest smile!

WAR LOAN

DOMINION OF CANADA

ISSUE OF $50,000,000 5% BONDS MATURING 1st DEC., 1925

REPAYABLE AT PAR AT

INTEREST PAYABLE HALF-YEARLY—1st JUNE, 1st DECEMBER.

ISSUE PRICE 97½

A FULL HALF-YEAR'S INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON 1st JUNE, 1916.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE LOAN WILL BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY.

In the event of future issues (other than issues made abroad) being made by the Government, for the purpose of carrying on the war, bonds of this issue will be accepted at the issue price, 97½, plus accrued interest, as the equivalent of cash for the purpose of subscriptions to such issues.

10 per cent on application,
7½ " " 3rd January, 1916,
20 " " 1st February, 1916,
20 " " 1st March, 1916,
20 " " 1st April, 1916,
20 " " 1st May, 1916.

The instalments may be paid in full on and after the 3rd day of January, 1916, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Applications, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. The bank will issue a provisional receipt.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch of any chartered bank in Canada, and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the January instalment.

Scrip certificates payable to bearer will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds without coupons.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada.

Holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds with coupons, payable to bearer or registered, without payment of any fee, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert, without fee, into fully registered bonds without coupons at any time on application in writing to the Minister of Finance.

The issue will be exempt from taxes including any income tax imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

The loan will be repaid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary or Victoria.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Recognized bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications which bear their stamp.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 30th November, 1915.

Finance Department, Ottawa, 22nd November, 1915.

BAY RUM FOR HAIR TROUBLE

Do you know that ordinary bay rum is of great value in treating hair and scalp disorders? But the bay rum alone should never be applied to the hair or scalp. If you want to get rid of dandruff, stop falling hair, stimulate hair growth, beautify the hair and make the scalp feel good, undoubtedly the best thing to use is a mixture of six ounces of bay rum, two ounces of lavona de compose, and one half drachm of menthol crystals. You can buy these ingredients at any drug store and mix them yourself at home or the druggist will mix them for you. If you like, add a teaspoonful of your favorite. The bay rum is a fine scalp cleaner and the other ingredients make this mixture remarkably good to destroy dandruff, stimulate the hair growth, etc. Apply night and morning and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips.

Guarding Art Treasures War Problem For London

LONDON, Nov 20.—There are perhaps thousands of Londoners who can echo Mr. Asquith's declaration in the House of Commons, "I have not been in the National Gallery lately," and that perhaps, accounts for the absence of discussion about the measures that have been taken there to insure the safety of the priceless treasures in charge of the trustees against the bomb dropping Zeppelin.

The Prime Minister was asked whether it was not a fact that there are many irreplaceable pictures still on the walls. He might have replied that there are nearly three thousand.

The National Gallery contains no pictures which are not irreplaceable, and having decided that they will not afford to Berlin the intense satisfaction of closing the gallery and removing its whole contents to the cellars, the trustees have had to face the extremely difficult and thorny problem of making their selection of the pictures which cannot be exposed to any avoidable risk.

Of more than three thousand they have chosen about two hundred and fifty, and art lovers will find only blank spaces on the walls and empty frams to indicate where these most valued of the nation's pictures hung.

The secretary informed a correspondent that the trustees have endeavoured to select pictures of preponderating value in the historic and artistic sense — pictures which are unique. At the same time they have endeavoured to leave a representative collection in the galleries.

A tour of the galleries showed that pictures have been taken impartially from the British and foreign schools and that the ancients and the moderns have been dealt with justly.

One of the pictures of the Madonna and Child Enthroned, painted by Caroli Crivelli in the latter part of the fifteenth century, is exiled temporarily So is Sir Joshua Reynolds' "Three Graces." Several of the Turners are gone, and with them some of the Constables, the Cromes, the Cotmans and the Gainsboroughs. Vandyck's great equestrain portrait of ing Charles leaves leaves a large blank on the wall. Titian's "Bacchus and Ariadne" has gone, but his "Venus and Adonis" remains.

The trustees have been compelled to exercise their judgment somewhat arbitrarily, and there may be warm discussion among the experts of the selections they have made.

Those who go to the galleries are noting with interest that a large sand bin has been added to the furniture of every room to deal with fires caused by incendiary bombs.

At the British Museum the question of protection against bombs is far more difficult, though less delicate. There some of the most valuable things are not portable. The Elgin marbles cannot be packed away by the curator as he goes home to tea. They and many others of the most important of the antiquities in the Museum are a part of the actual structures. To remove them would mean pulling down the edifice.

It has been necessary to build a safe round the valuables, and as a result some of the galleries present a strange and wonderful aspect just now. An inspection of the rooms which have been closed to the public for some weeks past showed how the Elgin room has been metamorphosed into a close resemblance to a well constructed "dugout." Heavy timbering has been reared all round the interior walls and the face of the marbles now is protected by a solid pile of sandbags. The famous Assyrian bas-reliefs are literally packed in wool. For eight feet up the Assyrian saloon is a continuous wooden framework supporting a two feet thickness of slag wool, capable of resisting a high degree of heat and also fairly effective, so it would appear, against the consequences of explosion.

"We cannot eliminate altogether the risk from the vibration of the atmosphere from an explosion in a confined space," said an official, "but we have taken all the steps we can to minimize it."

The keeper of the coin collections has removed everything of high value to the strong rooms in the basement of the museum, where, too, many of the manuscripts and books are safely deposited in steel safes

At Westminster Abbey the Coronation Chair has been taken from the position where it is usually placed behind the reredos of the great altar to "a place of greater safety," which the Abbey authorities are keeping a profound secret, and with the chair have been removed some of the ancient glass and a few other portable things of national significance and value.

OFFICIAL EVIDENCE OF CRUEL TREATMENT BRITISH PRISONERS

What a painful shock would go through the civilized world if the United States Ambassador to Britain were to visit the German prisoners in England, and find conditions so bad that he had to send a personal cheque "for immediate relief" of the prisoners. Yet that is just what has happened in regard to the British prisoners in Germany. The American Ambassador was plainly shocked at the conditions he found. His report undoubtedly will rank as a historic indictment of the German authorities.

Mr. Gerard makes it quite clear that his visit was regarded as an unwelcome intrusion. That is the meaning of the diplomatic phrase that "Upon my arrival at the camp I was not received by the general who acts as commandant, but by a major." The commandant resented a visit and treated the ambassador to a typical example of German boorishness to show how peeved he was.

If the German commandant had a spark of humanity in him, it may well be believed, too, that he was too much ashamed of the conditions he was enforcing to meet a visitor with good grace. Mr. Gerard found prisoners of war treated like criminals—herded by dogs, kept without sufficient clothing, tyrannized over, and allowed no opportunities for recreation or exercise. Mr. Gerard reproduces with every evidence that he believes it to be a true statement that in this one camp fifty British military prisoners and nine civilians had died largely because of the insanitary conditions enforced by brutal exponents of the blood and iron policy.

This is but another example of German "frightfulness." No military advantage whatever can possibly accrue from ill-treating and even torturing prisoners The Germans cannot even hope, as they profess to do in regard to their baby-killing raids, that this will frighten their opponents into demanding peace. It is simply a revers[e] to barbarism, another proof of the moral degeneracy of the German nation And the hideous incarnation of evil of which this is added proof is the "Kultur" that Germany seeks to spread over the world.—Montreal Herald

PREDICTS AN EXODUS OF GERMAN-AMERICANS

LONDON, Nov 23 The Daily Mail quotes George von Skal, New York correspondent of the Manchester Nachrichten, as saying that there will be a general exodus of German-Americans from the United States very soon.

"Thousands of German families are making preparations to leave," he says. "No one in Germany can realize what German-Americans are suffering. They are mad and more conscious of their Teutonic descent. Emigrants have often been reproached with allowing themselves to become Americanized too quickly, but today they are showing themselves true adherents of the German cause openly and with little regard to their own interest."

Mr von Skal thinks that America will be badly hit by the loss of many loyal Germans.

GET THIS BOOK ABOUT ROSE CULTURE SENT FREE FROM OTTAWA

Every lover of flowers in Peterborough, and especially those interested in roses, should procure a copy of Bulletin 85, entitled "Hardy Roses: Their Culture in Canada," issued by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Simply write to the Department and ask for a copy of this bulletin which, in addition to valuable information in regard to rose culture in general, deals particularly with the hardy varieties which grow to best advantage in Canada The bulletin was issued primarily for distribution among farmers who certainly have the ground, if not the inclination, to devote to horticulture. After all, the rose is the queen of flowerdom and it is passing strange that the number of its devotees is so comparatively few. There are some rosarians in Peterborough who feel that a community of this size should possess an association of rose fanciers and growers However, the first step is to instil a deep love for rose culture for its aesthetic influence and the joy it brings Societies may come later This first thing to do is to get a copy of this Bulletin No 85. It costs you nothing, it is practical and is sufficient for the guidance of the amateur Write at once to the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and request that a copy of this pamphlet be sent you

HER LITTLE BOY HAD PNEUMONIA NEARLY LOST HIM. DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP SAVED HIM.

The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develop into some serious lung or bronchial trouble, and our advice to you is that on the first inception of a cough or cold "GET RID OF IT."

Mrs. H. Washburn, Gaspereaux Station, N.B., writes: "I thought I would write and tell you just how much I appreciate Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for I would not be without it in the house. Twice my little boy, now four years old, has had pneumonia, and nearly died, but since using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I have kept him clear of even a cough. I often say that if it had not been for "Dr. Wood's" I would have lost him."

"My little girl, ten months old, is subject to bronchitis, but when she seems to be stuffed up and has difficulty in breathing I give her a few drops of Norway Pine Syrup every two or three hours, and in a very little while she is all well, in fact, on the first signs of a cold or cough we all fly for 'Dr. Wood's'."

You can procure Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup from any druggist or dealer, but be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it, as there are many imitations on the market.

The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c.

Voice of The People

Editor of The Examiner

Sir,—May I be allowed through your valuable paper to express what I, and I feel many another citizen feels, respecting the arrest of A Oliver and his wife, and the sudden and untimely death of the former. I was glad to see in your Saturday's issue Mr. Kett's timely letter and his appeal to the hearts of his readers as to whether this matter should be dropped.

I am glad to say that this sorrowful tragedy robbed me of a few hours' sleep on Friday night. It stirred my heart more deeply than any of the war tragedies have done, for those who fight and fall in battle are young, and there is a certain amount of glory attached to their death, but this old couple were old, were helpless, 'yes' and friendless in a so-called Christian community, among farmers with well-filled cellars and every comfort. Now it is only natural for a person reflecting on these things to feel like asking, as the disciples of Jesus asked Him on one occasion when their indignation got the better of them, if they should call down fire from heaven on the offenders, but the answer came (ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of), so instead of judging harshly or being too severe I am going to relate a little romance that I was weaving around those poor old people. I feel there is room for a little more sentiment in our hard, practical, matter-of-fact lives. First of all I was thinking of the song, which begins like this

Darby dear, we are old and gray,
Fifty years since our wedding day.

And then I thought of some dear old couples I had known in the old land, in the flower-scented, sunny south of dear old England. I have a photo right here of two I have known all my life. They were taken a year or two back, the old lady was then 88 and her husband 96 years. They are sitting hand in hand outside of their pretty little cottage, sitting among the flowers, a typical (Darby and Joan). Then I thought of this poor old Darby and Joan, arrested and put into gaol, seventy years of age, given bread and water on an empty stomach, after a terrible, cold drive. It has been surmised that they were in an House of Refuge and that they ran away (a perfectly natural thing to do). It is more than probable they had in the past a comfortable home, but misfortune overtook them and they were placed in the Home. I can imagine the call of the country, and to have once again a little home of their own, no matter how humble, and to hear again the song of the birds in the morning and the shrill whistle of the frogs in the evening, and let me say it with reverence, the Divine voice of nature, calling loudly, and who, I ask, that are country born, can resist the temptation of that tender call, the wild longing for freedom, for justice, for love. This perhaps, explains the vagrancy charge, the endeavours on the part of this poor old man to get the necessaries of home for himself and wife? But his little dream rudely came to an end because he had to ask for a little help. "What's wrong with the world you ask." I will answer that question in four words. "Man's inhumanity to man." How inhuman were the men who figured in this case, the unmerciful church deacon who "phoned for the constable, the cowardly constable who bound a poor gray-haired old man, and lastly a cruel and unnecessary prison rule.

WHAT THE TOWNSHIPS SHOULD DO FOR THE PETERBORO' BATTALION

If Three and One Half Per Cent. of the Rural Population of the County Were to Enlist 563 More Men Would Be Added to the Ranks of the City and County Battalion.

The 93rd Peterborough City and County Battalion is now recruited to over 350 men, most of whom are drawn from the urban populations such as Peterborough, Lakefield, etc. In round numbers 1050 men are required for an infantry regiment. In order to make up the Battalion the Townships should furnish at least one half the men, and that they are not going to allow the honoured and solid name of the County of Peterborough to be eclipsed by any other district in Canada whatsoever goes without saying. The City of Peterborough itself has recruited so far six per cent. of its population, a very good and moderately high showing for Canada. In addition to what it has done it will have to contribute considerably more to the formation of the Battalion. This is also in addition to calls on it from time to time for artillery recruits and mounted infantry recruits, while many other men are working on war materials and cannot be spared. If the townships were to give three and one half per cent. of their respective populations to the formation of the battalion, the 93rd can be hand-somely completed for its work, but at 563 men divided as follows:

Belmont and Methuen	50
Asphodel	53
Burleigh and Anstruther	16
Chandos	23
Dummer	49
Douro	58
Ennismore	31
Galway and Cavendish	14
Harvey	38
N. Monaghan	68
Otonabee	94
Smith	87
	563

Three and one half per cent. is a low percentage. It would be well for the Reeves and Councillors and leading men in the several townships to at once take this matter up which so closely concerns our duty to the Empire and our good name and push as hard as they possibly can the battalion to this successful consummation

A DRY ONTARIO BY DOMINION DAY SLOGAN OF TEMPERANCE PEOPLE

"Billy" Sunday Addressed an Immense Concourse of People in the Arena, Toronto, Last Evening—Many Local Workers Attended

TORONTO, Nov. 23. — Canadians have heard from afar the "boom boom" of a big gun over the line, followed intermittently by the smashing of bars and the wail of the penitent. Last night this gun, Rev. "Billy" Sunday, opened fire on an immense concourse of people from all over Ontario in the Arena, who had assembled at a meeting under the auspices of the Committee of One Hundred, to inaugurate the campaign for a Dry Ontario by Dominion Day, 1916.

What went they out for to see—a reed? Yes, Billy Sunday is a mere wisp of a man; supple and easily shaken, but not by the idle wind. Slight of build, alert, athletic, he looks as if he could take the high jump with ease. "Shaken!" Yes, with emotion and passion, with hate of all that is hateful. His hatred of hell and the devil is almost Mephistophelian. He sneers at the devil chaffs him, laughs in his face. One half of his final prayer be addressed to Jesus in Heaven, and the other half, stooping over the platform be addressed to the lower regions.

Apostrophe to the Devil.

"I know you've got cold feet down there, devil — I don't blame you, devil; you've got pneumonia and your servants are applying a mustard plaster to your lungs—ha, ha, ha, ha!"

Mrs. Sunday is a wifely-looking woman, evidently well able to manage her volatile husband. "This is Mrs. Sunday, right here," said the leader of the singing, Homer Rodeheaver. Mrs. Sunday rose and thanked the audience for the reception of "my husband—we think he is pretty nice over in the States."

That Billy Sunday is all nerves was evident from his restlessness on the platform. During the preliminaries he could not sit down. He paced the floor in an absent, fidgety manner, now consulting his wife, now standing beside the singers and looking in their faces. His lips would move as if rehearsing some new diabolical invective. His head is not large and his nose is rather small, perhaps damaged, but his lips are tight and his chin pugnacious. His voice is hoarse and seems to be weak, or like a steam whistle with too much power on.

Makes Dry Figures Live.

The greater part of his speech was taken up with statistics about the liquor traffic; he made dry, lifeless figures dance and caper before his audience like marionettes. Arithmetic became infused with passion; dollars, bushels, gallons, jails were presented like personal entities.

Whatever may be said by the orthodox against Billy Sunday, he can not be accused of heresy. He believes the whole creed, and preaches it literally—vulgarly, may be, but his adjectives are almost all good English. He is an artist in lurid and vile adjectives.

"If you want to meet the filthiest and rottenest members of the community go to that hell-hole called the saloon. A man who keeps such a clearing-house for all the filth and rot on God Almighty's earth is so low down I would not wipe my feet on him."

The audience was made up of the churchgoing class, with a great many prominent city men. There were representatives of all the churches, and the chiefs of some of them. They all went frantic at the evangelist's gibes, flagrations, and gesticulations. "I stand for civil liberty, but to hell with personal liberty," and suiting the action to the word, he drove out with his right fist, and the impetus of the blow carried him along the platform till he was poised upon the edge like a trapeze artist, ready for a flight in mid-air.

At one end of the hall was a banner with the words of Mrs. Nellie McClung: "All we women ask is this war is that our sons may die sober." At the other end a banner declared: "We can equip one soldier to fight the Kaiser on what we spend for booze in Ontario every minute."

Billy Sunday's Help.

In announcing the collection, Mr. G. A. Warburton, the Chairman, said that Mr. Sunday had come to Toronto at his own expense, and was receiving nothing for his services. He had given one hundred dollars to the collection that afternoon.

Mr. Homer Rodeheaven, who led the singing sang a nigger temperance ditty, the refrain of which ran:

"I'm a temperance engine, don't you see,
Dem big brewers' horses can't run over me."

The tune had a vaudeville swing about it, and amused the audience who were invited to join in with whistles and railway noises.

The band of the 48th Highlanders played various Scottish airs in honour, it was stated, of Mrs Sunday, who claims to be a Scotch woman.

The hall was literally besieged at both meetings, and great crowds were unable to get near to the entrance. Special excursions were run from outside districts, but many of these people came in vain, as they were turned away.

The Finance committee of the Patriotic Fund will meet this evening at eight o'clock.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

The Brantford City Council by a unanimous vote, decided to submit a local option by-law in this city in January. Mr. James Haverson of Toronto, on behalf of the hotelmen, urged that no vote be taken, on the ground that many men were at the front who could not vote, and that the local hotelmen had lived up to the law.

THRASHED THE KAISER.

Boy of Fifteen Who Mastered a Bully of Nineteen.

References have recently been made to the fact that Emperor William II. once received a thrashing in Devonshire, England.

It was in 1873 that the present Kaiser was staying with his suite at an English hotel, and in practising rifle shooting used as target letters on a sign belonging to T. F. Price.

Mr. Price's son, the present owner of the hotel, tells the story. He saw what was going on, and told the young Prince to stop, as he was damaging his (Price's) father's property.

"Do you know who I am?" asked the present Kaiser, insolently.

"No, said the lad, then only 15 and he struck the royal guest, aged 19, and knocked him down. "I could have killed him," said Mr. Price, recently, "but his friends saw what was going on, and pulled me off. I wish I had the same opportunity again."

FUNERAL OF THE LATE T. E. BODDY

Former Peterboro' C. P. R. Ticket Agent, Who Died From Asphyxiation

The funeral took place in Streetsville yesterday afternoon from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Pope, of the late Thomas E. Boddy, former C.P.R. ticket agent, who died on Thursday last from gas asphyxiation. Deceased, who had just returned from Leamington, had rented a room on Wilton avenue, and was found dead early on Friday morning with the gas turned on full.

A superannuated official of the C. P. R. the late Mr. Boddy represented the company as ticket agent at the Union station, a position which he received through having been first train despatcher on the old Credit Valley Railway at Streetsville Junction.

Mr. Boddy went from Toronto to Peterborough, where he was city ticket agent of the company for over 20 years.

One daughter survives.

PATRIOTIC ADDRESS TO BELMONT CLUB

About forty members of the Belmont Club were favoured with a splendid after-dinner address in their rooms last night, delivered by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner. He spoke on "Patriotism," and as was anticipated handled the subject in a most inspiring and instructive manner. Rev. Canon Davidson, Honorary Major and Chaplain of the 93rd Battalion, also made a short address in which he congratulated the Belmont Club on their splendid showing in connection with recruiting. Fifteen out of a membership of sixty have enlisted and most of those men are now overseas.

Dr. Frank presided over the banquet for which Hooper was the caterer.

OXO

In the Kitchen

OXO CUBES are a most efficient aid to the cook. They are handy and uniform in size, flavour and food-value so that the right quantity to use can be judged to a nicety. It is surprising how quickly a cook can prepare her soups and savouries with OXO CUBES. The OXO CUBE way of cooking is as great an advance on old-fashioned methods as the electric cooker is on the coal-fire.

PRIMEAU BROS. ARE RETIRING FROM BARBER BUSINESS OF 43 YEARS

The announcement that Primeau Brothers have sold their barber business to Mr. Archie Moffat draws attention to the passing of another of the few remaining concerns that have link'd the old with the new Peterborough and witnessed the transformations nearly fifty years have produced.

Mr. Joseph H. Primeau and Mr. John J. Primeau opened their first barber shop in 1872 in the store now occupied by Mr. Jas. Lynch, or in that immediate vicinity. In 1877 they moved into the premises they are now vacating. Forty-three years is the entire span of their business experience, with a record of 38 years in one place. But these citizens have pursued the even tenor of a regular trade year in and year out, but with minor business variations. They have made many friends and a good reputation. It was natural that many of their customers were citizens who had reached the riper years with them. In a casual recollection Mr. J. J. Primeau said that Mr. J. C. Sullivan of Ashburnham was the only merchant who was in business here when the Primeau barber shop was first opened. There were six barber shops.

How to Increase Vitality.

The coarse, dark spots of grains, so food scientists declare, contain the elements that build bone and muscle, blood, brain, and increase vitality. Therefore it naturally follows that a coarse, dark cereal like Dr Jackson's Roman Meal is the food par excellence to increase vitality and put new life and vim into the system. Ask your physician about this food.

Positively do not stir Roman Meal porridge after making it. Set in a second basin or double boiler and keep your spoon out of it.

Sold by grocers at 10 and 25 cents.

IMMENSE SUM DUE FROM COX ESTATES

The Province of Ontario will be nearly $700,000 richer when the Cox estates, those of the late Senator Cox and the late E. W. Cox, pay the succession duties due the Treasury.

From the estate of the late Senator, as revised by Justice Middleton, the province will receive $425,000 in duty, or a little less than ten per cent of the estate. The estate of his son, E. W. Cox, will be called upon to pay $231,000, a total of $656,000. The saving to the province by the refusal of Hon. T. W. McGarry to accept the statement of assets first made and the consequent investigation, will be approximately $550,000.—Mail and Empire.

Committee Met Last Evening

To Consider the Proposal to Purchase the Exhibition Property

The special committee appointed by the City Council to consider the proposal to submit a by-law to the people at the January elections respecting the purchase of the Exhibition Grounds met last evening. Alderman Green, who is chairman of the committee had summoned a number of prominent merchants with a view of ascertaining their view of the proposal. After some discussion it was decided to wait upon the present owner of the property and see if he would remove all restrictions covering the sale of the property. As matters stand Mr. Morrow will not sanction the sale of the property unless the prospective owners agree to preserve it for exhibition purposes or for a park.

A Swedish scientist has advanced the theory that bearded grain, such as wheat, draws electricity from the air and that the plant is aided in its growth thereby.

FISKE O'HARA

The Popular Irish Tenor Coming in a New Play

Manager Augustus Pitou Jr., who has rightly gained a reputation for producing clean and wholesome dramas, has added another delightful play to his already long list, in the new comedy in which he will shortly present his popular star, Fiske O'Hara, in this city. "Kilkenny" is the new vehicle in which the well-known Irish tenor will be exploited this season, and it is claimed to be the best play in which he has yet appeared. The locale of the piece is Kilkenny, Ireland, during the early part of the nineteenth century, when that famous Irish city was the gathering place for the gentry of the country, and its annual carnivals the social event of the year in the Green Isle. Mr. O'Hara has a budget of splendid new songs which he will render during the action of the play.

Two Magazines At Nobel Works Blown to Atoms

Parry Sound Rocked by the Explosion Like an Earthquake --Troops Sent to Scene

PARRY SOUND, Nov. 23—The whole town was in a ferment of excitement last evening owing to two terrific explosions which rocked the town like berse earthquakes at about 7:30 last evening. At once it was known that the explosions occurred at the Nobel plant of the Canadian Explosives, Limited, situated 7 miles from here. For a time the greatest apprehension was felt by the people owing to the large number of men from here employed at Nobel.

Telegraph and telephone communications are intact, and the latest and most authentic news from the works is to the effect that two or more magazines have been blown up, probably designedly. The buildings were literally blown to atoms.

The magazines are located from a mile and a quarter to a mile and a half from the works proper, and as no men are at work in the magazines after dark the only loss of life, if any, may be one or two night watchmen.

It was impossible to obtain further particulars last night, but to-day the full extent of the damage will be known.

Major Storey, in charge of the overseas contingent in training here, is sending 150 soldiers to Nobel, and will throw a cordon around the entire works to keep them from further entry.

Has No Idea as to Cause.

Montreal, Nov. 23 — Mr. G. A. Staples, superintendent of the Canadian Explosives, Limited, Montreal, received a message to-night stating that an explosion had occurred at the Nobel plant, in the gun-cotton drying stove, that the building was wrecked, but that no person was injured. Supt. Staples said the company was manufacturing explosives for war purposes, and that no enemy aliens were employed at the plant. There are 1,500 employees.

Mr. Staples stated that he had not received any details of the explosion, and he did not know whether or not it had been caused by an alien enemy.

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough, and also heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

Lost Finger and Maybe Thumb in An Accident

Walter Barlow, an employee of the Peterborough Hamilton Co., lost the little finger of his left hand, which was deeply gashed across the palm in an accident yesterday. While adjusting a belt he slipped in some manner, and his left hand came in contact with a saw. The thumb was severely cut and its amputation may be necessary.

THREE IRISH BRIGADES FOR THE FIRING LINE

LONDON, Nov. 23—The Daily Chronicle yesterday announces that the 16th (all-Irish) Division, commanded by General Sir Lawrence Parsons, made up of Catholic Nationalists and Ulster Protestants, has completed training and is ready to go to the front in three brigades, which form the division.

The officers include the brother of John Redmond, the Irish Nationalist leader, Captain Wm. H. K. Redmond, M.P.; his son, Lieut. Wm. Archer Redmond, M.P., and his nephew Lieut. Wm. Raymond Redmond; Captain D. D. Sheehan, M.P., Captain Stephen Gwynne, M.P., Captain J. D. Esmonde, M.P., and Lieut. T. M. Kettle, M.P. The division was eager to enroll the services of Lieut. Robert Emmet, but his untimely death prevented it.

Captain Wm. Redmond, who is a nephew of the late General Patrick William Redmond, is in the Royal Irish Regiment, in which he served thirty-three years ago before entering the House of Commons. Two of his nephews—James and Thomas Dalton—are Lieutenants in the New South Wales contingent fighting in Gallipoli.

A Answer for the Kaiser.

John Redmond, who returned from the western battlefront, and will tomorrow night address a great recruiting meeting in London for the Irish Rifles, who covered themselves with glory at Loos, says:

"The completion of the new Irish division proves that the Kaiser made a flagrant miscalculation when he counted upon the hostility of the Green Isle toward Britain.

"Ireland," Mr. Redmond adds, "for the first time in history is eager to do her full duty to the Empire, which no longer stands for oppression, but for the independence of Belgium, Serbia and the small nation of Europe and for the freedom of the world."

The Last Resort.

"There's something in this world besides money."

"Yes," said the cynic, "there's the poorhouse."

Company Looking For Payment

Another Echo of the Arbitration Proceedings Between the City and Power Company

Mr. W. N. Tilley, K.C., and Mr. S. Johnston, K.C., representing the Peterborough Light and Power Company, yesterday made formal application at Osgoode Hall for payment out of the $100,000 paid into court by the city in connection with the arbitration between the city and company, in which the company was awarded $154,000 for their distributing system. Counsel for the company has also moved for a speedy hearing of the appeal of the city. Mr. M. K. Cowan, K.C., appeared on behalf of the city.

The motion was adjourned until the appeal is reached for argument.

150 GERMANS LEFT THEIR TRENCHES AND SURRENDERED

LONDON, Nov. 23—"If we are having a bad time," writes a member of the Dominion emigration staff from the front, "the Germans are having a worse time. One night 150 of them came over and gave themselves up, and told us that they were shelled out, flooded out, and could not get food. They were in a sorry state, thoroughly fed up. We have been supplied with Jack boots, jerseys and skin coats. These are marked 'Made in Canada' and are first class."

The writer says that before entering the hospital he was in trenches where the water was well over his knees. The trenches were continually falling in and exposed to an enfilading fire.

Willie's Explanation.

"Of course," said Willie's aunt bent on pointing a moral, "when you share an apple with your little brother you never take the largest half, do you?" "Most assuredly not," replied Willie. "There being but two halves to an apple there can be no largest."

War Loan Will Be Largely Over-subscribed

OTTAWA, Nov. 23—Several large additions to the Canadian war loan were announced by the Finance Department this afternoon. The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada has subscribed $500,000. Individual subscriptions from citizens of Ottawa so far received amount to $700,000. Among the subscribers, it is understood, are Sir Henry Drayton and Messrs. E. C. Whitney and J. R. Booth.

Mr. Mark Workman of Montreal has subscribed $100,000 with Gazette Printing Company for a similar amount. Earlier subscriptions included $1,000,000 from the Montreal City and District Savings Bank, and $500,000 from the Ogilvie Flour Mills Company of Montreal. Heading the whole list is a subscription from the Duke of Connaught for a large amount.

The expectation here is that the loan will be largely oversubscribed. The chartered banks are ready to take $25,000,000 of the loan, and the insurance companies $10,000,000. The policy of the department will however, be to encourage subscriptions by individuals, and to give first consideration where allotment is made.

A TRIBUTE TO THE DE LAVAL STAFF

The De Laval Magazine, a publication issued by the De Laval Company in the United States and Canada this month contains a group picture of the young ladies of the Peterborough office staff, with the following information:

It has been a good while since we have given any space to that important part of the organization which deserves to be remembered, although it does not stay with us long. TO-DAY'S MILITARY NEWS CONTINUED

By to-morrow it is expected that all members of the battalion will be fitted out.

The 83rd Battalion signallers were hard at work on the parade ground with their flags this morning. The members of the section are very enthusiastic over their work.

The local portion of the 83rd Battalion is growing steadily. B Company has now a strength of nearly one hundred men, while the signalling corps and pioneers of the battalion have been organized. In addition to the 350 recruits here, Capt. Bygott and Lieut. Carter have secured a number of men in the northern part of the country, while twelve Warkworth recruits were sworn in as members of the battalion on Saturday. If the Lindsay battalion, as well as the Durham and Northumberland battalions, are proceeded with, as announced, Peterborough will be in a fine position to go ahead with the completion of the 83rd Battalion. It is estimated that the staff of A and B Companies will be fully completed before the end of the year, judging by the steady influx of new recruits coming in.

The machine gun section will be the next department of the 83rd Battalion to be organized. Many of the members of the batta' a are anxious to join the machine gun squad when it is under way.

Capt. Neilson, the officer in command of "B" Company, Cobourg, of the 93rd Battalion, paid a visit to the Armouries to-day.

The Roy Studio will take a number of photographs of the officers and men of the 83rd Battalion for the Christmas number of the Examiner at 10.15 to-morrow morning at the Armouries. This notice is published for the benefit of the members of the battalion who may be off duty to-morrow and who might like to be included in the pictures. The Examiner's Christmas number this year will include a number of interesting military features, and nearly 300 pictures of Peterborough soldiers at the Front, in England and in training in Canada will be published.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Saunders, 208 Westcott St., was the scene of a pleasant gathering last evening, when the members of the A. S. K. Young Men's Bible Class of Knox Church said farewell to Pte. Sam. Saunders, one of their number who has answered the call of duty and is now a member of the Machine Gun Section of the 50th Battalion. Twenty members of the A. S. K. Class have been accepted for overseas service, including Pte. Jewell, who is now reported as being ill in a hospital in England. This is surely a proud record for a class with a membership of about sixty, one-third of the number in uniform.

Pte. Saunders is one of the many young men who were born in the United States, but who are now in the line for the country of their adoption. He was also five years in the United States Navy. Last evening, on behalf of his mother and father, he was presented with a handsome wrist watch, Mr. Harvey Henry, secretary of the Young Men's Class, reading a short address, and Mr. Stanley Byers, the president, making the presentation.

Pte. Saunders leaves on the evening train for Kingston, after three days' leave of absence. At present he expects he will be wintering in Brockville.

Rumour has it that a band will be organized in connection with the 100th Battalion.—Lindsay Post

The Lindsay Post says: Lieut.-Col. Fee has lost no time in getting into harness as C. O. of the 100th Victoria and Haliburton Battalion. He is already mapping out a big recruiting campaign, for the two counties, and it will not be his fault if the recruits don't come in thick and fast. "Let your next suit be khaki," will be the slogan, and a strong appeal will be made to the young men to rally to the colours.

Provisional Lieutenants Max Hamilton and Grant Mowat, the latter a son of School Inspector A. Mowat, and Sergt. Walter Wagstaff of the 57th Regiment will attend the next provisional school of infantry at Kingston which opens on December 1st.

Sergt. Major Sneese of the 57th Regiment, who has been on instructional duty at Barriefield camp during the training season, has been posted to the 77th Regiment, Ottawa, to carry on instructional work there. Sergt. Instructor Dawes of the 57th Regiment, will be stationed at Belleville for some time.

Eight Battalions Now.

An organized recruiting campaign by the Militia Department on a larger scale than ever before planned is being arranged. It was suggested that the 3rd Division, which extends from Cobourg to the Quebec border be divided into districts, possibly eight in number; and that a battalion be authorised in each of those districts. The officers of the battalion, known locally, would be able to recruit the 1,100 men for each battalion. Battalions are being authorized at several points and while the district idea has not been definitely used, the plan is based on the district idea.

From now on every officer appointed will have to act as a recruiting officer until his battalion is brought up to strength and every officer will therefore try to enlist his personal friends. This will bring men from the same district into the same company and battalion, whereas previous to this time men were liable to be drafted into any unit that happened to be mobilized at the time.

There are now eight battalions authorized in this division, the numbers and locations being: 58th Kingston, 77th Ottawa, 80th Belleville, 93rd Peterborough, 109th Lindsay, 130th Perth, 10th Durham, and 139th Northumberland. It is understood that battalions will also be authorized for Hastings to replace the 80th in Lennox and Addington, Frontenac and Leeds to replace the 58th, and in the Ottawa district to replace the 77th. These three battalions will likely be sent overseas in the spring as part of the Third Canadian Division at the front.

Some officers are of the opinion that too many battalions are being authorised and it will be practically impossible to secure the necessary number of recruits. If a battalion is authorised for Frontenac county alone it will be impossible to secure the required number of men without conscription and depleting the farms and industries.

There is a scarcity of senior officers in the country and in some cases officers on the reserve have been called out. Since the war broke out there have been large numbers of field officers sent over and this has practically depleted the ranks. In the Militia List practically all of the field officers' names are followed by an (E) meaning that they are serving in the Expeditionary Force. Hundreds of men from the civilian ranks are qualifying in the military schools as officers, but these men can not be given the experience necessary for the field officer, and so while there are sufficient subalterns what is now needed are officers of the higher ranks.

The Department will do its utmost to secure recruits from now on, and it is up to the public to help in the great undertaking of having every available single man between the ages of eighteen and forty-five put on the uniform to fight for his country.

The soldiers are well fed and are well quartered. The hospital, sanitary and other requirements are taken care of by experts and there are none but chronic knockers who can complain of the soldier's life. Every man who does his duty receives every consideration for it must be remembered that the officers are in it for exactly the same reason as the men, and with so many officers and men the former spectacular side of the officers' life is gone.

SIR SAM'S COMMENT.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23. — Commenting upon the disturbance between soldiers and police at London, Ont., last night, and on the recet developments in connection with purchase of supplies for the 33rd Regiment in that city, Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, this morning said:

"It is up to the men to trim the officers who have disgraced the regiment rather than venting their feelings on the police, and it is for the honest and self-respecting officers to purge themselves of those who have proved dishonest."

Sir Sam also intimated that there was likely to be a big shake-up of the officers of the 33rd Regiment.

ALLIES ADOPT MEASURES TO FORCE GREECE TO LIVE UP TO HER OBLIGATIONS

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Athens correspondent of the Hague News Agency in a despatch filed yesterday confirms the report that the Entente powers have declared a commercial blockade of Greece. The announcement to this effect, made in the form of a note issued by the British Legation at Athens, is given as follows.

"Because of the attitude taken by the Hellenic Government in regard to certain questions touching closely the security and liberty of action to which the allied troops have the right under the conditions of their disembarkation on Greek territory, the allied powers have deemed it necessary to take certain measures which will have the effect of suspending the economic and commercial facilities which Greece has received from them heretofore.

"It is not the intention of the allied powers to constrain Greece to abandon her neutrality, to maintain which, in their eyes, is the best guaranty of her interests. The allied Governments have been somewhat disturbed by certain allusions to eventual measures which, if taken by the Hellenic Government, would appear to them to be contradictory to assurances they have received.

"As soon as their doubts on that subject—due, no doubt, to a misunderstanding have been dispelled, the powers will be happy to remove the obstacles now opposed to the arrival of merchandise in Greece, and to accord any facilities which result from normal relations."

An Athens despatch to the Times says it is confirmed that the Entente Powers have imposed restriction on Greek trade. The allied fleets, it is added, have already begun searching all steamers flying the Greek flag in the Aegean and Mediterranean.

An Athens despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says that Earl Kitchener, after an audience with King Constantine lasting more than an hour, conferred with Premier Skouloudis and left Athens at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

All the London morning papers make a feature of an interview given by Eleutherios Venivelos, the former Greek Premier, in Athens, Nov. 6, in which he said:

"Two things seem quite clear to me—first that Germany is bound to lose in the long run; second, that the new battleground in the Balkans offers favorable conditions for the allies."

Talked With Staff Chiefs.

An Athens despatch to the Havas Agency says:

"After Premier Skouloudis called on Lord Kitchener, the British Secretary for war, at the British Legation yesterday, th Field Marshal had a two hours' conference with General Dousmanis, chief of the Greek general staff, and Colonel Metaxas, chief assistant on the general staff, at which the officers accompanying Lord Kitchener were present.

"Great importance is attached to this conference in political circles. The Government organ Embros affirms that the King and the Greek Government yesterday gave Lord Kitchener formal assurance that Greece in no case would take measures hostile to the Quadruple Entente, and that a conciliatory solution of the present differences would be reached.

"The Embros adds that those who had the opportunity of seeing Earl Kitchener after his visit to the King and Premier Skouloudis brought away the impression that the questions now in suspense have lost much of their acute character.

"The statement made by the Embros are not confirmed from any official course. Lord Kitchener and his staff left Athens late Saturday night.

The Greek Cabinet met to consider the situation, and a few hours should show that Greece's future attitude will be. The Greek Government again has affirmed its friendliness to the allies, but has not yet taken the the steps required to prevent Greece from being counted among the friends of the central powers.

The club is closed for the season.

MATTER OF OPINION.

"Mary"

Father's voice rolled down the stairs and into the dim and silent parlour.

"Yes, papa, dear."

"Ask that young man if he has the time."

A moment of silence.

"Yes, George has his watch with him."

"Then ask him what is the time."

"He says it is 11.45 papa."

"Then [illegible] if he doesn't think it about bed-time."

Another moment of silence.

"He says, papa," the silvery voice announced impersonally, "he says that he rarely goes to bed before 1.00 but it seems to him that it is a matter of personal preference merely, and that if he were in your place he would go now if he felt sleepy."

Major Burritt, the Chief Engineer of this Division, was in Peterborough last night, and went to Lindsay this morning. He is expected back in the city to-night to take over the contracts in connection with the Armouries. All preparations for the housing of the troops in barracks are practically complete. To-day the new recruits were busy in filling their ticks with straw, and each man's bed is now ready for use. Blankets for the men are in the stores, the kitchen staff has been appointed, and came through the test satisfactorily last week, and little remains to be done when the word comes to take up quarters in the Armouries.

From present indications the 109th Battalion at Lindsay will be "Victoria and Haliburton" in name only. The officers of the battalion are being sent out recruiting in all directions and two of them passed through to-day on their way to Brockville, where they will recruit for the "Lindsay" Battalion. Lindsay and Cobourg are in a class by themselves when it comes to grabbing men from all over the map and then claiming them—bona-fide home brews.

Mrs. T. J. Parker, Oxford Street, was hostess last evening at a social gathering at her home in honour of her son, Pte. Ernest Parker, and other members of the 93rd Battalion C.E.F., prior to their going into barracks for the winter.

About twenty young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parker, where they spent a very pleasant evening at cards and dancing.

Among the members of the 93rd Battalion who were present were Ptes. L. Franks, Gordon Davis, Norman Saxby, Victor Dallin, and Ernest Parker.

Corp. H. Wood of A Company, 93rd Battalion, is on duty at the recruiting office. Corp. A. Tobin, who has been on recruiting duty, has returned to A Company.

KINGSTON, Nov. 23.—Col Hem ming announced this morning that he had some fifteen positions on the St. Lawrence Canals open and that they would be given to returned soldiers. All those in the Convalescent Home are to be examined, and if there are any who are fit for home duty they are to be given positions on the canals until the fifteen vacancies are filled.

He ordered that under no circumstances were the convalescent soldiers to be discharged until it was assured that they had some position to go to. Col. Hemming is determined that the men will be well treated and he will leave no stone unturned to give them a good start in whatever life they are to choose.

ATHENS, Nov. 23.—Another conference has been arranged between King Constantine and Denys Cochin, the special French emissary in Greece, it was announced to-day. Cochin is armed with fresh arguments why it will be hopeless for Constantine to attempt to resist the Allies' demands.

LONDON, Nov. 23. That any Greek ships are being seized or held at British ports or that any blockade of the Greek coast has been established was officially denied by the Foreign Office to-day.

PARRY SOUND, Nov. 23. It has been proven that nobody was hurt at the Canadian explosives plant at Nobel last night, when seventy thousand pounds of gun cotton blew up from some mysterious cause, although the earth shook as from an earthquake for a fifty miles' radius. Soldiers who went out to guard the ruins returned this morning. The plant will be rebuilt immediately.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 23.—"Let us send our enemies back with bloody heads until they are on their knees, which promises to be soon," the Kaiser is quoted in Berlin despatches to-day as urging the troops in an address at an inspection of the forces under General Woyrsch.

The scene of the inspection is not mentioned, but Woyrsch, according to latest advices, is serving with Marshal Von Mackensen in the Serbian campaign.

ROME, Nov. 23. The Italians are closing still more closely around Goritz to-day. All efforts have been concentrated on the city's capture. The Austrians have strengthened their ranks, but the Italian troops continue to take position after position. Austrian batteries have been silenced in various places.

LONDON, Nov. 23. Tod Sloan, former jockey, was arrested here to-day on a deportation order from the Home Secretary, under the Defence of the Realm Act. He will be sent back to the United States immediately.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The British War Office has denied the story from Berlin that the Turks have repulsed forces of 170,000 British, including Canadians and Australians, who had reached within ten miles from Bagdad, and were driven back thirty miles. The War Office says no such force was ever near Bagdad, and what ground has been taken in that neighbourhood is securely held by the British. It is not believed that the Canadians are with this force except, possibly, a field hospital.

She will be removed to the County House of Refuge to-day or to-morrow.

Practices For The 57th Band

The officers of the 57th Regiment have secured practice quarters for the 57th Regimental Band, and the rehearsals will be resumed on Thursday night of this week. Although many members of the band are now wearing khaki, some new members have been added, including Mr. A. Poole, a trombone player from Ottawa.

WHO BEATS THIS?

Here's a question worth answering. What Ontario cities, towns, and villages have the best records of recruits who at the time of enlisting were actually resident? Williamstown, Glengarry, believes it holds the record for small villages. Out of a population of 250, Williamstown has already sent 25 men, and will send more. What village betters that? The Globe.

Peterborough hasn't quite reached the ten-to-one rates of recruiting, but it has done pretty well. Taking our population at 20,000, we have enlisted one soldier to every fifteen of the population.

Swartz's Fire Sale a Regular Holocaust of Prices

Judging by the handbills printed in fiery red ink, telling all about the Fire Sale at A. Swartz's Clothing store, George street, it looks as if you might never be able again to buy clothing, dry goods and house furnishings as favourably as you can during the sale which starts tomorrow. The fire, which broke out over the store, did very little damage, but water and smoke was all over the place. But at the same time Mr. Swartz realized that his stock was not as valuable to him after a fire as before, and his greatest loss was that shoppers would not pay the same prices for it. And he decided to sacrifice the stock, fixtures, and quickly put on another entirely new stock in its place. The amazing prices in the red bills tell the rest of the story. 1d-1w

WEDDING BELLS

DORIS—QUINN.

The marriage of Miss Mary Quinn, and Mr. Nicholas Doris, both of Keene, was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning at seven o'clock, Rev. Father McGinnity officiating. The bride was attended by Miss Annie Boland, while Mr. Michael Kennealey supported the groom.

Mr. and Mrs. Doris will reside in Keene.

O'DONAGHUE—HEENAN.

At eight o'clock this morning at St. Peter's Cathdral a very pretty wedding took place, when Miss Lilian Cecilia Heenan, daughter of Mr. Patrick Heenan, 799 Water street, was united in marriage to Mr. Robt. Leo. O'Donaghue of this city. The ceremony was performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, who also celebrated the nuptial mass. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Pearl Heenan, while Mr. Joachin Anglesey was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Donaghue will reside in Peterborough.

WEST—McENTEE.

St. Peter's Cathedral was the scene of a pretty wedding this morning at nine o'clock when Miss Mary McEntee, daughter of Mrs. M. McEntee, 641 Reid street, became the wife of Mr. John H. West, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Phelan in the presence of many friends of the bride and groom. The bride looked very pretty in her tailored suit of navy blue with at to match. She was assisted by Miss Margaret Dwyer, as bridesmaid, who was similarly attired. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Alva Barker of Toronto. The groom's gift to the bride was a gold pendant and to the groomsman a pearl tie pin.

After the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's mother. Mr. and Mrs. West leave at 5.40 p.m. for Toronto, where they will reside. Out of town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. West, and Misses Mabel and Autumn West, Orillia, and Mr. Donald McArthur, Orillia.

WALSH—DORRIS.

A quiet but pretty wedding took place this morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, at 6.15, when Miss Hanna Dorris, of 232 Wescott Street, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dorris, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Captain J. J. Walsh, of Young's Point. Rev. Father J. V. McAuley, officiating.

Miss Mary Fitzgerald, cousin of the bride, was the bridesmaid, while Mr. Austin Walsh, brother of the groom, was the best man.

The bride was married in her travelling suit of navy blue with black velvet picture hat, with white fur trimmings, and wearing mink furs.

After the ceremony the bridal party adjourned to the home of the bride, where a dainty wedding breakfast was served by Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dorris, Mrs. J. Daly assisting, after which the bride and the groom left by the 8.20 G.T.R. train for Toronto.

On their return they will reside at 232 Wescott street. The bride and groom received many beautiful and costly presents, also cheques from her brothers and sister at a distance, and also from the Walsh family.

OBITUARY

MRS. ALBERT E. METHERAL.

The death occurred Sunday night in Nicholls' Hospital of Mrs. Albert E. Metheral, 268 Reid street after a short illness. The deceased who was fifty years of age, was formerly Miss Eleanor Annie Fuller, she had lived all her life in Peterborough. The late Mrs. Metheral was a woman of many estimable qualities who endeared herself to all with whom she came in contact. Her death will be regretted by a host of friends who will extend their heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. The late Mrs. Metheral was an ernest and faithful member of All Saints' Church. Her husband, one son and one daughter are left to mourn her loss. The son is Sgt. Max Metheral, with the 39th battalion now at Shorncliffe, England, and the daughter is Miss Helen Metheral, residing at home. Three brothers, Messrs. Mortimer Fuller in Wisconsin, and Hugh and Percy Fuller of this city, and one sister Mrs. J. Tully, Calgary, Alta., also survive her.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at 3 o'clock from the family residence to Little Lake cemetery. Services at the house at 2.30.

Used To Pick Victims

"Having run over and killed a number of people and presented his company with a number of lawsuits he was finally discharged for reckless driving. He then became a motorman on a trolley line, but did not take kindly to the new work. One day as he was grumbling over his fallen fortunes a friend said:

"'Oh, what's the matter with you? Can't you run down just as many people as ever?'

"'Yes,' said the exchauffeur, 'I can, but formerly I could pick and choose.'" their buttons in breaking, a few heads succeeded in breaking their soldiers in the cells. Another was attested by the military police, a large squad of which was sent from headquarters.

Police Efforts Ineffectual

The military police were totally inadequate for the occasion. They were aided by a large force of the police, but they were powerless to break up the crowd. In subsequent rallies with the city police the rioters were driven down Richmond street, but were soon back at the call of the ringleaders. The city police, however, had no more fights up to midnight. Even later plate glass windows were broken.

The military police had most of the trouble toward midnight making several ineffectual attempts to arrest men who refused to move on. At one o'clock a bugler appeared on the scene, but neither the bugle call nor the commands of Col. McCammond, Chief of Staff, and the staff and other officers had any effect, but half an hour the rioters demanded the release of the prisoners. At 11.40 one company, and this was followed by the end of the disturbance. Afters soon afterward it ceased.

A Family of Brothers

"Yes, and the principal of the young ladies' seminary, to the proud parent you ought to be very happy, my dear sir, to be the father of a large family, all the members of which appear to be so devoted to one another."

"Large family! Devoted!" gasped the old gentleman, in amazement. "What on earth do you mean, ma'am?"

"Why, yes, indeed," said the principal, beaming through her glasses. "No fewer than eleven of Edith's brothers have been here to-day to take her out, and she tells me she expects the full one with the three aged ones to-morrow." Tid-Bits.

Mentioning His Name

Mark Twain was lunching one day with a friend in a cafe. Two overdressed young men entered, and the first said, in a loud voice:

"Waiter, bring me some lobsters, a bottle of white wine, and a chop. Just mention my name to the chef, too, so that everything will be done to my liking."

The second said:

"Bring me some soup with peas, and tell the chef who it's for."

Mr. Twain gave his order a moment later. He said, with a wink at his companion:

"Bring me a half dozen oysters, and mention my name to each of them."—Tit-Bits.

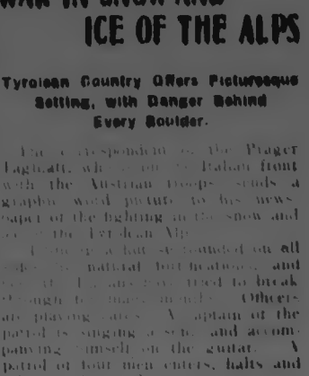
WAR IN SNOW AND ICE OF THE ALPS

Tyrolean Country Offers Picturesque Setting, with Danger Behind Every Boulder.

The correspondent of the Prager Tageblatt, who is on the Italian front with the Austrian troops, sends a graphic word picture of the fighting in the snow and ice of the Tyrolean Alps.

"Fighting is not confined to all sides to natural but to snow, and one of the greatest need to break through is mine-mantles. Officers are playing cards. A captain of the patrol is singing a song and accompanying himself on the guitar. A patrol of four men enters, halts and salutes. One of them, a carpet manufacturer in civil life, wears a silver medal conferred for bravery in the campaign against the Russians in Galicia. Three rifle bullets can be seen in his coat, and it is a miracle that he was not even wounded. Another of the men has his face covered with blood. They relate their experiences.

It appears that the four men were surprised by several hundred Italians, and taking refuge in the dark behind big boulders they returned the fire of the Italians. Collectively that they put some to flight. Only one of the four is wounded, and he was struck by a splinter of stone which rebounded from the rock.



WHEN the Cinematograph Theatres reopen we shall be ready to supply them on England Prince, Belgium and other theatres of war what is delight to your silver threads to receive a PICTURE of some dear friend left behind.

Hastings Boy Returns Home From the Front

Pte. Stephen Hawkins Arrived Home on Saturday Evening—News of Hastings and Vicinity

HASTINGS, Nov. 23.— Lieut. W. Thomson has been spending a week in the surrounding district endeavouring to secure recruits for the 93rd battalion.

Despite the inclement state of the elements on Friday night, a goodly number turned out to the patriotic concert in the Town Hall, Westwood, and report a good programme.

Pte. Stephen Hawkins, who has been invalided home from the front, arrived here on Saturday evening and was met at the station by a goodly number of the citizens, but owing to the uncertainty of his arrival, the demonstration was not as enthusiastic as it would otherwise have been. However, his friends are glad to see him once more.

As the result of the severe wind and rain storm of Friday the Bell Telephone Co. have found it necessary to send out workmen to repair the rural lines.

The I.O.D.E. are putting on a ladies' minstrel show on Friday evening of this week. A good programme is being prepared.

The November meeting of the W.M.S. of the Methodist church was held on Thursday last in the parlour of the church. The ladies are preparing a number of quilts, etc., to be sent to some needy mission.

Dr. T. B. Edmison is in Kingston for a few days, prior to sailing for overseas service. The Dr. is breaking up house and expects to sail for the front in the course of a week or ten days.

Four large barrels of jam were packed and sent to the boys at the front by members of the I.O.D.E. recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace have returned from their honeymoon trip and are preparing to settle down to the realties of housekeeping.

The news has come to hand that Corp. Ben Hicks has been wounded and is now in the hospital as a result.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Gibson of Campbellford, visited in town last week.

Rev. A. K. Edmison of Keene, spent a day last week with his brother, Dr. Edmison here.

Mr. F. Hill of Wabhago, spent a few days last week with friends here.

Mr. John Warner returned last week after spending the summer in the west.

Mr. J. A. Cameron of Peterborough, paid us a visit during the week.

Miss C. Shorter was in Campbellford on Tuesday.

Mr. J. R. Smith of Belleville, spent Wednesday in Hastings.

Mr. Stephens of Campbellford, was in town on Sunday.

Dr. Huycke of Castleton, was in town during the week.

Mr. Runciman, representative of the Bissell Co. of Elora, was in this section a few days ago in the interest of the firm.

Mr. T. Crowley took a business trip to Buffalo during the past week.

Mr. M. Elliott of Dummer gave us a call a few days ago.

Mr. Aubrey Donsee is laid up with a sore hand, having received a severe bruise while at work in the planing mill. It is hoped, however, that nothing serious may follow.

The members of the Methodist Sunday school are beginning practice for the annual Christmas concert to be put on on Christmas night.

A number of our people are suffering from severe colds, due no doubt to the changeable weather.

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

AS WE GROW OLDER

our minds are quite as active as in former years but our strength does not respond when we need it most; perhaps the kidneys are weak, the liver torpid, rheumatic pains or stiffened joints beset us, and we cannot easily throw off the colds that winter brings.

What we need is the rich cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion to renew the blood and carry strength to every organ of the body, while its glycerine soothes the respiratory tract, and its hypophosphites strengthen the excitable nerves.

Scott's Emulsion is a scientific oil-food, of unusual benefit to those past fifty years—particularly during the colder seasons, it imparts warmth and creates strength. One bottle will prove its worth. No harmful drugs.

Have Taken Two Forts on the Isonzo Line

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 24. — Carrying the Austrian positions between Salventino and Podgora by a smashing charge, the Italians have taken two forts defending the Podenora bridge, on the Isonzo line, according to news received here to-day from the front. A thousand Austrian prisoners fell into the Italians' hands. Besides the two forts captured, two more were demolished by the Italian artillery. A terrific bombardment of the whole Austrian-Isonzo front continues to-day. Every day sees an increase in the violent Italian assault on Goritz. Shells have literally been showered upon the Austrian position at the bridgehead. Both sides are steadily strengthening their forces. The losses have been enormous. The Italians have suffered more heavily than the Austrians, fighting in defended positions.

TROOPS FOR GALLIPOLI

Constantinople Reports the Arrive of Allies' Transports

CONSTANTINOPLE, via Berlin and Amsterdam, Nov. 24. — Efforts by the allies to land reinforcements on Gallipoli peninsula have been checked, apparently by guns of heavy calibre sent to the Dardanelles from according to an official report which says: "Near Anafarta our patrol destroyed trenches being constructed by the enemy and captured 500 bags of sand and a quantity of wire.

"Our artillery drove off transports approaching the coast at Ari-Burnu. On Sunday we drove off an enemy torpedo destroyer attempting to enter the Dardanelles."

ZURICH, Nov. 24. — A telegram from Bucharest states that the Germans are sending two 42-centimetre guns to Turkey for use at the Dardanelles.

The Bishop of Toronto will hold a confirmation service in St. John Baptist Church on Sunday, Dec. 5th.

Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie gave a very enjoyable tea at "The Grove" on Tuesday afternoon in honour of her sister, Mrs. Hewitt, before her departure for Des Moines.

Mr. and Mrs. Marling are moving this week into "Uplands," where they will reside for the winter.

To Be Benevolently Neutral is the Hope of Greece, Says the King

Political Situation Seems Easier as Result of Kitchener's Audience With King Constantine, Although Tension is Not Altogether Relaxed.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—King Constantine told Earl Kitchener that he wished to continue an attitude of benevolent neutrality toward the Allies. So says the Athens correspondent of the Chronicle, who adds that he learns the British War Secretary was impressed and gratified by his interview. The despatch says:

"One result of his visit, his audience with the King and his interview with the Premier, is that the political situation seems easier, although the tension is not entirely relaxed. While the Government has not made any official communication on the subject, it is certain that an accord can be reached between Greece and the Entente Powers. Athens is optimistic, and says that serious misunderstandings will be avoided. The Greek Cabinet, it is reported from trustworthy sources, is ready to assure the Allies that a safe retreat will be given to British, French or Serbian troops if they are forced back over the border."

Safeguard Retreat.

The London Mail correspondent wires:

"M. Rallis, Minister of Justice, who is the guiding spirit of the Skouloudis Cabinet, informed me on Nov. 18 that in the event that the Serbian, French and English troops were forced across the frontier, no attempt would be made to disarm them. 'We will even go to the extent of establishing a cordon of troops to safeguard the retreat of the troops,' he said.

"I asked M. Rallis if no German menace would alter that resolution. With great excitement and gesticulating M. Rallis replied: 'It would be senseless to imagine it when you have the guns of your fleet levelled at our cities.'

"'But suppose,' I asked, 'Allied troops do not wish to retire to the interior of the country?'

"M. Rallis replied: 'They can dig trenches and defend themselves.'"

British Attitude Annoys.

Rallis said Greece would demobilise in 24 hours if the Allies left Saloniki. He also complained of the "disgraceful attitude" of the British Government, and press toward Greece. He said: "The only thing we want is peace, and you force us to make war. You are starving us. Two more wheat vessels were stopped by you to-day. You want us to succor you when no English soldiers shed their blood for Serbia, when scarcely an English rifle has been fired. Your Government has piled fault on fault, delay on delay, and now when you have only a few thousand troops to help us, you want to force us to step in and die. We do not wish to be another Belgium or Serbia."

Greeks Are Afraid.

"Every day I spent in Greece," states the correspondent, "it was made clear to me that the whole situation might be summed up in a single word of fear. From the most ragged boatman in the Piraeus to King Constantine himself, the Greek people get up in the morning with a prayer, 'Let there be no war to-day.'

"The King does not love Germany. He offered to join the Allies in April, when Germany had her hands full and the Serbians were able to cooperate, on condition that the Dardanelles expedition should not be undertaken, but instead, an advance be made through Thrace. This suggestion was not accepted, so it should, in justice, be remembered that the position to-day is different with German and Bulgarian troops approaching Monastir. The King has now gained implicit belief in German power.

Comforting Thought.

"They tell me,' he said, 'I am between the devil and the deep sea, and may as well throw in my lot with the Allies, whose pressure can be immediate. That is all very well, but France and England, whatever happens, will never be too severe with my country, and Germany will be implacable, and my duty is to save my country the horrors of Belgium.'"

POTATOES MAY SELL FOR TWO DOLLARS A BAG

The Toronto Trade Looks For Much Higher Prices Before February—New Brunswick Supply Shows a Falling Off

This remarkable price has not yet been realized on Toronto market, but it is the opinion of one man who is close to the potato trade of this city that before February 81.75 per bag, and probably $2 will be received by the farmers for what they have to sell. There is a lot of poor stuff that will be worked off, and will tend to keep the prices down, but before spring it is quite certain that those who have to buy will have to peel off a larger layer from their roll than will be found pleasing.

Alberta may supply us with some potatoes, though we naturally look to New Brunswick for the supply. Unfortunately the same conditions prevailed in New Brunswick as in Ontario, but in some parts of Alberta a good crop was secured.

"The conditions governing the production of potatoes have this year been as bad as last year they were good," reports the Dominion Government. The yields are as follows:

	Bushels	Acres	Yield Per acre
1915	62,806,000	478,600	131
1914	86,672,000	675,900	130

"Not since the average of 119 bushels in 1910 has the rate per acre been so low: it is 27 bushels below the average of 130 bushels for the five years 1910-14.

"In Ontario, where the record yield of over 167 bushels per acre was obtained last year, the average yield per acre this year is not more than 98.6 bushels, the lowest yield on record for the Province.

"In other Provinces the potato yield is also poor, excepting in Alberta and in British Columbia. In the former Province the total yield is 5,188,000 bushels from 27,300 acres, an average of 189.8 bushels per acre, in the latter the yield is 3,958,000 bushels from 16,000 acres, an average of 247 bushels. In both Provinces the yield per acre is larger than in any year since 1911, when the respective yields were 211.6 and 252 bushels.

"For all Canada the quality is 84 per cent. of the standard as compared with 90 per cent. last year; but in Ontario the quality is down to 66 per cent. as compared with 101 per cent. last year. In Prince Edward Island the quality is 81; in Nova Scotia it is 76, and in New Brunswick it is 88 per cent. In Alberta the quality is good with 91 per cent. and in British Columbia it is 84 per cent.

"The average price per bushel to the grower works out to 57 cents for Canada, 76 cents for Ontario and 53 cents in Alberta. Potatoes are very generally reported as affected with rot and blight, especially in Ontario, and the indications are that the keeping qualities this year will be very poor."

What Does It Mean?

Suppose potatoes actually reach $2 a bag or more before February what will be done? What will the Government do? Will it seize the situation and help bring potatoes across the prairies by arranging a reasonable freight rate, and in so doing link the East and the West together? Will it help distribute the crop properly and lighten the burden where it is a burden, and help the producer sell where there is a surplus crop?

There is a great opportunity here for the new Marketing Commission to do something practical and helpful. The British Columbia Government sends a train across a continent to sell its supplies. That is practical

Can the Ottawa Government and its appointees not find something practical in the potato situation to lure it away from exhortation for a while?

The U. S. Situation.

In the United States the yield per acre has been about average this year, being 96.3 bushels, but the total crop was over 45,000 bushels below last year. Potatoes sold on Nov. 1 at 90 cents per bushel. Weekly Sun.

ITALIAN TROOPS WILL STRIKE FOR SERBIAN FRONTIER

LONDON, Nov. 24. — Italian troops now landing on the Albanian coast will strike at once across the country for the Serbian frontier, according to Swiss advices to-day. The Italian plan is understood to be to strike at the flank of the Austro-German forces engaged in the southern drive through Serbia. Montenegrin forces are expected to co-operate with them. The march across Albania is but forty or fifty miles, but will be attended with great difficulty owing to the mountainous country, add the absence of roads.

It is said that at least 30,000 persons within the United States have taken up golf for the first time this year.

Kidney Trouble?

The waste material which the Kidneys are intended to remove from the blood, if allowed to accumulate in the system, poison the blood and thus produce deleterious effects.

If from over-work, exposure to cold, or some local injury, the kidneys become congested or inflamed and cannot perform their functions, the system becomes filled with uric poisons.

Whenever a dull, heavy pain is felt over the region of the kidneys for any length of time, accompanied by a sallow complexion, loss of appetite, decrease of weight, and a puffy condition under the eyes and in the ankles, a chronic inflammation of the kidneys must be suspected, and if not relieved promptly chronic Bright's Disease will certainly develop.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, sold everywhere at 25c and 60c, which is a Diuretic as well as an Aperient, will carry out of the system the poisonous material which the kidneys cannot get rid of, and will relieve the congestion of the kidneys.

Gordon Craig

Soldier of Fortune——by Randall Parrish

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

Possibly even now I was under surveillance. The negro had left the cabin, I knew, but where was Herman? Bronssard was in charge of the deck, and hence this would be the first mate's watch below. Impressed with this disconcerting thought, I emerged again into the main cabin. The stateroom doors were all closed, and I had to guess which was the German's. I was sure, however, that Bronssard occupied the first on the port side. I had heard him open that door while talking to the steward, and it was highly probable the first mate had the apartment opposite. Judging from the position of the doors, these would be larger than the other staterooms, and if Herman was the real navigator of the boat he would require good quarters. I listened at the door, but heard nothing, then, rendered desperate by the delay, tried the knob cautiously. The door was unlocked, opening noiselessly. A glance convinced me the room was unoccupied, and I stepped inside.

Instantly my mind jumped to a conclusion—the first mate was not on board; he was ashore with the boat party, and Henley was entirely alone. He had taken advantage of the opportunity. But what could I do? If I broke down the door into his cabin the noise would be heard on deck, and besides, the fellow was armed. The only result of such an effort would be my own imprisonment, leaving her in more ruthless straits than before. Without knowing why I peered into the bathroom connected with Herman's stateroom. It was small, but perfect in arrangement and, to my surprise, revealed a second door. In an instant I understood—this was not Herman's private bath, but was also used by the captain. That second door led to the after cabin. I was there in two strides, my ear at the crack listening. Nothing reached me but the murmur of a voice, the words indistinguishable, yet this was sufficient to convince me that I was on the right trail. The two were together, and here was an opportunity for me to reach them unobserved. Slowly, using every precaution to avoid noise, I turned the knob and opened the intervening door a scant inch. I caught a glimpse of the interior.

"You have tripped me here—you—you brute!" I heard her say.

"Well, what of it?" insinuatingly. "Why shouldn't it be me, my dear, as well as the other?"

"What do you mean? Do you connect me with Gordon Craig?"

"Of course," and he laughed. "Why shouldn't I, please? You came with him from the north, did you not—travelling as his wife? I happen to know your history."

"Perhaps you think you do," she said, now in full control of herself. "But you are going to learn your mistake. I am here under unpleasant circumstances, yet I am not subject to your insult. I refuse to answer you or remain in your presence." She stepped aside, leaving free passage. "You will unlock that door."

"Hardly that," and I could see his fingers shut down on the top of the desk. "It takes more than a few words to change me. Really, I like you better than I did. You are decidedly pretty now you are angry. Besides, what have I to be afraid of? There is no one but us in this part of the ship; I fixed that up before I went after you; even your friend Craig is mooning around somewhere on deck. I'm captain of the Sea Gull, and there's not a rapscallion on board who would risk his skull to help you. Even Craig wouldn't; he even told me himself you were nothing to him."

"He—he told you that!"

"He certainly did—in this room. Come, now, what is the use of being such a cat?" He took a step forward, but she never moved.

"Don't touch me," she said in a tone that stopped him. "I am a woman, but I can defend myself."

"That is the worst thing you can do—threaten me," he said sharply. "I never take that from man or woman. See here! Do you realize where you are—how completely you are in my power? The door is locked, and you haven't any weapon. Don't try to fool me!"

"I have told you once," she said earnestly, "not to touch me."

"I'll take a chance. You're worth it!"

I saw her struggle to break free, and then out of the shadow I leaped at him, both hands seeking his throat. There was to be no alarm, no shooting, if it could be avoided. The very impetus of my rush sent him staggering and left her helpless on the deck, yet I got grip on his collar, choking back the first cry and struck him once, a half arm jolt, which would have sent him sprawling but for the cabin wall. Yet he rallied so quickly as to overcome this advantage, judging his from his size. I was uncertain as to fighting ability, for he was all muscle, swift in movement as a cat, squirming out of my grasp before I could close firmly. My fingers were wrenched from his throat, yet the fellow made no outcry, realizing, doubtless, it would not be heard. His eyes blazed with hate, merciless, vindictive, and he struggled like a fiend to break free. I saw the girl, still dazed from her fall, struggling to her feet, with face uplifted, then my every consideration was riveted on my antagonist. This was to be no boy's play, no easy victory. His muscles were like iron, his movements so quick and unexpected as to put me on the defensive. I could only hold tight, braced for the strain, yet forced back, in spite of every effort, inch by inch across the floor, my feet tangled in the rug. Neither could strike nor kick. I was weaponless, and I dare not release his arms for fear he might possess a gun. But I managed to swing him sideways, the two of us tripping over the chair, and coming down heavily on the deck. By some luck I landed on top and before he recovered from the shock had wrenched one arm free, locking my fingers in his throat.

He squirmed under me like an eel, but could not break the grip, his face purpling, until he lost all power. Fierce as the battle had been, I retained sufficient sense to loosen my death grip while the man still breathed, lifting my head sufficiently to glance about. My own breath came in gobs, and the perspiration almost blinded me.

"Bring me something to tie him with," I said brokenly. "Anything; yes, that belt will do."

She tore it from the hook on the wall and thrust it into my hands. With a single movement I had it buckled securely about his arms, and was free to sit up and stare about. A cord from the portiere curtain draping the bathroom entrance completed his lashings.

"By ——, Craig," he snarled, "you'll both wish you'd killed me before you're done with this job. What chance have you got to get away?"

"That is for me to decide," I answered. "But if you open your mouth again I'll gag you. Now, stop it. The first word you utter will mean a handkerchief in your mouth."

I stooped down and dragged him to one side. As I straightened up again she was facing me.

"How did you get here?"

"I found my way through the connecting bathroom yonder."

"Then—then, we can escape in the same manner."

"I hardly think that will be necessary. I'll go through our friend's pockets for his keys." I turned him over and began the search. "Ah, a revolver! I thought probable—in protection against a woman, you see! Here are keys; now let's see what they fit."

The third one tried unlocked the door, but even as I tried them in the lock my mind swiftly reviewed the situation. It must be open war from now on. Henceforward we could expect no mercy on board. Yet how was it possible to escape, or avoid discovery? To attempt leaving the Sea Gull before dark would be suicidal. Yet there was a chance that what had occurred in this cabin could be kept concealed for a few hours, until darkness gave us better opportunity for successful action. The memory of what Henley had said to me the evening before—that he was only technically in command; that for days at a time he never appeared on deck in uniform, give no old think. If his could be kept absolutely secret in the cabin, we would be given our chance. There were but two points of danger to be guarded against—Herman and the steward. The former, when he returned from shore, might seek him for final orders, and the latter, if he failed to appear in the cabin for the regular meal, would endeavor to learn his desires. I would have to guard against these contingencies, and, with the first in mind, I stepped across to the bathroom, and was gratified to learn that the door, leading into the mate's stateroom, could be locked on the inside. With this private approach barred, I felt confident of being able to guard the single entrance remaining.

"Well, what can we do?" she asked when I returned.

"Keep the fellow tied and wait for night," I answered soberly. "That is our only chance. The mate is ashore. We are lying in the cove of a small island off the Florida coast waiting for darkness and a chance to slip through into southern waters."

"Do you know where this boat is bound?"

"Yes; Spanish Honduras. We are loaded with munitions of war," I laughed. "I was to be a general down there. I had to play a part. But you received my note?"

"Yes, and it helped me wonderfully, although even then I scarcely comprehended why all this pretense was necessary. Surely you do not believe this man is Philip Henley, that—that I have told you a lie?"

"No, I do not," I answered earnestly. "But he has shown me evidence of his identity which would have convinced me under other circumstances—letters and pictures. I will show them to you, for I know where they are kept in the desk. No evidence would shake my faith in you, and I am certain now there is fraud here, some devilish plot concocted to steal Judge Henley's fortune."

"What letters? What pictures were they?"

"Letters from the judge to his son—intimate family letters, and a photograph of the father and this man taken together."

"And were the letters addressed to Philip?"

"The envelopes had been destroyed, and no name was mentioned, but the photograph was indorsed in the judge's handwriting."

A SUFFERER FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE FOR TWO YEARS.

When the kidneys get ill the back gives out. But the back is not to blame. The ache comes from the kidneys, which lie under the small of the back.

Therefore, dull pain in the back, or sharp, quick twinges, are warnings of sick kidneys—warnings of kidney trouble.

Plasters and liniments will not cure the bad back, for they cannot reach the kidneys which cause it.

Doan's Kidney Pills reach the kidneys themselves. They are a special kidney and bladder medicine. They heal the diseased surface of the kidneys and bladder, and help them to act freely and naturally.

Miss Mary A. Northrop, Cole's Island, N.B., writes: "I have been a sufferer from kidney trouble for two years. I tried quite a number of remedies, but they did me no good. My mother got me a box of Doan's Kidney Pills, and they did me so much good that I got the second one, and when I had taken that I was completely cured."

Doan's Kidney Pills, are the original kidney pills. See that our trade mark, "The Maple Leaf," is on every box. Price, 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

LIFE'S OPPORTUNITY.

In the midst of the smoke and roaring
A shot and a sounding cry
And another soul from battle,
Has gone to God on high.
Oh, God of truth and justice!
In his heart was a wish divine,
In the face of the raging foeman,
The cause he espoused was thine.

In the fight which on earth endureth,
Grant me the power to give,
The grace that in aiding others,
Gives me the right to live.
The right to meet my Maker
Who has given all for me,
The love that gains in dying
Eternal life in thee

Dr William Lyne Stevenson, president of the Anti-tipping League of Idaho, said at a league banquet in Boise:

"I visited New York last month. I put up at a fine hotel there—$4 a day in fact for room and bath. But what service!

"I went into the hotel restaurant the evening of my arrival to order dinner. I ordered a simple enough dinner, according at least to our Idaho standard—a dinner of clams, cold consommé, grilled brook trout, fillet of beef with mushrooms, chicken a la broche, and so on—yes, a simple enough Idaho dinner, but by crimus, they kept me waiting in the heat and the noise and smells an unconscionable time. Unconscionable!

"Finally I called the maitre d'hotel and said:

"'Is it the rule to tip the waiter here?'

"'Yes, sir,' said the man. 'Oh, yes, sir.'

"'Then,' said I, 'give me a good big tip I've been waiting close on to three hours!'

The Kansas story of how the farmers put beer kegs instead of wheels on their binders in order to harvest in wet weather this year recalls the old story that was often told in the days when prohibition was young in Kansas. There was a law that permitted the sale of liquor for medicinal, mechanical and scientific purposes. A farmer came in one day and offered to purchase a gallon of the stuff from the local druggist. But came the druggist's book, in which all sales and the purpose for which the liquor was to be used must be registered. "What are you going to use it for—medical, mechanical and scientific purposes?" asked the drug clerk. "You might as well put it down as mechanical," responded the farmer. "I am going to have a barn raising."

A Poor Reward.

"I see you have your arm in a sling," said the inquisitive passenger. "Broken, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir," responded the other passenger.

"Meet with an accident?"

"No; broke it while trying to pat myself on the back."

"Great Scott! What for?"

"For minding my own business."

An old miner once visited a lawyer to make his will. The old man's property property consisted of two small cottages which had cost him $400. The lawyer asked him how he wished to dispose of it.

"My auld woman is to hev all so long as she's ma widow."

"What age is your wife?" asked the lawyer.

"Seventy-two," was the reply.

"And how long have you been married?" was the next question.

"Over fifty years," was the reply.

The lawyer suggested that under the circumstances he should let his wife have the little property during her life whether she remained a widow or not.

"As winnot! As winnot!" exclaimed the old man. "As'll hev me saa way."

"But surely," expostulated the lawyer, "you don't expect an old woman now over seventy-two would ever dream of marrying again?"

The miner looked the lawyer full in the face and answered very solemnly:

"Well, sonny, there's no knowing what young chaps like yoursel' will dae for money."

Mr. Brown was waiting in his room on the first floor of a fashionable boarding-house, when his landlady entered with a troubled look on her rather plain face.

"Your shirt, Mr. Brown, sir," she said.

"Why, what have you been doing with it," he exclaimed, angrily. "It's all ribbons."

"I left it hanging on the clothesline at the back sir, and—and——"

"Oh, you left it on the clothes-line at the back, did you?" he bawled. "Judging by the look of it, I should jolly well think it had been hanging on the firing-line at the Front."

GERMANS BAN ENGLISH WORDS

French and American Terms Also Being Eliminated From Language by Committee of Experts.

In order to eliminate all foreign words from the German language, a special committee, under Dr. Lehmann is holding daily sessions in Berlin. This committee is considering carefully every American, English and German word that has become affiliated with the German and in its place is giving the German term which hereafter is to be used. At a recent session there was considerable discussion over the word "monogram" and it finally was determined to let it stand.

The word "automobile" is banned, and in its stead "Kraftwagen" is to be used. "Garage" is replaced by "Kraftwagenhalle" or "Kraftwagenstand." "Eau de Cologne" is to be "Kolnisches-Wasser." It no longer is permitted to say "American bar," but "amerikanische Schaukstube," and "American drinks" will be "amerikanische Getrauke." The French word "billiard" is changed to "Billjard." The word "etablissement," so universally used in the shops of Berlin has been stricken from the vocabulary, and Germans in future will say "Wirtschaftsunternehmen."

When it came to the word "hotel" the committee was not entirely in accord regarding its elimination. It was resolved, however, to suggest to hotel proprietors that the German words "Haus" or "Hof" would be more desirable.

The committee's labours are by no means finished, as there is still a large number of foreign words to be considered. The changes that are made are put into effect at once, and already in the hotels and restaurants "Speise-carte" has replaced the word "menu" and all French dishes and French names are barred from the bills of fare.

The lady collectors for the national egg collection for wounded soldiers have despatched from Ballater a consignment of 27 dozen and 10 eggs.

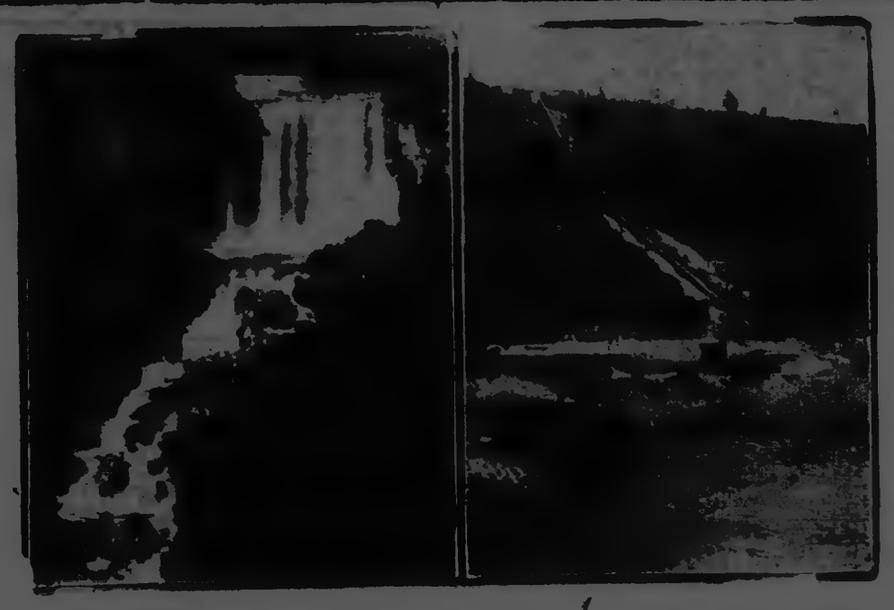
The death has occurred at Prospect Hill, Ashton, Gourock, of Mr. John A. Burns, late surveyor, Glasgow Corporation Gas Department.

The Tramway Committee of Leith Town Council have resolved to instruct the tramway manager to employ lady conductors if necessary.

Rev. John Burr of Bowden Parish Church, who was appointed chaplain to the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force, has left to take up his duties.

The return of deputation expenses incurred by Glasgow Corporation for the year to September 30 just issued shows a total expenditure of $17,231.

The South United Free Church, Dumfries has been re-opened after undergoing redecoration.



WONDERFUL CANADIAN ENGINEERING FEAT—The two views show Eugenia Falls near Flesherton, Ont. before and after the Beaver River was "squeezed" into a single pipe by the Hydro-Electric engineers for developing power. The pipe delivers the accumulated flow from 2,500 acres at the power house, a drop of 320 feet, the second greatest in Canada, exceeding that of Niagara.

CONSTANTINOPLE

There is still a settled conviction predominant in Constantinople that Germany is going to win. Perhaps the presence in the city of so many Germans and the fact that they control the sources of information account for this; but it is a conviction which makes itself felt. The question that interests most people, however, is: What good is it going to do Turkey? The Turks do not want the Germans to control Constantinople. They are not popular with any element of the population.

A German officer, in a convivial hour, confessed: "As long as we have been here and as much as we have done, I have to admit that these people still like the English better than they do us."

Nobody can escape knowing that; you get it everywhere from all kinds of people. One noble Turk—a pasha no less—has spoken about "the strong clean hand of England"; and a whining Jewish servant, in the safe isolation of the topmost height of a wind swept watchtower, has poured into my ears his and his people's great unhappiness, and their hopes of deliverance "when the British—who are just—take hold of things."

It is a curious situation when the majority of the inhabitants of a besieged city are praying for the success of the besiegers.

About Ground Lights

Whenever there is a night attack the battlefield is made almost as light as day by means of searchlights, special star shells, which burst in the sky and throw out a brilliant light, and ground lights. These ground lights are used to illuminate the actual ground over which the enemy may advance, and many thousands have been used by British soldiers, especially when the two lines of trenches are very close to one another. The lights consist of a skeleton circular frame of iron covered over with canvas and filled with a composition of resin, tar, and other combustibles.

What Dr. Chase is Doing for Our Soldier Boys

At Home and Abroad---To Every Soldier a Full Sixty-cent Box of Dr. Chase's Ointment Free---Greatly Appreciated by the Boys.

Realizing that ointment is one of the prime necessities to the soldier, both in training and at the front, it was early decided to supply all Canadian recruits free of charge.

That this offer was appreciated by the military authorities is best evidenced by some of the replies received from Headquarters, as well as from individual camps.

Brigadier-Gen. Sir Sam Hughes wrote:— "This is indeed a most useful and acceptable donation, and for which please accept my most sincere thanks."

Lieut.-Col. Murphy, in charge of Valcartier Camp, wrote:— I would be very glad to receive donation of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and feel sure it would be acceptable."

One Major reports:—"The Ointment arrived on the day the Battery completed 24 miles route march on foot, and I can assure you the Ointment was very beneficial, and much appreciated by those with sore feet."

For the 31st Regiment, Owen Sound, Q.M. Sergt. Miller writes:—"I have been directed by Col Chisholm to tender to you our hearty thanks for your splendid gift of Dr. Chase's Ointment to the members of the Overseas Contingent. I can assure you it was appreciated by the men, and if the quantity had been doubled we would have had a hard time to save a box. The men swear by it."

From Niagara Camp Q.M. Sergt O. M. Stevenson writes for the 37th Battalion:— "The Ointment has been distributed among the boys of our company, and is highly appreciated by them. I assure you that they will find it very useful both here and at the front."

Further distributions of Dr. Chase's Ointment will be made to the recruits assembling for training at the various towns and cities throughout the country. Officers in charge are requested to advise us how many boxes they can use, allowing one for each man. In a score of ways this Ointment is useful to the soldier, and it is our desire that every man shall be supplied free of charge. Address Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Weekly Supply for "Tommy" British Soldiers Upon Their Feet.

London, Feb. 10.—An "eyewitness" at the British general army headquarters in France pays a tribute in an article given out yesterday by the Official Press Bureau to the work of the army supply departments. He calls the Ordnance Department a "military universal provider." He says in part:—

The vastness of the work of maintaining a modern army may be gauged by the fact that during the past month the supplies furnished included 450 miles of telephone wire, 550,000 sand bags and 10,000 pounds of shoe blacking, while in ten days the Ordnance Department supplied 120,000 fur waistcoats and 200,000 flannel belts. The average weekly issue of clothing for men in the field [illegible]

The complexity of the work is demonstrated by the fact that the index of the stores include 50,000 separate kinds of articles. Most of these still are obtained from England, but some are being manufactured by the Ordnance Department in its own workshops in France.

FIND HALF STARVED GIRL KEPT IN BARE ROOM EIGHT YEARS

Incarcerated in Punishment for Love Affair and Reported to Neighbors as Dead

Parents Detained After Tragic Picture of "Death on Earth" is Found by Chance Visitor.

EASTON, Md., Nov. 20.—Because at the age of sixteen years, Grace Marshall, a daughter of Frank Marshall, of St. Michaels, fell in love with a young man to whom her father and step-mother objected, she was placed in a room eight by ten feet in circumference, and has remained there suffering and half-starved for the last eight years.

The girl, once pretty, was a tragic picture of suffering when removed from her house to-day by order of the Children's Aid Society. She is twenty-eight years old, but she looked like a woman who had survived fifty years of suffering. The case is declared by the Children's Aid officials to be the most shocking on their experience.

During the time the girl has been incarcerated in her tiny and filthy room she has suffered agonies because of a broken leg which was improperly set the first few months she was held. In an effort to escape she leaped from the window on the second floor more than seven years ago and suffered the injury.

She was placed back in her room, the windows were covered over with heavy boards and without an appeal to a physician the limb was set in such fashion that it was four inches shorter than it had been. The day of the fall is the last she knew of open air until to-day, when she swooned upon stepping out into the sunshine on her crutches.

A peculiar feature of the case is that the parents allayed the suspicions of neighbors regarding her by asserting she had died six years ago. At this time one of her sisters who was living with an aunt at Kent Island died, and her body was brought home aboard a motor boat at night. The following day there was a funeral, and the parents of the girl told their neighbors, the nearest of whom is two miles away, that Grace had died of heart disease.

Heard Girl in Next Room.

The discovery of the pathetic circumstances came through information offered by the girl's uncle, John Hancock, of Wilmington, Del., who has been stopping at the Marshall home for a week. He was assigned to a room near that in which the half mad girl was dragging herself about, and the morning after his arrival he heard her groans.

The father of the girl is known for his violent temper and because of this fact the uncle, determined to to solve the mystery of the room, made no mention of what he had heard. But each night before retiring he spent a considerable time in widening a hole behind a picture, so he might eventually pierce the wall and see.

As the walls between the rooms became less solid Mr. Hancock could scarcely rest such were the groans and cries that reached his ears. Friday morning he cut the last piece of mortar away and saw in the wasted figure before him the traces of the niece whose disappearance had been something of a family mystery. He closed up the aperture under the picture and without saying a word about what he had seen, went to the Children's Aid Society and reported it.

To-day Miss Emma Davies, Easton agent of the Aid Society, went with five men to the Marshall home and were soon in the rooms which had been closed to the world for years. Within an hour J. F. Fletcher Clarke, a lawyer, had obtained a writ of habeas corpus before the Circuit Court for Talbot county, and late this afternoon the girl and her father and mother were taken to the court room. The day session was adjourned, but the Judges were still in their chambers, and after the doors had been locked by the bailiff the investigation began, after which the mother and father were detained at the Court House.

Had Little Clothing

Before the girl could be taken to court it was necessary for Miss Davis to find clothing for her, as she had only a patched and shabby apron. There was found in her room an old-fashioned straw mattress, with two ragged blankets to cover the ill and starving girl. It was so cold in the room that those who had taken off their wraps on entering the house were compelled to put them on again.

Dr. Charles F. Davidson, who examined the girl when she was taken to court, declared she was the most frightful being physically he had ever examined. There was not the slightest line to her body other than that formed by skin and bone, and he asserted, she had scarcely enough blood to keep her alive. She was found to have the symptoms of six ailments due to incarceration.

Marshall was defiant when placed on the stand and the girl, when asked to say why they had treated her so, nodded her head slowly and fell in a faint. There were tears in the eyes of Mr. Hancock as he told the circumstances of what he called the girl's "death on earth."

"A NATION OF DYSPEPTICS"

American people are called. This condition is due to our habit of hurried eating, and so many different foods at the same meal. In advanced life the system cannot adapt itself to the strain, and stomach troubles result. To strengthen and build up the digestive organs our local druggists, McDermid & Jury and E. L. Payne, have a reliable, constitutional remedy known as Vinol. It vitalizes and enriches the blood, promotes a healthy appetite, and creates strength for the weakened, overtaxed nerves of the stomach.

NOT TO CAST GUNS HERE

Time and Cost Are Two Factors Against the Proposal.

OTTAWA, Nov. 23.—While disappointment is expressed here over the decision of the British authorities, conveyed by cable yesterday, against making heavy guns and ordnance in Canada it is not wholly surprising. When the Canadian interests concerned in the project met here in September it was stated that no plants were then equipped to undertake such a work but readiness was expressed to secure the necessary machinery. Some, however, much preferred that Britain should continue the gun-making, but also to Canada larger orders for shells. The latter policy has evidently been adopted. Recently extra orders for $80,000,000 were placed, and more are in prospect.

Time and cost, it is understood, were the big factors in the decision of the British authorities, not to establish an ordnance business in Canada. The army needs guns, but they are wanted in quick order, and Canadian factories could do little under six months, while the fact that they are not equipped for the business would tend greatly to increase at least the initial cost.

WOMEN'S SACRIFICE

A Story Unfolded of Three Whose Lives Are Brightened by Duty Done

Recently when Sir George Foster spoke so magnificently to the people, pointing out the great lessons the war is teaching us all, how the women will in the reconstruction period after the war go forth with the trowel in one hand and the sword in the other to build up a common Israel, a nervous lady knitting a long grey sock let a needle drop. Stooping to pick it up the woman next dropped her notebook and pencil. A newspaper clipping fell out of the book, and was picked up by a young lady on the left side. She could not help but see the head lines, and looked enquiringly at the owner of the clipping, who nodded for her to read it. It was only a brief paragraph about a prize-winner in the trenches, the young woman whispered, "Is he yours?" Again a head was nodded in assent. The knitter was then interested and read it, and told of her only boy who had been seriously wounded at Langemarck and was now at Shorncliffe. A hand pressure was all one mother could give the other, but eyes spoke volumes. Then the young lady to the left with tear-laden eyes said her fiance had been wounded, and was in a hospital in France—his right arm gone, and suffering from exhaustion and shock. What need to tell the three women of war's horrors, or of days of anxiety and anguish! But there they sat busy with needles and pencils, thinking of their boys in trenches or in hospitals. All were of different social sets, but all akin in love, in sympathy and sacrifice. Strange, you say, that three unknown women should sit there in a row in that large audience and yet be sisters in anxiety. Not at all, everyone you meet has their sorrows. Going home on the street car when the meeting was over the car conductor told of having just had word of the death of his brother from gas poisoning. Another one fell early in the war, and two more brothers are in training to replace those fallen, and the widowed mother is left with only memories, but such glorious ones!

Young's Point Red Cross Society Had Enthusiastic Meeting

The new branch of the Red Cross Society at Young's Point took the double opportunity last night to raise funds for the needs of the society and present the work generally to the people of the neighbourhood by giving a supper and entertainment in the main building of the cheese factory. The crowd which gathered more than filled the building, and the most intense interest was shown in the addresses delivered by Messrs. Geo. A. Gillespie, M.P.P., E. A. Peck, ex-M.P.P., Private Mesley, and Joseph Wearing, M.A., who went out from Peterborough to aid the ladies in their patriotic endeavours.

The chair was taken by Mr. Northey and between the speeches the audience was entertained by the music furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Telford from Bridgenorth, and Miss Brooks of Young's Point; the rollicking songs of Mr. Telford being particularly appreciated.

The first speaker was Mr. G. A. Gillespie, who strongly urged the people of the neighbourhood to banish what differences they may have had in the common cause of saving the Empire. He referred to himself and Mr. Peck as an example. Although they had had political differences in the past they were now fighting shoulder to shoulder in the interest of the Red Cross and Patriotic Fund. He also took occasion to correct any impression that any of the speakers at patriotic meetings were paid for their work. "They do not get a five cent piece," he said.

Private Mesley then told some of his experiences at the front, and his appearance on the platform aroused great enthusiasm. He said that every bit of Red Cross material was needed, and spoke of the comfort which it brought. In excusing himself for only making a brief speech he said his nerve were still unstrung as a result of his terrible experience at Langemarck.

Mr. Peck spoke of the virtues which had sprung up in the nation as a result of the war, referring particularly to the spirit of self-sacrifice which was throughout all the dominions of the Empire. "The principles of kindness, love, and self-denial," he said, "are bearing fruit in British hearts everywhere, and I have no doubt that people of Young's Point will be true to the British ideal." In closing he said: "We can win if we will, and the matter rests with the people of every part of the Empire. Every man must do his bit."

Mr. Wearing began by saying that he wanted to indicate three things: What this country had been saved from; how it had been saved; and the only way it could be kept safe. To illustrate what we had been saved from, he read extracts from the report of Lord Bryce's Commission, and other descriptions of the German invasion of Belgium, and asserted that but for the so-called "contemptible little army," which was despatched across the Channel at the outset the gate of Belgium would in a short time have been the fate of Canada. He also said that this would have been our fate if the boys we sent from these shores had not made their famous stand at Langemarck. Great applause greeted his remark that the meeting was honoured beyond measure by the presence of one of these very heroes of Langemarck in the person of Private Mesley. It was by holding up the hands of those across the seas, he said, that the safety we now enjoyed could be made permanent.

After the addresses a vote of thanks to the speakers was moved by Deputy-Reeve J. A. Jobe, and seconded by Rev. Mr. Robbins. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, after which Mr. Gillespie auctioned off the provisions which still remained after the hungry had been all fed.

About $80.00 was raised for Red Cross needs.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE GRURING VILLA.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

[Copyright, by American Press Association.]

"Whose is that villa?" asked a tourist, pointing to a residence on the Lake of Como. The person questioned replied by a story. And this is the story:

Two men stood on the steamboat landing at Menaggio, on the northern shore of the lake. Herman Trupp, the elder, said to the other, a youngster of twenty:

"Martin, I have something to say to you. You know how near us is the boundary line of Switzerland. Well, for years I have been smuggling goods over the border to the lake and once across it have had no trouble in selling them in Italy. But the government revenue boat which they have recently put on the lake turned its searchlight on me last night while pulling a boat load from shore to shore. I was stopped and arrested. I will be tried, fined and imprisoned. I made a mistake. I should have divided my profits with the revenue officers."

"Well?" said the other.

"You wish to marry Sophie Reusser, but you and she are both too poor to marry. I will enable you to wed. I have bribed the officers to give me but six months' imprisonment and to accept a substitute. If you will serve my term for me I will give you 5,000 francs."

Martin Gruring was thoughtful for a time, then said, "I will talk with Sophie about it."

"That I must forbid," said Trupp. "I would not trust a woman with such an important secret."

"But what will she think?"

"Oh, you can tell her you are going away for a short time to earn the wherewithal to set up housekeeping."

The result of this proposal was that Martin acted as Trupp's substitute in prison, first telling Sophie the story that had been suggested. He had no sooner been imprisoned than Trupp told Sophie that her lover was deceiving her—that he had committed a crime for which he was being punished. To prove what he said he took her to the prison where Martin was confined and showed her her lover behind bars. Then he held his wealth, 500,000 francs, up before her as a bait and succeeded in catching her for his wife. Soon after the marriage the couple disappeared from the Como region.

One summer an elderly American gentleman and his wife rode up in their automobile to a hotel in Interlaken, Switzerland, and called for a guide. One was introduced, and the American engaged him to conduct himself and wife to the summit of the Jungfrau. Then the landlord said that he had been a mountaineer in his youth and only one guide was needed. He would himself act as such. The party after proceeding on the mountain railway to the snow line started from there to make the ascent of the peak, the guide in front, the lady next, and the husband in the rear, all bound together by a rope.

At one place in the ascent their path led along the edge of a rock that sloped nearly straight downward on both sides. Suddenly beneath the American's feet the ice gave way and he went down. His wife fell on her face, and the guide, realizing that she would be pulled down by her husband, let himself over the other side for a balance. Suspended thus he at once set about cutting steps and soon secured a foothold. But the American was a heavy man and the rope was greatly strained. At one point it crossed a sharp rock and the efforts of the man hanging over the chasm to save himself gradually wore it thin, and at last it broke. He slid down thousands of feet below to his death.

Meanwhile the guide, foreseeing what must eventually happen, and knowing that when the rope broke the shock might dislodge the lady, had been hacking the ice with his ax and climbing until he had secured a firm position. When the rope parted she fell toward him, and, catching her, he lifted her again into position. Then, when she was sufficiently recovered to stand, he cut his way up to the edge of the rock and the two began to descend. Reaching a point of safety, the lady fell in a faint. The guide caught her in his arms. Placing his flask—all guides carry flasks—to her lips, she revived and met the two eyes of the guide looking down into hers. But she saw only the horror of her husband suspended over that awful abyss. She shuddered and moaned.

"Sophie," said the guide with a world of sympathy.

There was something in the voice that, striking a familiar chord, served to turn her vision from the horror so recently experienced. She saw a young face grown to middle age. Then the expression of pain returned, but this time from a different cause. She saw the lover of her youth as she had seen him in a felon's prison. He divined her thought.

"Do you know," he said, "that I went to prison voluntarily to serve the term of another?"

"No. Whose term?"

"Never mind that. To take the place of a smuggler I was paid a sum of money which would have enabled us to marry."

Another look of infinite pain passed over her face. Instinctively she knew the story as it has been told. The guide took her by the hand to lead her down; but, seeing that she was unequal to the task, he took her in his arms and carried her to the railway station. Then, after a brief rest, they proceeded to Interlaken.

Later, as husband and wife, with the Trupp fortune they built the Gruring villa.

RENTED SCENERY.

It Was a Parisian's Idea, and It Suited the Thrifty Peasants.

M. Georges Moreau one beautiful day, in the course of a walk at Villiers-Saint Benoist, greatly admired three magnificent oaks which towered from the edge of a field.

"You'll not see 'em much more, citizen," growled the owner of the land. "They make too much shade. I'm going to cut them down."

"What a sacrilege! Cut down these magnificent trees! Better rent them to me."

"What'll you do with them?"

"I shall look at them as I pass by. Will you give to me for 15 francs a year the right to admire them?"

"Agreed! It's only a Parisian who could have such a funny idea!"

The story spread abroad, and now whenever M. Moreau takes a walk in that district the peasants hail him with: "Hey, citizen, will you rent those trees there of me? If not I'll cut 'em down. Yes or no? One, two, three"—

M. Moreau yields and pays to save the lives of the trees that delight his view. The little birds would be ungrateful did they not salute with their most harmonious rondelles the preserver of their nests.—Gil de Paris.

An Expensive Lesson.

"Now, Thomas," said the teacher severely, "how many times must I tell you not to snap your fingers? Put your hand down and presently I'll hear from you."

Five minutes later she said, "Now, then, Thomas, what was it you wanted to say?"

"There was a man in the entry awhile ago," said Thomas seriously, "and he went out with your new silk umbrella."—Ladies' Home Journal.

PERSONAL.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Two years ago I was in a very nervous, generally run-down condition, so that I awoke in the morning more tired than when I retired. The doctors thought I had heart trouble and treated me for it but I got no benefit. I heard of Dr. Pierce's remedies through a friend who had been to your Invalids' Hotel for an operation (which proved entirely successful) and I at once got the 'Favorite Prescription.' I took three bottles altogether and at the end of three weeks I felt entirely cured and have been well and strong since, without a single bad spell. I stopped taking it about three months ago and am glad to tell any one how splendidly your medicine has healed me."—Mrs. John Lewin, 52 Niagara St., St. Catharines, Ont.

The strictly restorative power of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription speedily causes all womanly troubles to disappear and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from nature's roots and herbs with no alcohol to falsely stimulate and no narcotic to wreck the nerves. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

FRENCH PAYING MORE TO LIVE

DUE TO CONDITIONS CREATED BY WAR, ARTICLES OTHER THAN FOODSTUFFS ADVANCE MOST IN PRICE.

PARIS, November 24.—The rise in the price of various foodstuffs in Paris has several times been mentioned lately but it is not in articles of consumption that there is the greatest increase in cost, although it may be felt to a greater extent. The primary reason is certainly the deficiency in the supply of the "made in Germany" objects most used in everyday life, which were always of a cheap sort. There is not so much a want of these articles as a lack of the inferior classes in the line.

While the German and the Austrian article has disappeared it is not possible yet to replace it from either England or America, for many reasons. First and foremost, the forbidden list from England now is so extensive that hundreds of categories of goods cannot be exported at all, and when special licenses have to be obtained the process is so tedious that it is scarcely possible to do business. Add to this the cost of freight and insurance from England and America and it is comprehensible that prices should rise.

France is practically thrown upon her own resources for the necessaries of private life and while so many of her industrial centres are occupied by the enemy in the North, there is a natural scarcity of skilled labour for ordinary industries because all the available sound men are mobilized and such as can be spared from the front are employed in the manufacture of munitions. Consequently, although France has all her ports free and plenty of money, all the markets of the world except those of the hostile Powers are of little avail in keeping prices at the usual levels. It is not from the same causes that are at work in Germany that the cost of living and the difficulty of procuring certain articles are increased, but the increase is very marked, and there appears every chance of it lasting until the end of the war and perhaps after.

Have a Good Complexion! The Flower of Good Health

The true secret of complexion lies in the blood. Keep it rich, pure, nutritious, and, above all, keep the system regular. No aid to complexion compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They tone and enrich the blood, clear the system of waste products, promote good digestion, and, in short, establish sound health, which, after all, is the keynote to all happiness and well-being. Don't delay; the charm of a lovely complexion and all the blessings of health are yours, once you employ this old-time family remedy. All dealers sell Hamilton's Pills in 25c. boxes.

DUCKING A SCOLD.

Punishment a Long Tongue Used to Win in Old England.

It is interesting in these days of woman's rights and woman's progress to conjure up a picture of a "ducking" as practiced in England at the end of the eighteenth century.

When the "scold" had been properly tried and convicted she was escorted by a crowd of her neighbors—in fact, by the whole village—to the nearest pond, and the greener and slimier the pond the better. A long plank was produced, at one end of which was the ducking stool, and in this the screaming, struggling victim was securely pinioned.

The chair end of the plank was then pushed far over the edge of the pond, and at a signal it was tilted deep into the green ooze until the scold was completely immersed.

When the dripping, half drowned woman was raised to the surface again to the jeers and laughter of the onlookers it can be imagined that her tongue wagged to some purpose. After a second dose she emerged more subdued, and after a third or fourth she was as penitent a woman as the village contained and was allowed to proceed home, a sadder and wiser woman until the next time.—London Tit-Bits.

Are You Troubled With BOILS ALL OVER HIS BODY.

When the blood becomes impure the first symptoms manifesting themselves are a breaking out on some part of the body of various sorts of bad blood troubles, such as boils, pimples, abscesses, ulcers, etc.

How many times have you met a friend with a handkerchief tied around his neck, and have asked him: "What is the matter with you?" "Oh! I have a boil on the back of my neck; I guess I will have to take something for my blood."

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters, and the speediest and most thorough method of expelling all the poisons and corrupt matter from the blood is to use this old and well tried remedy that has been on the market for the past forty years.

Mr. W. E. Cockerill, Golden, B.C., writes: "I was troubled with boils all over my body, and my blood was very bad. I tried all kinds of medicines and salves, but got no relief. I had to quit work, as I could not stoop to do anything. My boss told me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, after I had told him I had tried nearly everything else. I got one bottle of B.B.B., and before I had finished it the boils were all gone. It is the best blood cleanser I have ever taken. I have told several others who were suffering with boils, and they all say it is great medicine. I am forty-seven years of age, but I feel like sixteen since I got rid of the boils."

VIOLENT ATTACKS OF DYSPEPSIA

Suffered Tortures Until She Tried "Fruit-a-tives"

St. Jean de Matha, Jan. 27th, 1914.

"After suffering for a long time with Dyspepsia, I have been made well by "Fruit-a-tives." I suffered so much that at last I would not dare to eat for I was afraid of dying. Five years ago, I received samples of "Fruit-a-tives" and after taking them I felt relief. Then I sent for three boxes and I kept improving until I was well. I quickly regained my lost weight—and now I eat, sleep and digest well—in a word, I am fully recovered, thanks to 'Fruit-a-tives.'

RAILING IRON CROSSES TAKEN BY GERMANS

"It is remarkable," writes a correspondent in Germany to the Paris Temps, "how desperate the corps of officers in the German army is becoming. If the war lasts another year there will not be a single trade that is not represented by one or more members in lieutenants' uniforms. And yet it is only a few years since the vanity of the military elite was graviously wounded by the pre emption of one William Voight, a cobbler by trade, who had the audacity to don an officer's uniform and play the principal role in the world-famed adventure of the Captain of the Koepenick.

"Another thing which is the subject of everyday comment is the excessive and rapidly increasing number of 'heroes.' It has come to such a pass that nowadays one considers it a real distinction not to be a hero. The Iron Cross has been distributed in profusion right and left. Even Ferdinand of Bulgaria has received one. Wicked tongues pretend that one cannot escape being honoured with this decoration except by sudden death. Bantering wits have divided the recipients of the Iron Cross into three imaginary classes. First, the Lusbengrin category, with the motto: "Wie collst du mich befragen." (You should not ask me why.) Then the 'Level-headed' group whose motto is: 'Ich weiss nicht was soll es bedeuten' (I don't know what this means.) The third class is called after the inventor of many remedies, Dr. Ehrlich, whose name in German means 'honest.' In this category, to which no satirical allusion is made, are contained all those who have really deserved their Iron Crosses on account of some duly recorded deed of valour."

BALES OF STUFF FOR CANADIANS LIE ON THE DOCKS

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Daily Sketch recently suggested that there has been lamentable mismanagement in connection with arrangements for sending comforts to Canadian troops. Thousands of cases of woollen underclothing, socks, etc., some sent from Canada so far back as twelve months ago, are still lying on London docks, untouched save by pilferers.

"Quite a number of these cases had been pried open," says the correspondent, "and contents extracted, and dockside workers have been seen wearing pilfered articles. Apparently dock authorities can accept no responsibility. The goods are consigned to England, and with their delivery at London docks the shipping company completes the contract."

It is not suggested, he adds, that the wearers are pilferers, but goods seem to have been traded through second-hand dealers in the East-end sent by individuals.

"That can't be our stuff at all," said Mrs. Plumptre, of the Canadian Red Cross Society and the Canadian War Contingent Association. "Our stuff is all sent over in bales which are numbered, and lists are sent to the point where they will be landed. Our agents meet the ship, and return the lists which have the contents, and the number of goods in them. We have a record of what we have sent, and not one package has been lost. We send mostly for the sick, the wounded, and the prisoners.

"That stuff on the docks is probably shipped privately by people who think they can do better by shipping right through," continued Mrs. Plumptre, "and the addresses might have been either lost or the persons to whom they were sent cannot be found or the freight on the packages has not been found.

"Some of our packages have been delayed as much as two months in being sent over owing to the slow freight before they have been acknowledged, but eventually they are acknowledged. We couldn't lose things in that wholesale way, for everything is numbered and we get a return on every package sent. The advantage that we have in sending things is that we have people at both ends to look after shipments while private people have not."

Mrs. Plumptre said that some scarfs sent by the Red Cross Society had been held over from last year owing to so many being knitted by Canadian women, but these were now being given out. However, they would not be on the docks, as the despatch says, but they would be safe in a warehouse.

TO SAVE POLAND FROM GERMANY

Russians Are Solicitous for Poland's Fate, Which is Linked to That of Russia.

PETROGRAD, via London, Nov. 23.—Russian military observers are finding frequent indications that the German lines on this front are growing increasingly thin. These are furnished by reports from the fighting lines, notably from the sector northeast of Riga. As an instance, it is stated that in capturing the passage between two marshes the Russians found the sole defenders of the position to be two Germans with machine guns.

Drilling of the recruits with which the Russians expect to strengthen their own lines on various fronts is proceeding rapidly on all sides. Drill masters report that excellent progress is being made because of the willing spirit of the new men and the admirable relations existing between them and their officers.

The relations between Russia and Poland, which have been little discussed since the retirement from Warsaw, have been brought again into the field of debate by the Polish lawyer, Mr. Alexander R. Lednitsky, of Moscow. Several interesting expressions on the subject have been elicited by Mr. Lednitsky, notably one from the pen of Prince Eugene Troubetskoy, who has just been elected a member of the Imperial Council.

Prince Troubetskoy declared that the interests of Russia and Poland are bound together, and that a Poland independent of Germany, politically free, and possibly altogether independent, is essential to the independence of Russia. The seizure of Poland by Germany would be the first step in the dismemberment of Russia, said Prince Troubetskoy, as Germany was covetous of Lithuania, the Baltic provinces, and part of the Black Sea coast.

Mr. Lednitsky's purpose in initiating the discussion is thought by many to be to prevent consolidation of the opinion, noted in some quarters, that Russia had experienced only disillusionment in Poland and was uninterested in its further fate.

HOW GERMAN NEWS IS SENT TO NEUTRALS

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—For the purpose of facilitating the transmission of news from Germany to the neutral world, the German General Staff has established a "Neutral War Press Headquarters," through which thirty-one recognized and accredited correspondents in future will operate.

The news bureau came in existence during the last days of October. Such members of the General Staff as have in the past been handling the material of foreign correspondents—censors, officers, etc.—now form its personnel, and are quartered in a building at Luisenstrasse 31A, a few blocks from the General Staff building.

Three times a week it meets, that is to say, Major G—— confers with the correspondents, explains the reports of the General Staff, and gives out such items of news as are available. In addition, there is issued, daily, a summary of the foreign news which concerns Germany and the war.

Care has been taken to include in the conferences only newspaper men who represent established and recognized papers, and, in the main, men who are permanently assigned to Berlin. The representatives of American news associations, the special correspondents of various American papers, as well as a number of Swedish, Dutch, Roumanian, Spanish, Greek, and Argentinean newspaper men, are included in the list.

The censors in the neutral press headquarters assume jurisdiction over all despatches of a military nature, and all trips to the Front are to be arranged through the new department. Unlike the censorship arrangements in many other countries, in this case the correspondents are kept exactly informed of the "fate" of their "stories." Two extra copies of everything written must be submitted to the neutral press headquarters censor. One of these he retains for reference. The other eventually is returned to the writer, with annotations showing just what changes, if any, have been made in his copy.

To the end that an exact control may be exercised over the various newspapermen, they have been asked to sign an agreement which is equipped with a photograph of the writer. A duplicate of this picture is kept on file so as to make it impossible for any unauthorized person to represent himself falsely as the correspondent of any paper. A countersigned agreement, also equipped with a photograph, serves identification purposes.

The agreement includes the stipulation that the reporter will transmit information secured by him through the press headquarters only to the newspaper or newspapers which he represents; that he will submit what he writes to the censor; that he will see to it that his paper or papers do not misrepresent the contents of his articles by means of false or misleading headlines, additions, or omissions, and that he will furnish headquarters with two copies of the paper or papers which print what he has written.

It also stipulates that the newspaperman shall publish no pictures without the permission of the censor, and that he shall in addition turn in two extra copies for the files.

On trips to the Front the direction of officers in charge is to be followed unquestioningly. The correspondents must promise that they will not leave Germany before the end of the war except with the express permission of the press headquarters. This last stipulation, it is pointed out, is not intended to restrict any man from going home if occasion requires, or from making a journey to a neutral country, but merely to prevent him from doing what a few correspondents have done during the war—travelling on the strength of a passport from a neutral country from one battlefront to another, on opposite sides of the struggle.

Peeling the Skin is Better Than Bleaching

Every since the discovery that mercolized wax would absorb and remove a discolored complexion, its use by the ladies as a substitute for bleaching creams has grown rapidly. A perfect complexion can be maintained indefinitely if this remarkable substance is used. Its beneficent cleansing, clearing and preservative action is quickly apparent, and ladies who have been paying high prices for "special bleach" from beauty specialists, soon recognise that mercolised wax outranks them all. It has become so popular that it can be obtained at all druggists, who have it in original one-ounce packages. The favorite way of using it is to apply it like cold cream, before retiring, washing it off in the morning.

The saxolite lotion for wrinkles and the facial contour has also become extremely popular. One ounce powdered saxolite is dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this has a splendid effect in erasing wrinkles and improving contour.

HARD TO HIT.

"I'm prepared to have my character blackened in a good cause," said the candidate.

"Hear, hear!" shouted one of his staunch supporters.

"Yes, my friends, I expect a great deal of mud to be thrown in my direction."

"Don't worry about that," cried a man in the rear of the hall. "They won't be able to hit you. Nobody knows where you stand in this race."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

This model offers one of the plainer styles for a wash dress—one which is just as suitable for large women as for those who are more slender. All the lines of construction are simple. The blouse closes in front and has a wide collar edging and open neck. The sleeves follow the shape of the arm, and may be made full length or cut off below the elbow with a cuff finish.

The skirt has three gores. It may have either the raised or the regulation waist line. The closing is in front, and there is a small pouch pocket on one side. This also may be omitted if desired.

At the waist there is a belt which is straight across the back, but divided into slashed tabs in front. A plain girdle may be substituted.

We see many of these dresses in voile. This is perhaps the favorite summer material. When used for such a style as this plain white generally forms the main portion of the dress, while some sort of fancy stripe of figured variety is employed for the trimmings, and not infrequently a deep piecing of the same is used at the lower part of the skirt.

Pongee silk is also appropriate for this style, and linen, beach cloth, gingham and the like, not to mention the numerous cotton novelties, many of them mercerized until they bear a close resemblance to silk.

The dress pattern, No. 7289, is cut in sizes 34 to 46 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 4½ yards of 36 inch material, with ⅞ yard of 36 inch silk to trim.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can not find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair — sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.

JOHN WAS A GUID MAN.

She was a poor lone widow once more, for she had just buried a husband for the third time. Calling to condole with the bereaved parishioner the minister touched on the many gifts and graces of her dear departed, and said, by way of a parting word, "Be comforted, dear madam, in your great affliction. It is doubtless a heavy burden to bear, but it must be a source of great consolation to you that you do not sorrow as one who has no hope." "Deed it is, minister," said the bereaved lady, drying her eyes. "He was a guid man, was John; but I'm not that auld yet, an', as you say, I've aye the hopes o' getting anither ane."

In Season.

"You ought to take Willie in hand" said the boy's mother. "This afternoon he and some other boys dressed up in feathers painted their faces a hideous red and swooped down on the boys around the block."

"What did they do to the other boys?" asked the head of the family.

"They tied a lasso around the Jones boy's heels, dragged him around the yard and threatened to scalp him. This certainly must be the silly season for boys."

"You're wrong, mother. It's merely the beginning of Indian summer."—Exchange.

ALFONSO GIVES WAR INTERVIEW

Spanish Monarch Sees No Hope of Permanent Peace When Present Conflict is Over.

BERNE, Nov. 22.—The Argentine historian, Roberto Levilier, now in Switzerland, has given an account of a recent conversation with the King of Spain, which took place at Madrid. King Alfonso, who discussed several questions connected with the war with great freedom, said:

"Long before hostilities began it was easy to foresee the inevitability of the war, but it is impossible to form any opinion regarding its termination. Do not imagine that there will be anything like disarmament after the war. On the contrary, when this war is over, preparations for another war will be carried on more actively than ever.

"I do not think that the Socialists and the working classes of the different countries will bring such pressure to bear on their governments that the latter will be unable to create new armaments. My opinion is that the Socialists of all countries will become more and more friendly with their governments, and that their legitimate aspirations will be satisfied as a matter of good business policy. They will also develop, and they will realize that some of their leaders, who have preached universal peace, have deluded and misled them. After the events of this war the Socialists of all countries will be obliged to understand that so long as human beings retain their human instincts there can be no better protection for a country than the creation of armaments which enable it to use organized force in self-defence. And that organized force must always be ready. Facts are facts, and this earth will never become Utopia."

Discussing the effects of the war, King Alfonso said:

"Very bad times will come for South America. There will be a rush of Russians, Italians, French and Germans now living in South America back to their home lands to help in building up what the war has destroyed. There will be no emigration from Europe for some time to come. Many Spaniards who would otherwise have gone to South America will find employment in France and Italy."

WHO SAYS THE ALLIES' BLOCKADE IS A FAILURE?

Forty thousand Parisians died of starvation during the siege by the German armies in 1870. Metz was taken only after the supply of food for army and civilian defenders had been exhausted.

From somewhere behind the inspired attacks being made upon the blockade of Germany by Great Britain and France there pops up every now and then the suggestion that the blockade ought to be abandoned "because it is a failure." Is it?

Testimony furnished by witnesses on the spot is the only evidence worth anything. Official denials are always worse than valueless. What have the newspapers of Germany to say about the effect of the blockade?

Bitterly attacking those whom it describes as usurers in food supplies, the Koelnische Zeitung testifies that the prices of the bare necessities of life have become impossible. Discontent is overmastering large sections of the people.

"Let us frankly admit," says Die Zukunft, "that the German people are in distress."

The Tageszeitung takes other newspapers to task for what it terms their "freedom bordering on license" in telling of the food shortage and the increasing prices, and then proceeds to admonish them in a characteristic officially-inspired way that "it is highly unpatriotic to let foreigners believe that the starvation of Germany is possible." And, further, as if scenting approaching storm, adds: "Such manoeuvres are becoming very dangerous and might provoke a government crisis, which of all things is to be most avoided under the present circumstances!"

The Frankfurter Zeitung digs even deeper into the situation. It sees a ray of hope in its prediction that hatred will nourish and sustain us and inspire us to hold on until finally we hack our way through." Hatred will prove a pretty poor article of diet, however, if the situation is as this newspaper describes it. "While our troops are fighting like the heroes of the classical ages," it says, "want is growing acute at home, where people are beginning to attribute the miserable existing conditions to defeat of the empire. We jeered at the blockade, but to-day we laugh no longer!"

Evidently the German people do not echo the cry that the Allies' blockade is a failure. Mr. Balfour seems to know what he is talking about when he says:

"It is the lull before the ebb of the tide!"—New York Herald.

A thousand useless offices have been discovered in the state of New York by a budget committee.

The report of the Superintendent of State Prisons for 1914 shows that of 4,855 inmates of four State prisons, only 33.1

Walter K. Mitchell, head of the firm of Walter K. Mitchell & Co., Philadelphia, is dead at his home at Moylan after an illness of several months. Mr. Mitchell was born in Glasgow in 1866 and lived in Pittsburg before going to Philadelphia in 1895, as the representative of the firm of Best, Cox and Co., mechanical engineers. In 1899 the firm of Walter K. Mitchell Co. was formed and in 1909 it was incorporated. The firm built the power plant at the Union Station, Washington, and many other large plants throughout the country.

Throw Away Your Eye-Glasses!

A Free Prescription

You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye-strain or other eye-weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing, say they have had their eyes restored through the prescription of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind, could not see to read at all. Now I can read anything without glasses, and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully, now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy without glasses but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time, and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription. Go to any active druggist and get a bottle of Bon-Opto. Fill a two ounce bottle with warm water, drop in one Bon-Opto tablet and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should soon see your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had acted for their eyes in time. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail if your druggist cannot.

WHAT TO DO TO GET FAT AND INCREASE WEIGHT

The Real Cause of Thinness

Most people eat from four to six pounds of good, solid fat-making food every day, and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly, and keep gaining all the time. It's all bosh to say that this is the nature of the individual. It isn't Nature's way at all.

Most thin people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day won't make them gain a single "stay there" pound. All the fat producing elements of their food just stay there in the intestines until they pass from the body as waste. What such people need is something that will prepare these fatty food elements so that their blood can absorb them and deposit them all about the body something, too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood's carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patented drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and flesh building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and a single tablet eaten with each meal often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by all good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.

He Went Off in a Hurry.

The old gentleman, who was always declaring that boys were not what they used to be, stopped in front of a smart child. "Well, Tommy," greeted the old gentleman, "how are you to-day?" "Very well, sir," replied the child shyly. "And do you ever think what you are going to do when you are a big man?" "N-no, sir." "Ah, I knew it! Children are so shiftless these times. And why don't you give it any thought?" "B-because I am a little girl, sir." And the last seen of the inquisitive old gentleman he was making long strides down the street.

Czar's Troops Are Making Continued Progress Towards Teheran---Mining Operations on the Western Front Are Favourable to the Allies---German Post Entirely Destroyed by Mine Explosion

LORD DERBY FLAYS THE GRUMBLERS

PARIS, Nov. 24.—(Official statement).—Mining operations are being pushed vigorously by the French in the Argonne region with favourable results, to-day's official communique reports. One German post was completely destroyed in the vicinity of Bolante by a mine explosion.

A German attempt to capture one of our posts was repulsed in the Vosges, in the vicinity of Celles-sur-Plaine, the statement says.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 24.—Continued progress toward Teheran by Russian troops operating in Persia is admitted to-day by the Cologne Gazette. The German, Austrian, and Turkish Ministers are said to have left the Shah's capital, evidently believing it must soon fall into the invaders' hands. The American Minister at Teheran has taken charge of the German Legation.

LONDON, England, Nov. 24.—In a speech to the Stock Exchange to-day, where he was given an enthusiastic reception, Lord Derby, chief recruiter, flayed Lord St. David's and Lord Ribblesdale for their recent attacks in the House of Lords, and intimated that strict censorship should be placed on utterances in that venerable assemblage to St. David's, who said General French and staff were incompetent. He gave the lie direct, and he insinuated that Ribblesdale was a spy or traitor for giving away the Government secrets in the House of Lords. The speech caused a great sensation.

ATHENS, Nov. 24.—According to Salonika despatches Premier Asquith yesterday sent to the Serbian Government a telegram reassuring the Serbians that Great Britain and France would carry out their promise to release them from the invading Bulgars and Teutons, and do so very shortly. It is said Asquith stated that the Allies were preparing surprises in the Balkans and efforts in a new direction which would surprise the world.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The view of best informed observers here now is that barring some wholly unexpected development, we have turned the corner in the war. This view takes account of possible setbacks in the Balkans and at the Dardanelles. It does not mean that any one expects the war to be over soon. On the contrary, the outlook is for a very long spell of war ahead, but (saving serious developments of an unexpected nature) with the balance steady increasing in our favour.

ATHENS, Nov. 24.—The Greek attitude towards the Allies' troops in the Balkans was the subject of further discussion on Tuesday between the Entente Ministers and the Athens Foreign Office, it is admitted in official circles to-day. No definite agreement appears to have been reached, but the general impression is that progress is being made. There is as yet no sign of any step toward demobilization. Constantine thinks it would be dangerous for the Greeks not to be prepared to resist aggression from the Bulgars.

VIENNA, Nov. 24.—Bulgarian troops have occupied Pristina, and it is expected that a big battle will shortly be fought in that vicinity.

OTTAWA, Nov. 24.—Sir Sam. Hughes, Minister of Militia, in referring this morning to complaints as to the manner in which returning soldiers were handled, said on both sides of the Atlantic everything possible is done for the comfort of these men, and if they have been thrifty, considering that everything is found for them at the front, they ought to have a few hundred saved up.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—As far north as Veles, the Bulgars are reported falling back upon Istip, and Veles itself is said to be in imminent danger of recapture from them.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—War weary millions in Europe are beginning to heed the peace urgings of millions of neutrals. Mme. Rosika Schwimmer, the Hungarian peace advocate, will tell President Wilson on Friday afternoon. "The time is now ripe," said Mme. Schwimmer to-day, "for neutral powers to end the war. We women peace leaders have information, though it is unofficial, that both sides are ready to stop fighting." Mme. Schwimmer will be accompanied to the White House by Mrs. Phillip Snowden, wife of the member of the British Parliament and Henry Ford. They will present the peace resolutions adopted at the Women's Peace Congress at The Hague and ask the President to call a conference of representatives of neutral powers to frame peace proposals.

"Delegates to The Hague conference," Mme. Schwimmer said, "were generally agreed that no territory should be acquired by any power at the close of the war except on the consent of the majority of its inhabitants." She said that such a programme, if carried out, made it practically certain that Belgium and Northern France would not be retained by the Germans. Henry Ford to-day announced he had chartered the liner Oscar II. as a peace ship to sail from New York on Dec. 6th, carrying American delegates to a peace conference to be held in Europe.

Explaining his peace ship project, Henry Ford said he expected it would carry the American delegates to the peace conference to be held probably in Holland. He had talked to President Wilson. "We shall try to have the men out of the trenches by Christmas Day," he said, "and end all this war and preparedness for war forever. Mr.

WOULD PURCHASE SUPPLY OF POWER AT PRICE NAMED

Hydro Power Commission Replies to the Offer of the Dickson Company of Peterboro'—Cheaper Than the Present Price

A NEW DAM TO BE BUILT

Some days ago the Dickson Company of Peterborough offered the city a supply of electricail energy at sixteen dollars per horse power, delivered in Peterborough, or thirteen dollars per horse power delivered in Lakefield. At the suggestion of a number of the aldermen this offer was submitted to the Ontario Power Commission and it is understood that a reply has been received to the effect that the Commission is prepared to purchase a supply of power at the price named. The Dickson Company claim to be in a position to supply at least three thousand horse power when a new dam to be erected at Lakefield by the Government, is completed.

The price now being paid by the Commission is eighteen dollars per horse power for about twenty-five hundred horse power. The matter will in all probability be discussed at the next meeting of the City Council.

SALE OF SEATS

Opens Saturday Next—Some Favourite Players

The sale of seats for Fiske O'Hara's engagement in this city at the Grand Opera House, Tuesday evening, Nov. 30, will open on Saturday next at 9 a.m.

"Kilkenny" is the title of Mr O'Hara's new play by Augustus Pitou, Sr., and it is said to be the most successful play in which Mr. O'Hara has yet appeared. He will sing five songs especially written for the play.

The scenes of the play are laid in Kilkenny, Ireland, in 1840, which affords an opportunity for very lavish scenic display. Mr. O'Hara's supporting company is one of unusual excellence, which comprises the following: Mabel Juline Scott, Marie Quinn, Mary Downs, Anna Nichols, Lisle Bloodgood, Eliza Mason, W. T. Morgan, J. P. Sullivan, James Edwards, Henry Duffy, J. E. Miller, and W. T. Sheehan.

CANADIAN AVIATOR IS TAKEN PRISONER

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—Lieut. J. Beverly Robinson, Royal Flying Corps, a son of Mrs. Christopher Robinson Beverly House, 355 St. Clair Avenue is reported to have been taken prisoner by the Germans near Mayence.

Word to this effect has been received by Mr. C. C. Robinson of Sultan Street, from the aviator's mother, who is at present in England.

Lieut. Robinson is 20 years of age and is a graduate of Trinity College. He started in the Aviation Corps last spring.

While no details have as yet been received, it is believed that while flying over Mayence his machine was winged by the Germans and he was compelled to descend, which he did without sustaining personal injuries.

RECRUITING FOR 93rd BATTALION IS CONFINED TO COUNTY

Lt.-Col. Johnston Receives Official Notice From Col. Hemming That Peterborough City and County are Expected to Complete the Establishment of the 93rd Battalion---Boots Being Served to the New Recruits---To-day's Military News

The task of completing the establishment of the 93rd Overseas Battalion has at last been officially put up to the County of Peterborough. Yesterday afternoon Lt.-Col. Johnston was notified by Col. Hemming, the officer commanding the Third Division that recruiting for the 93rd Battalion must henceforth be confined strictly to the County of Peterborough. As announced yesterday both the Lindsay and Cobourg companies are being transferred, so that the 93rd will be in fact as well as in name, a Peterborough city and county battalion.

To-day's Orders.

Headquarters, Peterborough, Ont. November 24th, 1915.

1, Duties—

Orderly officer for to-day—Lieut. S. J. Raymond.

Orderly officer for to-morrow—Lieut. F. S. Dupuy.

Orderly officer for Friday—Lieut. W. G. Worth.

2, Parades

Thursday — 8.30 to 9.00, physical training; 9.00 to 10.00, squad drill, sections 36-48; 10.00 to 10.30, orderly room; 10.30 to 11.30, squad drill with arms, sections 47-56; 2.00 to 3.00, platoon drill, sections 76-80; 3.00 to 4.30, company drill, sections 81-90.

3, Strength—

The following have been taken on the strength of the battalion on the companies opposite their names.

Palmer L. Wiley—'B' Company.
J. J. McFadden—'A' Company.

4, Command—

Reverting to Orders, No. 23, subsections 4 and 6, the following should be cancelled.

1—Lieut. H. C. Gillham will until further orders take charge of recruiting at Tweed and Madoc.

5, Leave—

Leave of absence from 2 p.m. 24th inst. to 9.30 a.m. Nov. 26th, 1915, has been granted as under: Lieut. T. B. Marling, 'A' Company.

6, Boots—

Care of Boots.—Officers commanding companies will be held responsible that all boots issued from the Quartermaster's stores will receive a treatment of dubbin before they are taken out wear.

Dubbin should be applied at least once a week.

T. J. Johnston, Lt.-Col.,
Officer Commanding 93rd O. S. Battalion, C.E.F.

To leave Peterborough on October 6th, arrive in England on October 20th and a few days later arrive in France, has been the experience of Gunner N. W. Laing son of Mrs. George Laing, 449 Cedar street. Gunner Laing left Peterborough with a detachment of the 33rd Battery in charge of Lieut. Meredith Huycke. In a little over a month after his departure from Peterborough, Mrs. Laing receives a letter dated November 10th, in which Gunner Laing states he has arrived in France and expects to leave for the firing line within a few days.

"We are in rainy France," says Gunner Laing, "and will soon be into it."

The writer goes on to describe the trip over which was featured by an epidemic of seasickness while crossing the channel.

Some of the officers who have been on duty in connection with the Cobourg company are anxious to remain with the 93rd Battalion, although it is understood that their names have been submitted by Col. Floyd of Cobourg as part of his staff in the new Northumberland battalion. Just what disposition will be made of these officers is not yet known, but they will be welcomed here if the Militia authorities decide that they are to continue with the 93rd.

A number of Lindsay officers who were posted to the 93rd will go to the 100th, so that in any case new officers will have to be appointed to the 93rd. Among those, it is expected, will be Lieuts. Percy Stock, J. A. McNab, and J. A. New of Peterborough.

Sergt.-Major Oxley of Peterborough has been offered the position of regimental sergeant-major of the Cobourg battalion, and has accepted the position. He has been acting as company sergeant-major at Cobourg, and as his new position is a promotion Lieut.-Col. Johnston will allow him to transfer from the 93rd to the 139th.

Through the new developments, the twelve recruits at Warkworth who enlisted with the 93rd will become part of the Northumberland Battalion.

These are the only men that Peterborough will lose in the shift. The recruits themselves are anxious to come to the 93rd, but under the new orders will not be allowed to do so.

It is stated that the Durham, Northumberland and Victoria and Haliburton Battalions, with headquarters at Port Hope, Cobourg, and Lindsay will be also confined to their respective counties for recruiting purposes. It seems the case their chances of completing battalions by next spring are not considered very high. The Peterborough Battalion, however, has every chance of making good. A splendid start has been made, the uniformly good behaviour of the men and the harmony and good feeling that exists among all ranks is advertising the battalion, and it is confidently expected that early next year the 93rd will be within reach of the final goal. Lt.-Col. Johnston and his officers are planning an energetic campaign to supplement the excellent work that is being done by the Speakers' Patriotic League, and if the people of the city and county will look upon the battalion as their own and assist the officers in every way possible, there is no doubt as to the final result.

It will be a proud day for the County of Peterborough when its own battalion leaves Peterborough on its way to the Front. Of the men already here, fully ninety per cent. are resi-

PETERBORO MAN DROWNED IN SINKING OF ANGLIA

Pte. Geo. Curson, 309 McDonnel Street, a Local Member of the 2nd Battalion Loses His Life in the Loss of British Hospital Ship Which Struck a Mine.

BELONGED TO 57th

A Peterborough member of the 2nd Battalion, Pte. Geo. Curson, was one of the victims last week when the British hospital ship Anglia struck a mine in the channel and went down with the loss of some 90 lives, of which twenty-two so far reported were Canadians. To-day's casualty list reports Pte. Curson as "missing and believed drowned on the hospital ship Anglia Nov. 17th."

The sad news will be received with genuine regret in Peterborough, as Pte. Curson, who had been a resident of this city for five years before enlisting and enjoyed the respect and liking of a large circle of friends. His relatives reside in England and the young soldier boarded at the home of Mr. T. E. Park, of the Waterworks department, 309 McDonnel street. When war broke out he was employed by the waterworks department and was one of the first to enlist for overseas service. He had been a member of the 57th Regiment for some time, being attached to C company, which has contributed so many men to the different Peterborough contingents. It is presumed that Pte. Curson had been injured recently and was being sent to England for treament.

On the List Again.

By a strange coincidence the name of Pte. Ernest B. Boswell of Peterborough, officially reported killed at Langemarck on April 23, appears again on to-day's list. The Toronto Globe says:

For the second time, the name of Ernest Beverley Boswell appeared last night in the casualty list as having been killed in action. At the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Boswell, 25 Roxborough street west, it was stated that he had been killed at Langemarck, April 23, 1915, and that his death was officially reported at the time. He enlisted in the 2nd Battalion, from Peterborough, where he was an insurance agent, and just before going to the front was married to Miss Boulden, 58 Sherwood avenue, Toronto. His widow is at the home of her parents. Private Boswell was 29 years old.

CAPT. JAS. ROLLINS WAS COMMENDED BY CONGREGATION

Granted Leave of Absence for Duration of War and Will Secure Supply Minister by New Years

RESOLUTION PASSED

Capt. James Rollins of the 93rd Battalion, and pastor of St. Andrew's Church, was given leave of absence until the end of the war at a meeting of his congregation held last night.

Capt. Rollins had tendered his resignation to the Church Board on account of his duties as quartermaster of the Battalion, but the congregation would not accept the resignation.

A resolution was passed, on the motion of Mr. Richard Lees, seconded by Mr. John J. Allen commending Capt. Rollins for the patriotic step he had taken, and granting him leave of absence until the completion of the undertaking upon which he is engaged. A committee composed of Messrs. G. Walter Green, W. G. Campbell, Rich. Lees, J. L. Chisholm, E. B. Fowler, W. Harstone, and And. McFarlane were appointed to secure a supply minister.

Capt. Rollins' leave is expected to commence 1st January, and at his express wish his salary is suspended with his absence.

ST. PAUL'S IN FAVOUR OF CHURCH UNION

Result of the Vote Was Made Known Last Evening—Vote Was Small

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church recorded seventy-eight of a majority in favour of church union. The result of the vote was made known last evening at a meeting of the session. The vote stands as follows:

	For	Against
Elders	15	8
Communicant members	258	182
Adherents	16	21
	289	211

Majority in favour of church union 78.

Only about one-half of the total vote of the church was recorded. A similar vote was taken about four years ago when a much larger majority was registered in favour of church union. The negative vote was less than one hundred.

It is the opinion of many that many of the members voting this time were influenced by a pamphlet that was distributed by the elders.

SAFE ARRIVAL OF THE "MISSANABIE"

Cable Received From Lieut. Wilfrid Huycke by Judge Huycke

His Honour Judge Huycke received a cablegram from his son, Lieut. Wilfred Huycke, announcing the safe arrival of the S.S. Missanabie." Lieu Huycke was in charge of a draft from the 59th Battalion in which were a number of Peterborough boys. A battalion from British Columbia was also on board, as well a draft from the Eastern Canadiana Corps.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—According to the story of a traveler returned from Japan, reported in The Army and Navy Journal more than 3,000,000 Japanese-made rifles, with sufficient ammunition for an extended campaign, have been received by Russia in the past three months. He also says that about 800 trained Japanese officers are engaged in instructing Russian artillerymen in the use of new high-powered field guns.

"Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 24, 1915

FALSE ALARMS.

It is always well to be ready to meet eventualities; but it is not well to be shaken off our base, by false or imaginative alarms. The enterprising newspaper correspondent, has a way of making sensational "copy" out of probabilities, or even possibilities. We were put to shivering in our beds over reports of raids upon our peaceful soil by Germans and Austrians from the United States. When we had settled down to hopes that the danger was imaginary, we were re-shocked by a thrillingly sensational report of a Bulgarian atrocity at Parry Sound, or the vicinity, where there are big high explosive works. There was an explosion there; but it was fortunately followed by over-imaginary outrages, and conjuring up sleep-wrecking fears, out of the most unsubstantial materials—pure accident in the process of manufacture.

EMBARRASSMENT OF RICHES.

The new Canadian war loan is likely to prove a serious disappointment. Not that there will be an unsatisfactory demand, but that an extraordinary demand will lead to the disappointment of many who apply for bonds, who will in one way suffer from an embarrasse des riches. For instance, the City Trust of Peterborough, which has placed an order for $20,000 of bonds, was told by the brokers that it was doubtful if even fifty per cent. of their application could be covered. So many banks—bursting with liquid assets—and wealthy financial institutions, and wealthy individuals have subscribed for large amounts, that the probability is that, the issue, being oversubscribed, the allotments must be scaled down to permit of the smaller investors getting their share. As these are to get first consideration, according to the plans of the Finance Minister, the "big fellows" will have to be satisfied with a smaller allotment than that applied for. It is our first national, home-brewed war, or any other kind of domestic, loan, and it appeals to the public, both on the grounds of patriotic duty, and as a good investment. It is to be hoped, though there may not be much ground for such a hope, that this loan will be all that will be necessary. Otherwise the people will have another chance to apply the principle of home patronage — keeping their money at home instead of letting the profits from its use go outside the country. The Examiner was the first to suggest the short term debenture for Peterborough, and the success of loan raised under the plan confirms the wisdom of adopting it to a larger extent than we have already done. The first domestic war loan is an elaboration of the same principle of keeping our money at home by borrowing from ourselves.

THE SOLDIER AS A MAN.

Some time ago a correspondent paid a compliment to the excellent and even exemplary behaviour of the men of the newly enlisted 93rd Battalion; and since attention has been called to the matter closer observation has justified the encomiums of the correspondent. The men continue to show admirable behaviour, and they could not have done better if they had been purposely enlisted to show an example of good deportment. Such an example seems to be needed. In other places enlisted men are not doing credit, or are not allowed to do credit, to Canadian manhood and the service. In London, Ontario, there have been disturbances that almost take on the gravity of riots. Referring to these the London Advertiser says:

> The seriousness of the clashes which have occurred between the city police and the soldiers in training for overseas service must have come home to citizens by this time. A woman seriously injured by being struck with a stone, several soldiers and policemen with broken heads, eight or ten store fronts broken in, and a large number of men filled with savage resentment—these are the results of some condition in London that is wrong. Many soldiers and civilians maintain that the root of the trouble lies with the appointment of miliary police from the home guards. Gen. Sir Sam Hughes ordered that the soldiers be policed from the home guards, revoking the previous order that each unit should care for its own soldiers.
>
> An action like this, though well intended, is sure to provoke a spirit of resentment; be considered as a slur upon the men of the battalions in training in London.
>
> There does not seem to have been any trouble under the old order that the men should police themselves; keep themselves in order. This put them upon their mettle, and was a mark of confidence they would be likely to, and did, live up to, till the order appointing military police from the home guards was issued. As well behaved as our boys are, we know they would resent an interference that would imply that they were incapable of policing themselves—making themselves behave. The London affair is a small matter, and is less of a reflection upon the deportment of the men, than a reflection upon the judgment of the military authorities. A force raised by voluntary enlistment is not like a force raised on the principle of compulsory service as in Germany. It is composed of a different class of men—men with higher ambitions; and in general it may be accepted as a fact that men who have the spirit of duty strong enough to voluntarily enlist, can be counted upon to carry that spirit into their training, and into their deportment among citizens, unless, as in the London case, lack of confidence is shown, and irritation caused by taking the question of securing good behaviour out of the hands of the soldiers themselves. Military police composed of men outside the battalion, would probably have an exaggerated sense of their authority, and probably would, to justify their appointment, be apt to magnify boyish pranks into disorderly conduct, and by injudicious interference, provoke the disorder that, with good sense and discretion, they might prevent. Technically, enlisted Canadian soldiers are under strict military discipline; but in another sense they are civilians in uniform and deserve a degree of deference due to citizenship, that by the act of voluntary enlistment, receives its highest form of expression.

THE WEALTH OF THE EMPIRE.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—At a rough estimate, the capital wealth of the British Empire is £26,000,000,000 (130,000 million dollars) sterling, and its yearly income £4,000,000,000 (20,000 million dollars), Reginald McKenna, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told an inquirer in the House of Commons today.

THE MODEST SCOTCH.

A recruiting officer for the London Scottish visited a big London firm the other day and asked leave to recruit the staff. "You may if you like," said the manager, "but I'm afraid you won't get much of a bag here. We have very few Scotchmen on our staff, and I suppose your recruits have to be Scotch." "Oh, no," replied the recruiter, "Scotch or superior English."—Manchester Guardian.

PARCELS POST.

The Canadian Grocer attacks the parcels post system, partly because, as it alleges, it is so conducted as to mostly benefit mail order houses and partly because it is not paying its way. It says:

> "Those who use it are the ones who should pay for it. It certainly should not be an extra expense on the people of the country as a whole. If it is not paying to-day something should be done to make it pay. Otherwise it becomes a burden and not a benefit."

The parcels post system may incidentally operate to the advantage of mail order houses, possibly because they have not been slow to make a study of its advantages for their own business interests and to turn these advantages to their own account. That the system is not self-sustaining is no great fault if it is rendering an important public service and reducing the cost of living by bringing producer and consumer closer together. Probably it would do better from a financial point of view if the government would conduct it as any business house would do, and by extensive advertising induce the public to make use of it.—Brantford Expositor.

Plans For The Radial Railway

His Worship Mayor Boiler has been advised that arrangements will be made to have the hydro engineers visit Peterborough about the first of January with a view of conducting a preliminary survey of the route of the proposed radial railway. Whether or not anything definite in the way of construction work is to follow in the wake of the engineers is a question. The Government is inclined to put the soft pedal on new work of this nature, believing that such work can well afford to stand over until the conclusion of the war.

A Glance At The Mightiest Fleet Ever Concentrated Upon The Bosom Of The Sea

A veil of diaphanous haze hung on the near horizon as, at the head of a green bay, we embarked on board the Janet Geddes, and through the mist islets, rocks, and ships loomed large and mysterious. The Janet Geddes is a drifter from a little fishing town in Banffshire, transformed into one of the multitudinous subsidiary vessels that serve the great fleet that guards the heart of the Empire. In their thousands, men who followed the herring shoals have left their nets, and now patrol the seas sweeping mines and hunting submarines. Numbers of boats of all sorts are engaged in this hazardous work, and their crews, erstwhile peaceful toilers of the deep, are now swept into the eddies of war. But they have not parted with their serenity nor lost their cheerfulness. The sense that they are in the forefront of the battle has transfigured them.

From the polished deck of the Janet Geddes (for the drifter is now as spotless as a yacht) we surveyed the mightiest fleet that has ever been concentrated in the history of the world. From the mouth of the bay along the shore extended a long line of Dreadnoughts. As we steamed slowly past, name after name, redolent of all the romance of great battles won long ago, leaped up before our eyes. The colour of the ships blended with the colour of the waves, and the great guns pointed in every direction. Now and again, through an eddy in the mist, other ships came into view. And if one turned a field glass on the haze, lo! through the veil still more ships rose before the vision. And beyond the Dreadnoughts we passed the cruisers; and beyond these the destroyers, low and narrow and evil-looking, with every grace sacrificed to speed. Further still came a heterogeneous mass of ships that baffle all description — great liners, yachts, trawlers, tramps, drifters, colliers, hospital ships with the Red Cross blazing on their sides, motor boats, and fishing boats with the brown sails not yet wholly superseded. They were there in clusters in groups, in units—each with its own place in the mighty organization which feeds a fleet in being.

And over all this great host of ships there brooded the spirit of ceaseless activity. Motor boats went rushing past on their ceaseless errands; brown sails tacked in the breeze; heavily laden ships unloaded their cargoes into lighters; and there broke ever on the ear the ceaseless boom of the guns. For there, in the sweep of the guarded sea, gun practice never ceases. A trawler tows a target along and each ship trains its gun on the shadowy submarine as it passes, and all round it the sea spouts up as the ball hisses into the waves. And out to sea through the boom there come and go the sentinels of the Fleet, for this mighty fleet is ever in action. And through the air from all the seas there come ceaseless messages to the room where the brain of the Fleet controls it all. It is that telegraphy of the air which has transposed the centre of the world's mightiest Empire. That centre is no longer London—it is now in the circuit of lonely isles, desolate and rock-bound. Did the nerve-centres here fail—the Empire would pass as the baseless fabric of a dream.

From every funnel of Dreadnought cruiser, and destroyer there rises in to the warm, still autumn air the smoke lazily curling. For in every ship the fires are burning ceaselessly, and at a moment's notice the Fleet can sweep out to sea. That smoke rising up incessantly from Dreadnought and cruiser is the security of the Empire. It is the power to smite instantly, and that power has saved us. When we read of thousands of square miles in the East overwhelmed by the enemy, and of the rush of the torrent of devastation over plains and villages and cities, the heart is apt to be discouraged. But there can be no discouragement for him who sees this. For this power has captured the seas of all the world; through it the ends of earth pour their riches into the midst of our streets; by the might of it a whole continent has been delivered from the withering blight of Germanic culture, and save for a force shut in and imprisoned by sea in East Africa the might of Germany is crushed in Africa. From the great North-West to the long wash of Australasian seas not an inch of territory is left to that culture which trod the Cross under foot that it might dominate the world with the mailed fist. And the heart of that power which has wrought the deliverance of the world is here.—Norman Duncan in the "Scotsman."

COURT OF REVISION HEAR ASSESSMENT APPEALS

The Court of Revision met last evening to consider a number of appeals respecting the special assessment made to pay the cost of constructing pavements on parts of Charlotte, Simcoe, Aylmer, Water and Brock streets, as local improvements. The following appeals were heard:

W. H. Hamilton claimed that he was overcharged one foot on 1-8 8 m on e street. Judgment—assessment was reduced by one foot and one foot added to the lane and charged to the city.

Dr. M. McCulloch, that he was overcharged at 312 Charlotte street. Judgment—Dr. McCulloch's assessment was reduced to 40 feet; Mrs. White's increased to 30 feet and 10 feet charged to the city for a lane.

The case of Mrs. S. Jinks who claimed she was overcharged at 348 Charlotte street, was laid over until Thursday afternoon.

Case Was Adjourned.

W. H. Bradburn said he was overcharged at 167 Brock street. Appeal was dismissed. The appellant also said he was overcharged for property on Simcoe street. The case was adjourned.

T. McQuillan said he was overcharged at 215 Simcoe street. The case was adjourned.

Mr. Jos. Wearing claimed that Mrs E. Patterson was overcharged on Brock street. This case was also adjourned.

J. W. Butcher said he was overcharged on 134-136 Brock street. Judgment—five inches was added to W. H. Bradburn at 140 Brock street and seven inches added to George street and charged to the city.

C. Westlake said he was overcharged at 189 Brock street. The case was adjourned.

T. Brightman claimed that he was overcharged on Aylmer street. The appeal was dismissed.

Assessment Transferred.

D. H. Burritt said he had sold his property on north side of Brock street to Dr. Hammond. The assessment was transferred to the latter

D. W. Dumble said he was overcharged on north Simcoe and east of Water street. The case was laid over, charged at the corner of Hunter and Water streets.

The following other applications were dealt with:

J. H. McClellan applied for remission of income taxes for 1914. This was granted to the extent of $17.55.

F. Bartlett applied for remission of business taxes for 1014-15. The taxes will be remitted providing Mr. Bartlett files a declaration that he did not receive any benefit from the practice of his profession in these years.

Splendid Discipline of Troops When Torpedo Hit Tranpsort

LONDON, November 24—Details of the perfect discipline maintained by the Australian troops when the transport Southland was torpedoed some time ago, have been forwarded by Captain C. E. W. Bean to the official press representatives with the Australians at the Dardanelles.

The transport was carrying men to Lemnos when a torpedo tore a hole 40 feet by 12 feet on the port side. The men were turned out immediately, ran straight to their proper places, and lined up. Officers were shouting, "Steady boys, that's the one thing, steady."

The Southland was listing heavily to port, but afterwards the list changed, with a lurch to the starboard, while the men stood there under perfect discipline. In the forward part of the ship they could see the hatch broken in and water washing about the dark space in the hold, with the bodies of some of their comrades who had been killed by the explosion floating in it.

"It's bad luck that two and a half months in the desert should end like this," said one.

"Are we downhearted?" called another. "No," they all shouted.

"Are we afraid to die?" called another. "No," they shouted again.

"Are there enough boats for all?" one of the men asked his officer.

"I don't know," was the reply. "The best thing we can do is to cut down some of these horse boxes in case they are necessary."

So the party set to work, might and main, chopping down part of the temporary fittings. Meanwhile some of the boats were launched, but owing to the haste one or two were overturned. The order came "Six men are wanted to jump into the sea and right an overturned lifeboat." Six men came forward, instantly dived over, righted the overturned boat, and then baled her out.

By 12 o'clock the last boat had left, containing the general and his staff. During the long wait the men amused themselves by singing songs. There remained on the Southland the Captain, the officers, some of the members of the crew and several Australian officers an dmen, who volunteered to stoke the ship and bring her to port. The vessel eventually reached Muros.

HOW GENERAL LINTON DIED.

One of the officers who saw the incident states that while General Linton was seen in the water swimming someone shouted to him. "Well, how are you getting on?" "Sir," he answered, "I am doing well—save the others first."

The rescuers accordingly continued to pick up others, leaving Linton, who was a strong swimmer among those the last to be picked up. When taken from the water he was alive but much exhausted and he died soon afterwards from the shock and exposure.

LONDON'S HOME GUARD.

Over-age Men in Financial District Organize Splendid Corps.

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 23.—The Home Guards, composed of brokers, clerks, agents and other men exempt from active service working in London's financial district showed themselves a well trained and physically fit body of troops at a recent inspection.

When the civilian troops received permission from the War Office to organize, they encountered ridicule in many quarters. But they bought their own uniforms and went to work with a will. Every afternoon squads drilled in the courts and buildings and in the public parks, and on Saturday afternoons and Sundays the men either went to the country to practise trench digging or harden themselves with marching. Volunteer corps have sprung up all over the country, and could face a hard campaign as well as or better than the second line troops in conscriptionist countries. Its members are generally over forty years of age.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

ENGLISH BILLIARDS ARE GROWING IN POPULARITY

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—One of the surprises of the early billiard season not yet fairly under way, is the fondness for English billiards which has developed. Two years ago, when Melbourn Inman made his last visit to this country to play the game against William Hoppe, English billiards was practically unknown to American players. They occasionally had seen men of English or Canadian birth toying with amateur pellets on a huge stretch of green cloth in the few public rooms where one of those monstrous tables was kept for the benefit of these aliens. But the refinements of the French carrom game with its American variations had seemed sufficiently satisfactory to them, with an occasional venture into pocket billiards or "kelly pool."

Inman's manipulation of the balls with his skill at losing hazards, rather appealed to them, particularly as Hoppe also showed considerable skill at it and privately indorsed it as a game that was full of possibilities. Three cushion carroms had too many stretches of dreariness without a count, to satisfy the desire of players looking for something novel. Rather hesitant ventures at the game, which combined pool with billiards over a vast acreage, with its novel possibilities or combining carroms with "losing hazards off the red or white" rather caught the fancy of the novices. Withal, there was a chance for constant scoring in twos and threes at a time and no resultant string of buttons that looked good to the player. There were new and unexpected combinations to be mastered in the playing of the cue ball and in making and avoiding pockets, which seemed to excite the curiosity of the player.

The result has been a revival of the game, both in the public rooms and in the clubs, until now it is quite the thing to take a turn at English billiards for an hour or two after dinner. An instance of the growth of the game is that at one of the largest rooms in the city where there was one table two years ago there are now six, and the proprietor says they are the busiest tables in his rooms with frequent "waiting lists" for turns at the tables. Pool players have taken a particular fancy to the new-old game and are developing into the best hands at it, as it does not seem to interfere with their stroke so much as with that of the man who has been in the habit of playing carroms exclusively, with the necessary daintiness of stroke the 18.2 game calls for.

As one result of this increased playing of the English game more interest is felt in the contests for the Dewar trophy, which is competed for each Winter by bona fide amateurs, a trophy presented to America a couple of years ago by Sir Joseph Dewar of England in order to develop American players at the sport which has always been a fad of this Englishman. This competition is a mid-Winter event open to all players in the United States. Billiardists expect to see the largest entry ever had for the competition this year.

POE BROTHERS GOOD FIGHTERS

Of course Princeton misses Johnny Poe, although he was graduated 20 years ago, because it was Johnny and his brothers Edgar Allen, Nelson, and Arthur, who made Princeton football famous. Although his playing weight was only 140 pounds, and he was never fortunate enough to win single handed a Yale or a Harvard game, Johnny Poe was always "a little error," and constantly worried an opposing team with his speed and grit and natural ability to bob up at the right place at the right time to do the unexpected things. He played on a team of giants and against giants in all the big games, and the bigger they came the better he liked them. Newspaper accounts of the games in which he played at halfback in the early '90s are full of references to his great runs and headlong plunges into lines where the men averaged 200 pounds between tackles. For instance in reporting the Yale game on Thanksgiving day, 1893, on Manhattan field a writer said:

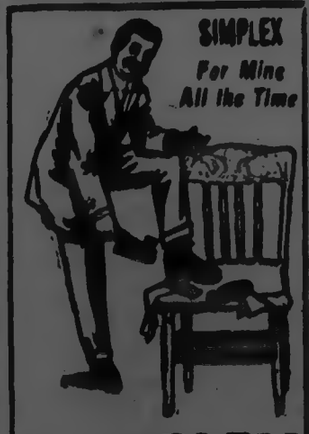
"Johnny Poe, wearing a chin support, who up to this time had not handled the ball but who had taken lively part in the interference, was now called upon to carry the leather. He plunged headlong through Yale's centre and only stopped wriggling eel-like towards the Yale goal when stillman, Bookoh and a few other 200-pounders set upon him."

At another point in the game the same writer saw Johnny Poe grab the ball and almost get away while the crowd yelled: "A touch down, Johnny! Give us a touch-down!" This gritty 140-pounder tried hard enough but again the 200-pounders interfered and "jumped on his neck."

He was always "up against a tough physical proposition," but kept right on without wavering until the odds were three or four to one against him, and then he squirmed a little before he finally gave up.

And when he went to fight for the Allies after an unusual life of adventure following his graduation, it was Johnny Poe's lot still to be up against heavy odds. He was assigned to the Black Watch Regiment which saw hard fighting from the first, and finally was practically annihilated. No news has been received in this country about Johnny's last hours but there isn't a doubt in the world that he stood up nobly to his task and did the very best he could to the last.

The four Poe brothers were at Princeton over a period of 10 years from 1890. It was Arthur Poe, following Johnny at the university, who had the distinction of having beaten Yale single handed. It was at Princeton in 1890 that he grabbed up a fumbled ball just as it looked as if Yale would score and ran 95 yards to a touchdown and the six points that won the game. The accounts of that struggle say that he "got an almost unbelievable lead of 10 yards instantly, and never permitted a man to get any nearer to him on the long run to victory." He was a hero on the spot and it seemed to bother him because of his great modesty. To congratulating friends he invariably said, "Oh, all I had to do was to pick up the ball and sprint."



FAST TENNIS PLAY DUE TO HARD COURTS

A comparison of the Eastern and Pacific Coast styles of tennis play discloses a marked difference, which has attracted widespread attention this season because of the series of victories of William M. Johnston, Maurice E. McLoughlin, John C. Strachan, Clarence J. Griffin, and other Western exponents of the game.

Up to 1900 the tennis public was educated in one universal tennis style. This was the deliberate, conservative, backcourt game, with occasional incursions to the net. Originally this style, adopted at the time by all Eastern players of ability, came from an imitation of such English exponents as the Doherty brothers. It was natural that the Eastern States players should fall in line with adoption, because of their intimacy with the English game, due to their witnessing the Davis Cup matches, and also in competing against the invading foreigners in large sectional and invitation events.

So the English style was adopted by the Eastern players, and because they constituted the larger majority it was considered universal up to 1909. This was the year in which the new tennis style was inaugurated before the public, introduced by the leading internationalists, McLoughlin, Bundy, and Long. Other exponents of the same style followed in the trail of this famous trio between 1911 and 1915, including R. L. Murray, Elin Fottrell, and Strachan.

It was evidence that the influence of the English game had not played a significant role in the development of the Pacific Coast style. The contrast of their unique attack as opposed to the Eastern or English style was proof in itself. The important question was then as to what was responsible for this development. For nobody who saw these men in action could help but wonder why their tactics were of the opposing variety, as compared to those of the English and Eastern exponents. For this very reason McLoughlin was the subject of much interesting sporting gossip about the Wimbledon courts in the summer of 1913, when the Comet was instrumental in bringing back the Davis Cup to the United States.

To avoid a too detailed discussion, the reason for the dissimilarity of style can be grouped under two headings: One, environmental conditions of play; two, influence of the so-called Eastern and Western atmosphere. For in contrasting these two styles it is just as essential to portray the difference in temperament as it is critically to analyze their playing abilities.

In deducing a logical reason for the prevailing back-court style of the Easterner and his English cousin, we must account for it in their adherence to turf-court play. For nothing is more conducive to baseline playing than a grass court. First of all, the ball takes a slow rise from off the turf, permitting the striker to take up an advantageous position for a perfect manipulation. And then, again, the uncertainty of one's footing on turf prevents a player from forcing the net position in too aggressive a manner. This has special reference to the English player, who, forbidden to use spikes, is likely to be fearful of aggressive tactics, and so prefers to remain along the baseline. Continuous playing on turf courts was accountable in good share for the prevailing back-court game of the English exponent and his Eastern States cousin.

In like proportions the playing conditions of the Californian asphalt court are accountable for the development of the new tennis style ushered in by McLoughlin, Bundy, Strachan, Murray and Fottrell. The aggressive net play and highly developed break service, with speed as a dominating note throughout; this is the California playing form that took the East by storm in 1909 and caused a revolution in styles.

The dry atmosphere of California has rendered asphalt surface imperative. The upkeep of turf has been attempted, but with deplorable results. The Californian owes his hard hitting aggressive game to the fact that he has been forced to play on a hard surface. For one thing in direct contrast to turf playing, it would be folly to attempt to play in the back court on asphalt. The ball rises too quickly off the hard surface for a deliberate manipulation. This fact has been instrumental in developing the fast forehand drive of such players as Champion Johnston and McLoughlin. Knowing the uselessness of a soft return against the advancing net player they strike out hard and fast in an attempt for a clearance. Also the ball delivered by the server generally is too soft for a return.

The strong twist service which most the leading Californian players command was developed to insure a position at the net. For the object is to take the ball on the volley whenever possible. Once it strikes the hard surface the chances are against a favourable manipulation. Each department of his game is thus a perfect illustration of the "use and disuse" theory.

The strong service, aggressive net play, and brilliant forehand drive were all evolved from the playing conditions, and the weak backhand noticeable in the game of every Californian player is also a product of the "use and disuse" theory as related to the asphalt game. Having developed a strong forehand for break through the opponent's service, the backhand was overlooked.

So in dealing with the subject of the playing tactics adopted in both these styles the difference in the environmental conditions of play can be accounted for. The back-court game up to 1909 was universal only because the asphalt players from California had not as yet made their debut. The question may arise as to why the Californians, once on the turf, did not change their style to that of the Easterners. It is evident that such a procedure would not have been advantageous, as their own style proved itself in competition to be made up of the winning attributes.

New Yorkers Too Busy to Visit Their Splendid Club in Canada

New Yorkers Buy Beautiful Canadian Site to Enjoy Delights of the "Wild."

BUT NOBODY GOES THERE

GAME ABOUNDS, THE "WILD" CALLS AND CALLS, BUT MEMBERS TOO BUSY TO HEED.

NEW YORK, November 23.—Ideally situated up in Canada is a camp clubhouse with extensive wild game surroundings, which is a nagging disappointment to its members in this city. The name is the Canadian Camp Club. It is situated on the northern shores of Lake Wahnekobing, Province of Ontario. Five hundred and fifty two acres of their own property surround the clubhouse. The intensity of the call from the wild may be surmised from the fact that within a comparatively short distance of the club's preserves is territory, unexplored by man so far as is known. At the same time the club quarters are easily accessible from the Canadian Pacific Railway.

It is this "call of the wild" that bothers the members. It calls and calls. They do not answer.

The failure to respond to this call, which, so to say, is phonographed into the office of each of the members—at no small cost per member forms the very latest illustration of the pressure of affairs on men who it would be supposed long ago won a position in life to command both the leisure and the means to enjoy fully the opportunities of such a club as the Canadian camp. The means they have but the leisure no.

Here is the startling face, throwing the cold light of disillusionment on a much envied section of American life.

No more than one in ten has ever been able to get within sight of their clubhouse up in Canada. Even the president of the club has never seen the clubhouse. He is Dr. Robert T. Morris, a prominent New York surgeon. He admitted the truth, half apologetically, the other day. He hopes to go next year.

Seven years ago the Canadian Camp Club was formed. Imagination and enthusiasm entered into the plans of the organization. It was agreed that all the prospective members needed to get away from the big world for a period during each year. It was agreed that a place for complete isolation in primitive nature, with wild game enough to prevent thought of returning to office, was what was required.

FISH AND BIG GAME.

Consequently plans were admirably shaped and carried out to meet these demands. In all the northern game land a better place than the one chosen could hardly have been found. Some of the advantages of the location are:

Trout fishing in streams easily accessible from the clubhouse.

Trout fishing in lake on which the clubhouse is located.

Deer hunting within thirty minutes walk.

Moose hunting within a day's tramp.

The Mississauga canoe trip, probably the finest of the kind on the continent, ends at the clubhouse. Save for a few Indian wigwams the voyaging sportsman will see no human habitation for 300 miles. Vast areas never before visited lie within easy reach. In winter wolves and lynx add thrills to the surroundings.

To put to nobility, the members were delighted when the first prospectus of the club made known to them what had been provided for their relief from the cares of the world. Here was isolation sure enough and they had bought it—owned it—and it was waiting for them.

It was resolved to keep the isolation intact. No telephone should desecrate the primeval retirement of that clubhouse. The nearest telephone was held at bay across the lake.

There was some speculation as to whether the club quarters would be large enough to accommodate the members. About 200 members joined the club, most of them prominent in New York or in other large cities east of the Mississippi. However, if more room were needed it could be provided later as any extra cost was inconsequential to the average member. It made no difference what isolation cost, it was cheap at any price.

THEY JUST LOOKED AT PICTURES.

The first year not more than ten of the members appeared at the clubhouse. The superintendent, who had feared that he would have to ransack hundreds of miles of Canadian stretches to provide milk, eggs and butter for the thronging members, found his problem solved in a manner he had not expected. It was thought to be an unusual year with the members. But the next year was the same. Instead of going there the members looked at photographs of the isolation scenes from around the camp, which had been provided for them. So it has been every year since. That isolation is a fleeting ideal, ever receding into the next year. The vacation required is longer than they can spare. They are high salaried men, tied to their overladen desks.

W. T. McCulloch, Auditor of the New York Central, is the secretary and treasurer of the club. He has a better record than most of the members. He has been up there once. He has also in his possession letters from two other members telling just what a wonderful place it is.

Among the New York members of the club are Colgate Hoyt, Girard B. Whitney, James A. Cruikshank, Dr. G. Lenox Curtis, James K. Hackett, Julius H. Seymour and George M. Burleigh. Included in the honorary members are Theodore Roosevelt, Prince Colleredo-Mansfeld of Vienna, Austria, J. P. Whitney, premier of Ontario, and S. Suriki, Surgeon General of the Imperial Japanese Navy.

Isolation, the average member of the club now realizes, comes high. They have invested $8,000 up in Canada, but retirement to the heart of nature seems just as far away as before they put up the money. It is one thing, they find, to buy isolation; another actually to surround yourself with the same.

CURLING CLUB ROOMS OPEN DECEMBER 6TH

Mr. Angus McIntosh Has Been Engaged Again and Prospects Are Promising.

The Committee of Management of the Curling Club evidently believe that colder weather will be here before long, as is evidenced by their holding their first meeting of the season at the rink last evening. A number of things relating to the welfare of the Club were discussed and it was decided to open the Club rooms one week from next Monday, December 6th. The secretary reported that to date as many, if not more members had renewed their membership than at the same date last year. Applications from nine new men who wish to join were handed in to the meeting. The Committee have engaged Mr. Angus McIntosh as caretaker.

ALL ARE SICK OF THE WAR, SAYS GERMAN PAPERS

LONDON, Nov. 24 — Various newspapers in Germany are now talking of peace, and the desirability of permitting it to be discussed.

The Vorwaerts, which resumed publication a week ago after having been suspended by the Government for a frank peace plea which it published, renews its demand in strong language. Action on the part of the authorities is improbable in view of the fact that several other leading papers are being permitted to discuss the same subject.

"The real cause of the high cost of living is the long duration of the war. Every successive week of the war renders the economic situation of the poorer classes more intolerable. The best safeguard in the future against the increases of prices would be the speedy termination of the war.

"We rely on the leaders of our party to multiply their efforts and to see that everything in their power is done to end the conflict. We are not fighting to protect our frontier, but to add to our territory. We appeal to the party leaders to undertake an open and frank campaign against all sorts of annexation plans, in order that a constantly growing desire of the proletariat for peace may be finally satisfied. If the party enters resolutely upon this road, it will attach to itself not only the great masses of the people, but also all sections of middle-class society, who are equally sick of war."

Der Montagu Press says: "The organs of our enemies are perfectly correct when they assure their readers that in Germany there exists an urgent longing for peace, and the desire is even more urgent than even those journals appear to know."

INSANE SOLDIER'S CRIME

German Slays Parents and Sister With an Axe.

STUTTGART, Nov. 23.—Crazed by the horrors of the war and his wounds, Leonard Maier, a reservist from Ziegolz, Wuertremberg, has been sent to an asylum for the insane after committing a triple murder. He was shot through the head and the right lung in Upper Alsace last spring. When an ambulance brought him to the field hospital the surgeons declared that he could not live, but two operations saved his life. In September he was discharged from the hospital. When he returned to his native village he seemed to be in pretty good condition, physically, although he had partly lost his memory. Then he suddenly became violently insane. Arming himself with an axe, he killed his aged parents and his only sister. Then he barricaded himself in his house, and he could only be overpowered when detachments of gendarmes arrived from the neighboring towns.

MEETING OF COUNCIL OF NORTH MONAGHAN

The reading of the minutes was dispensed with.

Chief Howard and Adjutant McElhiney were present in the interests of the late Asa. Oliver and the woman who was with him, the old man dying in the county jail the evening of the day they were lodged there. The unfortunate part was that the old couple would not consent to go to the house of Refuge hence the necessity of the council sending the officer to take charge of them. Arrangements were made between Chief Howard and Adjutant McElhiney and the municipal council that the council try and have the old lady placed in the House of Refuge and bury the deceased, arrangements to be made with the council. In the meantime Chief Howard and Adjutant McElhiney have agreed to take charge of the burial.

The reeve called upon Mr. Mahoney and Mr. Byers to air their grievances but no settlement was arrived at.

On motion of Messrs. Bell and Rye, Mr. Mourcrief, the commissioner for R. R. No. 5, was given authority to fill up the culvert on the 9th concession, east of the quarter line, and make the job satisfactory to the council.

Bylaw No. 717 was passed appointing Albert E. Juby tax collector for 1915 taxes, salary to be $100.

The following bills were presented for payment.

George Mourcrief, putting in culvert on South Monaghan road, $4. Bert Sanderson, glass for the town hall, 75c. Melville Johnston, 64 yards gravel, Cavan boundary, $9.60. Archie Patterson, putting in culvert on Frank street, $3.35. Revised statute voters list, $3.80. Peter Hamilton Co., repairs, $2. Nicholls Hospital, for treatment to a soldier, $8. estate of A. McDonald, lumber for Crawford's Grove bridge, $3.42. G. Walter Green, chain, 60c. Total $35.72.

On motion of Messrs. Rye and Bell the accounts were ordered to be paid.

On motion of Messrs. Rye and Forster, the pay sheet re the Cavan boundary for $36.60, was passed and will be paid.

The following sidewalk bills were presented for payment.

John McMillan, lighting road, $3. G. W. Green, grates, $67.64. James O'Keefe, cartage, $1.45. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, cement, $483.45. Lindsay Hardware Co., supplies, 60c. Adamson & Dobbin, hose pipe, etc., $2.60. Thos. Arnott, tool house, $6. Dan Mahoney, water rates, $9.60. estate A. McDonald, lumber, $7.62. Dan Mahoney, sundries, $6.60. J. W. Fitzgerald, $57.54. Total $633.63.

Moved by Messrs. Rye and Bell that the above bills be passed and paid.

Moved by Messrs. Bell and Rye that the woman taken into custody with the late Alexander Oliver be placed in the House of Refuge.

Moved by Messrs. Bell and Rye that the township solicitor be authorized to prepare debentures to pay for the sidewalks recently constructed on McGill street, Chamberlain street, Monaghan Road and Brown street, the terms of the debentures to be 15 years and 6 per cent. interest.

RUSSIANS GAIN DVINA TRENCHES

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Austro-Germans, according to Russian reports, attempted an offensive in Galicia, and actually moved some advance guards across the Strypa, but the offensive broke down under the accurate fire of the Russian artillery.

The official statement from Petrograd to-day announced that in the Dvina district north of Lake Sventen the Russians captured a German first line trench.

South west of Dvinsk the enemy was badly cut up when he assumed the offensive and finally was forced to retreat to his former position. Austrian forces fled when heavily attacked by the Russians. This encounter took place on the middle Styr. Many were bayoneted and two officers and 177 men were captured.

Kovel, west of the Styr River region in Volhynia, where the Russians have recently reported successes over their Teutonic adversaries is being prepared for the possibility of an advance of the battle line westward, according to refugees from the city. The German administration is declared to have put enforced labor rules into effect during the past month, pressing the work of constructing strong fortifications, which have been completed by the use of cement brought from the railway and stone from quarries in the vicinity.

Military stores have been removed and the able bodied population has left the city in expectation of heavy fighting, the refugees state. A food shortage in the city is reported.

CHICAGO, Nov. 24.—The table knife which Mrs. Elizabeth Hoffberger finally persuaded surgeons she had swallowed while in a delirium due to illness eight months ago was taken from her stomach today in an operation at the West Side Hospital.

The knife was corroded and jagged from the action of stomach acids, and physicians said that nature had made heroic efforts to digest the implement.

PRISONERS NEED FUND

Mrs. G. A. Smith gratefully acknowledges the donations of friends towards the "Prisoners' Need Fund," and she would especially thank Mrs. Durnford, Mrs. Travers and Mrs. W. H. Hill, who so kindly entertained in their homes to aid this fund, thereby enabling her to send the sum of $42.10 to the headquarters of the Red Cross Society in London, England, for which parcels of food will be sent to friendless prisoners in Ruhleben (Germany).

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

S. O. E. Benevolent Society To Discontinue Paying Insurance On Members Who Enlist

Applies Not to the Ordinary Members But to Those Who Are Insured for $1,000—Ruling of Supreme Executive—107 Members Will Receive Full Benefit of Their Policies.

TORONTO, Nov. 23.—That no longer will death claims be paid on the lives of members of the Sons of England Benevolent Society who enlist is the ruling of the Supreme Executive of that Order. It was conveyed to the subordinate lodges last October that all beneficial members enlisting thereafter must come under that section of the constitution which provides that military duty is an extra hazardous occupation and that such risks cannot be carried.

"War claims are not ordinary claims," said Supreme Secretary J. W. Carter, "and no provisions has been made for them in the constitution. You will understand that we have two classes of members, ordinary and insurance. The ordinary members participate in sick benefits and funeral funds. The insurance members, in addition to these benefits, are insured for $1,000 each. An ordinary member who enlists does not forfeit his benefits in any way; and an insurance member who enlists does not forfeit any of the benefits accruing to an ordinary member, but when he enlists he immediately comes under that class of risks which are specified in our constitution as extra hazardous and cannot be carried.

Is An Old Rule.

"It is an old rule, and has been accepted although perhaps not read, by every member who joined. Quite a large number of our members enlisted prior to the ruling of our supreme executive in this matter. The strictly legal view is that, upon tacts, this throws them out as beneficial member, but we are not taking that view, and it is to provide for the situation thus created that our levy of $1 per member has been made."

The levy of $1 per member is being made to raise $35,000 to assist in guaranteeing payment of 107 policies, who had previously enlisted before the order was made, and to look after the widows and orphans of those totally debarred from receiving insurance. Of this amount about $18,000 has been collected.

Mr. Carter said that the 107 members would receive the full benefit of their policies, but the other 25 who have enlisted since have their policies lapse completely.

Carried at Nominal Rates.

"That expresses our attitude," said Mr. Carter, "although it is quite within the power of our executive to refuse to pay any death claims on the lives of enlisted men. As I have said, we take a lenient view of the extraordinary situation which has arisen, and it must not be forgotten in connection with the cancelled policies, we have carried the risk at very nominal rates.

"The relief fund created by the new levy will be applied, not only to strengthen the position of the society relative to the paying of war claims, but more particularly to aid the widows and orphans of soldiers, according to their needs. The executive has power to make further levies of the kind if necessary. In every case the family will receive $100 funeral benefit, and in practically every case the benefits paid will exceed the premiums already paid in on the cancelled policies. Five beneficial members have already died in military service."

Other Societies Pay Policies.

So far as can be learned, other fraternal and benevolent organizations are taking the stand that any person who was a member prior to the outbreak of the war, but who has since enlisted, will receive their policies. The policies remain in force, without any increased premium, while in some cases the organization is taking the responsibility of keeping up the premiums, as well as paying the policy to the family in case the member is killed.

The Ancient Order of Foresters are continuing all their old policies on the terms existing before the war, but in case a member goes to war and is not able to keep up his payments, the organization keeps the policy from lapsing. In case of death during the war, the amount of the policy less the amount of premium the organization has had to pay will be turned over to relatives. No new war risks are being taken on, although for a short time after the outbreak of the war new risks were accepted upon payment of an additional $50 premium.

The Ancient Order of United Workmen have not increased their rate, the policy continuing upon the same terms as existed before the war.

The Independent Order of Foresters have not made any change in their policies or premiums, though new war risks are refused.

In the case of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, the grand lodge keeps up the policies of all war members, regardless of whether or not the men are able to do it themselves. In all other ways the members get full benefits, the policies being paid in full at death. As about 1,000 men are now in the army, no new war risks are being accepted.

With the Canadian Home Circle the onus falls upon the policyholder or his relatives to keep up his policy upon the old terms. If the policy is allowed to lapse, the holder then becomes the loser. No new risks are accepted.

The Royal Templars of Temperance are carrying their members upon the same conditions as before the war.

Syndicate of Kings in the Balkans Formed By The Kaiser Before the War

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Foremost European Authority on Balkan Politics.

ROME.—The Balkan Peninsula will remain the centre of political interest until the danger of further treachery from the neutral states there is definitely dispelled.

I write with first hand knowledge of the facts, not all of which are yet realized, or even known. For example, the circumstance is not yet apprehended, nor generally believed, that a league of monarchs was prearranged by the Kaiser and was completed in principle before the war broke out, and that the original conception was more comprehensive than the final achievement.

This falling off between intention and realization was due in great part, not to resistance on the part of the monarchs tempted, but solely to the veto of certain of their influential subjects.

The promptitude and thoroughness of Germany, who forestalled the unsuspecting Entente Powers, formed a syndicate of kings, and she began by obtaining assurances that none would harm her while some would help her.

Teutons Knew the People.

But with this success the Teutons were not contented, for they knew what slippery customers the Balkan people are and how little worth stipulations have in their eyes if their interests beckon them in an opposite direction.

Thus judging them according to their own standard, Germany successfully strove, by co-operating military action with diplomatic pressure, to keep them to their engagements with the Kaiser and detach them from their liabilities to his actual or potential enemies.

Acquaintance with this plan, with the methods whereby it is being realized, with certain of its results and with the mental and normal fibre of the personages experimented on, has emboldened me to affirm ever since the war began that the Entente policy of chivalrous kindliness and delicate tact was wholly displaced.

For the only principle respected by the Balkan personages in question was the putting of interest before duty, and the only way by which the Entente could at any time thwart the Teuton schemes was by deploying greater military and naval forces than theirs.

To-day more peremptorily than ever, is the adoption of this method postulated by events. The assurances by benevolent neutrality lavished by Premier Skouloudis are less solemn and less binding than the formal treaty obligations assumed by all Greece towards Serbia.

There are far less solid than the promises made by Venizelos, who was backed by the King, the Cabinet, Parliament and the nation at the time, but who is now being systematically disavowed.

Skouloudis is not the spokesman of Parliament or of the nation. He is the mere nominee of a field marshal of the Prussian army, who is systematically doing violence to Greece's constitution and sacrificing her national honor in order to redeem his promise to his Prussian brother-in-law.

Skouloudis will disappear into private life to-morrow, but King Constantine, who represents no national dynasty, will remain. Venizelos who was laboriously educating the anarchic Greek people and who possessed the confidence of the nation, is to-day a mere private individual.

How can the Entente States accept the assurances, however solemn, of any Minister of Cabinet appointed by the King for the special purpose of carrying out Germany's designs against themselves?

Venizelos Out of Power.

If there were any truth or honor left in the governing circles of Greece Venizelos and his colleagues would not be in power, but there is none.

The King is determined at all costs to create a Germanophile parliament hostile to the Entente powers.

Yet he expects these Powers to rely upon the oral promise of a Provisional Minister that the allies need apprehend no stab in the back. Venizelos himself is alleged to have replied two days ago to a number of merchants of Athens and Piraeus, who exhorted him to allow his party to take an active hand in the elections:

"I am of the opinion that abstention is advisable under the prevailing circumstances, for even if the Liberals won the electorate campaign and were returned to Parliament in a majority, they would still find it impossible to realize their programme."

That means that even if the Greek people again announce their determination to do their duty and eschew disloyalty the Field Marshal of the Prussian army would none the less execute his brother-in-law's designs.

Effective constraint, in Greece's interests and our own, is the only method that can now be employed with any hope of success.

MASON AND DIXON LINE DATES BACK 151 YEARS

In 1763, 152 years ago, two English surveyors, Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, began the surveying of what came to be known as the Mason and Dixon line, between the states of Pennsylvania and Maryland. This line afterward became famous as the supposed boundary between the North and the South, or between the free and the slave-holding states.

The line was surveyed at the instance of William Penn and Lord Baltimore. The surveyors were three years in making the survey from the northeast corner to the foot of Savage mountain. In 1767 the work was finished from the latter point to Virginia, now West Virginia. The line is said to have cost $300,000 and the surveyors employed an army of 100 axemen and a road of 30 feet wide was cut through the dense forest.

A mixture of sand and lime stones of light brown grayish color was brought over from England to mark the line, and these stones were set up at intervals of a mile wherever it was possible to erect them. They weighed 500 pounds each, and were 7 feet high. On some parts of the line the country was so rugged that mounds of dirt and rock had to be substituted for these stones.

To-day the Mason and Dixon line has been resurveyed and remarked and divested of its chief erroneous traditions. In 1849 a revision of the line was made by a joint commission from Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware, and it was then found that the change involved by the correction amounted to less than two acres, which were added to Maryland. In 1906 Pennsylvania and Maryland each appropriated $5,000 for restoration of the line.

Many of the peculiar English stones had disappeared and the commission made an exhaustive search for them. The identification was an easy task, for on breaking them the stones emitted a sulphurous odor. So thorough was the search that some were found in people's cellars. One was taken from the wall of an old stone church, where it had done service for many years. In the places of those which could not be found, new stones of marble were set up.

On every fifth stone the coat of arms of William Penn was cut on the Pennsylvania side, and on the Maryland side the escutcheon of Lord Baltimore was placed. On the other the monogram of P. and M. was cut. The stones are now set so near one another, even in the mountain regions that the traveler may stand at a stone and see the next one.—New York World.

The Weekly List For The Tobacco Fund

The following is a list of the amounts remitted during the week ending November 13th. It will be seen that the total is $4,031.11. This provides for approximately 16,000 packages of tobacco and cigarettes, but the number of men at the Front is 80,000, and that number is increasing every day. Contributions will be received at any bank or post office and by a large number of newspapers throughout the Dominion.

Communications should be addressed to the organizing secretary, Mr. Francis R. Jones, at the offices of the Overseas Club, Windsor Hotel, Montreal.

Deputation Going to Toronto on Friday With Hope That Board of Health Will Sanction Proposed Location.

What is expected to be a final interview with the Provincial Board of Health will take place in Toronto on Friday when Peterboroughs' plans for the location of the sewage disposal plant will be presented.

Ald. Green has authority to take with him whatever deputation he deems necessary, but Mayor Buller stated to-day that he did not think a large number was required. In fact it is likely that Ald. Green and City Engineer Parsons will make the trip.

The Mayor and his associates hope that the new plans will be accepted by the Board, that the city may close the last of the preliminary details in connection with the sewer construction.

G.T.R. Gatehouse Was On Fire

About $15 Damage Done to Shack at Bethune and Sherbrooke Streets

The Grand Trunk gate-house at Bethune and Sherbrooke streets, suffered damage to extent of about fifteen dollars when a fire broke out there last night about 10:40. It is thought the fire was caused by a defective stove becoming overheated. The fire brigade was called and used ten gallons of chemicals in subduing the flames. The damage done was to the interior.

KAVALA VALUABLE TO THE ALLIES

"Back of Kavala," says a Bureau of Geographical Information, "where the Allies are reported to be landing troops for their operations in the Balkans, lies the historic battlefield, Philippi, upon which Brutus and Cassius lost all hope of inheriting the power of the great dictator whom they had slain. Kavala is a Greek port much nearer to the Bulgarian borders than that of Saloniki, and one of the most convenient stations available to the Allies for the basing of a campaign against southern Bulgaria, with the objective of the Oriental Railway through Turkey-in-Europe.

"Kavala port crowns a promotory reaching into the bay. It is an insignificant little village, with a population of scarcely more than 8,000. The island of Thasos lies before its bay to the south and east. This island, also is a hilly vantage point for the guarding of the entrance of the harbor against attack by hostile ships. Altogether, the present favorable war-time geographical advantages of this obscure little town may conspire to give it back a greater fame than it possessed in Greek and Roman lines. Mehemet Ali was born here in 1769, which event is the greatest in the village's history of 1,000 years until the present coming of the French and English. In the country surrounding Kavala is grown some of the finest Turkish tobacco that finds it way into fancy cigarettes into the markets of England and America."

WELL TREATED IN HOLLAND

Interned British Soldiers Have Plenty of Food, Etc.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 22.—A correspondent writing on life in the internment camp at Groningen says:

"I have just returned from visiting the men of the Royal Naval Brigade interned at Groningen. They are entering on their second year of confinement with a vigorous and healthy camp life well organized.

There are, of course, grumblers and "slackers," as there must be anywhere in any part of nearly 1,500 men; and these write letters home telling of their miserable plight and of the inadequacy of their food is not inadequate, and the men their way into print and annoy the rest of the camp even more than they do the Dutch authorities. The food is not adequate, and the men are comfortable. So far from demanding sympathy, the camp takes pride in its independence and self-sufficingness. Parcels of "comforts" and other gifts from friends outside to individuals are a private matter and are undoubtedly always welcome; but for the camp itself, as a unit, it has nothing to ask of England. Old books or newspapers for its library and reading-rooms are acceptable; but, beyond that, its only appeal to people at home is: "Keep your money and help for the men in the firing line. We're alright!"

The University of Groningen has generously thrown all its lectures open to members of the brigade who care to attend. There are numerous classes at the camp for teaching languages and so forth as well as frequent lectures; and the Royal Society of Arts and London Chamber of Commerce have both made arrangements for examinations to be held at Timbertown, at which successful candidates will be awarded the appropriate certificates. The Government of Holland has, moreover, promised men to go away from the camp to take regular employment elsewhere, provided that in so doing they do not compete with native labor.

Offended Her.

M'Simpson is very fond of his wife, so much so that after a little tiff with her he went about looking very down in the mouth. "Hello, old fellow!" exclaimed Jawkins, on seeing him "what's worrying you?" "My wife and I had an—an argument the day before yesterday," said M'Simpson "and nothing I said offended her so much that she hasn't spoken to me since." "I say," cried Jawkins, with pitiful eagerness, "would you mind telling me what you said?"

Arts and Crafts Column

In this column, conducted by Mr. Hughson Johnstone, painter and decorator, 510 College street, will be answered—on Wednesdays — questions of the kind given below, for the benefit of those who, in this period of stringency and enforced and suggested economy, might like doing their own work. Questions relating to painting, signwriting, paperhanging, furniture polishing, and decorating may be sent to the Examiner, and will receive attention in due course.

A Reader:—I read in the Examiner that a cheese box cover makes a good tray to carry things from the kitchen to the dining room. I think it would be very nice if it was painted. Would you mind informing me as to the shade?

Ans.—I am told by a dealer that cheese box covers are principally made of sappy pine. Therefore I would not paint it. But rather proceed as follows. Smooth it with sandpaper first, then dust thoroughly and stain with the following. Boiled linseed oil and turpentine, equal parts, to which add burnt Sienna until the desired depth of shade is obtained, then add a wee speck of English red or Chatmus ink to enrich the colour, also a dash of drier. Appy it liberally, allow it to stand an hour or so, then wipe dry, which will bring out the grain, let it stand 24 hours and paper lightly with 00 sand paper, then shellac it one coat, again stain the new varnish two coats, with some good exterior varnish. When thoroughly hard give it a very little rubbing with finely ground pumice stone and water on a piece of bagging or jute. Don't rub it much as the continual washing and using will soon attend to that.

Wondering Wife, Peterborough, Ont.—I bought some oatmeal ingrane wall paper and followed the little paper instructions carefully about shading the paper, etc. But in one double I found after hanging, two shades, both in the one roll. Should the firm stand the loss, as it spoils the whole room? It is right in a prominent place?

Ans.—I was first inclined to wonder at the "wonderful" signature, of what I thought, must be the question of a wondering paperhanger, especially as it savors of familiarity of terms and handwriting of a male. Still, he may have written it for his wife and so I will answer it. But let me again emphasize that the prerogative of this column is not that of an authority or instructor, to the tradesman or artisan, but rather to be of assistance to the inexperienced, as the heading suggests. If after hanging two strips out of the same roll you discovered two shades, I would say the fault is yours. You evidently either reversed your paper on the paste board, or did so when hanging it. It would be almost impossible to have two shades in one roll.—I. Ingram.

Whitehead, Lindsay, Ont.—I will feel very grateful if through your very instructive "Arts and Crafts" column you will tell me how I can discover whiting or whatever it is that white lead is adulterated with? I am sure your many readers will welcome the information.

Ans.:—I am neither a chemist nor an analyst and so cannot enlighten you very much, but I do know that all lead is not adulterated, and I think I can safely say no lead is adulterated with whiting. I also know that many painters will not agree with me. Space will not permit my reasons. Suffice it to say whiting would cost as much to grind as a pure white lead, so why whiting. There are far better adulterants, such as Barytes. A simple test used by some painters is simply to place some white lead (after extracting the oil) on tin, a little fire shovel and allow it to become red hot, enough to melt the lead. The adulterants will burn and leave an ash, the lead will not, so, the more ash the more adulterant.

Youth Was Badly Burned About Face and Head

Used Gasoline to Revive a Torch Flame With Result That There Was an Explosion—Accident to Keene Boy

OTHER KEENE NEWS

A very unfortunate accident happened to Harry Edwards, eldest son of Mr. William Edwards, near Lang, on Tuesday of last week. The young fellow was severely burned about the head and face. He was working around a gasoline engine when the accident occurred. In order to revive the gasoline torch flame he applied some gasoline from a nearby can, with the result that there was an explosion, spreading flames over his head and body. Before the fire could be smothered the boy was quite badly burned. It is reported that he is getting along as nicely as can be expected.

On last Wednesday evening a very pleasant surprise was sprung on Mr. Percy Stinson, G.T.R. agent, on the eve of his departure for Millbrook, where he will have charge of the station at that point. A number of the Keene business men called at the station and presented him with a club bag and two handsome chairs as a token of their appreciation of his kindness and courtesy during three years stay here. Mr. Stinson has made many friends, who will regret his departure, and our best wishes go with him in his new field of work. Mr. Stinson moved his family last Friday to Millbrook.

Mr. Thomas Nelson has returned home from Toronto and other points, where he spent the past six weeks visiting friends.

Owen Carmel, a son, born to Mr and Mrs. Daniel McCarthey, on Sunday, Nov. 21rd.

Private John Fletcher of Peterborough, is spending a few days this week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Fletcher.

Mr. Robert McCam returned during the past week from his hunting trip, bringing with him a fine deer.

Rev. A. K. Edmison spent Wednesday of last week with his brother, Dr. Edmison at Hastings, who has enlisted as surgeon and expects to leave in December.

Mr. William Fletcher returned on Monday from Peterborough, where he was sent as a delegate to the 10th annual boys' work held at that point during the week end.

A Christmas tree and entertainment will be given on the evening of Dec. 24th by the Keene Methodist Sunday school.

Mrs. Robt. Brown was in Peterborough last Monday.

Mrs. Mace of Lakefield, is at the home of her sister, Miss Agnes Lumsden.

Mrs. John, who has been visiting Toronto friends, has returned home.

The Thank offering for the anniversary of the Methodist church amounted to about $70.

Mrs. W. R. Wedlock and little Miss Florence returned last Wednesday from Peterborough, where they spent a few days with friends

Misses May Kelley and Ada Brown were in Peterborough on Wednesday of last week on a shopping expedition.

Private David Weir of Peterborough, was in the village over Sunday.

Rev. Edmison, Messrs. N. H. Kidd, Harry Bourland, Harry Reid, of Indian River, and several others, attended the Billy Sunday revival at Toronto on Tuesday night.

The Keene Ladies' Patriotic Society made the following shipment to the Red Cross at Toronto: 43 flannelette gowns, 17 cotton hospital gowns, 49 pairs socks, 54 assorted bandage rolls, 3 pairs wristlets, 5 face cloths, 1 quilt.

Privates G. McIntyre, G. Moore and W. R. Wedlock of Peterborough, spent the week end with Keene friends.

Mrs. Thomas O'Neil of Hastings, is visiting friends at the Victoria House this week

GERMANS HATE TO ENLIST.

Do So Only to Avoid Being Shot, Says Returned Traveller.

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 23.—Miss Minnie E. Blood, member of a wealthy family here, has returned to her home here after eight years spent in philanthropic work in Germany. She draws a gloomy picture of conditions there.

"I am not so very much impressed with German efficiency," she said to-day. "It seems to me it is just an abundance of red tape. We hear about every bit of the German land having been planted last summer. This is not true. The German peasant says, 'Why should I plant when I don't know when I will reap?' and he fears the confiscation of his crops by the Government.'

"As for enlisting and obeying the orders to report to the armies the men hate to do it, but they know they will be shot if they don't join the ranks. The brunt of the burden of supporting families falls upon the women, and while they are working faithfully much of the business has gone to ruin."

ST. ANDREW'S LADIES GOT $65 FROM EMPIRE THEATRE PROGRAMME

The Patriotic Society of St. Andrew's Church received $65 from Dr. F. L. Robinson as the net proceeds of Tuesday afternoon's special programme at the Empire Theatre. The total proceeds amounted to $68 which will be used by the ladies of the church for the further provision of comforts and necessities of the men at the Front.

The programme was composed of a feature film, entitled "Hearts Adrift," with Mary Pickford in the leading part. Miss Stevens pleased the large audience with two vocal solos, and Private Stenson gave an address relating incidents in the career of the 1st Canadian Division up to the Battle of Langemarck. He particularly spoke of the need of socks and other articles essential to the comfort of the men. Lacking the facilities for cleaning their clothes when the soldiers return from the trenches they are generally forced to throw away parts of their clothing. As a result, the heaviest demand is for socks. The possession of extra pairs is also a comfort to the men when, as is frequently the case, their feet get wet from marching through mud and water.

Private Stenson's address was chiefly an encouragement to the ladies who have been knitting socks and also an appreciation of their work

Mr. George A. Gillespie, M.P.P. was chairman, and in a short address spoke of the sacrifices that have been made by the women of Canada, and of the efforts put forth by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church in making various articles or the soldiers.

Yesterday's concert at the Empire was a gratifying success, and will materially assist the ladies in continuing the work

NEW TRUNK SEWER NOW OPPOSITE THE DE LAVAL.

The trunk sewer on Park Street is being steadily pushed northward. Excavations are now opposite the De Laval Company's plant.

Mayor Buller stated this morning that the city would provide adequate approaches to the factory while the road is torn up.

Electricity is generated by a windmill so successfully at a German technical school that it is estimated that a similar plant could supply light and water for 100 persons at a cost of $125 a year.

"THE TERRIBLE THREE" MADE REPORT TO THE MAYOR

When Ald. Dobbin welcomed the delegates to the Boys' Conference last week, he asked them to inspect the city and report to Mayor Buller if anything was found unsatisfactory. 'The Terrible Three" reported for the celegates as follows:

Peterborough, Nov. 22nd, 1915.

To the Mayor of Peterborough:

We were told by your good friend, Mr. Dobbin, who so eloquently and elegantly expressed himself at our meeting on Friday night, that if there was anything in the town that we weren't entirely satisfied with, we were just to inform your Lordship, and you would have it attended to at once.

Now, the first thing is the turning of the lights out at half past ten. This we do not approve of. And when the sidewalks are taken in at half past eleven, we would advise you to have them well washed and cleaned before they are put out for the morning's work. We do not like the way the policemen all stand around one corner and do their knitting. He blocks the traffic, and we feel greatly embarrassed when passing. The street cars, or at least boxes, should be made about six inches shorter, so you could get more of them on the tracks, and accommodate the people much better.

Now, kindly have all these attended to, and we will report again on our next trip to your fair city.

TERRIBLE THREE.

dents of Peterborough County, the others coming from points which, although close at hand, are not in the county. It is estimated that the city of Peterborough itself has so far supplied from 65 to 70 per cent. of the men.

Major Eastwood, who has charge of the work of examining recruits, has so far received no official word of the proposed modification in the sight test. If the standard in that respect is made less exacting, a large number of men turned down before will be available.

Pte. Toume of No. 2 Platoon, A Company, 93rd Battalion, has been sent to Nicholls Hospital.

Another employee of the Examiner joined the 93rd Battalion yesterday in the person of Palmer Wylie of the bindery staff, who has been attached to the signalling section. He is the fifth Examiner employee to don the khaki recently, the others being Lce.-Corp. Albert Stanley of the 93rd, Gunner Fred Primeau of the 33rd Battery, and Ptes. L. Callendar and Maurice Dunkley of the 59th Battalion.

Revised figures in regard to recruiting in Peterborough show that seven per cent. of the city's population has joined the Colours. The average for Canada is two per cent. Fourteen hundred men have enlisted here since the war broke out. Allowing that 200 of these came from other points in the district, that number is balanced by the large number of Peterborough's sons serving in other units. Not only is the percentage of recruits high, but the calibre of the men has been uniformly good throughout.

Says the Kingston Whig: Captain S. J. Gilmore, of the 16th Regiment Picton, has been appointed to a captaincy in the 93rd Battalion now organizing with headquarters at Peterborough. Captain Gilmore is Deputy Reeve of Picton and his firm, Gilmore & Ward, is a large business concern.

The Kingston Whig says: The wonderful recruiting ability of the officers of the batteries at the Drydocks Barracks has brought a good and a bad effect. There are so many men quartered there that space for sleeping accommodation is lacking and will continue to be until the drafts that were authorized on Saturday are sent overseas.

There are 220 men on the top floor, a great number sleeping on the floors. Men are now at work erecting 100 new bunks and this will help to relieve the congestion on this floor, but recruits will continue to pour in as they have been doing, owing to the attraction of the batteries for recruits and in the near future they will again be crowded before a draft can be sent overseas.

There are about 270 men in the 34th Battery, but this large number are to a great extent being taken care of as the 34th has the largest floor in the building.

The offices, formerly used by the Cereals Ltd., and now by the battery medical officer and supervisor of training, are on the second floor, that was used by 32nd Battery, and there are 217 men in this battery including the thirty-nine men whom Capt. Stothers brought down from Ottawa on Monday.

This is almost the first case in record where units have been able to recruit men faster than they can be trained and sent overseas. The normal strength of a battery is 142 and all of these batteries are over that strength. It also speaks well for the reputation of the batteries throughout the country by the way the men are pouring in.

141st—Campbell (82nd), P. E. I. Highlanders.

Capt. Burnham, paymaster, Capt. Browning of Lakefield, Lieut. Sook Lieut. McNabb of Peterborough, Lieut. Quackenbush, and the machine gun officer, Lieut. Crisp, all of the 93rd Overseas Battalion, will report here on Saturday night, arriving on the evening train.

Owing to the fact that a number of the men were off on sick leave from yesterday's innoculation, and that uniforms had not all been issued to the new recruits Mr. Fred Roy has postponed the photographing of the 93rd for the Examiner Christmas number until Friday.

The Belleville Ontario says: James Cecil Lardie who to-day joined the 80th Battalion, was a member of the First Contingent. He went to the front with one of the Canadian Highland Regiments and saw service, being wounded by the Huns and stabbed with a bayonet. He was discharged for the time being as unfit for service and returned to Belleville. However now having recovered he is able to join again.

Private Lardie was six year in the United States Army.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—In answer to suggestions in some quarters that Canada could afford to pay her soldiers an even higher rate of pay than now obtains, attention was drawn to-day by the Militia Department to the following comparative rates of daily pay for private soldiers allowed by the combatant countries: Canada, $1.10, Great Britain, 25 cents; Italy, 20 cents; France 5 1-2 cents; Japan, 2 1-2 cents; Russia, 1 cent; Germany, 10 1-2 cents; Austria, 2 1-2 cents; Turkey, 3 5 6 cents.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.— A hundred and forty-five battalions have so far been authorized in Canada for overseas service. Of this number, 90 battalions have been fully recruited. Forty-seven batteries of artillery have been authorized, and forty-three raised. In regard to mounted troops, twelve units have been raised. At the present time there are, roughly, 57,000 troops in France, 55,000 in Canada, and 50,000 in England.

Ten of the new regiments are being raised in Toronto, three in Montreal, two from Hamilton, two from Brantford, and the rest are scattered. Not all of those listed as heading the regiments will go overseas.

Major Burritt arrived here last night and has inspected the contracts which have been finished at the Armouries, and also decided upon a number of changes made necessary to accommodate the office staff of the 93rd Battalion. One of these was to place the quartermasters' office of the 57th Regiment at the disposal of the 93rd paymaster. Majors Cameron and Eastwood will use the room just north of this room as their headquarters. It is not likely that the men of the 93rd will go into barracks until December 1st, one week from to-day.

Boots were issued to the new recruits of the 93rd Battalion to-day, and the twenty recruits now wearing mufti will soon be equipped in the regulation uniforms. No. 6 Platoon is now nearly at half strength, and the men are picking up the drill rapidly under the instruction of Sergt. Clarke and the watchful eye of Company Sergt.-Major Calladine.

Capt. Muir, who has been on duty at Lindsay in connection with the 93rd, has returned to Peterborough for duty here.

The 93rd Battalion marched down to the Exhibition Grounds this afternoon to practice extended order drill. Exhibition Park was placed at their disposal by the president of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition.

A letter from Gunner Stanley Taylor to his mother, Mrs. Taylor, Mark Street, Ashburnham, this morning, states that the Peterborough boys in the draft from the 33rd Battery, who have been at Ross Barracks, Shorncliffe, since reaching England, had been pretty well scattered to various places. Gunner Taylor and fifteen other boys have been sent to Wester Hanger to fill a gap in another battery. Gunners Orme Girven, Osborne Doupe, and Milford Hardill are qualifying for non-commissioned officers. Gunner Norman Laing has been sent to France, and Gunner Howard Chrowe is a signaller.

Parry Sound Explosion Not Bulgarian Atrocity, But Process Accident

The alarming story that was telegraphed to Toronto papers, and appeared yesterday, regarding a tremendous explosion at the auxiliary plant of the Canadian Explosives Company Parry Sound, with the inference that it was the work of Bulgarians, of whom many are employed in the vicinity, is not so alarming when the "hot air" is let out of it, as was done by Rev. Father Kelly of Parry Sound, who was in the city to-day.

He tells an interviewer: There was an explosion at Nobel, seven miles from Parry Sound, where the drying kilns of the company are located. These drying kilns consist of buildings of wood as flimsily put together as possible, but buttressed at the side with timbers, between which sand is placed to take up the shock in case of explosion, and prevent it spreading destructively in a horizontal direction. In case there is an explosion, its whole force is sent skyward and the other drying kilns and their contents are not so much endangered. The work of drying the cordite is a very delicate and dangerous operation and the least carelessness in permitting overheating is liable to produce an explosion by the action of the kilns themselves without any assistance from Bulgarians or anybody else.

Father Kelly says that the opinion of those who know was that the explosion was caused by pure accident, and not by any outside hostile agency. Under normal conditions the danger of explosion, with the least neglect or carelessness in regulating the drying heat in the kilns, is always present, and it is a surprise that an explosion took place. It appears that nobody was hurt, because arranged as the buildings are, any explosive force is directed upward where it can do nothing more frightful than imitate some of our great public men—make a great noise.

"CABIRIA"

A Great Military Film Spectacle

At a time when this country is talking of military matters it should interest all to see how battles were fought in the third century, B.C. In "Cabiria" the colossal photo drama by Gabriele D'Annunzio, which is to be shown at the Grand Theatre, beginning Thursday, Dec. 2, there are many battles, which for limitless ferocity and desperation, thrill the beholders with mingled awe and horror, awe at the massive agencies of destruction employed, horror at the relentless carnage which takes place. There is the destruction of the Roman fleet, which is realistic beyond description. The ships are burned to the water's edge and death is dealt out unsparingly. Similarly with the battle scenes where the combatants give and take no quarter. Hannibal's crossing of the Alps is wonderfully impressive as a military achievement. This operation is assigned to be one of the greatest of all time. It is interesting to contemplate the enormous material he availed himself of in that memorable attempt to penetrate the very heart of the Roman Empire. Men and animals were sacrificed profusely and indiscriminately, crossing the Alps alone having cost him ten thousand of his soldiers.

Machinery to sort oranges and lemons with running water, the idea being that sound fruit will sink and frostbitten float, has been patented and dedicated to the public by a California inventor.

THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH AND THE SINGLE TAX

Enjoyable Lecture at Murray Street Baptist Church Last Night Under Auspices of Men's Association.

FOR THE RED CROSS

Mr. Howard S. Ross, K.C., a prominent member of the Bar at Montreal, delivered a lecture last night in the Murray Street Baptist Church on "The Christian Church and the Single Tax," under the auspices of the Men's Association. Mr. R. C. Reid occupied the chair, and before Mr. Ross was called upon to speak, Miss Ida Sanderson gave a piano solo, and the Misses Hartshorn sang a duet.

Mr. Ross began his lecture by stating that the question of Single Tax was a moral issue. It was an attempt to get back the natural rights. These are four in number; the right to produce, the right to exchange what is produced and the right to enjoy the fruits of one's labour. Progress will be made when the "Christian Church" takes its place in the Single Tax movement. Politicians cannot be trusted. Neither can the Orthodox political economist in our colleges be trusted. Boards of Governors are generally conservative. Teaching is historical rather than scientific. Professor Laski, a new professor of McGill University has made a strong appeal to young men to study living issues. On one occasion Professor Laski was delivering a lecture in Winnipeg when a man in the audience asked him if he allowed his students to study the works of the Socialist Karl Marx. Professor Laski said: "No, I have them study the proceedings of the meetings of the Manufacturers' Association."

The churches should take the lead in the study of living issues. The man who can master theology should make a first-class economist.

The men in the pew should assist the clergy to grapple with these issues. In thepast the exponents of what Sing Tax have done too much scolding. What is needed is persuasion. Riches are only immoral with the rich man when he understands that his riches create inequalities. The trouble is that not many of the men who write on these question are Christians. No man is a true Christian who would not suffer in order that a reign of justice might be brought about. He is true to God who is true to man.

Single Tax will come when other fundamental reforms have been introduced. Two of the fundamental reforms most needed are, first, Direct Legislation, and second, Proportional Representation. Direct Legislation has been introduced in a number of the American States, and Proportional Representation is working to advantage in Belgium, Tasmania, and South Africa. The Home Rule Bill for Ireland continues the principle of Proportional Representation in order to preserve the rights of the Protestant minority. The principle of Proportional Representation should be worked out first in municipalities and then extended to the State as a whole.

Mr. Ross then traced the progress which the principles of single tax, which he preferred to call the taxation of land values, has made in Canada and indicated what might be expected in the future. As to Socialism he said that while he did not agree with Socialists generally he could not help but like them, and he told of Joseph Fels says that he, a Jew, had been converted to Christianity by Keir Hardie, a Socialist.

Mr. Ross' lecture was greatly enjoyed by the appreciative audience, which listened to him. After he had finished speaking a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Harding and seconded by Mr. Wearing. The meeting closed with the National Anthem. The proceeds of the lecture are to be devoted to the Red Cross Funds.

ABUSED PRESIDENT, MUST FIGHT FOR KAISER

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—An emotional problem playlet was staged at the American Embassy to-day when a weeping, hand-wringing German woman unsuccessfully pleaded with "the villain"—Ambassador Gerard—to give back her hyphenated husband's passport. The Ambassador had confiscated it because of its holder's remarks about President Wilson and the American Government, which Mr. Gerard considered improper, insulting and verging upon treason.

The man is a naturalized American, an engineer, 35 years old, who has lived in Germany for the last ten years. He came to the Embassy to get a passport but, as he was said to have admitted having made the offensive remark about the President, his passport was revoked in accordance with the State Department's instructions.

The woman made a tearful appeal to Mr. Gerard's "humanity" after her plea for "justice" had made no impression, and finally begged the Ambassador to restore the passport for only eight days in order to enable her husband to go to Holland and back. "Our whole existence is at stake," she cried. "You are ruining us."

The Ambassador finally fathomed the reason for the woman's agitation. Unable to prove his citizenship, her husband could not escape serving in the German army unless the Ambassador would give back his precious paper and save him. The woman was finally gently, but firmly, ushered out by the attendant, but without the passport.

DOURO COUNCIL

Minutes of the council meeting held at the town hall, Douro, on Monday, November 22nd.

All of the members were present.

On motion of M. D. Kennedy and George Hamilton, the reading of the minutes of the last meeting was dispensed with.

This meeting was held for the purpose of granting a sum equivalent to one mill one the dollar on the total rateable property in the township of Douro, or approximately eight hundred dollars, to the Red Cross Society and the Patriotic Fund.

Some of the members of the council were in favour of this method of raising funds for these purposes and others were of the opinion that the amount should be raised by voluntary contributions. There being a large number of the ratepayers present who discussed the matter quite freely, and so strongly expressed themselves in favor of raising money for these societies by voluntary subscription it was decided that before levying a tax of 1 mill on the $ to make an effort to get the feeling of the ratepayers in general throughout the township by taking an open vote on the matter on Monday, Dec. 6 from 2 o'clock to 6 p.m.

Moved by George Hamilton, seconded by P. Moloney, that a meeting of the ratepayers be held in the town hall, Douro, on Monday, Dec. 6, from 2 to 6 p.m., for the purpose of ascertaining by vote the general feeling as to the best method of raising funds for the Red Cross and Patriotic Societies, i.e., whether by a tax of one mill on the $ on all rateable property or by voluntary contributions.

The following accounts were paid: John John Leahy, two thirds value of sheep killed by dogs, $8; Michael Sheehan, half cost of wire fence, $9.20; Edward Sullivan, half cost of wire fence, $10.50.

Moved by P. Moloney, seconded by Geo. Hamilton, that the council adjourn.

KENNEDY SHOWS WRECKED.

Many Lives Lost in Georgia—Wild Animals Roam Woods.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Nov. 23.—A death list of twenty-four may result from a head-on collision between a Central Georgia passenger train and a special carrying the Con. T. Kennedy Carnival Shows. Fourty persons are in hospitals. Fred Kempt, a showman, and his wife, were pinned beneath a pile of flaming debris and burned to death while scores looked on powerless to aid them. Their three-year-old child was saved. Tigers, lions, panthers and other wild animals, liberated by the wreck, took refuge in the nearby forests and are being hunted by armed men.

The Kennedy Shows occupied the Midway at the Toronto Fair.

The Kitchener League and What It Does

All Their Knitted Goods Are Sent to the Boys in the Trenches

It has now been decided beyond a doubt that all knitted goods sent through the Red Cross Society are sent to the soldiers and sailors in the trenches. Well and good.

The Canadian Knitting Patriotic League, of which Mrs. Sam Hughes is president, with headquarters in Peterborough, took over this duty and all their knitted articles, socks, mitts, wristlets, etc., are sent to the boys in the trenches. This they have been doing since their organization one year ago.

The League has received many letters of thanks from our boys in the trenches expressing their appreciation for such warm, comfortable gifts. They received a letter just last week from Belgium asking for sox to be hurried along as quickly as possible as they were very badly in need of them.

The League has plenty of yarn to supply many more knitters if there are any ladies in Peterborough who would like to help in this very needful work. The League will be only too pleased to turn over the yarn to them. Yarn can be procured at Mrs. Jos. Knox, 481 Gilmour street, or G. Mowat, 377 Aylmer street.

The League would also appreciate any donations in money to help buy more yarn, and can assure the givers that their money will be well spent in the supplying of comforts for the boys at the front.

WEDDING BELLS

WHIBBS—PAQUETTE.

At eight o'clock this morning in St. Paul's Church, Toronto, Miss Maud Paquette of this city was united in marriage to Mr. George Whibbs of Peterborough. Miss Emma Paquette was bridesmaid, and Mr. Thos. Whibbs of Midland, was best man. The ceremony was performed by Dean Hand.

CARPENTER—GORDON.

The marriage of Miss May Gordon daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Gordon 140 Perry Street, to Mr. John Carpenter of Toronto, was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart by Rev. Father O'Brien at 7.30 o'clock this morning.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a navy velvet gown, with sable trimmings, and black and white picture hat, and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid, Miss Virginia Gordon, wore a navy suit and carried pink chrysanthemums. The groom was assisted by his brother, Mr. Wm. Carpenter, of Toronto.

The bride being a member of the choir, Mr. John Armstrong played the wedding march, and Miss Katie Master-on sang "Ave Maria."

After the ceremony a reception was held and luncheon was served at 11.30, at which were present Rev. Father O'Brien, Rev. Father McCauley, and near relatives and friends of the family. The rooms and table decorations consisted of white chrysanthemums and green foliage. The gifts to the young couple were many and useful. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a beautiful pearl crescent.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter left on the afternoon train for their future home 148 Sorouren Avenue, Toronto, amid the congratulations and good wishes of a host of friends.

LAPP—KELLY.

The marriage of Miss Estelle Kelly, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Kelly, 374 Downie street, and Mr. Edward S. Lapp, of St. Mary's Ont., and formerly of this city, was solemnized at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning a seven o'clock, Rev. Father Kelly, of St. Peter's Church, Parry Sound, and brother of the bride, officiating. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Annie Kelly, while her brother, Mr. Egbert Kelly, supported the groom. Owing to recent breavements in the family, the wedding was of a very quiet nature.

Mr. and Mrs. Lapp left on the noon train for St. Mary's, where they will reside.

HOCKEY DEPUTATION WILL WAIT UPON THE O. H. A.

At a meeting of hockey fans held in the Oriental Hotel last evening, plans for the coming season were discussed and it was decided to interview the O.H.A. in an effort to have the Peterborough club reinstated with a new set of officers instead of forming a new club and applying for membership under another name.

Messrs. J. M. Maher and J. P. Bond were appointed a committee to wait upon Mr. W. A. Hewitt, secretary of the O.H.A. in Toronto with a view to seeing what can be done along these lines, and report back to a meeting to be held on Friday night.

At present the Peterborough Hockey Club officers and players, with the exception of the junior manager and players are suspended.

Ford said he was not quite decided as to the method of procedure, but at any rate the effort would be made. The movement should have the support of every wife and mother in the world," he said.

Assurances of support have been received from many peace advocates in European countries at war and in peace.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The Teutonic Allies are face to face with the Serbs' Northern army to-day. The first sight evidently is at hand. Official news from Vienna tells of the Austrian capture of Mitrovitza. Berlin Foreign Office announces Pristina's occupation by the Germans and Bulgars. The two towns are twenty miles apart, Mitrovitza at the north-west and Pristina at the south-east end of the Kossovo Plateau — the famous Black Birds plain. On this plain, stretching from one town to the other, the Serbs are entrenched. Whether the invaders have come up with the Serbs in sufficient force yet for an immediate attack is not yet known. In any event it is felt that there can be a delay of but a few hours before the main battle begins.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Premier Asquith told the House of Commons to-day it had not been considered advisable to place all the land forces on the Western front under one commander. This means that General French remains in command of the British forces.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24.—A graphic story of a naval battle off the coast of Trinidad on the morning of August 28th, 1914, was told by Captain Fritze Falkenberg, of the steamer Berwind, when a German commerce raider, "Capt. Trafalgar," was sent to the bottom by the British cruiser Carmania. The Berwind escaped an attack, he said, because she was flying the American flag, although she was carrying supplies to German warships. Capt. Falkenberg was one of the most important witnesses in the charge that the Hamburg-American officials illegally supplied German warships from American ports.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—A Reuter's message from Athens says the Entente Ministers presented a collective note to Premier Skoulodis, "demanding" that Greece define her attitude. The Cabinet was immediately called together. After the Cabinet meeting the Greek Ministers said the situation had been cleared by the presentation of the note, which gave the Government definite information in regard to what was expected by the Allies. These demands were less exacting than had been expected. These Ministers added that Greece never had refused requests for assurances of the security of the Allied troops in Macedonia.

Terrific French Bombardment of Bulgars at Prilep

Advices From Bulgarian Sources Say the Bulgars Are Doing Their Best to Hold Ground But Allies Are Daily Increasing in Strength

DRIVING BULGARS BACK

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 25.—A terrific French bombardment of the Bulgars at Prilep is progressing today. The French artillery was detached from the Vardar River forces to help the Southern Serb army in its drive toward the north again. The fury of the Serbian infantry rush was driving the Bulgars backwards in the open field, but heavy guns were lacking to dislodge the invaders from the entrenched positions. Advices from Bulgarian sources say the Bulgars are doing their best to hold the ground they gained during their first rush into Serbia, but the Allies are daily increasing in strength. It is believed in Bucharest that the southern invaders will remain on the defensive until success of the Teutonic northern campaign allows the Austro-Germans to come south to help them.

SOLD HIS BLOOD TO PAY FORGERY

NEW YORK, November 25. Henry Trollet, chauffer, sold one pint of his blood for $75 in a trans-fusion operation in the Presbyterian Hospital, in order to pay back part of the proceeds of a cheque which he was accused of forging last July. No one at the hospital knew that he was under arrest from police.

The detective had lost all trace of him, when he sent $75 in his pocket and his right arm in a sling he communicated with Miss Clara Seitz telling her he was sorry she had been forced to pay the cheque, but that he had earned some money at last, and would make it payment. Miss Seitz told the detectives and on an hour they called him up at police headquarters.

Trollet is twenty-six years of age and has a wife and two children. He said that he feared so in last July and that his creditors threatened to have him dismissed as chauffeur if he did not pay it. To save his place, Trollet said he forged the name of George Gregor to a cheque made out to himself. The amount was $54.75. He paid the debt with the money. Miss Seitz, a bookkeeper who cashed the cheque, had to pay it.

Dr. Caldwell of the Presbyterian Hospital took the blood from Trollet, and injected it into the arm of Miss Sarah Wilson.

WEDDING BELLS

CHITTICK—LITTLE.

The marriage of Miss Ethel Margaret Little, daughter of Mr. Robert Little, South and Mr. Robt. Clare Chittick, son of Mr. John A. Chittick, of the same township, was quietly solemnized yesterday afternoon at the George Street Methodist parsonage, Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., officiating. The young couple were unattended and left on the afternoon train for Toronto and Detroit. On their return will reside in Smith.

How to Make Your Hair Soft, Fluffy, Beautiful

An old-fashioned home recipe, consisting of plain bay rum, lavona de compesse, and menthol crystals, is one of the best things in the world for the hair and scalp. Get from any druggist six ounces bay rum, two ounces of lavona de compesse and one-half drachm of menthol crystals. Dissolve the menthol crystals in the bay rum and then add the lavona de compesse. If you prefer your druggist may mix these ingredients for you. A few pounds of your favorite perfume may be added if you like. Apply by parting the hair a little and moistening a soft cloth with the mixture and rubbing it well into the scalp, so that it comes through the hair, taking a few small strands at a time. This loosens the hard scales of dirt, dust and excessive oil and makes the hair delightfully fluffy, soft and lustrous. To darken the hair, brush it long and make it evaporate rub the scalp briskly into the scalp with the finger tips or a medium soft brush. Apply night and morning. Try this simple remedy for a week or two and see if it does not do away with the dandruff and loose hairs. If your hair is very dry, the recipe should be used a little more frequently, but if your hair is thin keep up this treatment regularly for a number of weeks. If your hair parting has become wider, dampen the brush in the mixture and brush the hair well into the parting. This will cause a fine growth of hair to appear in a few weeks' time, and thus make new hair grow and gradually thicken the hair over the whole scalp. Various ready made hair preparations contain lead acetate. This is poisonous and dangerous, and should be avoided. The simple recipe given above is entirely harmless.

Lord Kitchener's Journey Spurs Greece to Grant Concessions to the Allies

Threat to Withdraw Privileges of Trade With Great Britain is Believed to Have Resulted in a More Conciliatory Attitude on the Part of King Constantine.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Announcement by the Foreign Office that there is no blockade of Greece is generally believed to be the diplomatic way of informing the world that King Constantine, realizing at last the tremendous naval power of the Quadruple Entente, and convinced by Lord Kitchener's weighty warning that the Allies are sure to win and that Britain will soon have an army of four million men, added to fourteen million men for Russia, France and Italy, has decided to grant all the demands of the Allies except intervention in the war, an act that, nevertheless, will be forced on Greece by Turco-Bulgarian capacity.

Despatches from Athens agree that the Serbians have resumed a serious offensive on Kossovo plain, that the Bulgars have been badly beaten by the French; that the Italians are landing in Albania, and that Russia has concentrated a well equipped army of 250,000 men in Bessarabia and that when the force is ready to strike Roumania, engaged by the tyrannical methods of Germany, will join forces with the Entente.

Instead of declaring a general blockade of the Greek ports the Allies have, according to a statement issued by the British Foreign Office today, withdrawn, or threatened to withdraw, the special privileges which Greek commerce has enjoyed since the outbreak of the war.

What these special privileges are is not specifically stated, but, as an example, Greece has been allowed to draw her supplies of coal from Welsh collieries. To do this Greek merchants required special permits, as the export of coal from the British Isles is allowed only under a special license.

There are many other commodities the export of which is permitted only to certain countries. Invariably when orders have been issued against the export of such commodities Greece has been among the countries excepted. Now, unless she concedes the demands made by the Allies for assurances for the safety of their troops in the Balkans, Greece will be "struck off the list" of countries which have those privileges.

While [illegible] on the part of the allied governments has caused some dissatisfaction in quarters where stern measures are advocated, it has met the situation and the belief is now prevalent that Greece having been impressed by Lord Kitchener's visit and the threat contained therein, will concede the demands.

CHAPTER XIV.

The Creole's Story.

SHE sank down on a locker and hid her face in her hands. The pitiful dejection in her attitude compelled me to bend over her in quick sympathy.

She looked up into my face. "I am not afraid. Only I cannot bear the thought that you doubt me—even so little. I know I have been indiscreet that you might justly deem me an adventuress. But I am not, Gordon Craig; I am a good woman left to fight alone, and I must have your faith or break down utterly. Do you believe me all I have told you that I am really the wife of Philip Henley?"

"Yes," I answered through clinched teeth, struggling to control myself.

For a moment she sat in silence, and, while I dared not look at her, I knew her eyes were upon my face.

"Then I will do whatever you say, go wherever you tell me," she promised gravely. "I must decide for myself. I am too confused to think clearly, but I trust you as a friend."

I drew aside the curtain draping one of the after ports and glanced out, eager for anything to distract attention. Through the clear glass I could see the curve of shore line forming the little cove. Just within the foam of the breakers a half dozen men were unpacking a small boat. I stared at them as if fascinated before realizing what it meant. Then I dropped the curtain.

"The mate is coming aboard," I said swiftly. "You must go to your room; here is the key; lock yourself in and only open when you hear my voice."

"And you"—

"I must take care of myself, don't worry about me."

Without so much as a glance at our prisoner she opened the door and, with a swift look about the outer cabin, disappeared.

I must keep Henley concealed and silent until darkness rendered our escape possible. In order to accomplish this it would be necessary to prevent either the steward or the mate from entering the after cabin. All peril from the negro I dismissed quickly, confident that his knowledge of my standing on board would impel him to accept any explanation I might make. But with Herman the situation was not so clear. Whether or not the captain had informed him that I was a volunteer on their lawless expedition I did not know. I had him placed as a gruff, hard fisted sea dog who would strike first and investigate later, one in dealing with whom either diplomacy or force might prove equal failures. Yet I possessed this advantage: I could deal with him alone. With but two watch officers on board only one at a time could leave the deck, and Broussard, I felt assured, had no privileges in the captain's cabin. From what I knew of Henley I doubted if even the first officer felt privileged to invade the privacy of his chief without some special reason. There was discipline on board, strict discipline. There had to be, to control such a crew.

As I lifted the helpless captain into his berth, his eyes glaring at me in impotent rage, my ears could distinguish the sound of oars as the small boat rounded the stern of the Sea Gull. Much as I despised the fellow, I hated to gag him, yet our safety depended on his silence, and I dared not neglect the precaution. Even as the boat grated along the side I stepped forth into the main cabin and sat down to wait. To my surprise and relief, it was Broussard who came down the companion stairs, driving the steward before him.

"Vat for you loaf, hey?" he snapped fiercely. "By gar, I teach you! I work four seek-hour, an' nodding to eat. You say ze capitaine send you? Bah! Eet vas not so nevaire! Vat you have, hey?"

The negro mumbled something through thick lips, and the irate mate gripped him by the collar of his jacket, slinking the fellow as he might a dog and hurling him half across the deck.

Sacre! I keel you for 5 cent! Queek now—jump! Put all on right way, by gar, or I show you! Here, you—se brandy furst!"

The steward slunk into the passage leading to the pantry, and the creole, turning, saw me.

"Ah, m'sieur, I saw you not. Pardon ze roughness, but I lose ze temper, m'sieur."

"That is not to be wondered at," I answered, affecting good humor. "Has the first mate been ashore?"

"Oui, m'sieur—asleep in the sun, I bet you! Bah! Any man could watch the sea from the cliff. Dat job not need ze furst officer. Sacre, but 'tis a dog's life at sea!"

I nodded my head, too busily engaged with my own thoughts to give much consideration to his troubles. Still, this situation as revealed by Broussard's complaints would afford us a respite of at least four hours. If this was the creole's watch below, then Herman would keep the deck. Even lying there at anchor those fellows would not leave the crew alone. There was too much at stake, and, besides, there must still remain a lookout ashore. However, it was a relief to know that the German had nothing of importance to communicate to Henley, no occasion even to come below. Broussard sank back into a chair, watching the frightened negro hurry back and forth. At last, satisfied that everything available had been produced, the former strode across to the table, jerked out a chair and waved his hand toward me in invitation to join him.

"The lazy dog! 'Tis likely all you will get, m'sieur. Maybe you eat with me, hey? Or would you wait for ze capitaine?"

"I'll take pot luck with you, Broussard," I agreed genially, speaking loud enough so the negro would overhear. "I've got to get accustomed to camp fare and am hungry enough to begin. Besides, Captain Henley is laid up in his berth with a sick headache and doesn't wish to be disturbed. He told me to tell you, Louis."

"Yes sah. Shall Ah make you sum coffee, sah?" Mussa Broussard he don't nebber drink none."

"Yes. And by the way, Louis, take a lunch into the lady. Fix up something neat if you can, and let me know when it is ready."

"You know ze capitaine before, maybe?" Broussard asked.

"No," I answered, wondering what he could be aiming at, but willing to give him a free rein. "But he seems to be a pretty good fellow."

"You think so—hey? Maybe so while he get you with heem. Den he ze devil. I know, m'sieur. I see heem for long while on ze ocean, an' what you do out"

"What has he done to you?" I asked carelessly.

"By gar! What!" firing up at the recollection. "Get out o' here, yer coon!" turning fiercely upon the steward, and then leaning across the table, lowering his voice, which yet trembled with passion. "Sacre, m'sieur, it was I do his dirty work five—seek—year. He no sailor, but I sail ze sheep for him—see? Tree, four time I sail ze sheep, an' he make se money. Vat he geef me? Maybe $100 ze mouth—bah! yet was to laugh. Zen he fin' zis Dutch hog, Herman, an' make of heem ze furst officer. I not like eet. I tells se capitaine, an', by gar, he keep me tied up before se port watch. You stan' sat, m'sieur?"

"It was I do his dirty work five—seek—year."

I shook my head, uncertain just what stand to take.

"Never!" he went on, barely pausing for breath. "I show se half breed. You see heem mother—she mulatto. Ze dog!"

"How do you know that?" I asked, surprised.

"I listen, I hear se talk, but I say noddings, m'sieur. Vat I care while he treat me right? But now I show heem vat I know. He not lord eet over me ven ol' Sallie vas his mother—by gar, no!"

"Sallie! You cannot mean that mulatto woman back on the plantation?"

"Sure! The ol' judge was his father."

The whole thing came to me in a flash as I stared across at the mate, who scarcely realized yet the revelation made. He was brooding over his wrongs and how he was to be avenged.

"By gar, I forget," he said softly. "You vas after ze monies, too, hey? Bah! Eet make no difference vat you know. He huf you here all right, var' you keep still or"— And he drew the back of a knife across his throat. "I vonder he not keel you furst, m'sieur. Maybe he use you an' then have you shot in ze south. Oui, zat be ze easy way. Why you ever cum down an' claim to be Philip Henley—hey?"

"That was all a mistake." I returned deliberately. "I came merely to look after his interest."

"Interest! Why a dead man have interest?"

"Do you mean Philip Henley is dead?"

"You pretend not know? By Gar, eet queer! Vell, I tell you, m'sieur. Ze hole back ov ze picture. I lie there one night an' leesten, week, ten days ago. Ze capitaine talk with Sallie. He have letter from nordt, one, two ozzer paper, an' eet ain't seem dose eet all vas. Some one write heem. I tink maybe Pierre Vonique, who went way long time. No matter. Vat he told was zat M'sieur Philip die—die queek from accident. Nevah speak, an' when zey pick heem up zar was noddin' in heem pocket. See, m'sieur! He vas robbed. Vonique he hear about eet an' fin' ze body. No one know who ze man is. But Vonique know. To prove eet he send se ring—se signet ring—off se finger. Zen he write: 'Look out! Some one has ze papers. Watch who comes!' Zat vas true, m'sieur."

"And some one did come, Broussard?"

"Oui, queek—a fellow with a letter from Philip. Eet was sign heez name, heez handwrite, appoint heem overseer."

"And what became of him?"

The creole shrugged his shoulders.

"'Tis not my business, m'sieur. He go way somewhere queek. Maybe he not like ze place."

The dead face of the bearded man in the rear room rose before me. But Broussard went on:

"Zen you came, m'sieur, 'long wiz ze girl. Ze capitaine he laugh, eet was so easy. Why ze girl, m'sieur?"

"Philip Henley was married."

"Non non, impossible; eet cannot be shown. 'Tis not of ze record. Ze capitaine not fraid any more. He just play wiz you like ze cat wiz ze mouse. He know Philip dead—he has ze proof—an' now he breaks ze will an' gets ze monies. Ze dog rich now; zen he be more rich."

"Do you know an executor of the will named Neale—P. B. Neale?"

"Oui, m'sieur."

"Who is he? What does he look like?"

"He vas a planter two mile west Carrollton. I see heem maybe ten days ago—leetle short man wiz bald head."

He poured out another drink of brandy, and, downing it, pushed back his chair.

"By gar, I talk too mooch, maybe," he said, yawning. "But eet make no diff. Ze capitaine he cop ze monies just ze same, an' eet better you know. Now I turn in an' sleep." He crossed the cabin to his stateroom and closed the door.

In the Sick Room

The ease with which OXO is assimilated is one of its strong recommendations. OXO CUBES are better than beef-tea—uniform in food-value—handy—ready in a moment.

Meat-Jellies, savoury custards and many other tempting delicacies can be prepared with the aid of OXO CUBES. For this purpose they form an economical substitute for meat.

OXO CUBES

She Coughed Day and Night.

Mrs. Fred. Fraser, Cedarville, Ont., writes: "I am writing you this letter telling what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. Two years ago I had a terrible cold. For days I could not speak above a whisper. I coughed day and night. One evening I was so bad I went down to our store keeper, and when I went in he said, 'You better get some thing done for that cold of yours.' I told him, as well as I could, that I had just come to get a bottle of the best cough medicine he had. He told me Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup was the best he had, and said for me to take a little of it before I left the store. I took some, and in fifteen minutes I could speak as well as ever. I think 'Dr. Wood's' is the very best on the market."

That persistent cough must be gotten rid of immediately, for if it hangs on to you it may develop into some serious lung trouble, such as bronchitis, pneumonia and perhaps consumption.

Get rid of it by using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. A remedy that has been on the market for twenty-five years. A remedy that cures when all others fail.

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get what you ask for, as there are many imitations on the market.

"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 and 50c.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys feel and act like lumps of lead, and you have stingy pains in the back, or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach, or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning, and in a few days you kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

The Best Treatment For Constipation

The Experience of One Who Knows and Places Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills First

It is not difficult to secure a medicine that will effect movement of the bowels. To cure Constipation and the complications which arise from it is another matter.

Constipation of the bowels is usually proof of torpid action of the liver. Hence it follows that if Constipation is to be cured the liver must be set right. And here lies the secret of the success of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They awaken the action of the liver and insure a good flow of bile, which is nature's cathartic. The liver, kidneys and bowels are invigorated and regulated, and the troubles with the digestive system disappear.

Mr. H. M. Bell, Innisfail, Alta., writes: "For some considerable time I have been using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I have obtained through your firm. I suppose during my life I have used nearly all the best-known pills, as I have been subject to Constipation and digestive troubles. A friend recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I can honestly say that of all the pills I have tried nothing has suited me better—no griping action always insured, and fine for the kidneys. This is how I have found them after a thorough test, and you may use this statement if you like."

This letter should convince you of the merits of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, but there is nothing like personal experience. If you do not feel like risking 25 cents for a box, write to us for a free sample box, mentioning where you saw this advertisement. Put this medicine to the test when you have indigestion, constipation, biliousness, backache or kidney derangements. The results will soon prove to you the superiority of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose. 25 cents a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

OUT ON BAIL.

Strange Things to Which Running Over a Cow May Lead.

By HELEN MARSDEN QUINN.

[Copyright, by Associated Literary Press.]

"I'm going to fall in love with that girl!"

It was at a New England summer resort, and "that young man from Boston" had been there less than an hour when he had his first view of Miss Minnie Haddon. Young men from New York and other places had arrived a week ahead of him and uttered the same words, but as Paul Dillon didn't know it he was not dismayed.

To fall in love properly with the handsomest girl at a summer resort there should be a formal introduction, and a formal introduction may be hard to achieve under certain circumstances. There must be a mutual acquaintance to bring it about. Miss Haddon's mother was a widow and an invalid and kept to herself most of the time. Paul Dillon looked the crowd over twice a day for sight of faces he knew, but looked in vain. Four days passed, and the hotel did not take fire, the mountain behind it did not slide down, and there was no strike of waiters to give him an opportunity to play the hero and present his card. Then he decided to take a spin in the auto which had been shipped up to him.

When undecided what to do in a case of love, trust to the auto. It has a hundred possibilities.

Mr. Dillon had driven fifteen miles and stopped at a hotel to refresh himself, when he was pleased and surprised to see Miss Haddon and another young woman drive up in another auto. They had followed him from the hotel. They alighted and disappeared. By indirect information he learned that Miss Haddon had brought back the other young lady to her hotel and was to make the return trip in care of the chauffeur.

In the course of an hour Miss Haddon reappeared and after thirty or forty goodbys to her girl friends took a seat in the tonneau and moved off. Three minutes later Mr. Dillon was traveling the same road. All went well for five miles. He was following so closely that he could see that the other machine was holding anything but a straight course. There were wabbles to right and left to signify that that tract on Intemperance that he had seen the chauffeur reading hadn't quite cured him of his thirst for highballs.

By and by two things happened in the same minute. The chauffeur suddenly increased his speed, and a cow suddenly started to cross the highway in front of a farmhouse.

The best mechanical engineer could not have planned things better. There was a whoop, a scream, and a smash, and then an auto brought up against a rail fence and sent the splinters flying.

Fate was with the young man from Boston. He stopped his machine and leaped out and over the dead cow and the unconscious chauffeur lying on his back, and his strong arms were extended to the half fainting girl in the tonneau. She fell into them just as the farmer came from the house with a lank pair in his hand and cried out:

"Now, by crickety, but this is a nice state of affairs, ain't it! What in Jericho have you folks been doing?"

"This auto struck your cow," briefly explained Mr. Dillon as he placed the girl on her feet on the ground.

"Struck my cow! Why, it's killed her as dead as a doornail! By gum, but you've got yourselves into a nice scrape. Yes, sir, gone and killed my cow and smashed my fence, and the two things together will send you to jail for at least thirty days!"

"We shall pay all damages, of course. Please let this young lady go to the house. She isn't hurt, I hope, but the accident has shaken her up."

"Oh, she can go to the house. Look at that cow lying there! Only seven years old and giving ten quarts of milk a day! Worth $30 of any man's money. It's a serious job my friend."

Miss Haddon was assisted to the house, where the farmer's wife took charge of her, and then Mr. Dillon returned to the chauffeur. He had been thrown out, but those highbinders had saved him from serious injury. He was more intoxicated than hurt, and, after being propped up against the fence, proceeded to indulge in a good howl. When finally aroused Mr. Dillon turned to the farmer and said:

"I am now ready to talk with you."

"Yes, there's a lot to be said to you about killing over the cow. In the first place I'm a constable and it's my business to arrest somebody for something. If that machine hadn't been forty miles an hour the cow would have dodged it. I've been thrown across and killed her over seven years with a cow and she's dead enough. It's spooking and losing a cow and smashing a fence all in a day, to say nothing of the shock to my feelings."

"We are very sorry of course," answered Mr. Dillon, "if you can figure up the damages I will pay——"

"Wait, we'll get to that. You've smashed the fence about——"

"Ten rods," suggested the farmer.

"Ten rods, that's what I said. Ten rods of fence at $2 a rod is $20. Then there's the cow. She's worth $30 if she's worth a cent. That makes $50. Then there's the shock to my feelings. I'll call it $100 and be generous at that."

"But we can't be detained——"

"Can't you? Well, I guess you'll have to. When you're talking to me you're talking to the law. I could handcuff the three of you and take you right to jail. Why, man, killing a cow is next door to killing a human being! Can't you realize it?"

"But, you see, we are stopping at the Elms hotel, and the young lady is anxious to get back to her mother. If I pay the damages you can take the bail on the speeding case, can't you?"

The constable thought the case over and decided to take bail. When Mr. Dillon pulled out his purse to pay the $32 he received a shock. Four dollars was all he had with him. The weeping and muttering chauffeur was searched, but he had less than a dollar. Blushing and stammering and perturbed, the young man called upon Miss Haddon for a cash loan. She had only $2.

"I hate to take you to jail," said the constable when informed of how things were. "I guess your watch and pin will be enough to secure everything. You've got to come back in a week, though, to face the squire."

The things were handed over, the fuddled chauffeur loaded in like a bag of sand and the smashed auto left "to be called for." Then the other auto headed for the hotel. In the excitement of the hour neither of the principals had thought of names. It was only as they were rolling smoothly along at not too fast a gait that the error was repaired. Then a silence lasting five long minutes ensued. Then two peals of laughter broke from two pairs of lips in chorus. The whole thing was grimly ludicrous.

"And how did you raise the $32 and the bail?" asked the girl.

"The constable has my watch and pin."

"And won't we have to go to jail?"

"I think not, but we are prisoners in a sense. If you fly the country you will leave me in a bad fix."

Of course the mother thanked Mr. Dillon, and of course Mr. Dillon thanked his stars and pushed his luck. Once always and sometimes twice a day that couple had to ride out to see about bail; they had to wander about the grounds evenings; they had to sit in grottoes and beside waterfalls. After a month had passed Mr. Dillon begged the mother to let him be a bondsman to the daughter for life.

"Dear me," said the mother, "but what strange things running over a cow may lead to! Don't let Minnie do it again!"

TWO NERVOUS WOMEN

Made Well By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I had a severe case of nervous prostration, with palpitation of the heart, constipation, headaches, dizziness, noise in my ears, timid, nervous, restless feelings and sleeplessness.

"I read in the paper where a young woman had been cured of the same troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I threw away the medicines the doctor left me and began taking the Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I was able to sit up and in a short time I was able to do all my work. Your medicine has proved itself able to do all you say it will and I have recommended it in every household I have visited."—Mrs. MARY JOHNSTON, 210 Siegel Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Another Bad Case.

Ephrata, Pa.—"About a year ago I was down with nervous prostration. I was pale and weak and would have hysteric spells, sick headaches and a bad pain under my shoulder-blade. I was under the care of different doctors but did not improve. I was so weak I could hardly stand long enough to do my dishes.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made me well and happy and I have begun to gain in weight and my face looks healthy now."—Mrs. J. W. HORNBERGER, R. No. 3, Ephrata, Pa.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

MONACO

While his serene highness the prince of Monaco is nominally neutral as concerns the war, his little principality of eight square miles is really involved in the struggle and is numbered among Germany's foes. Many of the great villas and hotels have been converted into hospitals for wounded French soldiers, and this has naturally aroused the ire of the Kaiser. Prince Albert Honore Charles, the ruler of the tiny principality which holds the Monte Carlo casino, the world's greatest gambling establishment, has occupied the throne since 1889, when he succeeded his father, Prince Charles III. Practically all of his 15,000 subjects are in sympathy with France in the present struggle, and not a few of the men have enlisted in the French army. In his younger days Prince Albert gained much undesirable notoriety because of his domestic difficulties. His first wife, Lady Mary Douglas-Hamilton, an Englishwoman, divorced him, and his second spouse, Miss Alice Heine of New Orleans, found life with the Monaco prince unbearable. Of late years the prince has devoted himself to scientific pursuits. The real ruler of Monaco is Edmond Blanc, who controls the Monte Carlo gambling establishment, which pays all the expenses of the Monaco government.

The Czar of Russia pulls a good oar, swims well, is an expert horseman and can play a fair game of lawn tennis. As a walker, also, he possesses surprising powers of endurance.

Butter Butter everywhere was an appropriate description of last Saturday's market. The price was 30 cents a pound, though one or two asked a couple of cents more, but showed a tendency to go a couple of cents less as the town began to empty.

Eggs were very scarce and had to be retailed at 40 cents a dozen. Few quotations were made, the stuff did not show a tendency to go a-begging as the holiday season approached. Chickens ranged from 50 to 60 cents per pair of 90 cents to $1.20 a pair. A 16-pound gobbler sold at $2.50, while a 12-pound turkey sold at $2.00.

Live hens brought $1.00 each.

Eggs on Toronto market are 45c at New York 65 cents.

Grains, Hay.

Wheat, bush	$1.00
Oats	37c

Saves Kitchen Waste

There will be no more throwing away of good food if you keep a bottle of Bovril in the kitchen. Bovril, with its rich flavour and ease of manipulation, helps you to make delightful dishes out of cold food. Better soup, better stews, less expense. But it must be Bovril.

IF SUBJECT TO COLDS HERE IS GOOD ADVICE

Don't load your stomach with cough syrups. Send healing medication through the nostrils—send it into the passages that are subject to colds and Catarrh. Easy to do this with Catarrhozone, which cures a cold in ten minutes. Even to the lungs goes the healing vapor of Catarrhozone—all through the bronchial tubes, nostrils and air passages—everywhere a trace of disease remains will Catarrhozone follow. You'll not have colds, nor will you suffer from sniffles, bronchitis or throat trouble if Catarrhozone is used. Get it to-day but beware of dangerous substitutes meant to deceive you for genuine Catarrhozone. All dealers sell Catarrhozone, large size, two months treatment, costs $1.00, small size 50c; sample size 25c.

A young man was sitting in the Union Depot the other day holding a baby in his arms when the child began to cry so lustily as to attract the attention of every one around him. By and by a waiting passenger walked over to him with a smile of pity on his face and said:

"A woman gave you that baby to hold while she went to see about her baggage, didn't she?"

"Yes."

"Ha! Ha! Ha! This is rich. Looking for her every minute, aren't you?"

"Yes, and I think she'll come back. Well, this makes me laugh. Ha! Ha! I had a woman play this same trick on me in a Chicago depot once, but no one ever will again. Young man, you have been played on for a bagpiped. I would advise you to turn that baby over to a policeman and get out of here before some newspaper reporter gets hold of you."

"Oh, she'll come back; she'll come back!"

"She will, eh? The joke grows rich and richer. Now, what makes you think she'll come back?"

"Because she's my wife, and this is my baby."

THE RUSSIANS ARE MAKING PROGRESS

THE GREEKS WILL NOT INTERFERE WITH ALLIES

SIR EDWARD GREY IS RETICENT BUT GRECIAN CRISIS IS THOUGHT OVER

Foreign Secretary States That He is Not in a Position to Give Any Information Concerning the Latest Negotiations --French Artillery Destroy German Machine Gun Posts on the Western Front.

RUSSIANS DOING WELL IN RIGA DISTRICT

PARIS, Nov. 25.—(French Official).—The German machine gun positions in the vicinities of Passe, Raye and Beauvraignes, in the Somme region, have been destroyed by the French artillery, to-day's War Office communique announced. Grenade combats raged during the night in the Artois district and Lorraine, it was stated.

GENEVA, Nov. 25.—From dominating positions captured by the Italians in the past few days about Goritz, an increasingly furious bombardment is being directed against the Austrian stronghold to-day, according to advices from the Italian front. Both belligerents have so greatly weakened their forces on other fronts to increase their strength on the Isonzo that there is a lull in the fighting except in the latter district.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The general opinion here is expressed today that Greece has satisfied the demands of the Allies, and that the Greek crisis is ended. There will be no interference by the Greeks with the Allies' Balkan campaign under any circumstances.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Despite desperate counter attacks by which some temporary recovery of ground were accomplished, the Germans are steadily losing scattered positions to the Russians in the Riga district, official Petrograd advices say to-day. In Galicia continued hard fighting is reported but without recent important changes in the lines. Between the Northern and Southern extremities of the Eastern front there has been comparative quiet lately.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—A deluge of peace telegrams continued at the White House to-day. "Work for peace, the mothers of America pray for it," is their keynote. But whether or not President Wilson is giving ground, under the wave, cannot be learned. The appeals ask him to initiate negotiations for peace in a congress of representatives of neutral powers, and say if he will take the first step, every neutral nation will follow, and that the warring nations will listen. In the meantime the President to-day sent out an urgent appeal to Americans to contribute more funds to the Red Cross that the work of that order in the war fields may go on.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—The announcement is made of the safe arrival at a British port of the transport Missanabie with over 1,700 Canadian fighting men on board.

They include the 47th Battalion (B.C.), with the following Ontario units, drafts (horse artillery), 2 officers and 100 men, Engineers, 9 officers and 191 men, Infantry from Ontario (reinforcements), 5 officers and 244 men, Medical Corps, 2 officers and 78 men. Civilian doctors for the regular army 11. Details, 7 officers.

BERLIN, Nov. 25.—Over seventeen thousand more Serbs were captured by the Germans, Austrians and Bulgarians when they took Metrovitza and Pristina, the War Office announced to-day.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Non-plussed by trades unions' formidable opposition to the new war order, reducing open hours for saloons to five and a half hours daily, Government leaders are in conference today concerning the situation. The new order is effective on Monday.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—For general information, the Post Office Department has issued notice that all parcels sent to Canadian soldiers in England, France or Mediterranean points must bear postage according to the rates which prevailed before the war, and which are obtainable from any postmaster. The Department has been unable to secure any reduction or any concession for soldiers. In all cases parcels should be addressed as usual, care of the Army Post Office, London, England, but bear postage according to the present known location of the addressee.

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—The second large contingent of Canadian wounded will reach St. John on the Corsican next Saturday night. This contingent numbers 213 men. All except the Maritime Province men will be entrained for Quebec, where they will go through the discharge depot in the usual way.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—It was announced at the White House that over three thousand telegrams had been received in connection with peace movements. Officials close to the President were non-committal when asked if the Executive would ask someone to represent him officially on the peace expedition to Europe, for which Henry Ford has chartered a special ship. It could not be learned whether Ford asked the President explicitly on his recent visit here to send such a delegate. It is known, however, that the President is much interested in the peace venture.

Ford himself told the President, it was learned to-day, that he would probably accompany a delegation to formal peace conferences in Berne Switzerland, in December.

There is considerable interest attached to the conference to be held to-morrow between President Wilson and the delegates, headed by Jane Adams, representing the Women's Peace Party.

HAVRE, France, Nov. 25 — Word was received here to-day that Mme Juliette Renkin, sister of the Belgian Minister of the Colonies, has been arrested by German authorities at Brussels. The charge is not specified.

Official advices report the arrest also, at Brussels, of several retired Belgian officers and priests.

LONDON, Nov. 25—The announcement was made in the House of Commons to-day by Sir Edward Grey, Foreign Secretary, that he was not yet in a position to give information concerning the results of the latest negotiations at Athens

93RD BATTALION WILL ENTER TEAM IN O.H.A. RANKS

Arrangements Are Being Made by the Officers For Many Amusements While the Battalion is in Training in Peterborough

WILL BE A BUSY WINTER

That it will not be all work with the 93rd Battalion this winter is evident from the programme that the officers of the battalion are outlining. In the first place the 93rd will enter a hockey team in the O.H.A., probably in the intermediate series, although this is not definitely known. There is considerable hockey material in the khaki ranks now and before the season opens it is expected that other hockey players will enlist. A team in the O.H.A. will get the united support of the battalion, and the fans can look forward to some tall rooting from the soldier lads, while the 93rd band may be depended upon to make things lively when the soldiers' team is playing.

The bowling alleys in the armouries will be put into shape for the use of the battalion and a bowling league will be inaugurated, while rifle matches will also be a feature of the winter's amusements. Altogether the officers of the 93rd are looking forward to an enjoyable winter.

In connection with the 93rd's hockey team, the following despatch from Barrie will be read with interest:

Barrie, Nov. 24 — Simcoe County Council showed its interest in the new Simcoe Battalion to-day by granting $500 towards the initial expenses of organization.

It having been pointed out to the Council that civilian hockey is detrimental to recruiting and that hockey teams are composed of the very best recruiting material, a resolution was passed by the County Council requesting the Ontario Hockey Association to refrain as far as possible all organized civilian hockey, and to encourage enlistment by insisting on applicants for hockey certificates having enlisted with some overseas battalion. The resolution further suggested that the [illegible] assist also to military hockey.

BANK CLEARINGS

The bank clearings for the week ending [illegible] November totalled $432,472, a decrease over the previous week of $87,982. The same week last month the clearings were $435,437 while for the same period a year ago they were $414,256.

HOME ONLY TEN DAYS CORP. PLAYFORD HAS JOINED THE 93rd

Fourteen Months at the Front Not Enough for Former Colour-Sergeant of 57th Regiment and He is Going Back With the Peterboro' Battalion---Battalion Orders Issued--To-day's Military News.

Setting a striking example for those who have not yet heard the call of duty, Corp. John Playford, late of the British Army Service Corps, and formerly colour-sergeant in the 57th Regiment, enlisted with the 93rd Peterborough Battalion yesterday. Home only ten days after serving fourteen months with the British forces in France and Belgium, during which time he was shot through the leg. Corp. Playford, or rather Sergt. Playford, for he starts in with the 93rd Battalion at that rank, is again wearing the khaki, and will go back to the Front with the boys from his home city of Peterborough.

Sergt. Playford took up his residence in Peterborough nine years ago and for seven years before the war broke out was a member of the 57th Regiment, among all ranks of which he was most popular. When the trouble started he was in Lindsay working on a contract for Messrs. Alexander & Miller, by which firm he had been employed for some time, and at once notified Lt.-Col. Clegg that he wished to enlist with the 57th detachment in the first contingent. He was taken on the strength of Peterborough's first contingent, but after one day's drill received orders to report at once for duty with his old unit, the British Army Service Corps, of which he was a reservist, and accordingly left Peterborough on August 11th for England. He was at the Front with the Indian troops a few weeks after, and for fourteen months was on duty on the western battle front. On one occasion he was wounded by a bullet, which passed through his thigh but quickly recovered from the effects of the injury. When the time of his reserve was up he declined to sign on again, preferring to return home and join with the forces from Peterborough. "Although not born here," remarked Sergt. Playford yesterday, "Canada is my home, and I am a Canadian citizen, and I told them that over there when they asked me why I wanted to come out here again to enlist."

Sergt. Playford has seen plenty of active service. He served for two years and seven months in the South African War and was also called out for the Matabele Expedition. He has served four years in the Royal Sussex Regiment, 13 years with the Colours and on the Reserves with the British Army Service Corps, and seven years with the 57th Regiment, and is now ready for more action.

"I can't say I like it over there," remarked Sergt. Playford when asked about conditions at the Front. "I don't believe any man can honestly say he likes it, but I feel it's my duty to go, and that's different."

FIRST CASUALTY AMONG 39th BOYS

SERGT. H. FREEMAN.
Of the 39rd Battalion. At his own request, he is reverting to the ranks in order to take the position of Regimental Barber.

Pte. E. Lindsey, of the 57th Regiment Detachment to the 39th is Officially Reported Wounded on Nov. 18—is in Boulogne Hospital.

TWO BROTHERS AT FRONT

The first casualty so far as known, among the Peterborough boys who left with the 39th Battalion, was recorded to-day when Mrs. Lindsey Crowter, 497 Cross street, received a wire from the Adjutant General's Department, notifying her that her son, Pte. Ephriam Lindsey, had been wounded. The wire was as follows:

Sincerely regret to inform you that No. 412483 Pte. Ephriam Lindsey, 25th Battalion, is officially reported admitted to No. 12 General Hospital, Boulogne, 18th November, gun shot wounds in thigh. Will send further particulars when received.

Adjutant General.

Pte. Lindsey enlisted with the 57th Regiment detachment to the 39th Battalion last winter and drilled here until March, when the battalion was mobilized at Belleville. The 39th went to England early last spring and has been sending reinforcing drafts to the front. Pte. Lindsey left with one of these drafts about three weeks ago and was attached to the 25th Battalion. It is evident that was only a short time there before being wounded.

Pte. Lindsey has two brothers at the front in the Canadian contingents. One brother, Gunner Dan. Lindsey, left with the 34th Field Battery, and has been at the front since early in the year. With the 4th Battery, while the other, Pte. Richard Lindsey, enlisted here with the 8th C.M.R., and is now on the firing line. All three boys were born in Peterborough county and had been residents of Peterborough for some time.

PUNISHMENT IS SEVERE IF THEY REFUSE TO WORK

Exchanged Canadian Prisoner Tells What Prisoners Have to Do and the Penalty For Refusing---Letter to Mr. R. B. Rogers.

BREAD ONLY EATABLE FOOD

Pte. Sherman Young of the Second Battalion, First Canadian Contingent, who was a prisoner in Giessen, Germany, and who a short time ago was exchanged and sent to England, writing to Mr. R. B. Rogers, Hunter street E., tells of some of the conditions of the prison camp, where Pte. Heber Rogers is. Pte. Young was with Heber until he was exchanged.

St. Martin's Plain, Eng., Nov. 12.

Mr. R. B. Rogers,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir, Having received a letter from Col. Rogers this morning, in which was your address, I am writing to tell you the general conditions of your son's life as a prisoner of war in Giessen Camp in Germany. As I arrived in England the seventeenth of last month from the same camp where Heber is.

Captured the Same Day.

I was captured the same day he was and was with him up until I came away. Heber's right eye is affected some, but I was speaking to a doctor and he told me the damage to the eye ball might have caused a growth over the sight which could be removed by an operation and the sight to the eye completely restored.

As to his treatment there is no brutal treatment in camp, but the rules are very strict. If any of the boys over-step the rule they are punished by three to fourteen days in prison on bread and water. But Heber had no trouble up till I came away. He was in good health when I left him, but it wasn't on the German food. The bread is about the only eatable food the fellows get.

Depend on Parcels.

All the English and Canadian prisoners depend entirely on the parcels received from their friends, which arrive in very good condition. All the men who are able are sent out to work. Some have to work at stone quarries, some at farm work and at just whatever they want them to do. If any of the men refuse to work they are put in a punishment camp for a period of 21 days. While there they are not permitted to smoke or send any letters or post cards and are not allowed to receive parcels or letters. These are made to work so many hours each day.

The Work They Do.

The work they have to do while in the camp is burying the refuse of the camp and when that is finished they have to dig trenches and fill them in again. If they refuse a second time they get 60 days and a third time if refusing they are put in the punishment camp for the duration of the war. Heber was picked out for work once or twice, but got off. But when I left he was working in the cookhouse. He was in good health when I left him, but it wasn't on the German food. The bread is about the only eatable food the fellows get.

ty before I came away he had a medical examination and he was pronounced fit for work, and he may be sent out some time. Money is handy to have for obtaining sugar and milk. But that is about all they sell which is eatable. Heber was getting plenty to keep him going.

I may say that I got away owing to my left hand being so badly smashed by a bullet from a German machine gun.

Yours truly,
Pte. Sherman Young,

This Morning's Police Court

Bruce Roddy Was Allowed to Go on Suspended Sentence—Week's Board for Thomas Clary.

Bruce Roddy's value as a target for a German sniper was commented upon by Magistrate Dumble in this morning's police court. Roddy was charged with being a vagrant. The accused informed the court that he had just returned from the woods, where he was engaged in making roads. Since then he had resided with his mother. His return to the parental roof was short lived. Last evening he was garnered in by the police.

"We are not going to keep him forever," remarked the court. "Better take him down and shoot him. He might stop a bullet."

After some further discussion the Magistrate decided to suspend sentence.

A Week's Board.

Thomas Clary was less fortunate than Bruce Roddy. He was remanded for a week on a similar charge. He said he had been working in Lakemore for some time past.

"You might work in a worse place," observed the Magistrate. "I'll remand you for a week."

Do as you like, remarked the accused.

It is all very well for Henry Ford, the automobile magnate, to pose as an apostle of peace and assume to work for what at this stage of the war is unthinkable — peace without promise of permanence, which cannot come so long as the arch peace-breaker is unbroken and his power uncrushed. But we might save Mr. Ford a good deal of trouble—might tell him that we admit that the Ford auto is a good one for the price—and that it is not necessary to further advertise it at a very cheap rate, through a farcial peace propaganda.

AN INCENTIVE TO ENLISTING

In this war we are standing by and helping the under dog. Britain went to war to protect the outraged neutrality, territory and population of Belgium—by conscienceless force and unfaith, whose spirit and action if not restrained, would be applied in turn, in case of the success of German arms, to other countries, including Canada. Herein consisted a strong appeal to Canadian patriotism, to join the fight. It met the call to the tune of thousands of our best and bravest. The call continued and was again well met; it continues to-day, and while it is being fairly well responded to, there might be more recruits to the day.

We are confronted with the appeal to take our stand and help our soldiers wro are in the ranks; an appeal to our spirit of comradeship. But there is a still stronger appeal, in the course of the war many Canadian lads have been taken prisoners, and are in German prison camps. They are not like our lads in the trenches who have arms in their hands and can look out for themselves and give the Germans as good as they get. But our prisoner lads have no arms, and have to submit to all the indignities and ill-treatment that a barbarous enemy, with power to outrage, wills to commit. We have heard more or less well authenticated stories of the barbarous treatment of Canadian and Allied prisoners. Now we have official, independent and impartial proof of its atrocity. United States Ambassador Gerard has investigated and reported upon the treatmeat of prisoners in German camps, and his report of the most outstanding instances of barbarism, and outrage, and ill-treatment, stirs the blood like a Cavell murder. Insufficient and loathsome food; insufficient clothing; enforced and designed exposure of prisoners to spotted typhus, with isolation refused and proper medical treatment denied; prisoners guarded by dogs — other than those in uniforms of soldiers, are the chief items of German refinements of cruelty in the maltreatment of prisoners.

Some of these victims are men and boys we perhaps know and were school chums and comrades of in anti-bellum days. To free them, to avenge them, should be an appeal to every young Canadian. This can only be accomplished by destroying the monstrous system of militarism, founded on the doctrine of force and violence, and all evil inspirations; and this can only be done by united effort to win the victory over the powers of evil, by every available man joining the colours. With all the appeals to our eligible citizenship to do its duty in this regard, the crowning appeal must consist in their barbarous treatment of Canadian, and British, and Allied prisoners of war, helpless under the cruel domination of their barbarous oppressors.

GOOD FOR UNCLE SAM.

Uncle Sam is an odd old boy, full of contradictions and inconsistencies, but with some splendidly good points. He has developed an infinite capacity for turning "the other cheek." He will lie down meekly under outrages that scout the protection of his flag and mean the death of his citizens, but he will see the eagle screeching over the loss of a little money-making trade — the detention of a cargo of hog meat. Though Uncle Sam sets so much store by money that he seems to worship it, it can be said to his everlasting credit, that there are some things that he won't sell for money — things that money can't buy — immunity for wealth from punishment for wrong doing. Time after time we have seen criminals of high degree, as far as possession of money can exalt, as sternly and impartially punished as the criminal of low degree. Recently one Charles Munday, vice-president of a Chicago trust and savings bank, was charged with conspiring with a United States senator and others to defraud the bank of eight million dollars. In spite of all their wealth and the law's delays that money can command; in spite of all the political and social influence that money too frequently represents — they were convicted and must "do time" in a penal institution.

We applaud the United States for meting out even handed justice, and might well profit by its example. We have a noted alleged offender, a millionaire contractor, one Thomas Kelly, charged with colossal frauds in connection with the construction of the Manitoba Parliament Buildings. He left Winnipeg and took refuge in Chicago, and yesterday his extradition and return to Canada to stand trial was ordered. His attorney says he will appeal against this judgment to the Supreme Court of the United States. If money can prevent it he will not come back. We shall see if money will be able to interfere with the processes of justice. If the case cited to the credit of United Stats administration of justice, is regarded as a precedent, the extradition order will stand, and Mr. Kelly will be brought back to Canada to stand his trial. In this event it is hoped that no money, no political influence, will interfere with a fair trial, nor in case of proof of guilt, with a decree of as adequate punishment, in the case of the millionaire culprit, as would be pronounced against a pauper criminal.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR ECONOMY

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The campaign for economy in living as a vital necessity for financing a war which is costing Great Britain nearly $25,000,000 a day continues to be pressed. Imports are exceeding exports by nearly $5,000,000 a day, and consequently depreciating foreign exchange, so that England really pays about 5 per cent. more than the nominal prices for commodities bought in America. Restriction of imports is urged as one of the most obvious practical methods of economy.

That Government expenses must be decreased and the gap between exports and imports narrowed is agreed upon by all. Various and often conflicting remedies are proposed. A revival of the party of Protection is a noticeable symptom. Some Protectionist papers, notably The Morning Post, demand a high tariff on imports and one so framed that the colonies will have preference, diverting business from the United States to them. Thus the British Empire might live on its own resources so far as foodstuffs are concerned. The Post contends, and spent its money among its own people, as Germany is doing.

Lord Davenport, who has had long experience as a successful business man, told the House of Lords that the import of nonessential things through the Post of London alone reached $125,000,000 a year. He proposed total prohibition of the import of luxuries. But Lord Crewe replied that such a step would be impracticable, as many of the commodities came from allied nations already suffering commercial depression, while increases of the goods taxed by tariff would involve an addition to the customs establishment more expensive than the value of the taxes collected.

Several statesmen have proclaimed the necessity of keeping up Great Britain's general manufacturing as the best method of trying to balance the foreign trade account. The military expert of The London Times opposes this theory strongly. The German principle is to rope in every man who can fight," he says, and to subordinate the requirements of trade to those of victory, claim that victory can be achieved everything else will come with He considers that thirty new sions should be added to the my by next August, and inquires but it would profit us to see that export trade was flourishing, but that armies were defeated.

The Daily News replies that the military situation cannot be treated though it were a kind of vacuum. What is the use of victory in the field if the army which wins it cannot be kept in being for lack of money to maintain it?" the paper inquires. "Of what avail is our naval supremacy if we have no longer the funds or the credit to buy the food of which the navy assures the safe passage?"

E. T. Good, a writer on economics, claims that the actual earnings in many factories are 100 per cent. more than usual, and defares that a large proportion of the abnormal earnings are being spent in a way that increases the adverse trade balance.

The Economist discusses Premier Asquith's statement of the financial position with a word of warning on the same line. It says:

"It is possible for the country to carry on the war on this scale and to assist its allies on this scale, and perhaps even to recruit on this scale. It is not possible for it to go on warring and recruiting and spending £5,000,000 a day, and at the same time to go on increasing its drink bill at the rate of £16,000,000 a year and indulging its fancy in grand pianos, cheap jewellry, and more or less cheap motor cars."

The Statist discusses the matter in the same vein. It says:

"Hitherto the British people have financed this great war in the same way as they would have financed a new Government building, a new county jail, or a new Post Office. They have assumed that expenditures for such a purpose would be met after they had supplied themselves with their necessaries, comforts, and luxuries. The greatest reserve which the country possesses is still untouched—the power to reduce its expenditure upon comforts and luxuries, and by so doing to set free the additional money needed by the nation for war purposes."

That there is widespread and enormous extravagance caused by the necessity of giving great contracts without time for careful investigation and through the reckless habits of living made possible by inflated wages to workmen and high separation allowances to soldiers' families, every one recognizes. The growth of the movement against extravagance is visible daily, but no crystallized plan has yet been proposed by the Government — only hints of increased taxation.

After a lengthy investigation the United States bureau of standards has decided that the lightning rod, when properly installed, is a trustworthy means of protecting property.

A NEW WAY TO MEET THE DEMAND FOR MORE PRODUCTION

While the Germans are struggling to find substitutes, and are even reported to be serving out flour made from wood pulp, Professor Bottomley has announced in Great Britain an extraordinary means of increasing the production of ordinary agricultural products. According to the London Chronicle, he delighted members of the Royal Bontanic Society recently with a demonstration of his discovery. The process consists in the treatment of ordinary raw peat by means of bacteria, which, within four or six days, turns the peat into a black substance containing fifty times as much valuable plant food material as ordinary manure. On ordinary agricultural land peat has given an increase in potatoes of 121 per cent. compared with those grown with no manure, and of 75 per cent. and 41 per cent. compared with those grown in artificial manure and farmyard manure respectively. In one experiment with onions treatment with the peat was followed by an increase of 41 per cent. Equally successful results have been achieved with turnips, radishes, parsnips, peas, and other vegetables, and the effect of humogen on flowers, both with regard to the foliage and blossom, is very remarkable. In another instance, a box was filled with moss, planted with four potatoes, and placed on the roof of the college in the Strand. Once every week the moss was watered with extract from the bacterized peat. After eight weeks the box was as full as it could be of fine new potatoes.

If humogen, as Professor Bottomley calls this plant food, turns out as successfully on a large scale as it has in the experiments, the growing of farm and garden produce will be revolutionized. It foreshadows an era of plenty, and an era of cheap living, such as the world never knew. Considering the standing of Professor Bottomley—he had been professor of botany in King's College, London, since 1893, and is a recognized authority on biology as well — it seems strange that the British Board of Agriculture should decline to take the study up on the ground that "no result had yet been obtained which demonstrated its utility for agricultural purposes on a field scale." We give the hint to our own Department of Agriculture, which would doubtless be only too delighted to have the opportunity of being the first to test it on a large scale. Only one month before the war, a German professor tried to inveigh Professor Bottomley into giving him a sample of the bacteria for the German Board of Agriculture. He didn't get it.—Montreal Herald-Telegraph.

THE EFFECTS OF THIS GREAT WAR UPON THE WEALTH OF THE WORLD

It is rather staggering, yet stimulating (there seems to be a subtle essence ran between stimulants and staggering) to learn on the high authority of such a sound financial critic as the London Statist that "the war does not mean any appreciable destruction of the world's capital as it existed prior to the war." The Statist admits that the total war expenditure of the nations, from July 31, 1914, to September 30, 1915, approximate $17,000 mill ons, and that the belligerents are now spending at the rate of about $22,500 millions a year, and that where property (houses, ships, machinery, etc.) is injured by gunfire, by bombs, or in any other way, or houses, buildings, machinery, and other property are allowed to deteriorate, or stocks of goods allowed to accumulate because the war are consumed and are not replaced, ther is destruction of pre-war capital. But our esteemed contemporary contends that the wastage of old wealth through the war is made good, by the creation of new wealth of a permanent character. It argues that even should the war continue, unless it be a very long one, it may be doubted if there will be any appreciable reduction of the pre-war wealth of the belligerent countries, while the wealth of the neutral countries as a whole should show appreciable increases.

If this view is correct, and we believe it is, the enormous war expenditures will not involve a diminution in the aggregate pre-war wealth of the world. There will, however, be redistribution of national wealth, with a vengeance. The Statist holds, with excellent reason, that the destruction by Zeppelins is negligible, and the destruction of shipping by submarines quite unimportant. Then the substitution of trench warfare, for the defence of populous towns means that the destruction of buildings and other fixed property will be minimized. The war expenditures will prevent the normal growth of wealth, but will not materially decrease the pre-war wealth of the world. Normally the wealth of nations increases every year about as follows: Great Britain, $3,000 millions; Germany, $1,500 millions; France, $1,000 millions, the other belligerents in the aggregate $3,000 millions. This means a loss altogether of $22,500 millions, a by no means negligible figure. The war has forced the nations into unusual economies, and has greatly stimulated new enterprises and increased production. These will go far to offset the war expenditure.

The interesting question is what will be the effect of all these influences after the war? Obviously the different nations will be variously affected. Germany stands to lose most, through the utter demoralization of her commerce and shipping, and perhaps even more by her loss of prestige and moral character. She will also lose by having forced the nations into finding new sources of supply, which will surely be protected for many years from German competition by legislative enactment. The greatest and most characteristically German monopolies are things of the past. The nations will never again place themselves at the mercy of Germany.

The world's greatest loss of pre-war wealth will be in the loss of human life. The loss of millions of human lives, the crippling of many millions of the world's best men, the ravages of disease, and the impoverishing of widows and orphans, mean an unprecedented sacrifice of actual and potential wealth. It is part of the price the world has to pay for the inordinate ambition of a rotten dynasty and the egotism of a nation smitten by the curse of a gross materialism. — Montreal Herald.

GEN. KUROPATKIN TO LEAD RUSSIANS AGAINST BULGARS

LONDON, Nov. 25—According to despatches from Berlin General Kuropatkin has been chosen to lead the Russian invasion of Bulgaria.

The Bucharest correspondent of the Geneva Tribune sends a despatch in which Take Jonescu, a former member of the Roumania cabinet and a leader of the Liberal party in Roumania, is quoted as expressing the belief that the Roumania government "is desirous of following the national policy and soon will intervene in the war on the side of the Entente powers.

Mr Jonescu, according to this despatch, also said that he had learned from Petrograd that a strong Russian force was ready near the Roumanian frontier to aid Roumania against Austria and Bulgaria.

The Roumanian Premier, M Bratiano, in a conversation regarding the relations between Roumania and Russia, is also quoted as saying: "They are better than ever before."

New Russian formations have appeared on the Riga front and have proved themselves the masters of the troops that remain under command of General Hindenburg.

The official statement from Petrograd last night mentions the regiments from Lithuania as displaying the greatest possible courage.

Hindenburg's war worn troops were again forced to retire in the fighting before Riga. They temporarily assumed the offensive, but reinforcements rushed up by the Russians compelled them to evacuate all the ground occupied.

On the left bank of the Dvina there has been sharp fighting in which the Russians were the aggressors. They occupied a position there of some importance. On the rest of the front there were some encounters all of which left the combatants pretty much where they were.

10 SHOES WORN OUT IN WAR TO ONE IN PEACE

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Lynden Oak Ramsdell, a representative of the Turner Tanning Machinery Company, of Peabody, Mass., returned yesterday on the White Star liner Lapland. He has been selling machinery to be used in the manufacture of shoes for soldiers in France.

He said he had traversed the entire country with the exception of the battlefields and had found shoes being turned out for the soldiers as fast as the men and women workers could make them.

"A soldier wears out ten times as many shoes in war as he does in times of peace," he said. "All the leather used bears the export stamp of the United States.

"The situation at present is that the soldiers must have shoes whether the civilian population go barefoot or not."

HYPNOTISM AS A CURE FOR SOLDIERS' WOUNDS

Many Wonderful Results Attained From Hypnotic Power—Sight and Hearing Restored

Hypnotism is the medicine for the "wounded" human mind. The science is not, as many still imagine, a funny mystic mumbling trick, or a vulgar and unclean black art that is only practised by villainous looking men with queer complexion. In the hands of a qualified medical man—and the law should prevent it being used by anyone—hypnotism is of inestimable value in relieving insanity. The power of suggestion—or hypnotism—is being used in military hospitals to cure broken minded men who are suffering solely from "wounds" to their minds or their nerves. Very many wounded soldiers, with no a single scar on their bodies, are suffering terribly from "shell shock," from overstrained nerves, and a mind distressed by the awful sights which they have passed. There are soldier patients who are actually blind, deaf and dumb, and others partially paralysed, simply through the tremendous shock from the explosion of a shell near them. In other cases, men have lost their memories, or their vision has become contracted, so that they can see only straight in front of them, like a horse with blinkers.

Broken in Mind Only

Others can scarcely walk, only being able to shuffle along sideways—yet, many of these brave fellows are without a single scratch of a wound on their bodies; they are broken in mind. An awful shock, or series of shocks, has distorted their nervous system and so made them blind or deaf or paralysed. The power of suggestion, exerted after the patient has been partially hypnotised by a doctor, is the only sure cure for such cases. The surgeon's knife is useless; there is no medicine that will help them.

The soldier patients, if able to leave their beds, are seated in comfortable chairs in a perfectly quiet and darkened room. They are told to make themselves quite easy, to relax all their muscles, and not to worry about anything at all. Then, the doctor places his hands gently on their heads, and strokes them quietly. He will bring his palms slowly and gently down over their foreheads and eyes, and whisper soothingly to them: "You are feeling sleepy, you are tired, very tired; now you are going to sleep, you are nearly asleep—sleep—sleep." And, sooner or later, the nerve-racked soldier, who has probably suffered the tortures of sleeplessness for many nights, will answer the suggestion and fall into a light, peaceful slumber. He is hypnotized.

When the soldier is in this light sleep, the doctor will then continue to speak to him, very calmly and quietly, making his healthy suggestions on the mind that has become diseased. "You are feeling a little better, your head has stopped aching, you are much better now, and you are happier"—and so on.

Not So Easy As It Looks

This treatment sounds very easy, but, needless to say, it requires a qualified hypnotist, a clever mind doctor, to effect a cure. After the treatment, the man is told that he is awake—and he is, immediately! Standing up, he will feel just a trifle dazed, but he will also be much better, and obviously more cheerful. A typical case, in which a soldier suffering from shell shock was cured by hypnotic treatment, has been described by Dr. A. Feiling. A young bandsman was buried by a shell explosion near Ypres, and then lost his memory entirely for every single detail of his life that had happened before the incident. He did not even recognise his own father and mother; he said that he had never before seen his home when he was taken there, and then that he had never seen a bullet. But, after a course of hypnotic treatment this soldier completely regained his memory.

Carrying Hand Grenades

Grenade fighting has become of the utmost importance in modern trench warfare, and there are a dozen varieties of these weapons. Whenever there is an attack by either side a number of men are specially told off as grenade throwers. In a charge the grenade throwers usually are well in the rear, and carry their grenades in special bags or panniers. Each man has two panniers strapped round him. The panniers are made of strong canvas, and hold ten or a dozen grenades. These grenades, by the way, have each a long piece of webbing attached to them, which unrolls when the missile is thrown, and causes the grenade to fall head downward and so insure explosion.

A YEAR INDOORS.

"For thirteen months I was so bad with chronic indigestion that I could not go out of doors. Nerves were unstrung, the heart bad and smothering feelings came on till I thought that I would choke. Doctors' treatment failed me so I began the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, which I thank for my present good health. I am now doing my housework, and have a family of ten."

GERMANS PROPOSE TO BLAST TRENCHES IN WINTER WARFARE

PETROGRAD, Nov. 22.—The correspondent of the Russky Slovo gives a detailed account of the preparations the Germans are making for a Winter campaign in Russia. After attending first to the question of warmth, the Germans have devoted their ingenuity to inventions for concealing their Winter trenches and the movements of troops and supply trains and to means of dealing with snowdrifts.

Apart from warm clothing several new ideas have been evolved. Light metal buildings, ready to be put together, and provided with steam heaters, are destined to afford temporary warmth even in the trenches. Supplies of sleeping sacks are being procured. Provision is also being made for the delivery of enormous quantities of spirits, and strict orders are being issued that the soldiers must rub themselves all over with them daily. Field Marshal von Hindenburg is said to have issued an order signifying that any commander who loses a single man from frost deserves to be shot.

Among the most curious preparations is the gathering together of quantities of calico, linen, and holland—indeed, any light materials which are white. Apart from collections of domestic linen throughout Germany, the whole region held by the Germans in Russia has been systematically pillaged of such materials. The object is to cover uniforms, trenches, and supply carts, in the hope that they will be invisible amid the snow. The Germans have invented special tripod arrangements carrying a vast expanse of white material, under which they hope to bivouac unseen by aeroplanes; and another device is intended to allow a line advancing to an attack to creep up invisibly.

As the ground during the Russian Winter freezes for a depth of from three to six feet, trench digging becomes practically impossible under the ordinary circumstances of war. The Germans have therefore organized special so-called "boring commands," whose duty is to creep forward in the night and make a succession of borings with special instruments and insert explosives. These are to be fired when all is ready, so that the soldiers will be easily able to shovel the debris away and make places which will afford them adequate protection. Similarly borings containing explosives are to take the place in Winter of wire entanglements.

THE ROLL CALL.

(By an Australian Soldier in the Dardanelles)

We have tendered the toll, we have paid the price, we have braved and battled and bled.
And set in the shrine of our brave brothers-in-arms are the names of Australia's dead.
We have given our share of the great that goes to grind in the War God's mill!—
But every place that another has left in a place that you can fill.

Oh, some were killed in the open boats before they had time to land,
And some were killed in the rally and rush across the sloping sand.
But whether they died in the breaking surf, or whether they died on the hill
Yet every gap in the ranks this day is a gap that you can fill.

You scan the scroll of our sacrifice, and you hope that the list will end.
Ere you feel the throb that tears your throat as you say, "He was a friend."
And its "Poor old Bob—I knew him well—or "Bill, my God! not Bill!"—
But every place that a pal has left is a place that you can fill.

Do you remember the day they left, that day they marched through town,
When the bayonets gleamed like a spray of steel on a river of rolling brown?
And now? In the same old town there are shoulders who're shoving still,
All blind to the fact that the place that's left is the place they've got to fill.

The far off note of the bugle call and the pulse of a distant drum

Desolate Valley Tells Grim Tale of Vilna Battle

Mejsagola, near Vilna, Russia, Oct 8 (by Courier to Berlin, mail to New York).—To-day is Sunday and we have motored out to the valley of Mejszagola where the battle for Vilna was fought. Our way lay through abondoned trenches and barbed wire entanglements, stretched through cemeteries, cabbage patches and potato fields.

Entering the ruins of Mejszagola, we obtained the first real view of the battlefield; and in its centre, the dilapidated skeleton of what in peace time was a church. It was all so quiet! One could hardly realize that from the second to the eleventh of September, 45,000 of the Russian guard and the German landstrum were locked, in this 8-mile valley, in a seething death-struggle. It was but one of the terrible, decisive engagements of this war, about which the public has scarcely heard.

This battle was the beginning of the fall of Vilna, the first city the Czar tried to save when he took personal command of his army. Vilna was a beautiful modern city about the size of Indianapolis; a terminal on the main rail line to Petrograd.

The czar entrenched 500,000 troops about the city, including 8 divisions of his personal guard. Kovno had fallen and Hindenburg was coming. September 2nd the armies met at Mejszagola and for nine days the crash and roar of bedlam reigned in the Russians' hopeless task of checking the Teutons' advance. The night of the eleventh the Germans stormed an entanglement and the trench back of it, delivered heavy flank attacks and were commanders of the whole position, had 20,000 prisoners and sealed Vilna's fate.

Skeletons Plowed Up.

We stopped before the church. Ten paces brought us to an old graveyard in which the storm of shells had plowed up the skeletons of those long dead and scattered them about, stark and white, like an army of fallen ghosts lying in the wake of battle, grinning at the daylight. The green sod of the surrounding fields was strewn with the remnants of shells which had exploded in mid-air and rained their devilish iron and fire on the struggling men. The white church walls were splashed with red.

We returned to the church. Peasants were silently passing in and out. We lifted our hats and tip-toed inside. The floor save for narrow passages to the altar, was buried in straw. The roof was torn to pieces and more than one shell had exploded inside, for pictures, statues of Christ, altar cloths, candle sticks, and benches were smashed and torn. Before the unrecognizable altar knelt a woman and a girl heads bowed, sobbing. A big, six-foot, fur-clad peasant came in and knelt in the straw half-way down the aisle. An old woman who had been motionless beside the splintered pulpit, began crawling around and around it. Save for the staccto flapping of a loose sheet of tin on the steeple roof as the gusty wind swept over it, the house of God and the battlefield about, were silent.

We sauntered through the town, past the black piles of burned homes and out into the Russian trenches. These, dug slightly below the crest of the hill, were architecturally so perfect that they blended into the landscape 300 feet away. These trenches command the valley, across which, on the forest's fringe, were the German trenches. The green fields between were peppered with the black spots that artillery fire makes. We walked the tops of the Russian trenches, which are built of heavy logs and cement blocks covered with five and six layers of green sod. Once I looked down. A dead Russian stared up at me.

Single Graves Elsewhere.

Scattered everywhere were caps, coats, shoes, food, bottles and personal effects. Unused rifle ammunition lay like seed sown on a new field. Here and there were 15 and 21 centimeter shells, unexploded, still hugging their death-dealing power. Bits of white paper bearing firing line reports that had been telephoned to the artillery positions, scuttered crazily about the desolate field in the breeze. Everywhere were single graves; some marked with cross and helmet, others barren.

We walked to the edge of the thick woods, then back to the first line German position. Torn Russian and German uniforms, blood-stained knives, bayonets, guns, belts, helmets, caps, overcoats and graves were strange bowers in this weird garden that death's sway in the green, sapped valley 'twixt here and the Russian emergency trenches on the far slope.

From among the Russians and Germans lying there side by side in death, I picked up a German belt buckle bearing the inscription :: "God With Us." The Russian bibles scattered about were so numerous as to be uncountable. Where the fields postmaster had arrived during the heavy fighting, letters and packages from home whitened the ground. On a little mound I found a letter, addressed in a feminine hand, from Dresden—a letter from home, unopened, for the soldier beneath the mound. I stared at the mound and the letter for a long time. Then I looked up. The sun was shining across the valley. And the valley was silent.

Too Many Tenants.

"I dreamed last night that I owned the earth."

"That was a pleasant dream."

"Quite the contrary. When the first of the month came around, 3,000,000 people threatened to move!"

ISSUE OF $50,000,000 5% BONDS MATURING 1st DEC., 1925

REPAYABLE AT PAR AT

INTEREST PAYABLE HALF-YEARLY—1st JUNE, 1st DECEMBER.

ISSUE PRICE 97½

A FULL HALF-YEAR'S INTEREST WILL BE PAID ON 1st JUNE, 1916.

THE PROCEEDS OF THE LOAN WILL BE USED FOR WAR PURPOSES ONLY.

In the event of future issues (other than issues made abroad) being made by the Government, for the purpose of carrying on the war, bonds of this issue will be accepted at the issue price, 97½, plus accrued interest, as the equivalent of cash for the purpose of subscriptions to such issues.

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE offers herewith on behalf of the Government the above named Bonds for subscription at 97½ payable as follows,—

10 per cent on application,
7½ " " 3rd January, 1916,
20 " " 1st February, 1916,
20 " " 1st March, 1916,

The instalments may be paid in full on and after the 3rd day of January, 1916, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Applications, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. The bank will issue a provisional receipt.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch of any chartered bank in Canada, and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the January instalment.

Scrip certificates payable to bearer will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds without coupons.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada.

Holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds with coupons, payable to bearer or registered, without payment of any fee, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert, without fee, into fully registered bonds without coupons at any time on application in writing to the Minister of Finance.

The issue will be exempt from taxes including any income tax imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

The loan will be repaid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa, or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary or Victoria.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Recognized bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications which bear their stamp.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 30th November, 1915.

BIG IRRIGATION CONGRESS OPENS AT BASSANO

Special to The Examiner

BASSANO, Nov. 24.—As a vindication of an irrigation policy adopted years ago, involving millions of dollars and much labour, against which has been hurled caustic criticism, Western Canada opened the biggest irrigation congress in its history yesterday at Bassano, Alberta, the town which sprung into existence with the gigantic dam and irrigation project favoured by J. S. Dennis, assistant to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, backed by the millions of the Canadian Pacific dignataries of the Provincial and Dominion government, including the Lieutenant Governor and Premier of Alberta, railway officials, farmers and engineers, joined to make this really the first year a memorable one. Wellnyn Canada has its largest crop this year, her farmers are accordingly prosperous, while war prices of land products maintain a condition reached as a result of irrigation which means better conditions in the farmers' home, more widely spread mixed farming, larger immigration, diversified crops to make level markets and greater yields all over the Canadian west.

The convention will last three days. An inspection will be made of the Canadian Pacific's huge Bassano dam, Brooks' aqueduct and seventeen million dollar irrigation project.

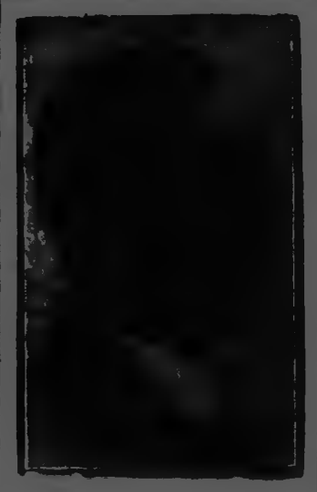
CAPT. ACKERMAN THE GUEST OF HONOUR AT ENJOYABLE DINNER

Was Dined Last Evening by His Fellow Members of the Peterborough Club and Incidentally Announced That He Expected to Return to the Front With the 93rd Peterboro' Battalion.



A. McG. Cumming—Who was lost on the tug F. C. Barnes, which foundered in Lake Ontario near Oswego, N. Y., three weeks ago.

BANQUET A SUCCESS

It was a happy gathering of the members of the Peterborough Club that sat down to a dinner in honour of one of their members, Capt. Chas. H. Ackerman at the Club last evening. About 100 members were present and enjoyed a sumptuous meal prepared by Mr. T. H. Hooper.

At the right of the President, Mr. E. G. Patterson, sat the guest of the evening, Capt. Ackerman, and together with them at the guests' table were Lieut. Col. Walker, Messrs. T. A. S. Hay, R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., Jas. Kendry, ex-M.P., T. E. Bradburn, ex-M.P., R. B. Rogers, C.E., and Major Canon Davidson.

Mr. Patterson was chairman of the evening, and the following toast list was on the programmme:

"The King."

"The Army and Navy," proposed by Mr. Hall, responded to by Lieut.-Col. Walker.

"Our Guest," proposed by Mr. Denham, responded to by Capt. Ackerman.

"Members of the Club Serving the Empire," proposed by Mr. Rogers, responded to by Major Canon Davidson, Capt. Lech, Lieut. Widdifield and Lieut. Reckham, who were present of the thirteen members of the Club who are serving the Empire in the present war, the names of which are as follows: Lieut. C. H. Rogers, Lieut. A. B. Colville, Major A. L. Fefevre, Capt. A. W. McPherson, M.D., Major S. T. Medd, Lieut. W. H. Munro, Capt. H. Ritchie, Capt. Burnham, Major N. H. Sutton, M.D., Major Canon Davidson, Lieut. C. H. Widdifield, Capt. C. H. Ackerman, Lieut. G. K. Reckham.

Sir Sam Hughes was expected, but a letter of regret at his inability to be on hand was read, as well as from a number of other members of the Club who were absent from the city.

All the speeches were cheering and inspiring and advantage was taken of the occasion by the speakers to show what the army and navy had accomplished since the war had started, what Canada had done and has still to do and what Peterborough had done and is prepared to do. The 57th Regiment of Peterborough, has sent 21 officers as well as hundreds of men to the front or are in preparation.

Capt. Ackerman in his remarks had high praises for the British regiment that relieved the Canadians in the battle where so many Peterborough men fell, which, while the stand of the Canadians had received due attention, the bravery of the British regiment had passed unnoticed. He expected to return to the firing line with the 93rd.

After the singing of God Save the King, Messrs. J. Crane, Asa Huckye, H. W. Morphet and others furnished a vocal and musical programme.

A SLOW DEATH

Prejudice dies hard, and very often at a great deal of cost to the eyes. It may be you have a prejudice against wearing Glasses, while your eyes are far from comfortable and your sight disturbed. The kernel of the whole matter is: That if Glasses are to be worn, be very sure that the man you choose to examine your eyes is competent and worthy of your confidence so that if he knows you are better without Glasses he will have the honesty to tell you so. We do not say that Dr. Lacey's (formerly Tait's) is the one place; there are honest opticists in every community; but we solicit your confidence with the promise that the best care and judgment will be given you.—416 George Street (opposite Examiner Office).

CIVIC RECEPTION ONCE A MONTH

Arrangements Completed to Welcome Returning Soldiers First One Will Be on December 4th

The first civic reception to returning soldiers, sponsored by the Reception Committee of the City Council, will be held on Saturday evening, 4th December.

This was decided upon at a meeting of the Reception Committee held last evening. Ald. Dobbin, chairman of the committee, pointed out that a number of soldiers have returned lately, and so far have not been officially welcomed. The committee decided to hold a reception once every month.

Aldermen Dobbin and Edgar were appointed a committee to make all arrangements for lighting and heating the Market Hall for the occasion. They were also authorized to make such arrangements as they might deem necessary.

Speakers will be selected for each meeting.

THEIR WORK APPRECIATED

St. Andrew's Patriotic League Receive Grateful Acknowledgment

That the St. Andrews' Church Patriotic League is doing a splendid work is indicated by the letter printed below which has been received by Mrs. J. John, St. Rutledge street, from Mr. Noel Marshall, chairman of the Executive Committee of the Canadian Red Cross Society.

The letter reads:

Dear Madam,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging receipt of shipment of supplies which have arrived here safely and are now in transit to our London commissioner for distribution.

You will be glad to know that all supplies are being shipped out as fast as we receive them, as we must keep our warehouses in England and France well stocked. With many thanks for your continued co-operation. Yours truly,

NOEL MARSHALL,
Chairman Executive Committee.

UNITED STATES PARTY FACES DEATH IN THE FROZEN NORTH

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 25.—That the Donald MacMillan exploring party may be lost in the North Sea beyond hope of rescue for this winter, at least is indicated in a cablegram just received by Judge Carroll Sprigg from the Danish explorer, Knud Rasmussen.

The cable reads as follows:

"Kjochenhave, Denmark, Nov. 15.—Mail from Crockerland explorers arrived and delivered to your embassy. Cluett arrived North Star Bay Sept. 12, after thirty-five days' ice hindrance and motor damage. Dared not go to Etah account autumn ice. Missionary motor boat sent to Etah to bring explorers to Cluett.

"RASMUSSEN."

As the relief ship Cluett would have to be out of North Star Bay by the second week in October it is feared she is icebound. It is said there is not sufficient food aboard to last through the winter.

ALL SINGLE MEN FIRST

Summoning to the Colours in Britain After 30th November.

Lord Derby is authorized by the Prime Minister to express his surprise that his statement in the House of Commons on 2nd November should be considered in any way ambiguous, says the London Times of recent date.

The Prime Minister on that occasion pledged not only himself but his Government when he stated that if young men did not under the stress of national duty come forward voluntarily, other and compulsory measures would be taken before the married men were called upon to fulfil their engagement to serve.

Lord Derby is further authorized to state definitely that:

If young men medically fit and not indispensable to any business of national importance, or to any business conducted for the general good of the community do not come forward voluntarily before 30th November, the Government will after that date take the necessary steps to redeem the pledge made on 2nd November.

It must be clearly understood that no marriage contracted after registration day (15th August) will entitle any man to be relegated to the married groups.

Whether a man is indispensable or not to his business will be decided not by the man or his employer, but by competent authorities and tribunals which are being set up to consider such cases.

The instructions which will be issued to the local tribunals will make adequate provision for dealing with special or exceptional cases.

In other words, compulsion for single men is now in force. If they don't go they will be taken after this month.

The order in which groups of men will be called begins with single men at the age of 18 and ends with those 40 years old, each year from 18 to 40 comprising a group. Married men are similarly divided in the same number of groups, but will not be called until the groups of single men are all in khaki.

PUTS WAR LOSSES AT 10,000,000 MEN

Survivor of Zouaves of Civil War, Compares Slaughter with That of Former Great Battles.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. — General Jacob Eugene Duryee, son of General Abram Duryee, organizer of the Fifth Regiment, New York Volunteers, better known as Duryee's Zouaves, of Civil War renown, and the sole survivor of the forty officers of that regiment, is completing a history of the Zouaves and in the final chapter has drawn parallels between the civil war and the great struggle in Europe. He estimates the casualties of the present war as more than 10,000,000, or a number equal to the population of New York State.

General Duryee entered the civil war as a minor officer under his father in the Zouaves. Later he was given command of the Second Maryland, which he led at the Battle of Antietam. Since the war he has lived most of the time in California, coming East once a year. He is now in New York.

"The figures of this war," said General Duryee last night, "make the great encounters of the past look like skirmishes in comparison with the clashes upon the battlefields of Europe.

"The following is a summary of twelve great battles of the nineteenth century, where more than 125,000 men were engaged, with the killed and wounded and the time taken in each battle:

	Men Engaged	Killed and Wounded	Time Taken in Each Battle
Austerlitz	140,000	25,000	1 day
Aspern	170,000	44,000	2 days
Perodino	265,000	75,000	1 day
Leipsic	440,000	92,000	3 days
Waterloo	170,000	42,000	6 hours
Solferino	200,000	21,500	1 day
Antietam	120,000	23,910	10 hours
Gettysburg	165,000	37,000	3 days

"The statistics of the men engaged and the killed and wounded are taken from a book published in 1868 entitled 'Stonewall Jackson and the American Civil War,' by Lieut. Co. G. F. R. Henderson, who states that 'although this return has been compiled from the most trustworthy source, it can only be taken as approximately correct.' This can readily be understood, for after the battle of Waterloo the French casualties were never officially recorded, but they were doubtless enormous. The army practically ceased to exist as an organized force.

"Eight of these battles were fought in Europe and four in the United States. Five of the eight were in various campaigns under Napoleon. The remaining three were in the following wars: Franco-Austrian, 1859; Austro-Prussian, 1866, and the Franco-German, 1870. The men engaged in the above battles numbered 2,965,000, and the killed and wounded 467,374. Although these figures seem of great magnitude, it must be remembered they cover a century of time.

"How has it been with the twentieth century? For the first fourteen years the world appeared quiet and peaceful without any manifestations of serious trouble, and it was not until the 28th of July, 1914, when Austria declared war on Serbia after the latter had refused to comply with all but one of her demands following the assassination of the Crown Prince and Princess of Austria, that war broke out. Just one month had elapsed since this awful tragedy and the thundering out of this horrible war.

"The conflict which has followed is more terrible than any recorded in ancient or modern history. A conflict where civilization, humanity, courtesies, and laws of conduct on the high seas have been thrown to the winds has caused trouble throughout the entire world.

"Here are figures published on the 1st of August in this country. They are said to be computed from official and semi-official sources: France, killed 400,000, wounded 700,000, prisoners and missing 300,000, total 1,400,000; Russia, killed 733,000, wounded 1,982,000, prisoners and missing not including Warsaw campaign, 770,000, total 3,485,000. Since the publication of these figures Russia is said to have lost heavily. On Sept. 14 the following announcement was made in the House of Commons of British casualties: Total, 301,053; killed and died of wounds, officers, 4,035, men, 70,982; wounded, officers, 9,073; men, 241,068; missing, officers, 1,501; men, 53,446. These figures were for the army alone. On Aug. 9, the Canadian casualties were announced in Ottawa to total 10,689, of which 1,877 were killed, 6,739 wounded, and 2,055 missing. Canada was recently said to have sent 80,000 men to the front. Australian casualties have not been found.

"On Oct. 26 last the Lieuwe Rotterdamsche Courant, as quoted by Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent, gave German losses from Oct. 11 to Oct. 20 as 54,424 in dead, wounded and missing. The total Prussian losses are given at 2,021,098. The newspaper says there have also been issued 224 Bavarian, 200 Saxon, 266 Wurttemberg, and 52 naval casualty lists, as well as lists of officers and under-officers with the Turkish army. The Courant figures the total losses to the Central Powers at 5,000,000.

"On Oct. 26, The London Daily Mail said the last thirty Prussian casualty lists issued contained the names of 150,901 officers and men, killed, wounded, or missing. This brings the total Prussian losses published to 2,026,200. The lists do not include 228 Bavarian, 211 Saxon, 288 Wurttemberg, and 54 navy lists. The last lists included the names of 77 airmen killed, 75 wounded, 9 missing, and 2 prisoners, and 4 Generals killed and 2 wounded.

"The total German losses up to date are estimated at about 4,500,000. Among the latest casualties are many killed by poison gas. The losses of telephone and telegraph battalions in the trenches are very heavy.

"Since these figures were printed some of the biggest losses of the European war have occurred on both sides. It is evident that the casualties in all the armies at war in Europe amount to more than 10,000,000 of men, equal to the entire population of the State of New York. How insignificant seem the losses of our great war compared with these figures from Europe, and the end is not in sight."

FISKE O'HARA'S NEW PLAY

Is Entitled "Kilkenny"

Augustus Pitou, Jr., will present the favourite Irish tenor, Fiske O'Hara, in a new comedy, "Kilkenny," by Augustus Pitou, Sr. The story is filled throughout with delightful Irish witticisms and humorous situations, and will be played by an exceptionally clever company. Mr O'Hara will sing several new songs written especially for this new play among which may be mentioned "That's What an Irishman Means," "Contrary Mary Clary," "Ireland Is Ireland to Me," "Dear Mother Mine," and "When It's Moonlight in Mayo." Superb scenic effects and a wealth of beautiful costumes promise to make "Kilkenny" the most successful play Mr. O'Hara has appeared in. The local engagement is for Tuesday November 30.

KELLY IS TO COME BACK

Winnipeg Contractor Ordered To Be Extradited from Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25—Thomas Kelly millionaire contractor, accused of defrauding the Provincial Government in connection with the erection of new Parliament buildings at Winnipeg, Man., was ordered extradited to Canada by Judge Landis in the United States District Court, affirming the decision of extradition given by United States Commissioner Mason and denying Mr. Kelly's petition for a writ of habeas corpus.

Kelly's attorney announced that he would appeal the decision to the Supreme Court of the United States. He was given ten days in which to file the appeal.

Kelly was then taken back to the county jail at Waukegan, Ill.

For nearly two months the wealthy contractor, who was one of the central figures in the inquiry into the contracts for the Manitoba Parliament Buildings, fought against extradition. In his ruling Judge Landis found that the contentions of three charges against Kelly were in favour of the argument of counsel for the defendant that the offences were not extraditable.

Since the hearing before the Federal Commissioner, Mr. Kelly has been held in the county jail at Waukegan, Illinois.

The Italian Campaign Against Gorlitz.— Announcement that the Italians have taken Podgora Heights lends new interest to the desperate but hitherto indecisive fighting on the Isonzo. If Gorlitz were taken the Italians could direct their attention towards a campaign against Triest.

INFLATED PRICES PAID FOR SHIPS

Any Old Kind of a "tub" That Will Keep Afloat and Carry Cargo Is Being Pressed Into Service

Any old kind of a "tub" that will keep afloat and carry cargo can command a record price these days. The scarcity of available cargo tonnage has set new high records for freights and every day these are changing hands at figures double what they would have bought two years ago. A few examples have recently come to light:

The Japanese steamer Asama Maru has been sold for about $270,000. In 1913 she was sold for $125,000.

The Norwegian steamer Hanguies, 2,439 tons register, and built at Sunderland in 1905, has been sold to neutrals for about $425,000. Her home port was Bergen. She was formerly a regular trader between Victoria and the Far East.

The British steamer Ivertay, an old trader out of North Pacific ports, has been sold for about $440,000, and renamed the Lexington. She still remains under the British flag.

The Danish bark Denmark, which loaded grain on the Pacific coast last season for the United Kingdom, has been sold for $35,750. She was built in 1892, and in 1904 she was sold for $15,750, or about half the price now paid for her. She is 1,374 tons register.

PROF. HASLAM KILLED HIMSELF BY SHOOTING

Well-known Teacher of Music Met Tragic Death Yesterday.

TORONTO, Nov. 25.—Professor Elliott Haslam, Mus.Bach., Mus. Doc., acknowledged to be Canada's greatest authority on singing, committed suicide by shooting himself at his studio in the Carty Building, 220 Yonge Street, yesterday.

Prof. Haslam was about 60 years of age, reputed to be worth approximately $150,000, and enjoyed excellent health. No reason is known for his act. Professor Haslam, who lived at 68 Gloucester Street, returned to Canada from Europe at the outbreak of the war. He was a brother of Lady Walter Mitchell, of Yorkshire, England, and widely known as a thorough musician in the various musical centres of the world. London, Paris, Vienna and New York were all places where he had conducted musical organizations or taught music.

Professor Haslam was born in London, England, and educated in France and Italy. He was a son of the great concert singer, John Haslam, a prominent figure of London's musical world for almost 20 years. After completing his education in Italy he returned to Paris, where he was appointed a violinist in the Paris Grand Opera Company. Later he was given the position of conductor of the opera company, and spent several seasons at Ostend. He was later brought to New York to the Metropolitan Opera House, where he organized and produced several French and German operas.

After spending several years in New York, Professor Haslam came to Toronto in 1907, when he started the Haslam Vocal Society. Later he returned to New York under Dvorak, and was appointed to the chair of Professor of Oratorio in the National Conservatory of Music. In 1905 he returned to Toronto and taught vocal music until 1909, when he went to Paris and opened a studio. During this period of his career he trained many of the world's most well-known singers. He returned to Toronto at the outbreak of the war, and opened his studio in Yonge Street. His only relative in Canada is Mr. Percy Mitchell, a nephew, who was at one time the Paris editor of the New York Herald.

During the past few days Professor Haslam suffered from a severe cold and a sign at the entrance to his studio informed his students that their classes would be postponed. Late last night, his landlady, Mrs. Arthur Bowen, noticed him in his room and asked him if he would like a cup of tea. He refused. John Sudal, caretaker of the buildings, alarmed by the report of a shot this morning, visited the studio and found the professor prostrate on the floor, the side of his head horribly mangled and torn from the bullet which had entered the left side. The discharged revolver lay beside him. There was no note or nothing to show why such action had been committed. There will be no inquest.

PATRIOTIC WOMAN RETURNS ALLOWANCE

Mother of Sgt. H. V. Hamilton, of Bethany, Says She Can Get Along Without It

BOWMANVILLE, Nov. 25.—Mrs Frances Hamilton of Bethany, whose son, Sergt. Harold Hector Hamilton is serving in France under Lt.-Col Ralston of Durham County, in the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, has, since her son enlisted, been in receipt, through the Canadian Patriotic Fund, of the patreasurer of the Counties Branch, enclosing the sum of $182.50, being the total sum which she has received from the fund, and writes as follows:

"I have not needed to use the money allowed to me by the Patriotic Fund. I can get along will out it at present, so I am returning it so that it may be applied for the relief of those who are in greater need. I think that the grant might be cancelled in future, as I will try and get along without it."

LONDON PAPERS DID DAMAGE

WEAKENED ALLIES IN THE BALKANS

London Mail and Times Accused of Contributing to the Failure of British Diplomacy.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—The British Government has begun an investigation to see how far the newspapers were responsible for the defeat of British diplomacy in the Balkans.

Announcement to this effect was made to-day by Sir John Simon, the Home Secretary. Sir John read an extract from the Russian newspaper Ruskoe Slovo, charging that responsibility for the failure of Anglo-French anad Russian diplomacy in the Balkans rested with the London Daily Mail and Times. Articles in these papers were re-published in Greek newspapers without comment as proof that the British acknowledged the shortcomings of their military organization.

"The Government is looking into this matter," declared the Home Secretary.

The extracts in the Russian papers stated that the Mail and Times systematically blackened the military and diplomatic measures of the British Government, and that the Germans naturally took advantage of this.

Brotherly Love.

"Here's an item," said the telegraph editor, "about a New York man giving his wife a $500,000 diamond. That will make every wife in America want something of the kind."

"Kill the item," directed the proprietor. "What's the use of running a newspaper if you can't occasionally help your fellowman?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

THE GARY IDEA OF WORK IN SCHOOLS

Gary, Indiana, is not a large city. But it is likely one can see ideals of modern education realized more fully there than in any other place in the world.

There are gymnasiums and swimming pools in most of the buildings. There are a number of playgrounds about two acres each.

Moving pictures are exhibited in the school buildings free to the children and to the public.

All work is exceedingly practical. For instance, the boys in the turning department make their own baseball bats, Indian clubs, stools for the laboratories, and various articles for use in the home. In the paint shop pupils stain the teacher's desks and paint articles of furniture made in manual training classes. The laundry and sewing departments are run in conjunction and earn money which is utilized to paying instructors and helpers in these departments. To the cobbling departments children bring shoes that need to be repaired, and pupils get practical experience. In the blacksmith shop pupils repair articles used by themselves or at their homes. They make the iron work for the playground apparatus, and shoe horses belonging to the school department. At the same time they are taught the principles underlying each kind of work.

There are laboratories for botany, physics, chemistry, electricity, bacteriology and zoology. There are studios for music and art. All the regular subjects of instruction, such as arithmetic, German, Latin, history, and geography are taught in a practical way. For instance banking arithmetic is taught by an actual state bank operating in the schools. This bank is under the state bank inspector the same as any other state bank, but pupils of the schools are officers and customers. They deposit money and draw on their accounts to pay for their luncheons, their book rentals, etc.—M. V. O'Shea in December Mother's Magazine.

A WAR PROPHECY OF 1012.

Coincidence Between Father Zeebold's Prediction and Tolstoy's.

LONDON, Nov. 23. Shortly before Count Tolstoy died he made, as most readers will recall, a strange prophecy, in which he predicted the present war and declared that it would be ended by a "Man from the North."

This mysterious figure from the North appears in a prediction made in the year 1012 by Father Zeebold, a monk in the Zutphen Monastery at Herfert, in Saxony. Arnold White (Vanoc) in The Referee refers to the prophecy, which, he remarks, is not tainted, as popular prophecies are usually tainted, with the invention of "evidence" after the event. Father Zeebold's prophecy, a copy of which by some strange chance, has survived in the Government archives of Ceylon, and the genuineness of which is vouched for by the Ceylon Government's Archivist, R. G. Anthonisz, is as follows:

"When I, Zeebold, had studied all the characteristics and movements of the heavenly signs I found from the position of these stars, following natural cause and effect, that the imperial power will not be permanently established till the year 1218, when a hero would, by chivalrous daring bring in the double eagle and wield the empire with renown, making also subject to him Austria, Hungary, and Bohemia, and holding sway over these kingdoms, while his house also continued to flourish up to the eighteenth century, when, in the year 1740, there will come confusion, rebellion, and great discord, and the empire be divided into three branches. Italy will suffer want and the City of Rome be laid waste.

"Thereafter will a victor, by great prowess, possess himself of the double eagle and rule the empire with renown, until, at last, the Lion of the North appear and assail the lands with much fierceness. Then will the red lion cast the eagle into the vale of darkness and once more rouse the white swan to anger; and he will maintain the empire for a long time, till the great God, in His infinite honour and power, break it up and make an end of it.

"Thus the prophecy of Daniel will go no further, and in the fulfillment of Nebuchadnezzar's dream will be seen that the end of the world is near."

MEN IN U. S. OFFER TO WED GERMAN GIRLS OR WIDOWS.

BERLIN.—An American who signs himself I. Merritt Smith writes to the Vossische Zeitung from Herakleburg, Cal.:

We are twenty young men, all strong, healthy and of good character. Recently we read in a San Francisco paper that the German government intends to endow foreigners to settle in Germany after the war, to marry German girls or widows, and to aid in the reconstruction of the empire.

"Nineteen of my friends and myself are willing to respond to this call and we desire to make the acquaintance of nice, respectable German widows under 30 years, who know some English and are not without means.

"We are all honest and sincere. Our desire is to marry good German women, as we are lonesome here and cannot find life partners because we are not wealthy.

"Photographs of ourselves and references will gladly be sent. In conclusion I want to state once more that with ladies who only want to flirt we do not wish to correspond."

More than 4,000,000 tons of ore a year are expected to be exported from iron mines in Algeria by French capitalists who have obtained concessions after more than ten years of effort.

Bulgar and Teuton Troops Now Occupy Pristina, Serbian Capital

LONDON, Nov. 25.—Mitrovica (the latest Serbian capital and Pristina have fallen to the Teutonic allies, and the Serbians have been forced off the railroad running from Mitrovica, south of the centre of new Serbia, through Uskub and Kiprih to the Gulf of Salonica.

Announcement of the fall of these two towns is contained in a German official statement issued to-day. The statement follows:

"Mitrovica has been taken by the Austro-Hungarian troops. Pristina has been taken by the German troops. The Serbians have been driven over the Sitnica River, west of Pristina."

The railway now lost to the Serbians in this sector is the one the southern part of which the Franco-British forces hold, and which would be used for the transportation of supplies and reinforcements to the Serbs in the central part of new Serbia could it be freed of Austro-German-Bulgarian control at Kiprih and Uskub. Pristina is to the east of the railway and the river. It is to be presumed that here the Serbians have been driven back across the Kossovo plain to the hills west of the river. Mitrovica is to the north on the western bank of the same river. The continued holding of the two towns in spite of Austro-German attempts to capture them has been one of the encouraging features of the Serbian situation.

A despatch from the Havas Agency correspondent at Salonica says that after occupying Pristina by the Germans, the Bulgarians on that front attempted an enveloping movement against the Serbians in the Katchanik pass to the south. Serbian troops retreated to Albania were rushed back and so far the attempts have not been successful. On the north-eastern front the correspondent says the Bulgarians were repulsed for the third time on November 23.

Four more transports heavily laden with troops arrived at Salonica on November 23, the correspondent says, adding that hundreds of Bulgarians taken prisoner by the French reached Salonica on Monday evening.

The Serbians at Monastir have been reinforced and Salonica despatch to the Temps predicts that the city will not be taken by the Bulgarians until Austro-German help arrives. Serbian troops from Cobrida, in south-western Serbia, Dibra, on the Albanian border to the north, the region of Krusevo, west of Prilep, and even as far north as Gostivar, south of Tetovo, have been sent to strengthen the army defending Monastir. Furthermore, quantities of provisions have been accumulated at Salonica, and are to be shipped to the Serbian forces in Southern Serbia by way of Monastir.

Tells of His Life in a German Prison Camp

Pte. Heber Rogers Writes Interesting Letter to His Father—Is Enjoying Good Health

Mr. E. R. Rogers, Hunter Street, received the following letter recently from his son, Pte. Heber Rogers, who is a prisoner in Germany:

Giessen, Germany,
Oct. 1, 1915.

Dear Father,

I received your letter of 26th September Sunday, and was very glad to hear from you again. Mother's letter and card also reached me O.K. a few days ago. You wanted to know how my eye is. There is a small piece of steel just underneath the pupil. I can see out of that eye a little, but there seems to be a mist over it. However, it is getting better every day, and does not affect my other eye. The specialist in the hospital said I would be able to see out of it all right when I had an operation in England. (Last Tuesday I got the parcel that you had sent me on August 30. That is the third one I have received. Everything was fine. Thanks very much. Will you thank the people for me.) I had a letter from the secretary of the Kawartha Park Red Cross the other day. She said she had sent some money to Lady Drummond in England to send me some parcels. Yesterday I had a card from Miss Glassford, and last Wednesday I got another parcel. That is fifteen that I have got so far, and four pounds also. I also get bread from Switzerland every week.

We manage to put the time in here somehow, although it is very tiresome sometimes. We have three parades every day at 7 a.m., 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. After 8.30 parade we have drill and physical exercise for an hour or so; so that keeps us in pretty good condition. There are a few fatigues around camp, too; so that occupies some of our time. The other day we took the straw out of our mattresses and now we have seaweed. It makes a pretty good bed and we have two blankets now, so we are fixed up all right. The only thing is, the French want all the windows closed at night.

I still have my album with a few snaps I had and a little Testament but that is about all I brought through. There are plenty of books in the camp, and one fellow has a bunch of classical books. I have just finished reading the "Judgment of Socrates." We have church service every Sunday afternoon, held by one of our Canadian sergeants, who is training for the ministry.

REPORTS WERE APPRECIATED

The following letter from Mr. Frank Yeigh, one of the prominent visitors in connection with the Boys' Conference, has been received by the Examiner:

Toronto, Nov. 23rd, 1915.

Dear Examiner,— I want to thank you for the splendid report you gave of the Boys' Conference, not only for the amount of space, but for the accurateness of the reports. Whoever does this work for you knows how to select the salient points of the talks, as was done in the case of my Sunday morning address. I only wish the Toronto papers had more reporters of this calibre.

We who are close to this boys' work and are able to compare notes of the conferences of the last few years, feel that the Peterborough one represented high water mark in the quality of the delegates and the way in which the boys discussed the details of your service.

Yours very truly,
Frank Yeigh.

SLAUGHTER HOUSES ARE BEING INSPECTED

Must Conform to Regulations or be Closed up—Same Ultimation Applies to Dairies

Sanitary Inspector Spence is making an official visit to a number of slaughter-houses throughout the district. Any that fail to come up to the requirements of the Health Act will be closed up. The inspector referred to one in particular that will be closed up unless remedial measures are speedily applied. The place in question was in a bad state when visited. Heads and parts of carcases were strewn all over the yard. This will have to be cleaned up and other means adopted to improve the situation.

It is also the intention of Sanitary Inspector Spence to be more strict with the dairy farms. Any dairy barn that is not whitewashed by the 15th of December will debar the owner from selling milk for local consumption. This rule has been evaded to some extent in the past, but the inspector proposes to see that this rule is rigidly enforced in future.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

At a meeting of the Legal committee of the City Council held last evening a communication was read from Mr. J. T. O'Connell, claiming damages to his property, due, it was alleged, to the approach to the Smith street bridge. The matter was referred to City Solicitor Gordon.

Board of Works.

The Board of Works committee of the City Council will meet this evening, and among other things will arrange for a deputation to visit Toronto to-morrow in connection with the sewerage disposal scheme.

Site For Disposal Plant.

To-morrow a deputation representing the city will confer with the Provincial Board of Health respecting a site for the proposed sewerage disposal plant.

Court of Revision.

The Court of Revision will meet this evening to consider a number of appeals respecting the special assessment levied for payments.

WITH OTHER MUNICIPALITIES.

Whitby, Nov. 25.—To assist in the recruiting and equipping of the new 116th Ontario County Battalion of 1,150 men, now being raised, the Ontario County Council voted unanimously in favour of granting $5,000, of which $2,000 will be devoted to regimental purposes and the remainder used for the expenses of recruiting.

One Mill For Five Years.

Winnipeg, Nov. 25.—The Union of Manitoba Municipalities, representing by more than 200 Reeves and Councillors, in annual convention at Stonewall, resolved to petition the Manitoba Government to levy a tax of one mill for five years on all assessable property in the Province for the Manitoba Patriotic Fund in aid of the soldiers' dependents.

Yesterday's recruits who were successful in passing the medical examination for the 93rd Battalion were as follow:

James Darwin, 560 Sherbrooke St.
Leonard Mound, 93 Sophia St.
Elmer Johnston, 316 Dublin St.
John Playford, 371 Burnham St.

Lieut. S. J. Raymond was on duty at the Armouries this morning after a few days' leave of absence. Like Mark Twain's death, the report of his matrimonial adventure was "greatly exaggerated."

Pte. Geo. Buchanan, who was one of the first to enlist in Havelock, and who has been through all the horrors of the past year's campaign in France and Belgium, has been invalided home, and is now in the Elmhurst Convalescent Home in Kingston.

He came to Quebec with a big detachment of troops a week ago Sunday and his parents have been anxiously awaiting his arrival home.

He has not been given his discharge but has ben sent to Kingston for treatment for a wounded knee and gas effects.

Word was received from him yesterday, stating that he would be home this week to spend a few days with his family.—Havelock Standard.

Harry King, Downie Street, one of the Peterborough boys with the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, C.F.A., returned home last night from Kingston. He arrived in Canada recently, having crossed on the Metagama. Other Peterborough boys are expected to arrive home at any time in the near future.

The Examiner has received the following letter:

St. Catharines, Nov. 23, 1915.

Dear Sir,—It has been officially reported that Pte. Leslie H. Jewell, 39th Battalion, is seriously ill in hospital at Shorncliffe. I cabled over and got the answer that he is improving, and for the benefit of his friends in Peterborough, you might please mention it in The Examiner and oblige,

Yours respectfully,
GEO. JEWELL,
3 Page Street.

The 93rd Battalion had an interesting afternoon's skirmishing work at the Exhibition grounds yesterday and the officers and men greatly enjoyed the afternoon. An attack with scouts, firing line, supports and reserves working was engineered, and the cheer when the final charge was sounded woke up the neighbourhood.

Although the trip to Port Hope and Cobourg has been cancelled, the 93rd Battalion Band will visit Millbrook on Saturday, going down on the 11.40 train and returning at 5.30 p.m.

SIGNALLER DOWNEY WRITES

Signaller Downey Writes.

Belgium, Nov. 1, 1915.

To the Editor Peterborough Examiner, Peterborough, Ontario, Canada:

Dear Sir,—I wish through your paper to thank the boys and girls of the Public Schools of Peterborough, for their most generous gift of chocolate gum, etc., that was sent to me to distribute to the Peterborough boys in our battery.

All the boys were well pleased to think that they were not forgotten by those at home. And we all look forward to any news from home. I wish you would see the boys when the Canadian mail arrives. The poor mail man has some some job to distribute it. When he comes we hardly give him time to get off his horse. And if he has not got a letter for each one he gets some calling down.

Well, everything is going along fine. And take it from me, we don't give the Huns very much time to rest. Just send along the ammunition and men, and we will give them all the kultur they want.

We are all glad to hear that Lieut. Ackerman is getting along fine, and hope he will soon be well again.

Every man in his company has the highest praise for him, and were all sorry to lose him.

Well, I have to go on duty so I will close, thanking the children once again. And hope that we will see more boys from Peterborough out here soon, as we need them now.

Thanking you for this space, I am,

Yours sincerely,
SIG. E. J. DOWNEY,
4th Battery, 1st Brigade, C.F.A.
France.

Two Owen Sound young men, friends of Lieut. Widdefield, joined the 93rd Battalion this morning. The two, Privates R. D. Wood and W. C. McFaul, are undergoing minor operations in the hospital to fit them for active service.

A letter has been received from Quartermaster Archie McBride, of the 4th Field Battery, recording the appreciation of the boys of that particular battery for the parcel forwarded by the ladies of Peterborough. Bombadier McBride refers to the wet weather that is prevalent throughout France and Belgium.

GUNNER MILLER KICKED BY A CRAZED CHEF

The wife of Gunner Tommy Miller, 180 Reid street, received a letter from him to-day in which he stated that his recently reported injury had been caused by a kick from the officers' chef when he became more or less crazed on the night their billet caught fire and was destroyed. It required five men to handle him, and in the mix-up Gunner Miller received a boot on the knee which was followed shortly afterwards by blood-poisoning. Gunner Miller is now in an hospital forty miles back of the lines, and expects to be around again in a short time. This information will be of interest to his friends because of the official report that he had been wounded in the knee by a bullet. He is orderly to Lieut. Harold Matthews with the 2nd Battery, 1st Brigade, who in a recent letter told of the loss of their billet.

1,400 APPLES WERE SERVED WITH SERMON

Dr. Reisner Uses Practical Example To Illustrate Spiritual Truth.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Fourteen hundred sound red apples were distributed yesterday to the congregation by the Rev. Christain F. Reisner, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church West 105th street, between Columbus and Amsterdam avenues. Dr. Reisner's sermon was about "God and Apples." He used the fruit as an illustration of the contention that man cannot be sound and healthy spiritually unless he gives the same attention to his soul that man has given to the cultivation of the apple.

"It takes faith to grow apples," said the preacher. "Once they were gnarled and repugnant. But man worked at them until to-day they are a joy to the taste, to the stomach and to health. Some folks are only rascals in the street urchins. Others demand a long genealogy depicting noted ancestors. That doubts God. He is not a respecter of persons. If we were born thieves and drunkards then we would not have a chance. In every boy there is buried the image of God. Mrs. Finley J. Shepard believed that when she adopted a boy and gave him her own name, even though she could find out nothing about him. He is human, and as such can be built into a fine son. God bless Mrs. Shepard for her confidence in God's fairness."

Dr. Reisner asserted that although there are 800,000 children in the city, only 200,000 of them attend Sunday school.

The Reason Why.

"One reason," said Uncle Eben, "why more advice doesn't git took, is dat de man givin' it don't seem so anxious to help us he is to put his own self on de back an' show off how much he know."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

CHIEF BENDER SHOULD WORRY

Indian Has Earned $80,000 in Baseball Since Joining Macks in 1903

Quite a number of folks are spending their days feeling sorry for Chief Bender, but after perusing the financial record of this same Mr. Bender we feel that he's entitled to just about as much sympathy as is John D. Rockefeller.

Bender joined the Athletics in 1903. At that time his salary was only about $2,000, but during the year that followed he was continuallly boosted. At the time he was let out by Connie Mack he was drawing something like $7,500 a year. Bender was with the Athletics twelve years, and during that time his average salary was around $4,500.

By process of mathematics one arrives at the conclusion that Bender, over a twelve year stretch, drew down $54,000 in salary. In addition to that he shared in five world series splits. That netted him a total of $11,734. During part of the 1915 season Bender was with the Baltimore Feds and got from them $6,000 of his $7,500 salary.

In other words, Bender has gathered unto himself since 1903 the sum total of $71,734 for baseballing, and probably $8,000 more in side issues, such as newspaper writings. That makes Bender's average income for seventeen years about $6,000.

Also you must bear in mind that he only had to baseball during six months of each year. He was free during the rest of the time to do work, or in the training camp, which meant that Mr. Bender didn't have to buy his own eats or suffer exposure to the other terrors of the high cost of living.

CONTRIBUTED HIS REFEREE FEES TO PATRIOTIC FUND

HAMILTON, Nov. 25.—P. J. Jones, secretary of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association, yesterday morning received a letter from Lou Marsh, who refereed the final O.R.F.U. game here, enclosing the check which he received for his work and requesting that it be turned over to the association's funds. Mr. Marsh's letter follows:

"Toronto, Nov. 23, 1915.

"P. J. Jones, Esq., Secretary-Treasurer Hamilton Sportsmen's Association, Hamilton, Ont.

"Dear Paddy,—I am enclosing check received from the Hamilton Rowing club for referee's fees for the final T.R. and A.A.-Hamilton R. C. game. I thought it would be at least $15, and requested that much for 'risking my life,' but doubtless, in view of the fact that I had the honour of establishing a new record from the Hamilton Jockey club to the Royal hotel, the Hamilton Rowing club docked me $2.50. Therefore, all I am able to donate to the Hamilton Sportsmen's association as the result of a very pleasant afternoon's outing and an hour's exercise is $12.50.

"Please accept this for your soldier boys. I am sorry that I cannot add another naught to the last end of the figures and make it a real donation. Yours,

"LOU E. MARSH."

An Orgy of Extravagance

Reckless Habits Caused by Inflated Wages and High Separation Allowance to Soldiers' Families.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—For the purpose of attracting a larger part of the savings of the working classes the Government proposes to issue war loan bonds of the value of £1 $5 or multiples thereof, bearing 3 per cent. interest.

In making this announcement today in the House of Commons, Reginald McKenna, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, said subscriptions to war loan vouchers—the plan previously adopted to attract small subscriptions—had proved disappointing. These subscriptions aggregated only £5,000,000. The working classes, he said, evidently preferred 2½ per cent. from the savings bank to investment in a loan which was liable to fluctuate.

The Chancellor emphasized strongly the urgent necessity, in the interest both of themselves and of the State, that persons now enjoying exceptional wages should save.

"Extravagant expenditure in any class cannot be tolerated," he continued. "At this moment economy in expenditure is vitally necessary, and the nation must be made to understand that a suitable instrument must be devised by means whereof we may avail ourselves of the nation's earnings."

Mr. McKenna said it was on this account that the Government intended to issue bonds on small denomination which would be convertible into cash at face value on demand. He said a strong committee would be appointed to popularize these bonds among the workers.

Wooden spills in the place of matches, penny wooden penholders instead of the quills so dear to British officialdom, and a few envelopes and odd sheets of notepaper instead of unlimited supplies gave a surprise to-day to members of Parliament who are accustomed to utilize the Houses of Parliament as a club.

In reply to angry protests the attendants explained that this year was a first step in the direction of national economy demanded so urgently in recent speeches in the House of Commons.

ENGLAND BEGINS THE MAKING OF GLOBES

A decided fillip to a little-known industry has been given by the war. Hitherto globe mays, to be seen in every schoolroom, were made in Germany, there being very few firms in Britain who manufactured them. The consequence was that English retailers had to sell thousands of German globes every year not only in England, but in the dominions over the seas. Now that the German trade has been killed a determined attempt is to be made to capture the whole of the trade. Few people could say of what substance globes are made, and would be astonished to hear that brown paper is the chief material used. A matrix of wood is covered with strips of brown paper which have been well smeared with paste. The paper is laid on the matrix until it is about a sixteenth of an inch thick and the globe looks like a football of the Association type. When this paper covering is dry, it is cut midway between what will be the two poles, removed from the matrix, and after an axis has been fixed in it, the two hemispheres are glued together. Then this sphere of brown paper is coated with a composition plaster, and ingredients of which are a trade secret and again left to dry.

After being tested to see that it is an exact sphere, the meridians are marked on the globe to guide the girls who finish the work. The globe is then fixed in a clamp which holds its axis and a girl takes the engraved gores, cut ready for use, and pastes them on without overlapping. If the globe is exact the gores should fit so exactly that you cannot see where they are in the complete globe.

When the gores have tried on, the globe is colored by a hand process, which is also done by girls, and then polished. In the old days so many coats of varnish were laid on that very soon the globe assumed that yellow hue that we see in all old globes. The modern method of surface production obviates this, and the globe keeps its whiteness.

The globe is now ready to be mounted on its stand and to have its meridian fitted. Formerly, says the World's Work, when the industry was most flourishing the metal and wood work connected with the fittings formed separate industries, but to-day the globe maker does the whole work on his own premises.

It might be mentioned that globes thus made are so strong that a 14 stone man could stand on one, and not break it. Indeed, you cannot break one without using great violence.—Tid-Bits.

JIMMY BRITT ENLISTS IN THE BRITISH ARMY

NEW YORK, Nov. 23. — Jimmy Britt, one-time dandy of the prize ring and lightweight champion of America, is on a troopship somewhere in the Indian Ocean, a private in Great Britain's colonial army bound for the trenches on Gallipoli Peninsula. Within a fortnight he will probably be on the firing line battling for the allies.

No one in this country knew that Britt had enlisted until a letter was received from him by Al Lippe today. It had been mailed in Australia, where Britt enlisted.

There were 763,185 men employed in the coal mines of the United States last year, the greatest number in the history of the industry.

CHURCH UNION VOTE IS STILL A MYSTERY

ANTIS USE PAPERS?

Unionist Charge That Every Adverse Majority is Rushed Into Print.

TORONTO, Nov. 24.—No official returns have been received by the Clerks of Assembly as to the vote of the Presbyterian congregations upon church union. The figures from individual churches and Presbyteries give no basis for assuming that union has been either sustained or defeated.

"No figures yet published are reliable indication of the final vote," said Rev Dr. J. Somerville, one of the two Clerks of Assembly, and treasurer of the Dominion Presbytery. "No official figures have been received by us, and the final vote of the Presbyteries will not be complete until December 15."

Halifax Favours Union.

It is understood that 29 congregations in the three maritime provinces give a vote of 2,979 for union and 1,086 against. The city of Halifax will report more than two to one in favour of union, according to a letter received in Toronto to-day. St. Andrew's, of Montreal, gives 502 for, and 154 against, adherents voting 74 and 14 against, and the elders dividing 20 for and 6 against. Glen Morris Presbytery, near Galt, gives 4 elders for and none against, 71 communicants for and 13 against, 10 adherents for and none against. Kindersley, Saskatchewan, will vote 98 per cent. for the union.

These figures are straws only to show how the wind is blowing, but Presbytery officials refuse to admit that they, or the anti-union figures, may be looked upon as a guide. Two churches in Medicine Hat, St. John's, and Westminster, give a majority of 171 against, and twenty-five in New Brunswick give 500 against.

How Toronto Votes.

Four Toronto Presbyterian Churches have recently returned a majority of 412 against Church Union. The churches are Royce Avenue, Victoria, College street and Cooke's. The votes were as follows: Cooke's, for 84, against 297; Royce Avenue, for 49, against 200; College Street, for 355, against 170; Victoria (West Toronto), for 142, against 303.

Has a "Picked" List.

"There is a great deal of dissatisfaction arising over the methods of the anti-Union party," said one Presbyterian minister this afternoon. "It seems like deliberate attempts to throw dust in the public's eyes. In one of the morning papers was a list. It showed a majority against Union. The complete list from which those few figures were taken shows a complete reversal of that trend. This has appeared in "The Witness" for November 20th, and is as follows:

Anti-Unionists Use Press.

Church Union enthusiasts say that the anti-unionists are very active in their publicity campaign, rubbing the figures of majorities adverse to Union into print with the idea of influencing the vote of doubtful Presbyteries.

It is admitted, however, that the opposition will be strong enough to make it difficult to put union into effect.

The vote in 1912 on the basis for church union as submitted to the Presbyteries, resulted in a vote of 370 of the members for and 17 against, the balance not voting. Of the elders 71 1-2 per cent. were in favour and 28 12 were against, adherents 72 1-2 for and 27 1-2 against. A larger vote of the members is hoped for this time, upon the question of union itself.

Vote Will Be Stronger.

"It looks very clear to me that there will be a much stronger vote against Church Union this time than four years ago," said Rev. A. B. Winchester. "I believe that the total vote all over the country will be overwhelmingly against it. I hear recently from a friend in New Brunswick, and he tells me that 25 congregations who had voted on the question give an aggregate vote of 400 opposed."

Rev. R. B. Cochrane was disinclined to give his opinion, but he admitted that the majority of votes will be in favour of church union.

"The returns are too vague at present to be able to judge, but I think the total result will be a majority in favour of church union," he said. "Just how large the majority will be I can't say, but I hope it will, at any rate, be in favour of church union."

Strong for Church Union.

Rev. Dr. John Neil, Westminster Presbyterian Church, expressed himself as firmly convinced that Church Union would be of great service, not only to Canada but to the world. "The vote is being taken in Westminster church this week. There is not sufficient difference to keep the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregationalist Churches apart," said he. "We have much in common, apart from deeper reasons, that I cannot be other than strongly in favour of union. It is a remarkable thing that with a few exceptions all our foreign missionaries are in favour of it."

Nova Scotia Wants Union.

According to the latest returns, Nova Scotia Presbyterians seem to be going almost solidly for Church Union in the vote being taken this week. Of 20 churches voting, 21 have gone for union, with eight against, and the total majority in votes polled is 1,643. In five instances, Harlington, Labrador, North Mountain, Oldham and Waverley Church Union was carried unanimously, while huge majorities were reported from other centres, such as St. Matthew's Church Halifax, 140 for and 5 against, Middle Musquodoboit, 142 for and 64 against; Baddeck, [illegible] and 39 against, Waterville, [illegible] and 9 against, Windsor, 133 for, and 84 against, St. Croix, 96 for, and 0 against, North River, 115 for and 6 against, and Bridgewater, 238 for, and 13 against.

HAS "SNIPED" 91 TURKS.

Australian Sharpshooter's Record Includes at Least 50 Killed.

SYDNEY, Australia, Nov. 4—Letters from the Gallipoli Peninsula says that a Queensland Cavalryman named Sing holds the record among the Australasian troops as a sniper. Up to the first of September Sing has shot 91 Turks, of whom at least 50 were killed outright. Sing was a crack marksman before the war and had won many prizes for his shooting at Brisbane and at Sydney. Since engaging in systematic sniping in the Dardanelles operations he has rarely missed one of his human targets.

Day after day and night after night he settles down comfortably in some favorite position and waits with inexhaustible patience for his chance. He sits for hours with a telescope as an aid watching the Turkish tracts over the hills or the lengths of the Turkish trenches until, sooner or later, a Turk shows himself. If the Turk is wary and quickly looks up and then down again Sing does not fire. He proceeds on the principle that, emboldened by fancied security, the Turk will gradually risk first his head, then his shoulders and, finally, the upper half of his body. At this stage Sing's rifle cracks and the Turk is seen to fall.

A notch is made by Sing in a stick which he keeps by way of a record. Sing's sniping performances are said to be beyond question, for every telling shot by him has been checked by some officer.

NEWFOUNDLAND HARD HIT.

Loss of Codfish Trade to Greece a Serious Matter.

ST JOHN'S, Nfld., Nov. 24—The loss of the Greek market for codfish as a result of war conditions has seriously affected the fisheries in this colony. On 10th November, on instructions from the Imperial authorities a proclamation was issued prohibiting the export of foodstuffs from Newfoundland to Greece.

The annual export of cod to Greece amounts to about 7[illegible] quintals. This supplied not only that but a market also in Greece, Italy and Spain. Because of the embargo the market price for [illegible] has dropped here a dollar a quintal (112 pounds). The Colonial Government and leading exporters are trying to secure a conference [illegible]

THE CALL FOR TOBACCO

The Thing Most Needed by Soldiers is Often Lacking---What Some of the Boys at the Front Say of the Need of Tobacco on the Firing Line.

DO YOUR BIT TO-DAY.

This is what one of the men in the Royal Field Artillery, who himself has fought with the guns ever since the retreat from Mons, wrote to a friend:

"What we want almost more than anything else, are cigarettes and tobacco for our pipes. It isn't simply a fancy—but a real need. They are a big comfort. It's something fine when you are with the guns to have some whiffs of tobacco smoke. It eases your mind. You forget about things. It stops you thinking hard. At home you don't—you can't—enjoy a smoke like you do out here. It keeps you going every day if you get a regular supply. But when you only get a small packet of cigarettes a week and no tobacco, it's like offering a sardine to a starving man. I've often smoked rolled leaves because there was nothing else."

Another soldier writes that it is at night in the trenches that a smoke is most precious. "So long as you can get a light without letting the Germans know it, a pipe in the dark is delicious and consoling. The night gets on your nerves, the least noise makes you start. It's because you've got nothing to do. You must smoke, chew—do something."

There is no doubt at all that smoking is of the greatest comfort to these brave men who are risking their lives for us every hour of the day.

The Overseas Club established their Tobacco Fund in the early stages of the war, and in eleven months have been able to send, through the generosity of the Canadian public, $50,000 worth of smokes to the Front. This seems a large amount, but the tragic note is that it is only sufficient to supply about five packages to each of the 40,000 Canadian soldiers at the Front. Just fancy that, five packages for a healthy man in eleven long weary months.

Now that the Second Canadian Contingent is at the Front, the shortage has become greater. Let it not be said that when the facts were known our citizens did not rise to the occasion and carry out the duty we owe to these boys of ours. Do not leave this to your neighbour. It is up to each and all of us to do our "bit" and keep on doing it for as long as the war lasts.

Our readers can send their money to the Canadian Branch, Overseas Club Tobacco Fund, c.o The Examiner, with the full assurance that they are laying their money out to the best possible advantage. The name and address of the giver is written on a postcard enclosed in each parcel, so that Tommy can express his appreciation. Subscribers can select a specified unit to receive the fruit of their generosity, or allow the Overseas Club to send the parcels where they are most needed.

CUTS OFF ORE TRAFFIC.

British Submarine Campaign in Baltic Effective.

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 24. (Correspondence of the Associated Press.) —Swedish iron mine owners state that the British submarine blockade will result in a complete stoppage of Germany's large iron ore importation from this country. Iron ore is not contraband and could ordinarily be shipped on neutral vessels, but at present all Swedish and neutral shipping is otherwise engaged and no vessels are available.

The present stoppage of the iron ore trade is a heavy blow to Sweden, but the Swedish press, realizing England's necessity has indulged in neither bitterness nor complaint.

German ships are now playing a difficult game. Navigation close to the shore in order to be in neutral waters is not easy during the best season, and with the rough seas of winter it will be particularly hazardous.

WAR STIRS INVENTIVENESS.

Germans Make Substitutes For Many Household Articles.

BERLIN, Nov. 24.—The exigencies of the war have led to the creation of almost countless substitutes for articles which Germany no longer has, even to the production of substitutions for substitutes no longer available.

The "Central Committee of the Housewives' Associations of Greater Berlin" has undertaken to show the public how great is the number of substitutes invented and already on the market, and how practical they are. This is to be done by means of one of the most notable expositions ever held in Berlin.

There are exhibited a few of the food substitutes now in use, but the exposition is mainly devoted to articles of household use that have come to replace all the copper and nickel ware that has had to be turned in for ammunition purposes. Thus there are common iron pipes, tastefully gilded, to take the place of brass curtain poles. There are vessels and receptacles of all sizes made of a material called "Serpentine" which is found in great quantities near Dresden, available instead of the copper pans and pots that have gone.

There are oven doors made of iron and steel which look as well as the nickel ones generally used and which, of course, are quite as practical. Even pins now are being made of iron instead of nickel, as are also hooks and eyes and similar objects. Some apparently efficient substitute has been discovered for the rare and expensive rubber, and the exposition shows garden hose of the new material. Even nipples for babies' bottles are fashioned out of this "near rubber." The list of articles includes squeegees and window sponges.

Twine made of paper has been found to be practical, but for use in stores a little machine has been invented which seals up packages and makes the use of string unnecessary. There are paper collars, cuffs, and handkerchiefs, and napkins, and even paper underwear. Underwear and bed linen also have been fashioned out of celluloid, for the purpose of effecting an economy in soap, which is daily growing more expensive.

There are literally scores of models of gas, electric and spirit lamps and stoves to tempt people who find it difficult or impossible to procure petroleum, and so-called "cooking bowls" that can be placed on red hot stones.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS' PAY LARGE WHEN COMPARED.

GEN HUGHES GIVES FIGURES TO REFUTE SOME COMPLAINTS.

OTTAWA, November 24.—Complaints that Canadian soldiers on active service upon returning disabled, are not well looked after, are denied by General Hughes. He gives the following comparison of the pay of soldiers on active service: Canadian privates, $1.10 a day. British soldiers, 9 cents a day. Italian, 10 cents; Finnish, 6½ cents. Japanese, 2½ cents; Russians, 1 cent; Germans, 10½ cents; Austro-Hungarians, 6½ cents, Turkish, 6½ cents.

WEDDING BELLS

O'DONAGHUE—HEENAN.

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Peter's Cathedral, November 23, when Miss Lillian Cecelia Heenan, youngest daughter of Mr. Patrick Heenan, 797 Water Street, was united in marriage to Mr. Robt. Leo O'Donaghue of this city.

The ceremony was performed by His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, cousin of the bride, who also celebrated the nuptial Mass. Mr. Frank Kearney, nephew of the bride, assisted in serving the Bishop.

The bride looked charming in a dress of white silk, with pearl trimmings and large picture hat, and was assisted by her sister, Pearl, who wore khaki silk, with pearl trimmings and a large picture hat.

Mr. Joachim Anglesey supported the groom.

The bride entered the church assisted by her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss M. Doherty. Miss Mabel Mahoney sang "How Pure and White," and Mr. George Daly sang "Ave Maria."

A dainty repast was served at the home of the bride, where the friends of the bride and groom assembled to wish them long years of happiness.

The bride travelled in a suit of navy blue. They will reside at 554 Charlotte street on their return from a trip to Toronto and points west.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents and cheques from friends.

Entire Village Blown to Pieces

Nothing Left But a Few Walls and Holes—Letter From Pte. Percy Grey

Mr. George Evans of the C.P.R. Telegraph Office, has received an interesting letter from signaller Percy Grey of the second Canadian Contingent. It is as follows:

Somewhere in Belgium.
Nov. 8, 1915.

Mr. George Evans.
345 George St., Peterborough, Ont.

Dear George.—Just a few lines in answer to your most welcome letter which I received yesterday, hoping this will find you well, as I am the same. Was out to see Charley Hardwicke yesterday and he is O.K. They were out resting. He was telling me of his experiences in the trenches. He had three dugouts come in on top of him, and had to be dug out of one. None of the Peterboro boys have been hit yet. They go back in to-day. Was that tabbies to a fellow who is billeted in a village up the road a couple of miles. The Germans have just thrown in forty Jack Johnstons. There was nothing left of the village at all except a few walls and holes. Suppose the 39th battalion is getting up to strength. I guess the fellows in it will have some tales training at home. Gentlemen only know when we will see the old town again. The big guns are sure making some racket here to-day but you soon get to used to them that you don't worry at all. It is the same with the aeroplanes. When you hear one over your head you hardly glance at it unless someone is trying to bring it down. Have seen a couple of "air scraps."

Talk Again of General Election

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Nov. 25.—A general election is being talked of again. The Government is understood to have asked the Opposition to agree that the term of Parliament shall be extended for a year and a half after the signature of peace.

They also want all vacant constituencies to be filled without contest.

It is understood that the Opposition leader has agreed to an extension of the term of Parliament for a year, and that there shall be no contest in three of the constituencies now vacant.

As the term of Parliament would end a year from next month, a year's extension would give Parliament a two-year life from the present time. The difference over by-elections seems even more serious. There are seven ridings vacant, one Liberal and six Conservative. It is understood the Government wants no contest in any of them, and Opposition is willing to have no contests in Prince, P.E.I., Hamilton, and Restigouche. These seats were vacated by death. In other four vacant ridings, the Opposition is unwilling to agree to a no-contest proposal.

WOMEN MAKE BEST MUNITIONS.

New Making Entire Shell of Heaviest French Guns.

PARIS, Nov. 24.—Albert Thomas the Lloyd-George of France, Secretary of State for Artillery and Munitions, asked if the experience of fifteen months had demonstrated the feminine dexterity at a task so unaccustomed as shell-making, just smiled. Then reaching into a drawer of his desk, he brought forth a fuse of a 75 shell—the most delicate part of a very finely adjusted mechanism.

"All this work," he said, pointing to the mysterious inside of the fuse "can be done better by a woman, once she is trained to it, than by a man. And there is no part of a 75 shell a woman cannot make as well as a man. Why, in certain establishments women are carrying out the particularly ticklish job of charging the shell with high explosive. And at Lyons they have gone even further—they are making complete shells like that one there; women are doing every bit of it, from moulding the molten steel to polishing up the finished product."

The projectile he indicated stood upon his mantelpiece. It was of 155 millimetre calibre—the heaviest shell fired from a French field gun.

"Would it be a good thing to organize women workers for the purpose of enlisting their aid regularly in the industrial mobilization?" was the next question.

"Yes, yes, certainly," M. Thomas replied enthusiastically. "It would be an excellent step, and I believe would please the women and be satisfactory to the men workers as well, for the demand for labor in the munitions industry is tremendous. Of course, we have already organized the workwomen to a certain extent. They are under military orders, just as their co-workers of the other sex are. There are between thirty and forty thousand women now engaged in France in the manufacture of munitions."

EYE TALKS SERIES

IMPORTANCE OF THE EYE

A man or woman has no more precious possession than that of eyesight. Deprived of the use of the eyes we are helpless, and in proportion to the condition of the eyesight, so is the handicap for business or pleasure measured.

If eyesight were turned into dollars and cents, we would be extremely careful of it. Money means working capital, and eyesight is our greatest necessity as an earning power. Can we then be too careful of our most valuable asset? We ask perfect security for money, then also ask for proper qualifications from the specialist who treats your eyes.

FORTIFYING SUEZ CANAL

Elaborate Works Being Constructed Across the Caravan Routes.

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 25.—Ten thousand British troops, mostly colonials, are erecting fortifications along the Suez canal all the way from Port Said to the northern end of the Gulf of Suez.

These works are not being built at the very edge of the waterway, but miles to the east. The most extensive are those across the caravan routes which strike the canal at Toussoum and at Kantara. The latter is the highway leading from Syria by way of Katieh, and is the more important of the two. From Kantara to Serapeum, the eastern side of the canal is flanked by a range of barren hills, and these have been fortified and supplied with artillery. North of Kantara is a flat sun-beaten desert, and the erection of block-houses and redoubts has been difficult.

When the British military authorities receive news that the projected invasion of Egypt has been commenced, they will not wait for the Turks, but will go out to meet them.

GERMAN MAKES THREAT.

No Munition Plants In U.S. Running in Six Months, He Says.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 24.—According to Detective Portet, who took Otto Buelow or Unger to Norfolk Buelow, forgetting for a moment that he was unable to speak English, declare that "in six months there will not be a war munition plant in operation in the United States." Buelow is believed to be an escaped officer from the German raider Prinz Eitel Friedrich.

On the way to Norfolk Buelow exclaimed to Porter:

"I know the location of every munition plant in the country, and they won't be working in six months." Buelow made this statement in the presence of Samuel Cohen, a Federal agent.

The first inkling he gave Porter and Cohen was when he seemed to be much interested in their conversation. A little later the detective asked him what he knew.

"I know a lot," he said, "but I would die before I would tell."

WOMAN'S STOMACH HELD KNIFE FOR FOR MONTHS.

SWALLOWED WHILE IN DELIRIUM REMOVED BY SURGEONS.

CHICAGO, November 25.—The table knife which Mrs. Elizabeth Hochsberger finally persuaded the surgeons that she had swallowed while in a delirium, due to illness, eight months ago, was taken from her stomach by an operation at the West side Hospital. The knife was corroded and saw edged from the action of stomach acids and doctors said nature had made heroic efforts to digest the implement.

The woman rallied well from the operation. Several dozen doctors and medical student's watched the operation.

SUNDAY RAISED $7,437.

He Didn't Get a Cent, but Contributed $100 of His Own.

Billy Sunday's gifted tongue loosened $7,437.37 from the pockets of two Toronto audiences and placed it in the treasury of Citizens' Committee of One Hundred. In other words, the above was the amount of the afternoon and evening collections at the Arena on Monday the afternoon contribution being $3,591.04 and the evening $3,846.33.

In order to put Billy Sunday right in the minds of some who might impute pecuniary motives to Mr Sunday's appearance in Toronto, the Committee announced that the speaker of the day did not receive a single cent from collections. Further than that, he made a personal collection of $100 to their cause, so finds himself that much the loser by his visit to Toronto. The receipts will be put into the general fund of the Committee of One Hundred to help finance the organization of the temperance interests in the Province.

It is estimated that organization work will cost the Committee $50,000 of which about half has already been raised.

Perfectly Satisfied.

"Was your husband good to you, Mandy?"

Japan Ready to Send Big Army

to send a strong army to Europe if the need arise" the Petit Parisien says. A statement to this effect is credited to Baron Ishii, Japanese Foreign Minister, by Mr. G. Lechartier, Tokio correspondent of this newspaper. He quotes Baron Ishii as follows:

"Thus far we have not considered the eventuality of sending an army to Europe, but if there is occasion therefore Japan will immediately send in one expedition a very strong army. Japan does not intend to risk a check."

In regard to the supplying of arms for Russia by Japan, the Foreign Minister is said to have remarked:

"Russia does not need men, as only one third of the men mobilized have been armed. By the end of the month Japan will have done much toward arming completely the other two thirds.

200 LIQUOR LICENSES MAY BE WIPED OUT.

PROBABLE ACTION OF BOARD AFFECTS WHOLE OF ONTARIO

It is no secret that the Ontario License Commissioners, as the result of their itinerary throughout the province of Ontario and the pronounced temperance sentiment prevalent everywhere will apply the pruning knife to some purpose, and probably 200 to 300 licenses will go. The members of the board decline to give any definite information as to the impending reduction, but there is good ground for asserting that a cut to the extent mentioned is not out of the question

Food Scarcity In Germany Felt by Armies

Willing to Fight But Not Starve For Country, Say Soldiers

ADDRESS TO TROOPS

PETROGRAD, Nov. 25. The military authorities have published an account of an address delivered by Field Marshal von Hindenburg, to troops which arrived at Libau from Germany a month ago. The Field Marshal is quoted as saying:

"I know none among you adopted a military career. I know each of you left a family. Therefore, I shall not demand reckless attacks from you, but I hope you willl beat off the attacks the Russians make."

According to this information, the Field Marshal reported to German General Headquarters that with such troops it would hardly be possible to think of active operations.

Letters given out here, said to have been taken from Germans, contain complaints of hunger. A passage from one of these letters says:

"We are ready to fight for our country but are not willing to starve, and the scarcity of food is becoming more and more painful."

Lettish volunteers are distinguishing themselves in the number of prisoners they are taking. They are availing themselves of their knowledge of local conditions to make daring excursions.

GERMANS ENGAGED IN A GENERAL RETIREMENT

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Nov. 26. — Convinced that the Germans are engaged in a general retirement all along the Dvina, military men are interested to-day concerning the Kaiser's probable choice of a line of defense for the winter in the northern section of his Russian front. That a retrograde movement marks a definite abandonment of all thought of capture of Riga before spring, is considered certain. Russians announced some time ago that they deem the city as safe for the present. Latest development is the first sign that the Germans have come to the same conclusion. The German offensives' breakdown is attributed to three things, the increase in Russian ammunition supply, a German shortage of munitions, and weakening of the German line for the Balkan campaign.

Germans Foment Revolt in Persia

Spread Report That Country Was at War and Capital Burned by Russians.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The Foreign Office, in a statement issued on the subject of the arrest of the British Consul at Shiraz, Persia, by revolting gendarmerie acting without the knowledge of the Persian government, as announced, says the prisoners have now been removed to the neighbourhood of Ahram, where "they are apparently in charge of Herr Wassmuss."

"The gendarmerie in Northern Persia are in open revolt under their Swedish officers," the statement adds. "They hold Koom in the interest of the Germans."

After declaring that further outrages had been committed by these gendarmerie and giving instances, the statement concludes:

"These acts of rapine and outrage were done in defiance of the Persian government and are instances of the way in which German agents instigate violence or criminal action in neutral countries."

CONFESSES TO SAVE HUSBAND

Woman Admits She Set Fire to Home in Order to Obtain $200 Insurance.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25. Mrs. Sarah Weintraub, of No. 325 East Houston street, carrying an infant in her arms and with four other small children tugging at her skirts, admitted in Judge Wadhams' court that she had started a fire in her home on October 17 in the hope of obtaining $200 insurance on her furniture, thus clearing her husband, who had been accused of arson. In the tenement in which the Weintraubs lived at the time were twenty-four other families, all of whom were imperilled by the flames.

Judge Wadhams discharged Weintraub and paroled the woman in the custody of a probation officer pending investigation of her statement.

Gordon Craig

Soldier of Fortune——by Randall Parrish

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

The facts were clear. Philip Henley was dead, killed while intoxicated, either accidentally, or for purposes of robbery. And he had been robbed when picked up by the police, nothing to identify him being found. Beyond doubt this half breed brother had dispatched a man north to look him up—possibly to assassinate him if necessary. The fellow had either done the job, or been anticipated in his purpose. In either case he was present to identify the body and had written at once, inclosing the signet ring as proof. That was the same ring we had found in the arbor, and which Viola had instantly recognized. And those men who had made a tool of me were the robbers. They had found papers and letters which opened before them this scheme of fraud then with his residence address, using his keys, they had learned everything necessary for the completion of their plans. A copy of the judge's will must have been in Henley's possession, and, no doubt, some lawyer's letter, describing the situation, received since the departure of his wife. Apparently everything two clever crooks needed to know was in their possession. All they needed to do was pull the strings, using a figurehead to represent Philip Henley. That was the part for which I was chosen. They had to construct a tale in order to interest me, yet that was comparatively easy, and there was a strong probability of success but for peculiar conditions of which they could know nothing. The half breed had never been mentioned. He was the monkey wrench thrown unexpectedly into their well oiled machine. Yet even without him, the reappearance of Philip Henley's wife was sufficient to cause disaster.

Philip Henley's wife! The magic of the words halted me. Then now, if all I had known was true, I—

Suffered Constantly FROM HEADACHE.

To suffer from headache makes life miserable, and it takes a person who has been or is subject to headache to describe the suffering and agony that goes along with it. The dull throbbing, the intense pain, sometimes in one part of the head, sometimes in another, is caused by some disturbed condition of the system. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but whatever the cause, the presence of headache clearly shows that there is something wrong somewhere, and unless the cause of the headache is removed, some serious trouble is very liable to assert itself.

The fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches the seat of the trouble, and banishes the headache is due to its success in first relieving, and then permanently curing the cause of the trouble.

Mr. Wallace J. Boyd, Milltown, N.B., writes: "Several years ago I was a constant sufferer from headache. I was all run down, and nothing seemed to do me any good. I read of Burdock Blood Bitters, and decided to give it a trial and the result was marvellous. The headache stopped at once, and I felt better in every way since. I recommend it to all sufferers."

B.B.B. is the oldest and best known blood medicine on the market to-day having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co. Limited, Toronto, Ont.

proach of twilight. In those waters night came quickly. Locking the captain's door, I entered my own stateroom and sat down on the lower berth to wait, leaving my door slightly ajar. The cabin grew constantly darker, although outside, through the open port, I could still distinguish gleams of light along the water surface and the heights of the island. Herman came down and entered his stateroom, but without closing the door. He remained but a moment or two and then hurried back on deck. Suddenly a gust of wind blew in through the port, and it began to rain gently, but in huge drops. Far away was the rumble of thunder, echoing across the open sea. The storm was evidently coming up slowly from the east, as all the western sky was clear and streaked with golden red.

Then a sailor came down the companion stairs, his oilskins rustling, and pounded on the second mate's door.

"All hands, Mr. Broussard!"

There was a muffled response, and the creole, buttoning his jacket as he passed, followed the other on deck. A moment later I heard the slow throb of the engines and glanced out to note the shore line slipping past into the gloom. The Sea Gull was under way.

It would be some time yet—fifteen or twenty minutes at the best—before I dared attempt to carry out my plan of escape. In spite of the overspreading cloud and steady rainfall daylight lingered in the west, and a spectral glow hung above the ocean. There were preliminaries to be attended to, and I was eager to be busy.

The steward had aroused from his nap, and I watched him lower the table, and spread it with a white cloth. Now the distant clatter of dishes provid him to be in the pantry. He could be dealt with there even to better advantage than in the cabin, and, noncombatant as he undoubtedly was, I felt it safer to place him beyond power to create any alarm. The task confronting me was far too serious to leave our rear unguarded. I slipped silently along the short passageway, and, watching his back closely, investigated the lock of the pantry door. It was of the spring variety, easily set to fasten, and could not be operated from the inside. As I pressed in the catch there was a clicking sound, which caused the negro to turn around, the whites of his eyes gleaming oddly.

"Oh, my lordy! I nebber heard you, Mass'e Craig. By golly, ash, dis yere nigguh sure thought he was shot."

"Not yet, Louis," I replied quietly, standing in the opening, one hand still on the latch. "But it is just as well for you to be serious about it—I've got the weapon all right—see," and I pushed the revolver butt forward into his range of vision. "I don't mean to hurt you so long as you keep still."

"What—what you a-goin' for to do, ash?"

"Get away from this ship if I can, and you are going to help by remaining right where you are, boy. First, what's in the small boat, hung to davits astern—provisions, I mean?"

"Dat's a breaker of fresh water, an'—an' a package o' sea biscuit, ash. A-a—Ah reckon dat's all."

"Good! Do you happen to know how far we are away from the main coast?"

"A-about thirty-five mile, ash."

"Florida?"

"Yes, ash."

"Can you tell me the compass point?"

He scratched his head, his confidence that he was not going to be hurt returning as I questioned him.

"Waal, ash, I ain't no sailerman myself—no, ash—but de second mate he done point it out dis mohnin' when Ah was on deck, an' he say it lay nor'east by east, ash. Ah members dat distinctly."

"That will be all, Louis. Now listen to me. I am going to shut this door and lock you in. I'll be on board here for an hour yet, and if you utter so much as a whimper I'll come down here and fill you full of lead."

I closed the door, testing it before turning away, smiling grimly to myself at recollection of those white eyeballs glaring at me through the gloom. Louis was evidently not the stuff of which martyrs are made.

There was a small telltale compass fastened to a beam over the table. I unscrewed this without difficulty and dropped it into my pocket. It would be a dark night with that cloud shutting out the sky, with probably not a shore light visible. Then I climbed the companion stairs to take a survey of the deck. We were slipping through the water at fair rate of speed, leaving a very perceptible wake astern. The open decks glistened with water, although the rainfall was light and intermittent; thunder rumbled to the northward, with occasional flashes of lightning. Even as I stood there, staring forward, endeavoring to make out certain objects in the gloom, the overhanging cloud seemed to close in across the western sky, instantly plunging us into night. I heard no movement of man, no voice shouting orders, yet before that last gleam faded I had seen outlined several figures on the bridge. To better assure myself that no watch was upon the after deck I circled the cabin. Supper had not been served, and one of the watches might be piped down at any moment. This would bring one of the mates aft to the cabin.

Driven by the thought, I rapped softly on her door and she came forth instantly, full dressed.

"You are ready?"

"Yes."

(To be continued.)

The captain of the volunteer fire brigade was enjoying himself, for the little party he was giving was going off well; but just in the middle of the festivities a fire had the bad taste to break out.

"Can't 'elp it," said the captain to the panting individual who had brought the news. "I can't go to no fire to-night! I'm giving a party!"

"But you surely ain't going to shirk your duty because of that!" said the informant.

"No; it ain't so much that; but I can't show the missus up in front of half the neighbourhood. Everyone in the house 'as been admirin' 'er new coal-vase in the drawin'-room, and it's my 'elmet."

LONDON DEFIANT TO ZEPPELIN VULTURES

Thrilling Description of World's Metropolis During Raid—Britons Know no Fear of Kultur's Pirates

The City of London lay enshrouded in semi-darkness though the night was young. Burghers and their families moved about the darkened streets jesting of death and danger, a brave, big hearted people facing the vicissitudes of war as their forbears had faced them in the days when the nations was young. Theatres and cafes were thronged with men and maids eager to snatch a joyous hour from the lap of time. London, quivering on the edge of murder and disaster, gave itself up to harmless, healthful ease and pleasure after its day of strenuous toil. Above the city hung a cloudless sky, blue-black and star-spangled; a moonless night, wherein the immeasurable spaces between the glittering stars were heavy with darkness, so soon to become pregnant with hidden death.

The beat of millions of feet throbbed on the sentient air in a strangely rhythmic chorus, like an army moving through the shades of night from bivouac to battle. A little group of colonial warriors wounded in the war slouched negligently from place to place, like farmers on a holiday rather than men who had borne the bitter brunt of battle, and written imperishable pages in the book of history. To them the sights and sounds of the world's greatest city were new and strange, and they smiled the slow, quizzical smile that all men know them by.

Where the Vultures Flew

Over the turbulent waters of the Channel high up between sea and sky, the Zeppelins flew heavily, like vultures, gorged with carrion. They came on wings of silence, cleaving their way unerringly towards our shores, flying as vultures fly in search of prey. They came to war on women, to shamble babes—to strike and flee, and glory in their infamy; to leave red ruin in their wake, and call it war. They were not manned by warriors, but pirates of the air. They came to win from that foul thing that calls itself a king, the iron cross for valor—the wondrous valor made in Germany, that seeks to slay, unseen, and run.

Swift as a bolt from a banked up cloud, sudden and sure and unheralded, came the messenger of death from the blue-black canopy above the city where the Zeppelin flew—a dazzling flash of amber flame, a splitting roar of rending iron, a white cloud of poisoned smoke, a woman's piercing scream that cut through the night, pregnant with agony; a huddled up heap of blood-stained clothes, a rent and riven body, a tangle of tortured limbs, a mass of dishevelled hair clotted with blood, a wailing cry from the lips of infancy as soul and body parted—two little shattered hands for a moment thrown outward and upward as if mutely calling upon the great city for vengeance, and the vultures of the Kaiser passed on, and another feat of arms had been achieved, another petal in the wreath of German glory had been won in the great and gallant German way.

Defiant of Hidden Death

The city stood stunned for a moment; the death herald had come so suddenly—leaping like a wolf on the fold out of the womb of the night. They who manned the Zeppelin knew their devil's work incomparably well, they wrapped the great misshapen ship in vapor, and soared upwards; a searchlight flickered across the skies like a silver feeler from some giant octopus—another and another gleam of silver radiance swept the heavens, now high, now low. They met and mingled in a broad blaze, separated again and broke through the curtain of the night, near and far.

The vulture dived earthwards again—again came the splitting sound of bursting bombs. Flame leaped out of a building, and flashed redly like angry eyes; firemen hurled themselves through the teeming streets like hurricanes unloosed, and fought the flames; the crowds swayed hither and thither—low and deep came the growling of a nation stirred to the quick, but there was no semblance of panic, no whisper of fear; even the women scorned to take shelter, but held their heads high, and raised clenched hands towards the skies. It was madness to stand there in the open, but it was splendid madness. The searchlights found the vulture, and guns began to speak; the shells burst above and below her; they fell short and burned in the blue like beacon fires at sea, blood red against the canopy of the night. The vulture knew the danger, and soaring upward out of range, lit all her lights in cowardly mockery, and passed as she had come—leaving mangled bodies in her trail, bodies of babes and gentle women—old men and boys, but only here and there a soldier's. Some day by the Grace of God we'll hang William the Kaiser on the spot where those murdered victims fell.—John Bull.

WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Charles Lovell, Agassiz, B.C., writes: "Seven of our nine children had whooping cough the same winter, and we attribute their cure to Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. We always have it in the house, and recommend it as the king of all medicines. I was formerly entirely cured of protruding piles by using Dr. Chase's Ointment."

NUMEROUS WAR SEERS STILL SLIGHTLY AT SEA

The Many Seers That Have Arisen With Spiritual Power are at Present in Wrong—Kaiser With the Rest

The war prophet is a wise man in his generation; for his predictions are for the most part as vague and obscure as his own identity. Even Brother Johannes, the mysterious monk who has been dust for nearly three centuries, and whose prophecies regarding the present war have set the whole world marvelling, only commits himself to one really definite statement. The great world war which he so graphically foretells, with its "eagles," its "leopard," and its "cock" as fighters, was to begin "towards the year 3,000." Even all his foresight was unable to fix the date within the greater part of a century. There is, perhaps, some excuse for these old-time prophets, who had to look so far ahead through the centuries, going astray, but one would naturally expect more accuracy from living seers who could almost hear the rumblings of war when they penned their predictions.

Kaiser's Fall Predicted

"In the month of July, 1914, a wise Indian foretold in January of that year, "all Europe will be overwhelmed by a war between the great powers. But in November a great Emperor will lose his crown, and hostilities will cease." A year earlier the Kaiser's horoscope was given in L'Echo du Merveilleux, and the fall of the German Emperor was foretold for 1913 or 1914—a prediction which unhappily was not realized. Nor was Dr Frank Allen, president of the American Astrological Society, nearer the mark when he declared that "although there will be some initial German successes, the last of these occurs early in November (1914)." Equally unhappy in some of his predictions is the astrologer who in the early months of the war published a book under the title "Peace With the Way Kind." "From April 14th (1915), onward," he declares, "the Allies will score victory after victory and will succeed in driving the Germans farther and farther back to their own land. During the month of May great trouble comes to the Kaiser, who will be betrayed by his own people. From April to the end of May, Britain and France will put forth their greatest efforts, which will be of such a decisive character that the beginning of the end of the war should be seen during the month of June; and in July extraordinary efforts will be made to bring about peace."

Head Hun Also Wrong

Even the inspired Kaiser himself is no more successful in his adventures into the future than his more humble fellow prophets. On October 3rd, 1914, the Burgomaster of Weimar wrote: "The Emperor was with us yesterday. What he said had such a cheerful ring, and made us so happy that I should like the impression to reach Weimar, too. He ended with the words, 'Well, boys, before the leaves fall from the trees here, we shall all be back in the dear Fatherland!'" It is still possible, however, that his words of an earlier date may prove the Kaiser, after all, to be the Prince of Prophets. When he first saw Verestchagin's picture of Napoleon leading his sullen, starving, ragged horde on its tragic retreat from Moscow, he turned to the artist and said: "In spite of that, there will be men who will want to subdue the world, but they will all perish like that." So may it be!

ONTARIO CATHOLICS AID WAR SUFFERERS.

Toronto News: The Roman Catholics of Ontario are this week making a collection in aid of the war sufferers in Poland. In every branch of the church throughout the province an active campaign is being conducted in search of funds, and it is anticipated that upwards of $100,000 will be subscribed.

"Reports that are reaching me point to a most generous giving," said Archbishop McNeil to-day.

"The situation in Poland is one that deserves the most hearty support of all peoples and I believe that the Catholics of Ontario will respond splendidly."

The results of the appeal in behalf of the Belgium relief were of a most gratifying nature, according to His Grace. A cheque for $7,000 has been sent forward, and it represents largely the givings of the Knights of Columbus and the Diocese of Peterboro.

Many Women Suffer FROM EXCRUCIATING PAINS IN THE BACK.

Do you ever feel that you must have some rest for that lame and aching back?

Do you ever feel that those shooting, stabbing, darting pains must be gotten rid of before you can get into condition, whereby you can attend to your household duties without a pain or an ache?

When the back begins to ache it is a sure sign that there is something radically wrong with the kidneys.

What you want is a kidney medicine, and a medicine for the kidneys only.

Doan's Kidney Pills know nothing but kidney disorders, because they are manufactured solely for the purpose of relieving and curing the kidneys.

Mrs. L. Melanson, Plympton, N.S., writes: "I am sending you this testimonial, telling you what a wonderful cure Doan's Kidney Pills made for me. For years I had suffered so with my kidneys I could hardly do my housework. I used several kinds of pills, but none of them seemed to be doing me any good. At last I was advised to try a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. When I had taken the first box I found relief. I have used five boxes, and to-day I feel like a new woman. I cannot recommend them too highly."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 6 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

WHEN BRUTES MEET

When Kaiser Meets Sultan the Chief Talk Will be "Kultur" as it is Now

How impatiently the Kaiser must view each hour of delay incident to the resistance of a despicable little people, doomed to destruction because they dared to oppose German kultur! The Kaiser is eagerly looking forward to the time when he can embrace his royal brother, the Sultan. Afterward in hours of friendly converse, what charming little rivalries will crop up! How William will vaunt the exploits of his Prussians in Belgium! With what patriotic devotion Mahomet will urge the claims of his Kurds in Armenia! The eternal fitness of things demands that this planet should see Teuton and Turk in this splendid combination, and that two sovereigns who will be remembered forever for their common ideals, purposes and achievements should for a single instant be transfigured in the ancient home of civilization.—New York Tribune.

Every skilful farmer knows that the only practical system of farming is the rotation plan, and to a greater or less degree every farmer practices this system.

INTERESTING PARENTS' DAY AT SCHOOL

At least a part of the Philadelphians have come to realize that the efficiency of their public school system depends in no small measure on the amount of personal interest taken in it by the parents of the children who attend the schools. Three wise persons have formed a "Home and School League through which to manifest this highly commendable feeling, and they are appealing for the co-operation of all who consider of importance that the best possible effects from public instruction should be obtained.

The members of the league held their annual conference last week in the William Penn High school for Girls, and they listened to several carefully prepared addresses dealing especially with the needs of feminine pupils. One of these addresses was by Dr. Ann Tomkins Gibbon, the newly appointed Medical Adviser to the Public Schools, and her plea was that parents should do what they could to aid the teachers in guarding the health of their daughters as a priceless possession.

Another address that was heard with notable interest was by Jacob Gimbel, whose topic was the relation of the public schools to business. Mr. Gimbel emphasized the desirability that parents should have clear understandings as to the object of the education received by their daughters and that the teacher should endeavor to deepen the particular trait of each girl and do what she could to fit her work to her capacity and inclination. "Home," said, "stands as a link between school and business, and in their attitude toward both institutions parents should discourage paltry criticisms of superiors, which ultimately degenerates into a destructively critical attitude toward work that precludes the possibility of satisfactory service and progress."—New York Times.

Praising Officer's Child.

Through the busy downtown streets a stalwart policeman led a little child by the hand.

A motherly looking woman paused before them for a moment. Then, in a sudden burst of sympathy, she bent over the child and kissed her.

"Poor lamb!" she breathed sadly; "She looks so sold and starved like; and she hasn't been washed for a week. Some folks cannot be trusted with children, wicked, cruel things they are. Where did you find the child, policeman?"

"Find the child, woman?" snorted the policeman angrily. "I didn't find her at all. She's my own kid."

The instalments may be paid in full on and after the 3rd day of January, 1916, under discount at the rate of four per cent per annum. All payments are to be made to a chartered bank for the credit of the Minister of Finance. Failure to pay any instalment when due will render previous payments liable to forfeiture and the allotment to cancellation.

Applications, accompanied by a deposit of ten per cent of the amount subscribed, must be forwarded through the medium of a chartered bank. The bank will issue a provisional receipt.

This loan is authorized under Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest will be a charge upon the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

Forms of application may be obtained from any branch of any chartered bank in Canada, and at the office of any Assistant Receiver General in Canada.

Subscriptions must be for even hundreds of dollars.

In case of partial allotments the surplus deposit will be applied towards payment of the amount due on the January instalment.

Scrip certificates payable to bearer will be issued, after allotment, in exchange for the provisional receipts.

When the scrip certificates have been paid in full and payment endorsed thereon by the bank receiving the money, they may be exchanged for bonds with coupons attached, payable to bearer or registered as to principal, or for fully registered bonds without coupons.

Delivery of scrip certificates and of bonds will be made through the chartered banks.

The interest on the fully registered bonds will be paid by cheque, which will be remitted by post. Interest on bonds with coupons will be paid on surrender of coupons. Both cheques and coupons will be payable free of exchange at any branch of any chartered bank in Canada.

Holders of fully registered bonds without coupons will have the right to convert into bonds with coupons, payable to bearer or registered without payment of any fee, and holders of bonds with coupons will have the right to convert, without fee, into fully registered bonds without coupons at any time on application in writing to the Minister of Finance.

The issue will be exempt from taxes including any income tax imposed in pursuance of legislation enacted by the Parliament of Canada.

The bonds with coupons will be issued in denominations of $100, $500, $1,000. Fully registered bonds without coupons will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000 or any authorized multiple of $5,000.

Application will be made in due course for the listing of the issue on the Montreal and Toronto Stock Exchanges.

The loan will be repaid at maturity at par at the office of the Minister of Finance and Receiver General at Ottawa or at the office of the Assistant Receiver General at Halifax, St. John, Charlottetown, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary or Victoria.

The books of the loan will be kept at the Department of Finance, Ottawa.

Recognized bond and stock brokers will be allowed a commission of one-quarter of one per cent on allotments made in respect of applications which bear their stamp.

Subscription Lists will close on or before 30th November, 1915.

"Chickens, Foxes, and the Gospel.

"Some years ago," says a Louisville man, "at a session of the Legislature of Kentucky an effort to repeal the law offering a bounty on foxes' scalps was made, but was defeated by the appeal of a member from a mountainous and sparsely-settled region. 'Do the gentlemen want to deprive my constituents and me of the benefits of hearing the Gospel preached?' he demanded (with indignation in his tone and overspreading his rugged countenance). 'We are all Methodists up my way, and our preachers won't come without we can give 'em chickens. We can't raise chickens unless the foxes are killed by somebody, that's sure; and there ain't anybody that can afford to spend their time hunting foxes and get nothing to pay for it. So, gentlemen, if you repeal this law you'll be depriving my constituents of the benefit of hearing the Gospel preached; that's the way it looks to me.' This reasoning was too much for the legislature, and for the time being the law was not repealed."

SEVERE BRONCHIAL COUGH

Yields Quickly to Vinol

Here is another letter we are permitted to publish for the benefit of Peterborough people who suffer from chronic coughs, colds or bronchitis.

Miss Ode Nelson, a stenographer, of Teaneck, N. J., says:—"I suffered from a severe bronchial cough. I had had coughing spells and became so weak it was hard for me to go to business day after day. I tried cough remedies and doctors' prescriptions without benefit. Through a friend I was led to try Vinol and after taking one bottle my bronchial trouble was better. Its continued use stopped the cough, built me up and I gained in weight."

It is the combined action of the medicinal elements of cod livers aided by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron and beef peptone, which makes Vinol a constitutional remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis, and at the same time it will build up the weakened, run-down system and re-establish strength.

Don't fail to get Vinol from your druggist and if it fails to give you satisfaction, your money will be returned.

A War Heroine

Miss Mary Davies is a war heroine. She won this distinction by exposing herself, with calm deliberation, to a death more frightful than that of the bullet—to a death by the horrible and loathsome disease known as gas gangrene. Dr. Kenneth Taylor, attached to the American hospital at Paris, worked out a treatment for gas gangrene by injections of quinine hydrochloride, which he felt sure would prove efficacious. He experimented with guinea-pigs, but the results were so doubtful that he did not dare to try it on a human being. Miss Davies, his assistant, had faith in the treatment, therefore, without Dr. Taylor's knowledge, she deliberately infected herself with gas gangrene bacilli, and then reported to him for treatment, which proved successful.

There are some things in this world for which not even the most profound rural philosopher can account to his own satisfaction.

"I never saw an animal move so slowly before in all my life!" cried an exasperated traveler in an Essex carrier's cart, behind which the clouds of a rapidly rising storm were growing blacker every moment. "Can't the horse go any faster? You had an excellent one fifteen years ago when I used to spend the summer here."

"That's the curious thing about it," said the driver, gazing first at his steed and then at the uneasy passenger in a mildly speculative way. "This hoss is the very same identical hoss that I drove that summer. I don't know what on earth's the matter with him! He seems to have lost his animation."—London Telegraph.

His Distinction.

"William, are you ever going to get matters so arranged that we can afford to have an automobile?"

"I don't expect that we can ever afford one, but I hope to get matters so arranged within a few months that we can have one."—Chicago Record-Herald.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

Of the many pretty designs for children's frocks none is more novel than the one shown in the accompanying picture. The waist is quite plain, except for the opening in the centre of the front. This is filled in with a flat, surplice vest to which the flat collar is attached. The sleeves are plain, with or without a cuff of shape corresponding with that of collar.

The skirt is box pleated all around, with a plain panel in the front. The closing of both waist and skirt is arranged at the side of the front.

For a school frock nothing could be prettier than a plain color serge with the vest of white pique or of a plaid silk. For a more dressy frock velveteen could be used with plaid or striped silk for the vest, while a very attractive frock could be made of a single color in poplin.

The dress pattern, No. 7,434, is cut in sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Medium size requires 2¾ yards of 44 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 36 inch contrasting goods.

This pattern can be obtained by sending a post to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

SECRET SKIN DISEASES

A famous physician states that scores of patients come to him suffering from skin diseases of most terrible form, which would have never passed the early stages had some suitable ointment been applied. Zam-Buk, which as a most powerful disinfectant and antiseptic, applied to skin diseases at their first outbreak would save hours of pain and prevent disfigurement and scarring.

Every city contains hundreds of people who have some secret skin disease—some eruption, some blemish, some open sore, ulcer, or varicose patch. There is naturally a disinclination to reveal such blemishes and often they are neglected entirely or some inferior and cheap ointment containing mineral colouring matter is applied, which but aggravates the sore places, and makes matters worse. From day to day, week to week, this continues, the sufferer in the meantime enduring great pain.

Now all this can be avoided by timely use of Zam-Buk. Why other wise has Zam-Buk come to be the world's most widely used balm. For that secret sore, those ulcers, that eczema patch, that open wound? There is nothing in the whole world of medicine better adapted than the herbal essences and gums that go to make up Zam-Buk. Not only is Zam-Buk a great healer, but it is a certain germ-killer, and prevents infection, suppuration, and inflammation. If you have some skin disease, which has hitherto defied everything you have tried, don't dally longer—apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is so popular that it is widely imitated, so be sure to see the name Zam-Buk (protected by law) on the box before buying. If you are in doubt, buy from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, who will send a box post free upon receipt of fifty cents.

The Weeping Shells

In several of the French bulletins it was mentioned that the Germans used lachrymatory shells. This long word only means "weeping," and that is precisely the effect of the shells when they burst, causing soldiers' eyes to "water" and so preventing them seeing properly, and firing their rifles. These shells contain ammonia and mustard oil. The weeping shells, which give off a bluish vapor when they burst, also attack the nostrils and throat and cause violent fits of sneezing during which, of course, it is impossible for a soldier to use his rifle.

A Question of Safety

The humorous side of Zeppelin raids is illustrated by a letter from a soldier to his wife, living in London. He himself is in the trenches, but writing to her he says: "It makes me very sad to think what a danger you and the children are in London. Here we are pretty safe, but you never know when a Zeppelin may drop a bomb on you." The idea of a soldier on active service in the midst of shells and other unpleasant happenings, condoling with his wife in her unsafe position, is quaint.

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Colour and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hairs disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON QUESTIONS

(By Rev. T. S. Linscott, D.D.)

November 28, 1915.

(All rights reserved.)

Amos, the Fearless Prophet (Home Missionary Lesson)—Amos 5. 1-15.

Golden Text—He that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully.—Jer. 23. 28.

1. Verse 1-3—What are some of the methods with which God has spoken His word in times past to His church and to the people of the earth?

2. What is the nature of the "word" which God is speaking to His church to-day, "lamentation" or congratulation? Why?

3. To what extent, if any, is the Christian Church responsible for the fact that the masses of the people are Godless?

4. Which is making the greater headway—the masses in their sin and contempt for the church, or the church in her zeal and spirituality? Why?

5. Verses 4, 5—What is actually the chief thing the Christian Church is seeking to-day, to know God intimately, or secondary things? Why?

6. What proportion of Christians bank on God with the same absolute confidence as they do on a dollar bill?

7. What is the fate of men, according to the lesson story, members of the church or not, who put more confidence in "Bethel," "Gilgal," or "Beer-sheba" or in health, wealth or worldly wisdom, than they do in the living God?

8. Verse 6—What would you say is the chief defect or sin of the church to-day, and what her chief virtue?

9. Verse 7—What should be done by the church, more than she is doing, to prevent civic and national unrighteousness—why is it, or not, the duty of the pastor to preach so as to bring conviction to the conscience of these men?

11. In most communities are found men and women living disreputable lives, such as gamblers, prostitutes, liquor sellers and lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. What would you say is the duty of the church and of all Christians toward such persons?

12. Verses 8, 9—What relation has the Almighty power of God with an exhortation for backsliders or sinners to seek and depend wholly upon Him?

13. Which, as a matter of hard commonsense, is the richer, more safe, having more right to feel comfortable—the man without God having a bank account of one hundred thousand dollars, or the man who fully trusts God, without any visible capital? Give your reasons.

14. Verse 10—Why did the rulers of the Jews hate Jesus, and why is every preacher who reproves sin as Jesus did, hated by the same class of people to-day?

15. If pastors to-day of big churches particularly, had the fearless, faithful spirit of Amos, and of Jesus, in reproving sin, how long would they hold their jobs?

16. Verses 11, 12—When a man afflicts the poor in any way what effect does that have upon his character and upon his true enjoyment of life?

17. What are some of the ways to-day through which well-to-do people oppress the poor?

18. Verse 13—What rule of conduct we adopt as to when we should reprove and when keep silent?

19. Verses 14, 15—What attitude towards God always brings us good with no admixture of evil?

Lesson for Sunday, Dec. 5, 1915—Uzziah's Pride and Punishment.—2 Chron. 26.

The Price Was Named.

A green sprig from the Emerald Isle entered a boot and shoe shop to purchase himself a pair of "brogues." After overhauling his stock-in-trade, without being able to suit his customer, the shopkeeper said that he would make him a pair to order. The price was named, the Irishman demurred, but after a "beating down" the thing was "a trade." Paddy was about leaving the shop when the other called after him, asking, "But what size shall I make them, sir?" "Och," cried Paddy promptly, "never mind about the size at all, make them as large as ye conveniently can for the money."

CHOICE RECIPES

POTATOES AU GRATIN.

Make a cream sauce of one rounding tablespoon each, butter and flour, one teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon white pepper, and one pint milk. Have prepared one cup buttered bread crumbs, and three fourths cup chopped cheese. Have ready one quart sliced or dried cold-boiled potatoes. Butter casserole. Dispose of layer of potatoes in bottom of dish, add cream sauce, sprinkle with cheese; continue layers until potatoes are used, having cream sauce mixed through them. Bake in moderate oven until sauce begins to bubble through the crumbs and crumbs are delicately browned.

BEEF a la MODE.

Pieces of beef from rump or round, trim off fat or skin, rub meat on both sides with salt and pepper, same as you would a roast. Put meat in china bowl with three ribs of garlic, six cloves, four bay leaves, two large onions liced, pour large glass vinegar over all and cover with plate smaller than bowl, so meat will be pressed down. Let stand three days and turn meat twice a day. To cook same: Heat very hot a good size piece of lard, put in meat well drained, brown meat on both sides, take out meat, put large tablespoon of flour in kettle, brown slightly and dissolve with cold water to avoid lumps. Put meat back in gravy, pour in the brine, cook on slow fire two hours; watch closely, add water when necessary; excellent sliced cold.

Fig Whip.

One-half box gelatin soaked in 1 cup cold water. Chop fine 1-2 pound figs (can use prunes or dates), cook in 2 1-2 cups water. Add to gelatin and 1 cup sugar. Cook 2 minutes. When cool add 1-2 sherry, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until it stiffens. Mold, serve with plain or whipped cream.

Pickled Peppers.

Twelve red peppers, 12 green peppers, 1 quart vinegar, 2 cups sugar. Cut peppers in quarters, remove seed and place in brine made of salt and water, over night. In the morning drain, place on stove and boil until tender with vinegar and sugar. Fill cans with same and seal while hot.

Baked Macaroni and Cheese.

One-half pound of macaroni broken fine and cooked in plenty of hot salted water 20 minutes. Turn into a colander and pour cold water over it. Make a sauce of two cups of hot milk, 1 large tablespoon of butter, 1 tablespoon of flour and salt to taste. Put a layer of grated or prepared cheese in bottom of baking dish, then a layer of macaroni, then sauce, and repeat until the dish is almost full. Cover with bread crumbs and dot with butter. Bake till brown.

Fruit Chocolate Pudding.

Mix thoroughly 3-4 cup of sugar, 5 level tablespoons of cornstarch and 1-3 teaspoon of salt; add 1-2 cup of cold milk, then pour the mixture into 2 cups of hot milk, and cook 15 minutes in a double boiler, stirring constantly. Add 1 cup of seeded raisins cut in halves, 1-2 cup of blanched and shredded almonds and 2 ounces of chocolate melted and diluted with 4 tablespoons of hot water and cook five minutes longer. Flavor with 1 1-2 teaspoons of vanilla, turn into a wet mould, chill and serve with cream, either plain or whipped.

Mexican Chili Concarni.

Take a piece of suet the size of a teacup, chop fine and fry out, remove cracklings, and while hot put in one pound of Hamburger steak, fry brown, breaking meat into bits the size of a pea. Steam one can of tomatoes in a kettle and pour meat into it. Add one pod of garlic (or three large onions, if preferred), and one tablespoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika and one tablespoonful of vinegar. Cook about one and one-half hours, until garlic (or onions) is well done. Add one pint of water and a can of kidney beans. Heat 10 minutes and serve hot in bowls with cracker.

SWISS INNS LOSE $100,000,000

"DEATH IN THE POT."

"Death in the pot." That sentence condenses the story of a tragedy. A little family gathering. A fine dinner cooked in the large copper kettle long disused, and the entire family poisoned by the accumulated verdigris. The story was told by the newspapers. The moral of it is, that the purest of food, put into a foul vessel, may become a minister of death.

If the stomach is diseased it is like the poisonous kettle, which taints everything that goes into it. The symptoms are irregular appetite, undue fullness after eating, distressed feeling in the stomach, of fluttering and sinking sensations, palpitation, dizziness, ringing in ears, sour or bitter risings and constipation. Not all these symptoms may be present at the same time, but any of them show disease in the digestive or alimentary tract.

The intimate relation of the stomach to the blood, heart, liver, and lungs makes it a medicinal maxim, "Start with the stomach." It is upon this principle that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery effects so many and such remarkable cures. It cleanses the stomach and the system is cleansed. It increases the action of the blood-making glands, and the body is enriched by the purified blood. It's a tonic and body builder that strengthens the digestive or nutritive organs and these strengthen the whole body by increasing the quantity and quality of its nourishment. It carries off the poisonous, effete matter. In this way it re-establishes health, banishing the bodily aches, which are but symptoms of the stomach's condition.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from any medicine dealer to-day, in either liquid or tablet form. Send Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., 50 cents for "Medical Adviser," cloth-bound and illustrated.

Constipation causes and seriously aggravates many diseases. It is thoroughly cured by Dr. Pierce's Pellets. One a laxative, two or three a cathartic.

Testing the Divinors.

Despite the fact that in numerous rural district throughout the country there is still a simple, wholesouled faith in the divining rod and its mysterious virtues, scientific test has proved conclusively that the faith is wholly misplaced.

Recently, in a series of experiments conducted in France, the diviner or dowser and his rod were submitted to a simple but effective test that ought to prove convincing. Dowsers to the number of a score or more, professional and amateurs, were told to stand over a pipe buried a few feet underground. Intermittently, water was sent through this pipe and then turned off. The dowsers were asked to tell when the pipe was empty. The results were negative; the diviners proved to be poor guessers. The Society for Psychical Research brought in a verdict a few years ago against the ancient art of rhabdomancy.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A VIRGINIA EPISODE

By HARRIET CAMBEY.

(Copyright, by American Press Association.)

During that period when the armies of the Confederacy and of the north were swaying back and forth in Virginia, while in command of the —th New York volunteer infantry, I was advanced one evening into territory that had been previously held by the enemy. Near me was a house, and from the inmates I received an invitation to supper. I accepted and found a lady and her daughter, the rest of the family, consisting of two sons, being in the Confederate army. I will call them Mrs. and Miss Bates. Considering that the blockade had deprived them of all table supplies except such as could be raised in the south, they gave me a very fair meal, made up of the only chicken left by the "Johnnies" and the delicious hot bread that southern women know so well how to make.

I was then twenty-eight years old and considered myself passably attractive to women. There can be no immodesty in my now saying so, since the wrinkled, white headed old man of today is not the same bodily person as the young soldier of 1863. I had seen those southern girls fall precipitately in love on sight with our Yankee boys and was not especially taken aback when Clara Bates showed a sudden admiration for me.

The young lady confined the expression of her attraction for me to her eyes and her speech. She would not permit me even to touch her hand. She seemed troubled at the proximity of two hostile armies, declaring that, though her sympathies were with the Confederates, she hoped they would retreat farther south. I set myself to work to draw from her any information she might possess of the enemy's intentions, and she told me that a southern general whom she spoke of familiarly as Bob and who had left her only that morning had expressed an opinion that it would be some time before he would see her again. Considering this to indicate a further retreat, I was about to take my leave for the purpose of reporting it at once to my general when I heard from the next room the words, spoken in Mrs. Bates' own voice:

"Kiss me again, Bob."

Darting a glance at my companion, I saw the blood rushing into her face. Then she started up to leave the room; but, grasping her wrist, I detained her. Immediately from the same room as before came a succession of smacks. Miss Bates made another effort to free herself, but I laughingly held her, saying:

"This is far too interesting to lose. Please sit still."

"Clara! Sweetheart!" came another voice, this time a man's, but sounding rather as if it issued from a phonograph than a human being, followed by a lot of unintelligible croaking.

Miss Bates writhed, but by this time I had both her wrists in my grasp, and she could not get away. I held her for perhaps five minutes, waiting for something more from the adjoining room. Presently it came in a masculine voice:

"All together! Surprise 'em! Two o'clock!"

At this the heightened color left my prisoner's face, and she turned pale. I would not now let her go on any account. It must have been five minutes before more came. Then it was:

"Goodby, sweetheart! Goodby! Goodby!"

There was a long wait after this, and I was beginning to fear there would be no more when I received another installment, still in the masculine:

Releasing my prisoner, I left her with a derisive "Goodby, Clara!" and, directing that a guard be immediately thrown around the house that there might be no communication from it with the enemy, I rode at once to the corps commander.

"General," I said, "I have just passed through an experience which I interpret as follows: I have been entertained by a southern girl who purposely gave me false information that the enemy in our front would again retreat. There I learned, doubtless from a parrot in an adjoining room, which had been used either for a council of war or from which orders were issued, that we will be attacked before daylight in the morning; though what morning I can't inform you. Tomorrow seems most likely."

"Thanks, colonel," replied the general. "We'll take the precaution to be under arms every morning."

It was half past 2 the very next morning that an attack was made on our right, re-enforced by artillery, followed by infantry, all along the line. But as soon as the enemy saw that we were under arms and ready for them they ceased firing and gradually withdrew. We followed and gained a substantial advantage.

What interested me after the fight was to learn the name of the Confederate general who attempted to turn our right. This I had no difficulty in doing from prisoners captured on the field. From them I learned that the general was one of the youngest and most attractive in the Confederate service, that he commanded a division in a corps commanded by his uncle and that his first name was Robert.

Ten years after the war ended, having occasion to visit Virginia, I sought out the house in which the episode had occurred. Miss Bates had married General "Bob." I wrote a note asking permission to call and was entertained hospitably by the couple.

Foiled.

Fly—Confound it! I wanted to commit suicide, and this fool saved me!

Egg-zactly.

"That must have been a pretty poor variety show you were with," remarked the stranded tragedian. "I understand at one town they even threw rocks at you as you appeared on the stage."

"Yes," replied the comedian; "in their determination to show their disapproval they left no turn unstoned."—Catholic Standard.

Well, up to now people with these chest and throat troubles have swallowed cough mixtures, sickly syrups and the like, into their stomachs. Sore lungs and throat get no good by dosing the stomach. Pepe work differently.

Pepe are tablets made up of Pine extracts and medicinal essences, which when put into the mouth turn into healing vapors. GUN'S SHORT LIFE

Big Guns Soon Demolished by Terrific Strain

Britain's modern naval guns, in spite of all the Germans have said against them, are unsurpassed for accuracy, power, and life. Naturally, it is not at present permissible to state expert opinion as to the number of shots that they can fire without injury, but we may rest assured that they are as good as anything that Krupps can produce.

The best German naval gun is their eleven inch, which, in range and power, is almost the equal of Britain's fifty calibre twelve inch.

From this gun one hundred and eighty-four shots have been fired without any falling off in accuracy. General Rohne, in a report on these experiments, concluded that the gun was capable of firing two hundred and eighty shots without loss of accuracy.

The bigger the gun, and the heavier the charge, so much the shorter is its life. The famous seventeen-inch German howitzers, known as "Fat Berthas," are worn out before they have fired a hundred shells.

But as each separate shot costs $2,000, the howitzer discharges a considerable fortune in the course of its short life.

The chief reason why the modern gun lasts so short a time is that modern explosives are so enormously more powerful than the old black powder. Cordite, when fired, turns into gas instantly, gas at terrific pressure and of tremendous heat. Black powder burns more slowly and with far less heat.

The heat of exploding cordite eventually melts the steel and enlarges the bore of the chamber. Cracks appear at the junction of the chamber with the bore. There is a certain scoring of the whole of the bore caused by the enormous speed with which the shell—twisted as it goes by the rifling—rushes through the bore. Another thing that happens, though the cause is rather obscure, is the enlargement of the muzzle.

How different from the gun of earlier days. At Mafeking, during the Boer war, the defenders raked up an old sixteen-pounder naval gun which was bought from a native chief for twenty-two yoke of oxen.

"Skipping Sally," as they called her, was nearly a century old, a muzzle-loading smooth bore of the type that Nelson's ships used at the battle of Trafalgar.

In spite of her age she threw a ten-pound ball to a distance of rather more than two miles, with a charge of three pounds of powder.

The life of the old fashioned smooth bore had no particular term. Such a gun would fire thousands of rounds. All that happened was that the powder chamber became gradually enlarged.

8 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Camperon, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise this Ointment enough."

Buying Army Commissions.

Four-and-forty years ago the old established custom of army purchase was abolished in the British army.

It had been instituted by James II.; his successor tried to stop the traffic, but the Law Courts declared it to be legal, and enforced the payment of £600 by a lieutenant to his predecessor. Later on a fixed sum of £400 for an ensigncy and £3,500 for a colonelcy was demanded.

But in 1871 the system fell with a crash, a Royal warrant declaring: "On and after the 1st day of November in this present year all regulations made by Us or any of Our Royal predecessors, or any officers acting under Our authority, regulating or fixing the prices at which any Commissions in Our Forces may be purchased, sold, or exchanged, or in any way authorising the purchase or sale or exchange for money of any such commissions, shall be cancelled or determined."

Gunpowder as Medicine.

The use of gunpowder as a medicine was very widely advocated in the eighteenth century, and still by many is held to be a specific against rheumatism and ague. In the Compleat Housewife or Accomplished Gentlewoman's Companion, a domestic pharmacopoeia published in 1742 appears the following remedy for rheumatism: "Let the party take of the finest glazed gunpowder as much as a large thimble may hold; wet it in a spoon with milk from the cow and drink a good half pint of warm milk after it; be covered warm in bed and sweat; give it fasting about 7 in the morning and take this nine or ten mornings together."

Fowl's 32 Days' Burial.

After thirty-two days' burial under a quantity of vetches in a barn, a hen has been found alive, says Mr. H. M. Olden, of Gambledown Farm, Romsey, Hants. The fowl was accidentally buried on August 16th and discovered when the vetches were threshed on September 17th.

KING ALBERT'S THANKS

Canadian Author Receives Letter of Thanks From Belgian King

Signal recognition has come to Dr. Thomas O'Hagan of Paisley, Ontario, in the form of a letter from the secretary of the King of Belgium, expressing appreciation of some verses written by him entitled, "I Take Off My Hat to Albert." The verses were originally read at a meeting of the Women's Press Club in Toronto, and a member suggested that an illuminated and engraved copy be sent to Belgium's heroic King. This was done through the medium of the Belgian Consul-General at Ottawa. The verses and the acknowledgment follow:

I Take Off My Hat to Albert

Albert, King of Belgium, is the hero of the hour;
He's the greatest King in Europe, he's a royal arch and tower;
He is bigger in the trenches than the Kaiser on his throne,
And the whole world loves him for the sorrows he has known;
So I take off my hat to Albert!

Defiance was his answer to the Teuton at his gate,
Then he buckled on his armor and pledged his soul to fate;
He stood between his people and the biggest Hasen gun,
For he feared not shot nor shrapnel as his little army won:
So I take off my hat to Albert!

King of Belgium, Duke of Brabant, Count of Flanders, all in one;
Little Kingdom of the Belgae star'd with honor in the sun.
You have won a place in history, of your deeds the world will sing,
But the glory of your nation is your dust-stained, fearless King:
So I take off my hat to Albert!

Here is the translation from King Albert's acknowledgment, which was in French:

"Office of the Secretary to the King and Queen of Belgium.

La Panne

"Sir: The touchingly delicate words you have found to express to the King your friendly feelings have very much moved his Majesty. The Sovereign whose attention has been drawn by the beautiful illumination adorning the verses composed in his honor, commands me to thank you sincerely and to say that he will be glad to keep this valuable souvenir.

"I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

"J. INGENBLEEK,
"The Secretary."

Measuring By Rifle's Bore

One of the important things that every soldier has to learn, and particularly soldiers who intend to be scouts, is the correct judging of distances. An ingenious way by which distances can be told with a great deal of accuracy is this: If the bolt is taken out of the ordinary rifle the barrel can be used as a kind of telescope, without magnifying, of course, and the apparent size of objects in the field of view enables the soldier to say how far off they are. If, for example, a soldier on foot can just be seen through the barrel, then he is 300 yards away. At a range of 600 yards a soldier only covers about one-half of the diameter of the barrel, while at 900 yards he covers just a third.

A French Custom.

In France children place their shoes before the mantlepiece, in anticipation of a visit from Father Christmas.

What He Saw.

Ah, do tell me something about the play last night. They say that climax at the close of the third act was simply grand," she said.

"Yes, I am inclined to think it was very good," he replied, without any marked degree of enthusiasm.

"Can't you describe it to me?" she continued, beaming radiantly.

"Why," explained he, "the heroine came stealthily on the stage and knelt, dagger in hand, behind a clump of blue ribbons. The hero emerged from a large bunch of lilacs, and as soon as she perceived him she fell upon and stabbed him twice, and sank, half-conscious, into a very handsome aigrette. This may sound a trifle queer, but the lady in front of me came in late for the performance and became so intensely interested that she forgot to remove her hat, and that's how it looked to me."

Doctor Said Only Hope Was In An Operation

Was Skeptical When He Began the Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment—Relief Came Quickly

Here is a plain, honest statement of facts. Between the lines of this letter you can read the gratitude which its writer feels. One does not suffer from annoying, distressing piles for ten years without appreciating a cure when it is obtained.

Almost every mail brings the report of someone who has been cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment. Such statements are never used without the permission of the writer, and until we are satisfied that the cure is genuine and the writer a person of responsibility.

You may believe in operations for piles, and think there is no other cure. Write to Mr. Ingles, enclosing stamp, and he will gladly verify his statement. He will tell you that the pain, the expense, the risk of an operation are quite unnecessary. That relief and cure come with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Ernest W. Ingles, Penticton, B.C., writes: "I suffered from piles for ten years, and though I tried all kinds of ointments and injections I really had no permanent relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. When I began this treatment I had absolutely no faith in it, for I had been examined by a well-known physician in Vancouver, and he said that an operation was the only thing that would benefit me. It was surprising the relief I obtained from the very first box, and now, after using four boxes, I am practically cured. My case was so exceptionally bad that I received no relief day or night, and for this reason the results are wonderful."

You can obtain Dr. Chase's Ointment from any dealer at 60 cents a box. If you do not want to risk this much send a two-cent stamp to pay postage, and mention this paper, and we shall send you a sample box free. We are so certain that any sufferer from piles will obtain relief by using this ointment that we do not hesitate to make you this offer. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Civic Supervision of Relief of Blocked Sewer Connections

Board of Works Outlines a Proposal by Which Future Work of This Nature Shall Be Done by Employees of That Department and Probably Financial Guarantee to Cover the Cost.

A NUMBER OF CASES

Several petitions concerning the relief of blocked sewer connections proved the last straw to the Board of Works last night, and it was decided to formulate a plan for the future handling of business of this kind so as to fully protect the interests of the city.

Mr W H. Moore, representing Mr Mark Spenceley, wrote that the latter had paid $9.80 for repairs to a sewer connection to his property at 573 Downie Street. The trench was dug up on the premises, but the blockade was located beyond the street line. According to the city's present plan of dealing with these claims it is liable for the cost when the trouble is found to be under the street. Otherwise, the property holder pays.

Mayor Butler moved, seconded by Ald. Duffus, that City Engineer Parsons bring in a report as to the cause and its location of this particular blockade.

Mr. J. E. Emmerson, 207 Park Street, wrote that on three occasions he had to have his sewer connection flushed at a cost of $15.55. He believed that the trouble was partly due to roots blocking the sewer, and partly due to two angles in the connection. It was decided to obtain a report on the conditions referred to in this communication.

Mr. J. H. Heal, 261 Charlotte Street, wrote that following rainstorms water gathered for a time in the cellars of his four houses on St. Joseph Street. He believed that this was due to a change made in the drain crossing Charlotte Street.

Mr. Parsons stated that previous to the laying of the pavement on Charlotte Street the city had taken up the old wooden Edison drain that crossed the street at St. Joseph Street. It was replaced by a 33 inch concrete pipe. When it was laid across the south half of Charlotte Street, it was discovered that a sewer intersected the drain, and apparently Mr. Heal fancied that an elbow had been formed over it. What was done, the drain across the north half of the street was laid on a higher level above the sewer and formed an easy and direct drainage into the other half. Mr. Parsons stated that it had been recently examined, and it was found to be working satisfactorily. He could not offer any reason for the complaint made by Mr. Heal.

Mayor Butler remarked that the lot had always been low-lying, and Mr Parsons added that it was below the level of the sidewalk. The water did not remain in the cellars, but quickly drained off, and appeared only after storms.

On the motion of Ald. Duffus, seconded by Ald Langford, Mr. Parsons was instructed to investigate the locality after the next storm and to make any other investigations in order that the cause of the trouble might be located.

Regarding the examinations of connections causing trouble, Ald. Green remarked that it was about time some definite plan was prepared to proceed with future cases.

Ald. Edgar suggested that the rate payer should be required to first give some guarantee that he would pay the cost of work if the connections were blocked on private property.

Mr. Parsons enlarged this to the requiring of a deposit, to cover the cost, as is done when connections are put in.

The City Engineer was asked to outline a form to be used in all cases. The general idea is that the work of digging up connection trenches should be performed by city workmen and under the supervision of the engineer department, and that rate payers will be required to give a guarantee of some kind to pay the whole of part of the cost when the difficulty is found to exist on the property of the complainant.

Mayor Butler remarked that sewers are being blocked by the careless throwing into them of old rags bottles, etc., which will undoubtedly lead to trouble.

It will be understood that this is only a tentative plan which remains to be worked out and which springs from the number of petitions for compensation to cover work done by citizens without the full knowledge of the Council or the Board of Works department. In short, it will likely mean that amendments will likely be made to the present by-law to cover the points which have recently arisen.

Hairs Quickly Vanish After This Treatment

(Helps to Beauty.)

Science has aided in simplifying the banishing of hairy growths from the face, and according to a beauty specialist the most effective treatment yet devised consists of applying a delatone paste to the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes. The paste is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. When this paste is removed and the skin washed every trace of hair has vanished. Be sure to get real delatone.

Havelock Hunters Were Successful

Each Party Secured Their Quota of Deer—New Open Air Skating Rink.

HAVELOCK, Nov. 26.—Misses Olive Rose and Kathleen McNicholl were in Peterborough on Wednesday last.

Havelock's quota of deer hunters had splendid luck this year, every one of them bringing home his allowance. Messrs. Alex. Matheson, Geo. Shields, Stan. Barow and Art Matheson were hunting at Kidd's, near Apsley and in the east vicinity were Messrs. S. T. Welson, Wm. Copp and Thos. Wood. Messrs. W. Hart and M. White were hunting at Sandy Lake and Messrs. P. Haig and H. Wing journeyed to Carroll's settlement.

Miss Laura Bohan of Trenton, is the guest of Miss A. Bennington.

Mrs. Spurr of Madoc was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. C. A. Ghent last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Althouse returned to their home in Trenton after spending the past two weeks with friends in town.

Pte. Chas. Taylor of Peterborough, spent Sunday at his home here.

Mr. Ross Covert spent Tuesday last in Peterborough.

Miss Eva Lynch of town, was the pianist at a dance in Tweed last night given by the young ladies of that town in honour of Miss Edith Yorke.

Miss Nellie Tendeau of Tweed, is visiting friends in town.

Mr. F. Haig, Jr., of Smith Falls, spent Sunday at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Armstrong and Master Earl Lambert of Hastings, spent Sunday at the Armstrong House.

Mr. A. D. Dimiston is around again this week after being confined to the house last week from an attack of appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Joyce and Mr. Russel Joyce left last week for Stirling, where they will reside in the future, and where Mr. Joyce has purchased a boot and shoe business.

The young ladies of Havelock are holding a dance in the town hall on Wednesday night of next week, 30th inst., the proceeds of which are to be devoted to purchasing tobacco for Havelock soldiers. Mr. Asa Huycke of Peterborough will be the pianist.

This winter Havelock will have a new open air rink opposite the Methodist church. Mr. L. Wyrmark, the proprietor, is now busily engaged in preparing the ground for the ice and has also constructed fences and waiting rooms.

Mr. Lamb of Peterborough, spent Thursday last in town.

Mrs. Alex. Innis of Toronto, spent a few days in town last week.

Mr. Firman Haig of Misfalls, is at his home here.

KEPT ALIVE BY PULMOTOR

Normal Breathing Not Yet Restored to Man Overcome by Gas Fumes a Week Ago.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Unconscious since last Friday from gas poisoning, Harry Rosenfeld, of No. 530 Boulevard Rockaway Beach, a shoe merchant, has since been kept alive in the Rockaway Beach Hospital by artificial respiration. Physicians there say his case is the strangest that ever has come under their observation.

Mr. Rosenfeld, who was accustomed to sleep in a room in the rear of the store, is believed to have inhaled gas for several hours. A customer who found his store locked in mid-afternoon brought it to the attention of the police. The latter on breaking in the door found Mr. Rosenfeld unconscious, gas escaping from a heater, the flame of which apparently had blown out.

A pulmotor was used to restore respiration, but only partly succeeded. Since the first few hours the attending physicians have used a lungometor, similar in action to a pulmotor except that air instead of oxygen is forced into the lungs.

Dr. G. S. Schenck of Far Rockaway, and Dr. Leon Loutia, of Brooklyn, who were called by the hospital physicians, have feared to suspend the artificial respiration, and thus far their efforts have failed to restore normal breathing.

Jones—Dear me! You say you often lay down the law to your wife. How do you go about it?

Bones—Why all you need is firmness! I usually go into my study, lock the door and do it over the transom—all you need is firmness in the door.—Puck.

INTERNED BOATS DAMAGED.

Essential Parts Removed and Hidden But Found Later.

Milan, Nov. 26.—A dispatch to the Secolo from Syracuse, says the Italian government has learned that the machinery of interned German and Austrian steamships which it has requisitioned, has been tampered with. Essential parts were removed and hidden, but most of them were found after careful search. In one instance the machinery was concealed in a secret compartment constructed for the purpose.

It has been decided to take apart the machinery of these steamships before the vessels are used, to guard against the possibility that dynamite has been concealed in it. It is said that eleven tons of dynamite disappeared from the steamship Ernest Mauretin. According to this report the captain asserts the dynamite was thrown overboard.

GERMAN DESERTER IN N. Y.

Stowaway On a Dutch Ship — Tired of the War.

New York, Nov. 26. Heinz Schultz, late private in the German army, reached New York, a deserter and a stowaway aboard the Dutch steamship Noorderdyk. He wore a uniform which bore the earth stains of the trenches, and he had grown weary of war and asked the customs men please to let him enter into the United States so that he would have to fight no more.

The customs inspectors passed him on to the immigration authorities and they took him to Ellis Island, where he will be held while his case is decided. If it is denied admission he probably will be held here indefinitely, as to deport him would result in his capture by the British.

Schultz deserted, he said, after his father and brother had both been killed. He made his way undetected through Holland and Rotterdam, concealed himself aboard the vessel from Dutch inspectors and the British who held the steamer three days in the Downs. Forty-eight hours later Schultz crawled out from his hiding place and asked for food and water.

ANOTHER GERMAN CRUISER AT BOTTOM

THE ITALIANS MAKE FURTHER ADVANCE

ALLIES PREPARING NOW FOR AN INVASION OF BULGARIA

More French and British Troops Have Landed at Salonika ---Will Try to Cut the German Communication With Constantinople By Striking Through Bulgaria--Will Relieve the Serbians by Compelling the Bulgars to Retire to the Defence of Their Own Country.

ITALIANS ARE MAKING FRESH PROGRESS

PARIS, Nov. 26.—The further landing of French and British troops is reported at Salonika to-day as a sequel to the settlement of the controversy between the Allies and the Athens Government concerning the Entente Powers' campaign in the Balkans. Belief is general here that the Allies will not undertake an extensive sweep through Serbia.

German communications with Constantinople can be cut at Sofia as effectively as at any point in Serbia, and the campaign will have the additional advantage of striking at Bulgaria's vitals.

A Russian movement across Roumania can also be conducted as well against Sofia as into Serbia.

Army officers point out that an Allied invasion of Bulgaria will compel the immediate recall of the Bulgar forces in Serbia, compel an advance of the Germans into the same territory in defence of the line to Constantinople, and give the Serbs an opportunity to break the invaders of their own country in flank.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—Heavy snow has fallen in the vicinities of La Fecht and La Thur, in the Vosges. The official war communique states to-day there has been no change in the position on the Franco-German front.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—A sharp watch is being kept on the Russians and Roumanians. Newspapers openly discuss the chances that Roumania will give the Czar's troops right-of-way across her territory to the Serbian and Bulgarian frontier.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26.—The German cruiser Frauenlob was sunk in the Baltic at the same time as the Undine, recently sent to the bottom by a British submarine, it was semi-officially stated to-day. The Frauenlob, like the Undine, was a protected cruiser of 2,672 tons, and carried ten 4.1-inch guns and had a full complement of 275 men.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—A French credit of one and a half billion dollars for the first quarter of 1916 was urged by Finance Minister Ribot in the Chamber of Deputies to-day. "The French financial situation," he told the Chamber, "is not at all disquieting. I regard the future with absolute confidence."

Subscriptions continue to pour in to-day to the "loan of victory," as Minister Ribot calls the new five per cent. bond issue. The rush is country-wide. The total has reached five billion dollars.

Nothing like it has been achieved in any of the other countries.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—"Neutrals have failed, in my opinion, to seize a tremendous God-given opportunity to safeguard international law civilization and humanity," said Sir Edward Carson to-day in discussing the war before the American luncheon. Carson, who recently resigned as Attorney-General because he didn't consider the Government's war policy vigorous enough, did not specially name the United States. "All great luminous notes sent by neutral governments were perfectly sound in law and probably solved the consciousness of their own citizens," continued Carson. "I am afraid they have not been based on broad conception of the underlying issues of the present struggle. Neutrals ought to remember that if this war is allowed to end without triumph of the principles so dear to all free peoples, the very best that can be hoped will be an era of armed peace and of colossal armaments greater and more costly than ever." Though the ex-Attorney-General refrained from naming America in his criticism of the neutrals' attitude, in closing he did acknowledge a debt of gratitude owed by the Allies to the United States for such help as they have received from her, though he admitted that they had looked for more active support.

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—Henceforth all British subjects, without exception, must secure passports before entering England, Scotland, or Ireland. A despatch conveying this important information was received by the Governor-General from Bonar Law, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

BELIEVE ROUMANIA WILL YIELD.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Even if Roumania should not join the Allies, it is believed here to-day that the Czar's concentration of his force, said to be 250,000 strong, at Ismail and Reni, on the Russian side of the Danube, had disposed of any possibility that the Bucharest Government will declare for the Central Powers. It has been known that the Roumanians feared any move on their part which seemed to favour the Entente group would be followed by such an invasion of their country as Belgium and Serbia have experienced.

Strong pressure is being put on King Ferdinand's Government to authorize the Russian's passage across its territory to the Bulgarian and Serbian frontiers.

The Czar's reported pledge to the Serb Premier to have his soldiers in Bulgaria in a week is taken as meaning that he has good reason for believing Roumania will yield.

KITCHENER IN ROME.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—A News Agency despatch says Lord Kitchener, British Secretary of War, is in Rome, and has arranged for conferences with the Government and King Victor Emmanuel immediately.

SELF-SACRIFICING PETERBORO' WOMEN FOREGO ALLOWANCE

Voluntarily Relinquish Their Claim For An Allowance From Patriotic Fund in Order That Others Might Be Helped

TWO NOTEWORTHY CASES

Reference has been made in the local papers to the fact that a lady at Bethany, the dependent relative of a Canadian soldier, had voluntarily relinquished her claim for an allowance from the Patriotic Fund. Every credit is due this lady, and it is to her honour that she has asked that the sum be apportioned to some other possibly more in need.

It is quite possible that in this broad land we have very many just such women who are self-sacrificing in aid of the cause and the men at the front. Peterborough can refer to two similar instances, now that the ice has been broken.

Mrs. Harry Evans, of 582 Aylmer street, came to the Patriotic Office and stated that she had decided to undertake some work, which not having children to care for she could very well do. She asked that as she was free to earn a fair sum by her exertions that she might well forego her allowance and expressed the hope that it would give to somebody else's comfort and help.

Mrs. Mary Baxter, of 586 Stewart street, is another commendable example. The widowed mother of a son now on the firing line, she came and asked that her allowance be discontinued, saying that with the separation allowance and part of her son's pay she could make out fairly well, and that the amount would then be available for some one else.

This action on the part of these ladies was appreciated, as it should be. Mrs. Baxter was told that if she cared to make use of the allowance, which was not a large one, for a month or two, it was at her disposal, and that she would then be free to do what she expressed herself as longing to do, make a small subscription to the Red Cross or other worthy funds now before the public, and she engaged to so spend every cent of the money. That motherly promise will be kept

Six Months in the County Gaol

Local Bastile Again Secures the Services of Harry Waters Whose Ability as Chef is Undisputed

Harry Water, chef par excellence at the County Gaol, has resumed his duties. For a week or ten days Harry has been holidaying around Peterborough, his term of office having expired at the local bastile. This morning he appeared in Police Court on a charge of vagrancy, and at his own request was returned to his first love for a period of six months. This will ensure the inmates of the stonepile a good bowl of soup for Christmas, and whatever extras the officials will provide. Harry Waters is not only rated as a first-class chef, but is noted for his vocal ability. This he exercises on all and sundry occasions, and the effect is striking to say the least. For several years past, Harry has had exclusive charge of the soup foundry. It would be as easy to dispense with Santa Claus as to celebrate Christmas at the County Gaol without Harry Waters.

A Wages Claim.

Two women contested for honours in a wages claim this morning. Each of them went into the witness box and related a long drawn out story of long and patient suffering in which the other woman was to blame. After wasting the time of the Court for nearly an hour the end was reached and the case discharged.

93rd BATTALION'S GOOD IMPRESSION ON VISITING OFFICER

Capt. W. E. Swaine of the Headquarters Staff Pleased With the Work of Non-coms. and Men—Machine Gun Section of the Battalion to Be Organized Next Week—The 93rd Photographed for the Christmas Examiner—To-day's Military News.

Capt. W. E. Swaine, instructor of musketry attached to the headquarters staff of the 3rd Division, paid an official visit to the 93rd Battalion this morning for the purpose of arranging a course of musketry instruction for the Peterborough battalion. It is altogether likely that a sergeant instructor will be sent here to look after that important end of the training. While here Capt. Swaine took advantage of the opportunity to watch the work of the non-commissioned officers of the 93rd. Qualified men to act as instructors are greatly in demand and it was for the purpose of discovering what material is available here that Capt. Swaine had Company Sergt.-Majors Hartshorn and Calladine and Company Quartermaster-Sergt. Williams carry on platoon drill. The visiting officer was much impressed with the work of these non-coms. and also with the good showing of the different platoons, expressing himself afterwards as being greatly pleased with the progress that is being made

The machine gun section of the 93rd Battalion will be organized early next week. Lieut. Crisp, the machine gun officer, will report for duty to-morrow night, and the names of the non-coms. and men who wish to join the machine gun section have been taken.

Bandmaster Hughes continues to keep the 93rd well supplied with marching songs. Wednesday, "Keep the Home Fires Burning" was introduced and to-day another new one was heard. The words of the chorus are as follows

Farewell, Isabelle, Isabelle
Don't let it grieve you
I've got to go
Farewel Isabelle, Isabelle
I've got to leave you to face the foe
You know very well, Isabelle,
As the battle I go through
As the battle I go through,
I shall do my best when I'm in it to win it
As I won you

Free Trousers For Men

Men should profit by the announcement of the Scotland Woolen Mills Company's offer of a free pair of trousers on Saturday, which appears in this evening's Examiner. An extra pair of trousers, free with every $18 suit, means a good deal these days, especially as the trousers alone, it seems, would cost, according to the advertisement, $6.00 anywhere else. You may have the trousers made from the same material as the suit, or choose some other pattern. The fit and finish are guaranteed as being the same as you will find in a Thirty Dollar Suit, and you pay but Eighteen Dollars for the whole outfit.

Read the three-column advertisement over again and note the substantial claims it makes. You may have a talk with the manager, Mr. Hourigan this evening at the store, 191 Hunter Street, as he promises to be on deck after the store closes to make any personal explanations that men may require.

There has been some discussion whether pants are singular or plural. Mr. Hourigan says that when men wear pants it is plural, and when they don't it is singular. He doesn't intend that anybody shall be singular this winter if he can help it.

PRIVATE FALLON AND GUNNER McGILL HOME FROM FRONT

PTE. GEO. BUTCHER WAS NOT WOUNDED AS WAS REPORTED

Letter Received From Him Under Date of November Seventh States That He Was Quite Well at Time of Writing

NOW IN BELGIUM

The report that Pte. George Butcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Butcher, 301 Burnham Street, Ashburnham, was seriously wounded has proved to be untrue. A letter received from Pte. Butcher by his mother yesterday relieves anxiety in regard to the rumour. The letter was written on 7th November, at which date George was quite well. A troublesome boil on his arm, coupled with the facts that he had to report to the dressing station each day to have it attended to, undoubtedly gave rise to the story, which was brought to England by returning soldiers, and Peterborough boys there communicated the news to friends here.

Pte. Butcher writes interestingly of his life at the Front and in part says:

"You will sure think something has happened before this that I haven't written, but it is just that I have been too busy. I wanted to write you a week ago, but thought I would wait and see if your letter came. I meant to write Saturday, but something turned up and made it impossible. It is hard to write in those little tents at night, but felt sure I would get a chance on Sunday. Sunday a.m. early orders came to pack up, as we were going to move to some other field, our own being too muddy for the boys to live in. We only went about half a mile, beside a bit of bush, and as soon as we got there we started digging a dugout, as we heard we will be here for the winter. Of course, we will take spells in the trenches, but this is where we expect to come after every turn.

A Describes a Dugout.

I will try and give you a description of our new home. We dug down about four feet and made it nine feet by twelve feet. It was sure some hard digging, as there was mostly clay, and as it rained nearly all the time we were at it, believe me it was no cinch. Then we got about 400 sandbags and filled them, and as we filled them a couple of the boys would lay them along the walls and pound them into shape. After that was all over we put a canvas roof over it, and then started to build our bunks. We have eight bunks, but at present there are only six of us. One of the extra bunks we use as a work bench for the machine gun and on the other we pile wood and coal and anything we want out of the way. Our door is in the centre of one end and right opposite we have a fireplace dug in the wall, have a draped board over it for a mantel-shelf. We sure are fixed up pretty good, if we only can hang on to it. We can hang our wet clothes up to dry now, and that will be a comfort.

Saw Pte. Quinn.

I was talking to Theodore Quinn again just a little over a week ago, and I was also talking to Harry Portsmouth for a few minutes. Harry is with the C.A.S.C. He was going along with a transport when he stopped at our camp.

We were at a big review before King George about two weeks ago, and I caught sight of Harry Portsmouth and Cyril Giroux then, but didn't get a chance to speak to them.

We are camped jut outside a little village here, and there is a city about three or four miles across the border in France. Norman Darling and I for a holiday. Of course, we had to walk, but that is nothing and the roads were not too bad, as we haven't had rain for two or three days. We sure have mud, but you just plough through it.

I have got over my boil all right. Don't worry about me, as I am feeling fine and am quite happy.

Both Were Wounded at Festubert and Returned Recently on the Metagama—Recital of Some of Their Experiences.

WERE WELL TREATED

Gunner Mordie McGill of the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, C.F.A., son of Mr. Benjamin McGill of the Customs House, and Private Gordon Fallon of the 14th Battalion, whose home is on Simcoe street, arrived in the city this morning from Kingston, where they spent a few days in a convalescent home shortly after returning from England on the Metagama. Both these Peterborough boys were injured at Festubert. Gunner McGill received an abdominal wound and Private Fallon was hit in the leg by a bullet. They have practically recovered from their injuries, but both are slightly lame, and Gunner McGill shows some traces of nervousness, a lingering effect of the tension under which the boys at the front worked.

Among his experiences Gunner McGill speaks particularly of the methods and dash of the Indian troops, especially the Gurkas and Sikhs, near whom the 4th Battery was located for some time. The bravery of these men needs no further reference, and their fearlessness of German bayonets which Gunner McGill said they grasp with one hand and with the other despatch the enemy. They have a rather gruesome custom of collecting the ears of the dead Germans and stringing them in the form of beads, as it were, which they keep as souvenirs of the work they have gone through.

The English Tommy, Gunner McGill observed, was in a class by himself for sheer dogedness in attack and on defence, but the Canadian soldiers have a quality of adaptability and also a readiness to take a chance that have given their work a special effectiveness. The Peterborough battery Gunner McGill said, had given a great account of themselves and most of them are in there yet. While he denied any credit to himself, Gunner stated that none of the boys flinched in the tightest corners. And throughout his experience at the front, and in the hospital at Bromley, Gunner McGill received the best of treatment. Really, he was as reticent as the other chaps who have returned. The other Peterborough men with whom he was associated, were all well when he saw them last, which was some time in June. He expected that Scott Buff Guerin would have been home, as he had been at Shorncliffe for some time.

Private Fallon's Part

Private Fallon enlisted with some other Peterborough boys at the beginning of the war in Lindsay that contingent. He was through the battle of Ypres, where for five days he had only the ration with which the men carried forward with them. After the battle the fields over which they fought represented all that could be conceived of a modern battle ground. Dead men, dead horses, parts of some

RESPECT THE FLAG.

A returned pastor from the United States, complaining in a letter to the press, of the shabby conditions of the flags the Canadians float, and contrasts them with the tidy conditions of those hung out in the United States, where the flag is "treated with more respect," than to leave it in the open to get windwhipt and weather beaten, as is done in Canada. It is very nice for the United States to show respect for its flag, but they would, one would think, show more respect for it of they made the Germans respect it a little, too.

FRIGHTFULNESS FAILS.

The German practice of terrorism and frightfulness is as much mistaken as other features of its mad policy. It has only strengthened the determination of first class powers to crush the power that so misuses its power. It has had effect only in the case of Greece, whose King, with Belgium's fate in view, says that whatever happens, Britain and France will not be severe with Greece, but in case of success Germany would crush Greece too, would be implacable, if that country took sides with the Allies. Greece need not be afraid of Germany winning. She has shot her bolt, and the Allies will win in the fight for the smaller nations. There is not the slightest danger that the Entente Allies will sheathe the sword till the victory is won, till the smaller nation are assured of their integrity by the defeat of the imperial bully who outrages the rights and aims to crush every legitimate, national ambition of the great, as well as the small powers of Europe and the world.

REGARD THE RETURNING.

A local contemporary points out that our soldiers are well treated and cared for during training. With this there is full agreement; but when the assertion is made that when they return from the front "their wants are carefully looked after by the government" it would be a pleasure to subscribe as fully to this statement. There is a great deal of complaint of the neglect of returned soldiers or failure to care for them as deserve the men who have through strenuous service at the front come home broken in limb or health. There may be a great deal of exaggeration in the complaints made, but it is to be feared there is a strong under-current of truth in them. We all of us are tempted to forget our friends when we no longer need them, and the experience of the past in regard to the care of discharged soldiers, is that there has been shown a great deal of national ingratitude. We know, and admit that we know, that the government has its hands full in providing for the aggressives side of war. We are doing that better because we are "getting our hand in" after sixteen months' apprenticeship to war making.

But our experience of the other side of the problem, looking after the returned soldier, is limited. We have to master this problem as we have pretty well mastered, or gained reasonable proficiency in, the work of preparing soldiers for the fighting line. It is perhaps inevitable that in the beginning the work of adequately caring for the returned soldier will be imperfectly done; that the new machinery that has to be devised will occasionally and frequently slip a cog or creak in operation.

There is need to give this matter as great attention as we give to the preparation and care of the soldier for fighting.

In a sentimental and humanitarian sense we should do better and more for the invalided or disabled soldier, when his fighting days are done. If we should be remiss in providing for the comfort of the soldier in training the neglect is not so serious. He is a picked man physically, robust, in full health; he has generally good clothing, good food, and good pay. He may by some carelessness or overnight miss some little comfort, but in the main he is in good condition and position. His food, and raiment, and shelter, are assured and adequate. He has a good income, and what may be deficient in the official supply, he may exceedingly supplement by purchase. He has an physical comfort and the prospect for its continuance in concerned, he needs have no misgivings; and if he has some hardships he is ready and fit to take, as he is hard and fit to give, a great many hard knocks. But the returned soldier returns a broken man, physically inadequate, and a proper and worthy subject of the greatest solicitude on the part of the government of the whole country.

His physical and moral relation to the country suggests, nay, demands, that his case should receive special attention. He should be a special charge upon the authorities from the moment he begins his journey home, and lands at home. He has done his bit, and if, in doing this, he returns in bits as far as physical integrity is concerned, he should be looked after with the most assiduous attention. He should not be allowed to suffer by neglect for one moment, till he regains strength, and he should be assured of a pension or allowance that will insure his comfort, in accordance with the demands in this direction of humanity. We are fighting this awful war in the interests of humanity; and we should not by accident or neglect, or through failure of adequate provision, commit, or permit, any inhumanity, towards the men who have given health and strength, and sacrificed comfort, in the fight on behalf of the highest human interests.

One doesn't like kindly to the cavalier way the Minister of war has of brushing aside the question and putting the blame on the returned soldier "who should have saved enough money" to keep him in comfort after he has given his whole capital of strength and fitness to the country. This is a hard, heartless, unhuman, bookkeeping view to take of the country's responsibility. If the bulk of a soldier's pay has been sent home to his family or dependents, who have to live when the breadwinner is gone, he is in not a very good position to subscribe to war loans, or live for and keep his family on the few dollars he might save out of his pay. We should not be narrow and parochial, nor hard and ungrateful in our national and individual attitude towards the returned soldier.

We must remember, too, that we are still calling for soldiers to send abroad, and our appeal will be strengthened by the attitude we assume towards the soldiers that are sent home.

WELL TO BE READY.

There may be no foundation in fact for the report that Germans in the United States are planning a raid on Ontario, but it would not hurt to have the border well guarded, especially around Niagara Falls, from which comes the energy to run the industries of the province. —London Advertiser.

TWO PENINSULAR WARS.

Among the various parallels which suggest themselves between the present and the Napoleonic war a striking resemblance may be traced in the Balkan venture of Germany to the attempt of Napoleon on Spain and Portugal.

The Corsican tried to incorporate the peninsula in his system in order to complete his continental blockade against England. Similarly the kaiser aches to strike a blow at Great Britain in Egypt and India by linking up his forces with those of the Turk. Napoleon aimed at his island enemy through the western peninsula. Kaisia William through the eastern peninsula of Mediterranean Europe.

At first Napoleon had all his own way. Sir John Moore's army was driven into the sea. Things were far worse for Great Britain than to-day in the Balkans. But Wellesley came and gradually, cautiously made himself secure at Torres Vedas, as the French and British forces will do in southern Macedonia towards the borders of Albania and Montenegro, linking up with the gallant Serbs before long, as the army of Wellesley was supported by the Portuguese and a remnant of Spanish patriots. Servia is clearly the Spain, Montenegro and Portugal of this peninsular war. The Germans and Bulgarians will be crushed out of Servia as surely as the French were forced foot by foot over the Pyrenees.

It has often been observed that the Spanish adventure undid Napoleon even more than his expedition into Russia. Armies of his best French troops melted away before Torres Vedras and elsewhere in Spain, while at least half of the Russian grand army was composed of Germans, Italians, Dutch and Poles. In Spain Wellington wrenched off a great claw of the vampire and bled it to exhaustion. Kitchener is gone to the Balkans, and under his direction there is practically a certainty that the German cannon will get a death wound in the heel. Held on the eastern and western fronts and choked on the seas, Germany will lose in the Balkans as Napoleon lost his game of world dominion in Spain.— London Advertiser.

HONEST CRITICISM CAN BE CONSTRUCTIVE AND PATRIOTIC

"Is The Toronto Star really anxious to promote the welfare of our returned soldiers, or is all this done in the interests of the Liberal party?" asks the Peterborough Review.

Let us put a question: Is there any person in this country, whatever his politics, who is not really anxious to promote the welfare of our returned soldiers?

There is somebody on the Review who evidently believes that political partizanship is the basis of every human motive. There are few persons incapable of observing and thinking who can, at a time like this, be so misled. Party differences, the disputes, squabbles, and jealousies of little leaders and local heelers, look miserably small in the presence of the issues that confront the people of Canada to-day. When normal times return so great a change will have come about in the affairs of the Dominion that both the political parties which existed before the war will be as it they had been blown up by high explosives. Old issues will be replaced by new ones, so new and so different that there is no telling what changes may occur in the party formations.

At present there is a Government in office handling unfamiliar problems in regard to which neither political party in Canada had any policy at all. The country is going tremendously into debt, with the full approval of the people, who, however, do not realize the extent of it and have no check on its method of the details of it. The Government in office ought to be less a party Government and more a national Administration than any the country ever had before, and its success will depend upon the extent to which it rises to its responsibilities in this respect, for the great body of the people are not thinking as partizans today but as Canadians.

Along with the question from the Peterborough Review we wish to place a paragraph from the Guelph Herald as follows:

"Critics of the Dominion Government excuse themselves by declaring that they are actuated solely by a desire to see that reforms are made ensuring the comfort of the soldiers and the care of those who return wounded. The question may well be asked these politically biassed critics whether their action will tend towards impelling men to enlist, or whether their criticisms are not seized upon as excuses for staying at home."

In answer to both these contemporaries we would ask them to consider the significance of the fact that it is they, not the Government, that resents the work The Star has been doing in seeking to ensure proper treatment of the returned soldiers. In showing how systems are working badly we have assured their improvement. We have assumed that it was the desire of the Government—as undoubtedly it always was and is—to do the best that could be done for returning soldiers. But the best was not being done. The Star, with its facilities for observing the effects of a system that was being poorly carried out, made the facts known, with the result that the Government is endeavouring to put a better system in operation. Had wrongs been allowed to multiply in all directions without protest or remedy, this would not have benefitted the Government, but quite the contrary.

Nor do these critics retard recruiting. They have the opposite effect, since their result in improved methods and guarantee the welfare of those who enlist. Scattered about this city were returned soldiers who had not been just'y used; they and their relatives and all who knew them had grievances. Publicity has brought out the fact that the Government had no intention that they should be used as they were used, and no knowledge that they had been so used, until public exposure had been made. These victims of neglect had written letters in vain to departmental officials; the press carried their grievances past all the outpost of clerks, past all pigeon holes, and laid them before the real heads of the Government, who wanted no such grievances to exist, and who electrified the entire public service with orders to that effect.

Newspapers that enter into a conspiracy of silence in regard to evils that ought to be and can be remedied do no service to their party, or the country, or anybody whatever. They are deserters from their duty.

NOT SATISFACTORY.

The Minister of Militia's reply to complaints about the treatment of returned soldiers is too indefinite and general to be very convincing. As we said the other day, there didn't seem to be much to the complaint from Toronto about the men being brought from Montreal in colonist cars since colonist cars could be made comfortable. But there are other complaints floating around, not all of which emanate from Toronto. Some of these must have reached the Minister of Militia. And he doesn't tell us what provision is being made for the wounded soldiers. He doesn't say whether the government is making provision to have them given preference in the matter of employment. A little definite information on the subject would be more welcome than Sir Sam's slighting remarks about his personal enemies in Toronto.— Ottawa Free Press.

A PATRIOTIC EXAMPLE.

A fine example of unselfish patriotism is shown by Mrs. Frances Hamilton, of Bethany, whose son, Sergeant Harold Hector Hamilton, is serving his country in France under Lieut.-Colonel Ralston, in the 4th Battery, 1st Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery. Since her son enlisted, Mrs. Hamilton has been in receipt of the regular grant through the Northumber and and Durham branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund. She has written to the treasurer of the fund returning $152.50, all she has received, and saying:

"I have not needed to use the money allowed to me by the Patriotic Fund. I can get along without it at present, so I am returning it, so that it may be applied for the relief of those who are in greater need. I think that the grant might be cancelled in future, as I will try and get along without it."

There is patriotism, pure and undefiled, sincere, free from ostentation. It is an inspiration to all who would like to do something for the cause, and it is a stern though unconscious rebuke to the grafters who have made exorbitant profits out of war contracts. —Toronto Star.

SOCIETY SHOULD NOT ALLOW IT.

There can be no doubt that girls work in local factories for 10, 12 and even 14 hours a day. They work on the piece system and are speeded up by machinery and the necessity to earn. They do receive $5 and $6 a week in many cases. Society should not allow such things to be. This community when informed will not permit hundreds of girls and women to endure such slavery.

An eight-hour day is all that any woman in a factory or shop should be called on to work. The piece system for women is inhuman and ruinous to womanhood and health. Five or six dollars a week is not a living wage for a single woman or girl who has to support herself. But it is on the question of hours that the community can best interfere.

Long hours tend to make workers plentiful, wages low and working conditions unseemly. If the hours were shortened, a two or three-shift system is necessary. More workers being needed, they become scarce, wages tend to rise and conditions to improve. Wages and conditions are much easier to regulate hours. The war-order business has forced the issue upon the attention of the people.—Toronto News.

POOR AND OLD.

Who is this they so closely guard,
Fast bound with galling chains?
Is it some desperado, dyed
With homicide's red stains,
Or felon who has set at naught
The country's righteous laws
That thus upon his guilty head
Stern retribution draws?
Perhaps a daring highwayman,
Or outlaw, fierce and bold.
Ah, no! a hopeless wretch whose crime
Is that he's poor and old.

And so they bind the fetters firm,
Though feet and hands may bleed,
With none to comfort, help or cheer,
Or for sweet pity plead.
To his frail, aged, weeping wife
A heart-wrung last farewell,
And then they bear him, starved and faint,
To the lone prison cell;
There wait to learn the bitter truth
That charity is cold,
And in this world the worst of crimes
Is being poor and old.

But iron bars, grim walls of stone,
Strong guards, are all in vain
The immortal spirit, plumed for flight
A captive, to detain.
No form stood by his dying bed,
Of friend or child or wife;
Alone with the dread enemy
Was waged the mortal strife.
But softly gentle angels came,
And bore to liberty and life,
The prisoner poor and old

To where no hunger-pain is felt,
Nor cold in the blast clime,
Where honest poverty is not
Imputed heinous crime;
But homely joys and constant love,
The lowliest equal own
And none receives in lieu of bread
A cold and cruel stone,
We pray Heaven save us from our foes
Of fiendish Teuton mould,
And still with greater need we say,
God help the poor and old!

Mrs. A. F. Calder.

Followed Instructions.

She was a little girl, and very polite. It was the first time she had been on a visit alone, and she had been carefully instructed how to behave.

"If they ask you to dine with them," papa had said, "you must say 'No, thank you; I have already dined."

It turned out just as papa had anticipated.

"Come along, Mildred," said her little friend's father. "You must have a bite with us."

"No, thank you," said the little girl with dignity; "I have already bitten."

LIGHT YOUR PIPE OR CIGAR, THEN READ THIS

Do You Ever Wonder How the Soldier in the Trenches Gets His Tobacco—Are You Going to Let Him Go Without?

2200 PACKAGES SENT

If your supply of tobacco or cigars is getting low all you have to do is to go to the corner or down town to replenish it.

Did you ever wonder how the soldier in the trenches gets his tobacco? There are no stores there and he must depend on his relatives or friends to keep him supplied. What of the man whose relatives can't afford to send him tobacco? His friends sometimes forget to even write to him.

Are You Going to Let Him Go Without Smokes?

If you are sending tobacco now come up to our meetings and investigate our organization, it will save you money and send more tobacco.

If you are not sending tobacco will you be one of 2,000 regular monthly contributors to the Citizens of Canada Tobacco Fund collected by the Overseas Club? Will you give 25 cents per month, approximately 1 cent per day? Your 25 cents will buy:

1-5 lb Canadian manufactured tobacco.

50 Canadian manufactured cigarettes.

1 box of matches.

Enclosed in this package is a post-card which the soldier uses to acknowledge receipt of tobacco and to thank you. These cards are addressed in Peterborough. Our first shipment of tobacco was sent on Oct. 18th, 1915, and it takes about two months for the cards to come back. We have sent 2,200 packages to date.

The weekly meeting will be held on Friday, Nov. 26th, at 8 p.m. in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. Come up and hear the reports, etc.

If you wish for any information, 'phone, write, or call on the secretaries.

RATES ON GIFTS TO SOLDIERS

Ordinary Postal Rates to France in Force

OFFICIAL NOTICE TO PUBLIC

OTTAWA, Ont., November 26.—A memorandum explaining why it is not possible to arrange for the sending of parcels to soldiers in France free, was issued by Hon. T. Chase Casgrain, Postmaster-General. It is as follows:

"The Department is in receipt of applications to have parcels addressed to soldiers in France sent free or at reduced rates of postage, there evidently being an impression that the department has control of these rates and could do as it wishes, but this is not so, as the question of postage is fixed by international agreement, so that it is not within the power of the Canadian post office department to undertake to carry the parcels free or at a reduced rate of postage.

"Under international law provision is made for the free transmission of parcels for prisoners of war but this privilege does not extend to parcels for troops engaged in active service nor is it within the power of the department to so extend it.

"The rate of postage required on parcels addressed to the troops depends upon the locality of the addressee. If the address is in England, the rate on parcels for England applies, which is twelve cents a pound, while if it is France the parcels are subject to the rates applicable to parcels for France, which are as follows:

1 lb., 32 cents; 4 lbs., 64 cents, 8 lbs., $1.02.

2 lbs., 40 cents; 5 lbs., 72 cents; 9 lbs., $1.10

7 lbs., 69 cents; 11 lbs., $1.26.

These are exactly the same charges which existed for years between Canada, Britain and France before the war, and are the result of an agreement or convention made between these countries and Canada, and as these countries have not agreed to lower their rates between England and France, Canada has to pay to them the same rates as before the war and must charge the same postage.

"In all cases parcels for the troops must be addressed care Army Post Office, London, England, but this does not in any way affect the rate of postage which depends entirely upon the location of the addressee."

Austrians Are Annihilated in Crossing Ice

PETROGRAD, Nov. 26.—Intensely cold weather is prevailing all along the front in the eastern theatre of war, and already the rivers have begun to freeze up.

Attempts of the Austrians to use the ice on the Styr River for fording purposes resulted in the annihilation of an entire battalion. While the troops of the battalion were crossing the stream the ice gave way and all were drowned.

At other points on the front, Russian artillery is breaking up the ice with shells in order to prevent the Germans and Austro-Hungarians from crossing.

Last night's official report tells of an attack by Russians on the enemy near the village of Semikovtze, on the Stripa. The Germans were driven to the river and those who escaped Russian bullets were drowned in an attempt to cross the river. Over 100 killed or wounded were found on the scene of the action.

On the Dvinsk front, the Germans are now upon the defensive, although strong counter-attacks have been launched north of Illoukst in an effort to recapture the ground lost to the Russians on Tuesday. Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army has been driven from important positions in front of Dvinsk in the past few days and the Germans have suffered severe losses.

Notwithstanding this, the Germans still are making desperate efforts to advance in the direction of the Dvina. They have built a new road for the transport of ammunition and heavy guns. Huge quantities of ammunition recently have been forwarded to the regions of Ikskul, Friedrichstadt and Jacobstadt.

The position of the Russian armies has been enormously strengthened, however, by an abundance of ammunition, the correspondent says. Gunners now show to infantrymen inscriptions written by workmen on ammunition boxes, which read in substance; "Don't spare shells. Plenty more are coming, comrades. We are working hard to keep you supplied. Cheer up."

Two Candidates For the Mayoralty

Ald. J. J. Duffus is Still Undecided —The Aldermanic Prospects

There is very little stirring in connection with the forthcoming municipal elections. So far to date only two men have announced their intention of contesting the vacancy that will be caused by the retirement of Mayor Butler. They are Ald. G. W. Green and Mr. J. J. Hartley.

Ald. J. J. Duffus may jump into the ring later on. Failing this, it is expected he will retire.

Ald. G. W. Green's entry into the mayoralty arena will leave a couple of vacancies in the West Ward. There are a number of likely aspirants for the position, also one or two perennials who crop up each year with unfailing regularity only to retire after Nomination Day. Other wards claim a few prospective candidates, among whom is ex-Ald. Duncan, who may contest the aldermanic vacancy in the South Ward.

Called On Ontario Government to Close All Bars

Clubs and Liquor Shops During the Period of the War, the License Not to Be Re-Issued Without Vote of People

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—At the annual meeting of the General Reform Association of Ontario held to-day in the Temple Building, N. W. Rowell called upon the Ontario Government to close all bars, clubs, and liquor shops during the period of the war the licenses not to be re-issued without the vote of the people. If the Government were not willing to do this, he then urged that the people be given an opportunity to vote on the question.

Canada's duty to the Empire was the chief topic discussed by the various speakers, and took the place of party questions usually dealt with at such meetings.

Mr. Rowell spoke strongly in favour of the calling of an Imperial conference in London, where the Colonies could learn more definitely of the best way they could assist in helping the Empire in this crucial time. He also lamented the fact that Canada was doing the least of all the free countries within the Empire.

Among the speakers, in addition to Mr. Rowell, were Hon. Geo. P. Graham and Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

FOOD PROBLEM CRITICAL SAYS COLOGNE JOURNAL

COLOGNE, via London, Nov. 25.—The Volks Zeitung in a sharp article urges the Reichstag, which meets next week, to call the government to account for its failure to deal adequately with the problem of supplying foodstuffs.

"To supply the German nation with provisions is at present the most important military question, and one which must be carried through before winter," the Volks Zeitung says.

"This doubtless will be recognized by the supreme army command, whose orders will find no opposition. We recommend the appointment of an economic dictator in military clothing."

The article closes with an attack on Herr von Stein, recently appointed Under Secretary of the Interior, on the ground that he has not dealt energetically enough with the food problem.

Do Not Care About Greece

German Diplomacy Loses and Critics Adopt Indifferent Attitude

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The attitude of Greece is being watched here with the tensest interest. She must decide soon, in favour of the allies or of the Central Powers.

Germany is prepared for either eventuality. A high official of the Foreign Office said to me to-day:

"Greece is balancing in the air. She must decide immediately which way she will turn. The German government awaits this decision with cool reserve, for it need hardly be emphasized that we are prepared for all military eventualities."

Maximilian Harden, editor, says: All depends on which side will have the bigger army available. If Kitchener succeeds in assembling a large force in Greece, that country will not attack the allies.

Major Moraht, military critic, says: Greece will try her utmost to wriggle out of the difficult position created by the Entente without going to war either way.

But Greece will disarm the Serbian troops crossing her border. If she should do this, the Central Powers could consider it a casus belli.

It is my belief that, had she so desired, Greece would have decided in favour of the Entente long ago.

Should Greece go with the Entente it could no longer save Serbia. Our armies and Bulgaria's would have to fight against the army around Saloniki, but the road to Constantinople would still be kept open.

Captain Persius, naval critic, says: In case of deciding against the allies, Greece would have to sacrifice her harbour cities, including Athens. For myself, I cannot judge whether the Greek government is prepared to make such sacrifices.

However, the allies troops now landed at Saloniki would be a valuable pawn in the hands of Greece should she declare war against the allies. These troops could be held as hostages.

Municipalities Are Being Sued

Actions Against Stratford and St. Mary's Allege Pollution of River

STRATFORD, Nov. 26.—Both Stratford and St. Mary's are defendants in actions to be tried here at the non-jury sittings of the high court, before Chief Justice Meredith. St. Mary's Milling Company seeks damages for discharge of sewage into a stream and an injunction to stop further pollution. John Murray, Downie Township, has for years had an action against Stratford for pollution of the lower Avon river by effluent from the city sewage disposal work. The trial has been repeatedly deferred as the city has spent many thousands of dollars improving the plant from time to time. The latest improvements ordered by the Provincial Board of Health and costing $35,000, have been completed.

TORONTO AVIATOR COVERS 300 MILES TOWARDS NEW YORK

Reaches Binghampton, N. Y. and Has to Descend Owing to Dizziness

TORONTO, November 26.—Aviator Victor Carlstrom, who left Toronto yesterday morning to fly to New York, got within 300 miles of the American metropolis. He was obliged to descend at Binghamton, N.Y., on account of dizziness. To-day he will continue on the last part of his journey.

A despatch from Binghamton last night stated that Carlstrom had alighted safely on the grounds of the Broome County Club near Hopper, seven miles from that city. Mr. Carlstrom left the Curtiss Aviation school at Long Branch at 9.46 a.m. on the 535 mile trip. There was a strong head wind but he was reported over St. Catharines at 10.45, and was sighted about noon at Rochester. After that no news was received from the aviator until he landed at Binghamton.

A despatch from Rochester at the noon hour stated that he had been sighted there, this puzzled the officials of the school, who figured that he must have got out of his way. According to the route marked out, he should have travelled about 100 miles south of Rochester, following the L. & W. tracks. It is presumed that he found his mistake and got back to the right route as Binghamton is on a straight line to New York. No word was received by the officers here from Carlstrom last night.

PARNELL STREET RESIDENTS OPPOSE REMOVAL OF TREES

At a meeting of the Board of Works last night with Alderman Green presiding, it was announced that the deputation to wait on the Provincial Board of Health to-day would be composed of Mayor Buller, City Clerk Armstrong, City Engineer Parsons, City Solicitor Gordon, and an alderman from each ward. They will present the plans for the sewage disposal plant and its location with a final hope that they will be unopposed.

David Henry wrote, objecting to the removal of three trees on the north side of Parnell street, near the corner of Park street. He stated that they were a considerable distance from his home and did not keep light from reaching it.

Ald. Edgar—He did not say anything about the light not reaching the street.

Ald. Green—No, he apparently considers it from the standpoint of his own property.

Investigation of the City Engineer's blue print of the street showed that these trees are only twelve feet apart and with the removal of these particular three, the remaining trees would be 24 feet apart, which more nearly approaches the standard distance between trees.

Mayor Buller stated that Mrs. Frank Christopher also objected to the city's proposal to remove trees from in front of her residence.

It was decided that Ald. Green and Mr. Parsons should see these Parnell street citizens and endeavour to come to terms with them.

The tree by-law states that citizens who object to the removal of trees may be recompensed for the planting and erection of such trees, but the decision in regard to their removal remains with the city. Failing mutual agreement as to compensation, tree owners would probably have to bring suit.

May Remove Tree.

Mrs. Singleton, 181 Stewart street, asked for permission to remove a tree which is heaving the cement walk in front of her property. She offered to pay for its removal and replant another tree in a better position. This request was granted on motion of Mayor Buller, seconded by Ald. Langford.

Will Erect Poles.

The Utilities Commission requested permission to erect five poles on Cedar street west, three on Hunter street between Bethune and Shuter streets, and five on Argyle street between George and the Nichol Hospital. City Engineer Parsons report recommending the granting of this request was adopted on motion of Ald. Edgar, seconded by Ald. Weir.

$400 BAIL FOR CHAS. BREWER

Peterborough Man Will Be Allowed Out on Certain Conditions

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—According to a decision at Osgoode Hall to-day, Chas. Brewer of Peterborough, charged with attempting to murder his wife, will be admitted to bail of $4,000, himself in four securities on conditions that a satisfactory medical certificate be forthcoming. He is said to be 64 years of age and suffering from hardening of the arteries.

Police Are Looking For Murderer

Superintendent of police Cantean, of Montreal, has written to the Chief of Police concerning one Alphonse Varin, alias Joe Racine, alias Raymond, who is wanted for murder. He is a cook, aged about 35 years, height 5 feet 6 inches, weight 140 lbs., dark complexion, chestnut hair turning gray, brown eyes. Clear scar back of left hand, near the wrist, vertical scar on centre of forehead near root of hair, two upper teeth centre to left are gold filled. The chief was asked to use every means to cause arrest and if arrested to hold and wire.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT BAGDAD

Bagdad has a population of about 150,000. The Province has 850,000. Formerly of great importance, its transit trade, though still considerable, has been reduced by the diversion of ancient trade routes to Persia. Imports are European cotton goods and India cotton goods, loaf-sugar, coffee, indigo, pepper and tobacco. Exports are wool, gum, galls, skins and hides, opium, carpets, and dates. The annual trade (1910) amounted to $17,551,875. River craft ply between Bagdad and Basra on the Shatel-Arab River, the port of trans-shipment to ocean steamers. The streets are narrow, crooked and dirty while the Tigris is used both as a sewer and as the source of the water supply. The buildings, of yellowish brick, are insignificant, except for the beauty of coloured tiles in the interiors. But the palm and date trees, closely planted in the considerable spaces between the houses and the numerous mosques give the city a picturesque appearance.

The old city was on the left bank of the river, where a tomb called by tradition, that of Zobeida, wife of Haroun-al-Raschid, is one of the few reminders of the city of the caliphs. The foreign consulates are said to be on the site of Haroun-al-Raschid's palace. In the vicinity several Mohammedan tombs of sacred repute attract large numbers of pilgrims. The brick walls of the city were partially destroyed about 1870 to make way for the construction of boulevards. The plan was never carried out, however, and fragments of the wall, together with three of the gateways are still standing. The climate is very trying in summer, and is subject to great extremes.

Bagdad was built out of the ruins of Ctesiphon by Al-Mansur in 763. It was enlarged and improved in the ninth century by Haroun-al-Raschid immortalized in the Arabian Nights.

New York city budget for 1916 will be about $214,000,000, or approximately $15,000,000 higher than that of 1915, according to a semi-official estimate made.

CARNEGIE 80 YEARS OLD.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Andrew Carnegie celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary yesterday in quiet fashion at his home here. A few friends asked for a birthday message. He said: "All goes well with me. The world grows better, and we are soon to see blessed peace restored, and a world court established, which, in the words of Burns, 'Man to man the world o'er shall brothers be for a' that.'"

BROOMS WILL BE DEARER

Brooms, necessities in every home, are going up in price, and it is expected that the increase in price will amount to from 25 to 50 per cent. The reasons for the advance in price are many, failure of the broom corn crop, the impossibility of procuring materials, and the increased export since the war.

Surface Drainage System Needed To Relieve Sewage Disposal Plant

When the sewage disposal plant shall have been completed the city will doubtless concentrate attention upon the diverting from the sewers the surface water which should be removed by a separate drainage system.

There are hundreds of houses in the city which have their eaves connected with the sewer for the purpose of easily disposing of rain water. And since the sewer empties into the river there is no objection to this practice. But when the sewage has to be pumped across the river to a disposal plant somewhere in Otonabee, it is self-evident that the demand on the pumps should be maintained at as low an average as possible. Hence surface water must be diverted from the sewer, for the reason that after heavy rains and in the spring the sewage pumps would be overwhelmed and would be called upon to perform what should be an unnecessary task. The disposal plant is not to be erected at the cost of many thousands of dollars simply to strain rain water, and Mayor Buller remarked at the Board of Works meeting last night that an additional problem will have to be faced in the construction of a system of surface drainage. Most of the city's streets are now directly drained into the river. The plans of the Engineering Department have not been made known, but there is not much likelihood that the city will lay a duplicate system of surface drainage to empty directly into the river. It may be, however, that eve troughs which are now connected with the sewer will have to be disconnected when the sewage pumps commence operations.

Allies Are Much Stronger in the Serbs' Positions

SALONIKI, Nov. 26.—The French troops have greatly improved their position on the extreme left of the allied front eastward from Krivolak and a considerable amount of ground has been gained during the last few days, including several important heights. Along the rest of the front calm is reported, except that at Strumnitza the usual artillery duel continues. Several Serbian officers have arrived here from north Serbia. They report conditions under which the Serbian army is fighting as improved a good deal of late.

Referring to the retreat of the main army, I am told it has been carried out with what must be regarded as a minimum of loss for such difficult operations. It must not be forgotten, too, that our allies have been stubbornly disputing the ground all the way, yet the losses are well under 5 per cent. of the total number of effectiveness.

The Bulgarian army under General Boyadjeff in the Leskovac region sustained what can only be termed a serious reverse. This goes a long way to improve further the outlook for the Serbs. The scene of the victory was midway between Vranja and Nish, and the danger to the Bulgars of Serb success in that particular district is obvious. It is reported that on account of this setback the enemy recalled some portions of his troops from before Monastir and that may have some effect on the Bulgarian campaign in Macedonia.

CITY HALL PARAGRAPHS

His Worship Mayor Buller and Ald. G. W. Green, chairman of the Board of Works, headed a civic deputation to Toronto this morning where they will confer with the Provincial Health authorities relative to a site for the sewerage disposal plant.

Ottawa's Population Less.

Ottawa's population, according to official figures issued by the Assessment Department to-day, has declined 1,632 in the past year. The figures for 1914 were 101,795; for 1915 they are 100,163. The decrease is attributed to enlistment.

HEAVY SUBSCRIPTION TO THE WAR LOAN

TORONTO, Nov. 25. — Interest in the Canadian War Loan continues at fever heat. At all the branches of the several banks and the various financial houses handling the issue large numbers of subscribers besieged the offices throughout the day. Amongst the tenders for the Loan the largest single subscription recorded is that of the Canada Life Assurance Company, which has tendered for $1,500,000 of the Loan.

Best 329 Brock Street, for 53 feet 6 inches.

Overcharged in the City.

Mr. C. Westlake claimed that he was overcharged on 199 Brock Street. Judgment: Mr. Westlake's assessment for 199 Brock Street, was reduced by 20 feet for a lane, and 20 feet charged to the city.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said that he was overcharged on 199 Brock Street. Judgment: Mr. Dumble's assessment was reduced by 5 feet and Mr. F. White's assessment increased by 5 feet.

The special assessment for the cost of the construction of paving on the following streets as amended was passed and confirmed, namely, Charlotte Street from west side of Water street to east side of George Street; Charlotte Street from west side of Bethune Street to west side of Park Street; Water Street from south side of Charlotte Street to north side of Brock Street; Simcoe Street from west side of Water Street to east side of George Street; Simcoe Street from west side of George Street to east side of Aylmer Street; Aylmer Street from north side of Charlotte Street to Brock Street; Aylmer Street from north side of Brock Street to north side of McDonnel Street; Brock Street from west side of Water Street to east side of George Street; and Brock Street from west side of George Street to west side of Aylmer Street.

"CABIRIA"

When the Itala Film Company of Turin, Italy, were casting Gabriele D'Annunzio's scenario masterpiece "Cabiria," they were balked for some time in finding the character of Maciste, [illegible]. According to the scenario, Maciste was to be a man of unusual size and strength and when no one could be found who suited d'Annunzio the directors tried to prevail on him to be content with a smaller man, but they were unsuccessful. D'Annunzio insisted upon a Goliath.

A short time later d'Annunzio, while strolling through the shipping districts, was attracted by a crowd of people who were evidently very much interested in the unloading of a ship. Approaching he saw the object of their interest, A huge man, veritably a small giant, was casting hogsheads about as though they were mere paving blocks. One look was sufficient to convince him that here was the object of their search; a man with the qualifications for the part of Maciste. He was immediately engaged, but the hardest task was still to come, for it required several months of coaching to teach him how to walk correctly and the necessity of gestures to make one's self understood in motion picture photography.

"Cabiria" will be exhibited for the first time in this city at "The Grand" for three days commencing Thursday, December 2.

The Roy Studio took some soldier photographs of the officers and men of the 93rd Battalion for the Christmas number of The Examiner this morning. Group pictures were taken of the officers, of the non-commissioned officers of Nos. 1, 2 and 3 platoons, together, and of Nos. 4, 5 and 6 platoons, the band and signallers.

At a recent concert given by B Company, 59th Battalion, Kingston, several Peterborough people appeared on the programme. The little three-year-old son of Sergt. Clayton sang three songs, which were highly appreciated. Capt. Park also contributed a song, both of them adding materially to the programme.

The 93rd Battalion will attend divine service in East City on Sunday, half going to St. Luke's and the other half to Mark Street Methodist.

To-day's orders announce the promotion to the rank of sergeant of Pte. John Playford, who is back in khaki after ten days at home.

Twenty men have been added to the ranks of the 93rd Battalion so far this week—that is, twenty have come on the strength. A number of new recruits who have passed the doctor have not yet reported for duty.

Preparations are practically completed for the entrance of the 93rd into barracks next week.

To the last issue of the "Canadian," an English publication which devotes considerable space to Canadian military news, [illegible] photograph of a number of Canadian Bank of Commerce men enjoying a banquet at Folkestone. Among them is noted prominently Pte. H. F. [illegible], of the 58th Battalion, reinforcements to the Winnipeg Grenadiers.

The arrival of Gunner Mordie McGill and Pte. Gordon Fallen this morning brings the total of Peterborough boys who have returned from the European firing line to their homes to thirteen. The list is as follows: Capt. Ackerman, Pte. Mesey, Pte. Stapson, Pte. Phipps, Pte. Wm. Lovell, 2nd Battalion, Sergt. Cooper, Corp. King, Gunner McGill 4th Battery, C.F.A., Corp. Playford, A.S.C., Corp. Payne, 1st Wiltshire Regiment, Lce.-Corp. Martin, 2nd Rifle Brigade, Trooper Percy Parrington, Strathcona Horse, and Pte. Gordon Fallen, 15th Battalion. Four others, Ptes. W. Mowry, 21st Battalion, and Ptes. Curtis, McKnight, and Levoir were invalided home from England.

WINTERFIELD FORCED OUT.

American Citizen Not Wanted In German High Finance.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—At the annual meeting of the Berlin Electricity Works, opposition was concentrated against the election to the board of directors of Hans Winterfield, one of the leading directors of the National Bank of Germany, on the ground that although he is a former German officer he has become and remains an American citizen. After sharp personalities had been indulged in, Winterfield finally withdrew his candidacy.

The element which fought Winterfield's election now threatens to raise the question of his Americanism in connection with the directorate of the National Bank of Germany. An article in one of the afternoon newspapers demands to know whether Mr. Winterfield, who it says not only remains his American citizenship, but also is married to a Frenchwoman, should not, during the war, be replaced in the management of the bank by a good German.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—That certain evidence regarding Capt. Boy-ed, German Naval Attache, will not be introduced in the trial of the four Hamburg-American Line officials for illegally furnishing supplies to the German commerce raiders because of the attitude of the State Department was hinted to-day. The Department, it is reported, has informed United States Attorney Marshall that Boy-ed was acting within his rights in distributing certain funds. It has been suggested to Marshall that it is understood that the State Department will be displeased if Boy-ed's name is again given prominence in the present trial.

LONDON, Nov. 26.—The capture by the Italians of fresh Austrian trenches on Monte Calvario, which overlooks Goritz, is officially reported from Rome to-day. The fall of Goritz is not mentioned, however, and reports of it current Thursday night are disbelieved.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Henry Ford left New York to-day, hoping to win before night the approval of both President Wilson and Cardinal Gibbons for the peace ship that is to sail for Europe on Dec. 4. Ford will talk over his plans with Cardinal Gibbons at Baltimore. He will urge the Cardinal to lend his influence to the Christmas peace mission by accompanying the voyagers to Europe. From Baltimore Ford will go to Washington, where he will accompany Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the member of the British Parliament, and Mme. Rosiker Schwimmer, the Hungarian peace advocate, to the White House to present the plans to President Wilson. Mrs. Snowden and Mme. Schwimmer will present to the President the resolutions adopted by the Women's Peace Congress at The Hague. They will urge upon the President that he issue a call at once for a conference of the neutral nations with a view to ending the world war. Though the peace ship Oscar II. is scheduled to sail one week from to-morrow, many important details of the trip are yet to be arranged. Ford has given out a list of ten prominent persons who have accepted invitations to make the voyage. The liner will touch at Christiania, Copenhagen and Stockholm, he announced. The Peace Congress will probably be held in Holland.

Ford's secretary announced to-day that Chancellor David Starr Jordan, of Leland Stanford University, has accepted an invitation to accompany the peace voyagers.

Wrigley's Gum Saved a Life

Interesting Episode of the European War.

Here is an episode from the world's greatest war. A human life was saved by Wrigley's Chewing Gum. Such a circumstance is a striking illustration of the profound importance of little things in big affairs. We Examiner readers will be interested in this account, clipped from the London Express of November 10, 1915, and reproduced here verbatim:

November 1st, 1915.

To Messrs. Wrigley's, Ltd.,
London.

Dear Sirs,—Having just arrived home with the last batch of prisoners of war from Germany, I thought you would be pleased to hear of the little experience I had when I was wounded; in fact, I owe my life to your Chewing Gum.

It was in September, 1914, when we were stationed at Lyndhurst for training purposes prior to our leaving for the Expeditionary Force, I purchased a large quantity of your Spearmint Chewing Gum in the village of Lyndhurst, and took some to Belgium with me. I was wounded by shrapnel in the right thigh, fracturing it at Ypres, 26th October, 1914, when my first thought was for water. Suddenly I thought of the Chewing Gum I had in my possession. I was lying in a turnip field for five days from Monday to Friday, till I was picked up by a German officer. During that time I had nothing but the Chewing Gum to moisten my lips and keep me going.

I am writing this letter especially to let you know how I appreciated your Chewing Gum There's no doubt had it not been for that, I would have died, as I could never have resisted. I would have informed you before, but we were under great restrictions with regard to correspondence, and I left it until I came home.

I hope you will accept this as an honourable testimonial, as it is the absolute truth.

I beg to remain,
Yours respectfully,
(Signed) Henry Towler,

3rd London General Hospital,
Wandsworth Common, S.W.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

WHY PITCHERS SELDOM MAKE AN ALL PLAYER

Few Can Throw Effectively as Well Worked So the Saying

Pitchers seldom can hit or run bases and they are usually poor fielders in any position except their own, where constant practice makes some of them rather good at handling bunts, though this cannot be said of all of them by any means.

The reason for this inability of pitchers to do anything but pitch is simple. Pitchers are not ball players, except in a few individual cases. Nearly all professional ball players started their careers when youngsters on the lots in games of one old cat and choosing sides.

Why Pitchers Are Weak.

In these boyish exercises the really good natural players who could run, field and hit were not allowed to waste their talents on the slab. They were wanted to play shortstop, first base, or centre field. Almost anybody who could throw a ball up to the plate would do to pitch, but the active youngster was drafted for positions where his speed and agility counted more for his side.

This means that the slow, awkward lad, without much athletic skill, was thrown into the pitching position, while the good hitters cavorted in other locations. This fact, for it is a fact, accounts for the usual inability of the pitcher to play any position but his own, and for his poor batting and base running.

Seldom Become Real Players.

He was not a regular ball player to start with and he seldom becomes one. Of the numerous qualifications of the average player he possesses few. He learns to curve the ball, and if he is smart he practices control of his various brands of stuff. He also acquires some proficiency in handling the comparatively small number of fielding chances which come his way, but in general he is a good deal of a joke as a ball player.

There are few pitchers who can fill any other position on the team with success. A few are good hitters, but most of them are a load to carry at the bat, so much so that there has been a good deal of agitation looking toward removing the pitching from the batting order and having only eight men batting. This change has never been made, and probably will not be, but it illustrates the general feeling that a pitcher is not a real ball player.

Sisler an Exception.

An exception to this rule exists in the person of George Sisler, the University of Michigan star, who finished the season with the St. Louis Browns. Sisler is said to be the greatest all around ball player since the days of Buck Ewing. He is a first class pitcher and is also a star in several other positions. As a pitcher Sisler can hold his own with any man in the big leagues. In addition to his pitching ability he is a great first baseman and a wonderful ground covering outfielder.

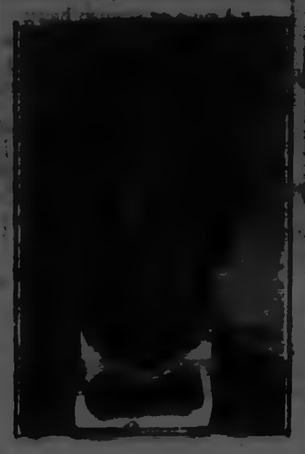
Besides his ability along defensive lines Sisler is a hard and consistent hitter and a great base runner. President Bob Hedges of the Browns declares he is a more valuable player than Ty Cobb and believes him to be the greatest athlete in the modern game. Sisler is one of the few pitchers who can qualify as a ball player.

There are a few others who are pretty good hitters. Doc Crandall, formerly of the Giants, was always clever with his bat, and one year led the National league in batting. The best pitchers have usually taught themselves something about hitting. Such men as Matty, Mordecai Brown, and Walter Johnson, while they cannot be rated as regular batters, have been wise enough to try their best when at the bat and have often helped win close games in a pinch by their confidence.

Walter Hits 'Em Hard.

Johnson, especially, is a long hitter when he hits at all and make more home runs than any other pitcher. It is noticeable that the best pitchers are usually much better hitters than the second string men. This is simply because they are smart enough to see that a hit from their bats once in a while will help them to victory, while the inferior hurlers are satisfied to let the rest of the club do the batting and devote all their own attention to the defensive end.

Brains tell in all departments of the national pastime, and it is almost invariably true that the really classy performers are such because they have more gray matter than the average player.



Willie Hoppe.— The phenomenal billiardist; who made a new record in New York recently. He ran 306 points in the final match with Welker Cochran, whom he beat by 500 to 18. Cochran was allowed 300 by handicap, making his official score 318.

Harvard Football Team Make Money

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 24.—The Harvard football team attracted nearly $225,000 in gate receipts during its season of nine weeks, it was certified to-day, and the gross returns to the Harvard Athletic Association will be close to $250,000. The expenses of the football team will amount to $25,000 or $30,000 leaving a net profit from this year's team of more than $20,000.

More than 164,000 persons saw the Harvard team in action this season. The record crowd was at the Yale game last Saturday when 42,000 persons paid $90,000 to attend the game. The second largest crowd was at the Princeton-Harvard game at Princeton, N.J., when 35,000 persons paid $60,000 to witness the contest. The Harvard-Brown game attracted 20,000 persons, and the Cornell and Penn State games both drew a gate of 15,000.

Percy D. Haughton, the Harvard head coach, characterized this year's team as the best one that has been turned out at Harvard under his direction, exceeding even the eleven of last year, when Hardwick, Brickley, Bradlee, Pennock, Logan, Francke, Trumbull and "Jeff" Coolidge played. It was the opinion of Mahan that that this year's team was better than the one that beat Yale 35 to 0 in the New Haven Bowl.

In defense of an established system for coaching football players, Mr. Haughton said:

"I have heard it said that Shevlin of Yale, disparaged the football system. Without reference to either Shevlin or myself, I think I may say that the result of Saturday's game speaks plainly in favor of a system and shows the value of established channels through which the players are forced before they come to their big games."

The Harvard Crimson to-day asserted that Saturday was the greatest day in the history of Harvard football, since the score of 41 to 0 established so many new records in connection with the Harvard-Yale series. Haughton also said that last Saturday was the happiest day of his life.

The members of the present senior class at Harvard will be graduated in June and can say that during their four undergraduate years they saw Harvard humble her greatest rivals, Yale and Princeton, in every one of the games played. As a result of the Princeton and Yale victories by Harvard the student body is financially well off at the close of the present season. Princeton was the betting favorite in its game with Harvard, and the Yale men had such confidence in their team after its victory over Princeton that they bet 7 to 10 and 6 to 10 with the Harvard men. As a result the Cambridge students can now do their shopping early.

AUSTRIA OBJECTS TO SPY CHARGE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Baron Zwiedinek, Austro-Hungarian Charge d'Affaires, called at the office of Mr. Robert Lansing, Secretary of State, to make a complaint against what he characterizes as a general newspaper propaganda being carried on against Herr von Nuber, the Austro-Hungarian Consul General at New York.

The complaint was regarded as a cover for a determined effort on the part of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy to force a retraction from the United States of the statement recently issued by the Department of Justice linking Herr von Nuber's name with charges made by Dr. Goricar through the Providence Journal.

The Austrian Embassy seems to believe, and the State Department to admit, that in this case the Department of Justice has made public use of the name of an Austrian official in connection with charges which it cannot substantiate. The State Department brought the matter to the attention of the Department of Justice, but that department has not yet taken any formal action. Investigation into the Goricar charges are still proceeding. It is known that engagements have been made by officials of the Department of Justice for Saturday which are expected to bring forth important developments in connection with these charges.

As to Baron Zwiedinek's complaint against the newspaper propaganda, it is recalled that at the time the Goricar charges first appeared a threat of libel was privately made. So far as known, the Austrians have not resorted to this method provided by American law for the prevention of unwarranted newspaper charges.

Mr. Lansing would not make known what action he might take, but the opinion prevails that the rule of international law requiring foreigners to resort first to legal remedies for wrongs done them will hold in this case.

SOME APSLEY NEWS ITEMS

APSLEY, Nov. 25.—The body of the late Archie Kidd, who was drowned on Eel's Lake on Saturday, the 13th, was recovered on Thursday, the 18th. The funeral was held on Saturday, 20th, from his father's residence, Cardiff. A very large number of friends showed their respects to the deceased.

There was a light snow storm lately but no sleighing as yet.

Mr. J. J. Hardill, representing Bishop Limited, called on the merchants of Apsley on Wednesday, 24th, and was well pleased with the number of the orders received.

George W. Hayes representing H. T. Arnold & Sons, Georgetown, Ont., mitts and gloves, accompanied Mr. Hardill, and also secured good orders. Mr. Hardill has been on this route for about 12 years and is always on time to advertised.

BRITAIN PREPARED, PALMER DECLARES

Correspondent Says Former Deadly Ammunition Shortage is a Thing of the Past

MERE FLESH AGAINST GUNS.

In That Way, He Asserts, English Suffered 100,000 Casualties in First Months of Great Conflict.

NEW YORK, Nov. 24. — Frederick Palmer, who was The Associated Press representative with the British Army, told a large audience at Carnegie Hall last night, in a lecture on "My Year of the Great War," details of Great Britain's shell shortage and how it had affected the first year of the war. The British Navy and the small English Army, he said, were the only two forces that were prepared. From conditions in England, France and Belgium he drew a lesson of preparedness for the United States.

"People keep asking me about the dark secrets of the British front," he said. "There are none now. As I lived with the army for many months, I ought to know. There was a secret a year ago, however—a very dark one—and it existed even six months ago. It could not be told because that would have been telling the Germans how short of shells the British were.

"In the great battle of Ypres, a year ago, when the Germans tried to gain the Calais ports, the British fought with flesh and blood against the German artillery. And even as late as last May I used to see signs like this up in the trenches: 'Our daily ration of shells — three passed over this morning.' Meanwhile the Germans could at any time concentrate five shells to the British one. British gunners were limited to the number of shells they might fire a day. British soldiers stuck to their trenches under hellish German shell fire, fighting with their rifles alone, and a limited number of machine guns. This was one of the reasons which prevented the British from holding a longer line.

"England not only had to make ammunition for her own troops, but not until the history of this war is written will we realize how England had to make ammunition for her own troops and at the same time answer the call of her allies, who had trained soldiers without adequate ammunitions, while England's new army was only in training. The difference between having adequate and inadequate artillery to support an attack is the difference between walking into a trench whose fire has been completely smothered, dugouts turned into graves for the defenders, and machine guns buried, as compared to charging into machine guns and in face of shell fire. The British army fought without adequate artillery support, but the new army has it.

"For a month before I left the front the British had superiority of gunfire, and the German infantry attacks all failed. The initiative had changed to the British side. Before I left the front I saw four or five hundred British guns, most of them not built before the war began, commanded by gunners who had not received a day's training before the war, lay a perfect swath of fire along the German trenches, destroying the barbed wire with their shrapnel and changing the German trenches into irregular heaps of earth mixed with sandbag rags and splinters.

"The United States has furnished about 5 per cent. of the munitions used by the Allies. Neither Lloyd George's new munition factories nor those in the United States will be turning out their maximum capacity until early spring. Then, for the first time, the British Army, and in fact, the whole allied front, will have sufficient shells. They will be able to make three weeks' steady bombardment, instead of seventy-two hours of preparatory bombardment, as in the Champagne offensive. The casualties, in any attack, are increased ratio to the amount of shells expended as a rule, and probably England has suffered a hundred thousand casualties for not having had sufficient guns and shells at the start of the war, when the British contemplated sending not more than 120,000 men to the continent.

"It was not want of training that kept the new army from being sent to the front. It was want of munitions. Excellent company officers could be trained out of raw material, but the difficulty was in the staff organization.

"If it takes the British Navy and 2,500 auxiliaries to hold the line from Iceland to the English Channel, how large a navy will it take us to defend the Monroe Doctrine and the whole American continent? If our navy is not as good as the British ship for ship, the fault is not with our officers and men. In England they have left the work of experts to experts. The amateurs have kept their hands off the navy."

Contains None of the Vague or Evasive Expressions in Other Notes

LONDON, Nov. 25. — Although the reply of the Greek Government to the demands of the Entente powers is described as satisfactory, and as furnishing a basis for the settlement of the questions at issue, it appears that the situation has not yet been entirely cleared up. In reply to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Minister, said that the Government was not in a position to make a statement regarding the situation in Greece as compared to the allied powers.

A Rome correspondent suggests that he is informed from diplomatic sources that Greece, glad of the concentration not to disturb German or allied forces retreating into Greece, promises also the partial demobilization of the Greek army, retaining part of her troops under mobilization in order to provide for her own defence. At the same time Greece refuses, the correspondent learns, to intervene in favour of the allies unless her own interests are threatened.

The Athens correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Company, on the other hand, says that Greek reply is friendly, meets the Entente powers' demands and gives all guarantees that are considered essential. The correspondent, however, compares that with Constantine has been successful in his main contention, which was that Greece should remain neutral. Athens public opinion is considering the possibility that Bulgaria will proceed to annex Greek as well as Serbian Macedonia, in which case Greece, with her army at least partially unharmed, would at once take the field to defend her territory, an action which would align her definitely on the side of the Entente.

Pte. Fallon and Gunner McGill

and a litter of all kinds were strewn about, with the awful recklessness of war. It was a picture never to be forgotten. At Festubert the 8th had a more adequate idea of the nature of the work ahead of them. They played a considerable part in that engagement, but their casualties were vast ly lighter than at Ypres.

Burying the Dead.

The advance made at Festubert was over grounds where the British and Germans had previously fought and had dug themselves in without the chance of burying their dead. As a result the stench was "fierce" at the time of this second battle and when the British had consolidated their new positions, burying parties were sent out to bury these putrefying bodies.

"We buried them in the holes made by the big shells," Private Fallon stated, "but it was awful work. When you would catch hold of an arm to drag a body from a pile of debris the arm separated from the body so long had it remained in that place. The bodies were deposited in the shell holes and covered with earth."

Private Fallon stated that he had been hit by a bullet and was later helped from the field. He was finally removed to an hospital in Bristol. While it was a great experience to have passed through it was no "pink tea." Machine gun fire was hard to face, but Private Fallon had least liking for shrapnel, which was not only turned on the trenches, but also swept the ground during advances. After Festubert he saw one batch of seven hundred prisoners who had been taken in that engagement. In spite of the trying conditions the men have to face they stand up under it wonderfully. In fact Private Fallon saw only one man who lost his nerve. It was at Ypres, and the soldier, who was something of a "nut" at any time, threw himself on the bottom of the trench nerve-shaken and without self-control. He got on the nerves of his comrades and was finally taken back. "I heard he had his head shot off later," Private Fallon stated, "but he came over on the same boat with me." But this was an exceptional case, and it is really a matter of wonderment that they are not more numerous.

Private Fallon returns pleased with the treatment he had received. He has not yet been discharged. Gunner McGill got his discharge, but neither of these boys are sure of their exact status for the present.

Tobacco a Great Help.

Private Fallon stated that he knew that the boys greatly appreciate the tobacco that is sent to them. It is most beneficial under the stress of the life at the front, and there was certainly no mistake in continuing the supply.

Great Munitions Plan is Being Worked Out

Patriotism and Production Will Have a New Meaning in Canada

NEW ORDERS FOR CANADA

OTTAWA, Nov. 26.—Patriotism and production soon will have a larger meaning in Canada. A great munitions plan is being worked out. It is proposed to tremendously extend Canadian capacity for producing gun projectiles, to have very substantial proportion of the Russian, French and British shell orders filled in Canada, and to have the business financed by banking houses and other financial institutions of this country. Shell orders which have been filled, or which are being filled in Canada, have reached the tremendous total of five hundred million dollars. More than two hundred and fifty manufacturing firms are engaged upon the work. The munition business is to be organized in such a way that all large orders for munitions can be handed to this country and taken care of in the most expeditious and economical manner possible. It is intimated that further immense orders are coming Canada-ward this winter.

LACK OF PASSPORT COST $10.00

LONDON, November 24 Jack Wilson, a former New Yorker, who is a familiar figure in London hotels, called at the American embassy to-day to get an American passport in order to travel through England without police interference.

Mr. Wilson, who is an insurance agent, and who has been living in London for several years, was arrested in Bristol last Saturday because he happened to be in a prohibited area and was without a passport.

He informed the New York Times correspondent to-day that he had been on a two weeks trip through England, going into half a dozen prohibited areas without a thought of a passport but that the Bristol authorities apparently became suspicious of him. He failed to register with the police on arriving in Bristol, never dreaming, he said, that such a formality was necessary.

As he left his hotel on Saturday morning a detective stopped him saying he was wanted at police headquarters. Wilson and the detective rode in a taxi-cab to police headquarters where the officer in command spoke of his failure to register and suddenly asked if he had a passport. Wilson admitted that he had not and the officer remarked that he was sorry but they would have to detain him as a prisoner. After six hours detention Wilson was taken before a magistrate who inflicted a fine of ten dollars advising Wilson to hury back to London and equip himself with a passport, and also to register himself with the police the next time he got into prohibited areas.

Wilson sat for four hours in the embassy to-day before he got the passport.

ICEBREAKER "MINTO" SOLD TO CZAR'S GOVERNMENT

OTTAWA, November 25.—The Canadian icebreaking steamer Minto has been sold to the Russian Government for use in keeping the port of Archangel open during the coming winter. She sailed to-day with a Canadian crew for Archangel, where she will be handed over to the Russian Government.

Canada has done a considerable service to the Russian Government in the matter of providing icebreaking facilities that the flow of supplies and munitions to the winter port of the Czar's empire may be unceasing. A year ago she sold the Earl Grey for the same purpose and it has been doing splendid service since. With the lack of success which has so far attended the Dardanelles project, the maintenance of uninterrupted communication through Russia's northern harbors has become of more importance than ever, and hence the sale of the Minto.

The Minto was built in Dundee in 1899, and especially designed for the winter navigation in Northumberland Strait. She is 285 feet long, of 1000 gross tonnage and 2900 indicated horse power. She will be replaced by the government steamer Stanley, while next year the new giant ice breaker which is being built but which has been held up by the war, will be completed as an addition to the icebreaking equipment of the Marine Department.

For paring potatoes in quantities a carborundum-lined metal cylinder has been invented, against the sides of which the tubers, are whirled by a revolving bottom plate.

EYE TALKS SERIES

IMPORTANCE OF THE EYE

A man or woman has no more precious possession than that of eyesight. Deprived of the use of the eyes we are helpless, and in proportion to the condition of the eyesight, so is the handicap for business or pleasure measured.

If eyesight were turned into dollars and cents, we would be extremely careful of it. Money means working capital, and eyesight is our greatest necessity as an earning power. Can we then be too careful of our most valuable asset? We ask perfect security for money, then also ask for proper qualifications from the specialist who treats your eyes.

BERLIN REGULATES PRICES FOR GAME

BERLIN, via London, Nov. 25.—The German Government has adopted maximum wholesale and retail prices for game. The retail prices for venison range from 140 pfennigs to 180 pfennigs a German pound. The price for wild swine is fixed at 110 pfennigs a pound, while the rate for hares is 450 pfennigs each and pheasant cocks 850 pfennigs each.

A pfennig equals one-fourth of a cent in American currency.

The garden should be dug in autumn, leaving the earth loose. If new soil is being used the sod should be turned under to a depth of four inches to ensure rotting. Vines, dead leaves or weeds should be burned and the ashes, together with a quantity of good stable manure, if available, should be dug well in.

A lady told me, as a true story of a soldier's wit, that a soldier in a hospital on recovering consciousness said, "Nurse, what is this on my head?" "Vinegar cloths," she replied. "You have had fever."

After a pause, "And what is this on my chest?" "A mustard plaster. You have had pneumonia."

"And what is this at my feet?" "Salt bags. You have had frostbite."

A soldier from the next bed looked up and said, "Hang a pepper-box to his nose, then he will have a cruet.—Strand Magazine."

EASTERN FRONT LOOKED TO FOR GREAT CAMPAIGN

"Watch Russia" That is the Word That Comes From a Reliable Source—Germans Evacuate Mitau and Withdraw Along a Wide Front From Riga.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(Special cable.)—"Watch Russia." That is the word that came to-day from a reliable source. It lent strength to rumours that have been circulating among military men for several days that the eastern front will produce one of the greatest campaign of the war this winter. Reports that Germans have evacuated Mitau and are drawing back along a wide front from the Riga region, brought further confirmation. It is no longer a military secret here that the Russian line has been strengthened two-fold by the arrival of fresh troops, large supplies of ammunition and big guns. The war of the Balkans, now engrossing public attention, will soon fade from the limelight. It is believed here the ferocious fighting of the past weeks will give way to desultery trench battling. The Franco-Flanders front is expected to produce no more big drives from either side until next spring. The task of furnishing the real talk of the war this winter, according to London rumours, is reserved for the Czar's new armies of three million men. Russia is preparing for a new offensive, it is hinted here, that will sweep down on a narrow front toward Prussia. Corps after corps of the newest Russian legions, from the Steppes of Siberia, the great province of Archangel and the provinces of Vologda, Vistka and Perm, fearless fighters, trained and well equipped, are moving toward the Russian front, ready to join hands with Germany's worst enemy—winter.

AUSTRO-GERMAN FORCE TO OPEN ROAD TO MONASTIR

New Menace to Anglo-French Army Concentrated in the Vardar Valley Seen in Army Sent South—Serbs Making Desperate Effort to Hold Territory.

LONDON, Nov. 27. The Anglo-French army concentrated in the Vardar valley from Krivolak to the Greek frontier is faced by a new menace from the north and northwest which constant reinforcements are being hurried up from Salonica to meet. This threat comes from the Austro-German army under General von Gollwitz which is marching down the valley toward Vardar-Cerna line. Having cleared the Kossovo plain with the aid of the Austrian army from the north and the Bulgar army from the east, General von Gollwitz has detached a part of his force to assist the Bulgarian the south who have been held up by the Allies. This force, joining with the Bulgars in the valley due north of Prilep will provide not only additional strength for an attack at Krivolak, but a column for the occupation of Monastir, which the Bulgars have retained from enterin.

Reports of the fighting west of the Semnica River, behind which the Serbs retired from Prstina and Mitrovitza, have been meagre. The British and French naval brigades which have been with this army since the retreat from Belgrade began are known to be safe although their losses are presumed to be heavy. The French section has arrived at Monastir and a telegram from Admiral Troubridge, commanding the British, has been received from Mitrovitza under date of November 20. In this the commander said all was well with his brigade. The message was sent out three days before the town was seized by the Austrians.

All that is really known this morning is that the Serbs are making a desperate fight against heavy odds in the little fringe of territory between the Slimes and the Albanian and Montenegrin frontiers, where they are drawing scant provisions from Scutari over a mountain road built by the Montenegrins during their occupation of Northern Albania.

The Russian Emperor has addressed a personal telegram to the Serbian Premier, Mr. Pahitch, according to a Salonica despatch of Wednesday to the Daily Telegraph, in which he promises the appearance a week hence in Bulgaria of Russian troops.

The Italian government, according to this despatch, also has promised to send an expeditionary force of 40,000 men.

WOUNDED MURDERED

Serb Soldiers Already Injured were put to Death by the Bulgars, Says General Vassich, Commander of Southern Serb Army.

KILLED THEM WITH KNIVES

MONASTIR, Nov. 24 (Delayed).—The murder of wounded Serb soldiers by the Bulgars is charged by Gen Vassich, commander of the Southern Serb Army, recently dislodged from the Prilep district, and now concentrated near the Greek frontier to defend Monastir.

"The Bulgars crawled on to the Babuna Pass battlefield at night," he declared, "killing my wounded with knives."

From the advanced line of Serb trenches before Monastir, the General stared gloomily to-day at the burning village to the northward, as ten fire by the Bulgar invaders. At the country through which the Bulgars have swept is wilderness. Far houses are smoking ruins. Villages have been looted.

General Vassich in person guided a party to-day to the outermost Serb positions from which his men are remarkably delaying the fall of Monastir.

Though Babuna Pass and Prilep have been lost for the time being the Serbs with French reinforcements are still active in the district. They are ready at the first opportunity for the dash to recover ground they have been driven from by the Bulgars' superior numbers and equipment.

AVENGING FATHER MADE ENEMY PAY FOR SONS' DEATHS

He Squared Accounts With the Huns Before He Was Killed

LONDON, Nov 24.—A story that has much in it that is pathetic as well as terrible is quoted by the "Territorial Service Gazette" from a letter home by a non-commissioned officer of a Territorial battalion:

"On the bombing party with which I served," he writes, "one of the keenest was a man whose sons had been killed in the early days of the war, and he had also lost a brother. Though he was well over the military age, he had managed to pass, and from the first day of his arrival out there his mind was obsessed with the idea of avenging the death of his sons.

"When a chance of getting to close quarters came he was not slow to make use of it. He dashed forward at the head of his party, and hurled a bomb into a section of the German trench, accounting for over a dozen of the enemy. At one point where the enemy were developing a counter-attack, the old man rushed forward and dropped bomb after bomb into them, finally dispersing them single-handed.

"Later in the day he seemed to be everywhere. Sometimes he was bomb-throwing, at other times he was doing bayonet work, and occasionally he lent a hand with clearing away wounded men. Always he seemed to remember his 'daring boys,' as he called them, and many a German whose account was settled that day must have wished that those 'boys' had never been killed. For a while I lost sight of him, and when I saw him next he was lying wounded.

"It was plain to be seen that he was booked through, and he knew it as well as we did. He smiled a little when he saw me, but it was the smile of a man weary of life and waiting for death. 'Hard luck,' he said, 'but anyhow, I've made the Huns pay for killing my boys.' When I came back a few minutes later he was dead. At his request they buried along with him photos of the 'darling boys and the old woman.'"

NO MARCH FROM SUEZ TO BAGDAD

British Press Bureau Denies German Report of Feat of Colonial Troops

LONDON, Nov. 27. The official Press Bureau issued a statement to-day concerning a wireless despatch from Berlin which was published in the United States alleging that a British force of 170,000 men had been thrown back by the Turks after approaching within less than ten miles of Bagdad. The despatch in question said the British army, including Canadian, Australian and Indian contingents, had made a successful march from Egypt.

"As comment on this remarkable message," says the Press Bureau, "it should be noted that not a single soldier, either Canadian, Australian, or Indian, has ever attempted to make this amazing march from the Suez Canal to Bagdad."

No Prospect of War With Spain

MADRID, via Paris, Nov. 27. In addressing Parliament to-day Premier Dato denied ther was a possibility that Spain would intervene in the war. He said that since the outbreak of hostilities Spain had been receiving constantly expressions of goodwill from all the belligerents.

The Premier remarks were made in replying to criticisms of the minority directed against measures taken by the government to reform the military system. He censured certain spaniards who took pleasure in attempting to create complications by crediting rumours of a nature calculated to reflect upon the dignity of the nation.

The Premier took issue with those who believed the Cabinet wished to retire, but was restrained by fear of unforeseen events.

"That is far from the truth," the Premier continued, "for we have prepared reforms which will give the army means of defending effectively all the interests of the country in the oblized to intervene."

She Had a Will.

"My husband," said the matron, "was a confirmed smoker when I married him a year ago, but to-day he never touches tobacco."

"That's fine," approved one of the group. "To break off the habit of a lifetime in one year requires a strong will indeed."

"Well, remarked the wife meditatively, "that's just the kind of a will I've got."

Half of First Contingent in the Casualty List

Up to June 30, 11,270 Names Had Been Recorded in Grim Lists

OTHER LOSSES

OTTAWA, Nov. 27. The heroic record of the 1st Canadian Division which first got into the firing line in France last January, is written in a big volume of the casualty lists just issued by the Militia Department, recording all the casualties up to 30th June last. It contains 11,270 names or just about 50 per cent. of the whole division.

The list of killed totals 1,787 or about 8 per cent., the missing total 1,842, or about 8½ per cent., while the wounded total 6,619 or about 29 per cent. In addition there were 167 deaths from various causes other than wounds. 172 men were gassed, 113 suffered from the shock of shell explosions, 173 were confined to hospitals for some time for illness, and 401 are officially reported as prisoners of war. The last-mentioned figure of course, includes only the names officially reported from Germany, and does not include probably a thousand or so who are believed to be prisoners of war and are classed with the missing.

40 to 50 Per Cent. Gone

The Princess Patricia's Regiment had a total of 961 names on the casualty list, including 253 killed, 651 wounded, 40 missing, 9 gassed, 15 deaths from illness, and only three prisoners of war.

The figures show that most of the battalions lost, in one way or another, from 40 to 50 per cent. of their strength. The 3rd Battalion (Toronto) lost nearly 50 per cent with 75 men killed, 333 wounded, 353 missing, 14 prisoner of war, 8 gassed and 19 suffering from shock.

The 15th Battalion (48th Highlanders) have 968 names on the casualty list, including 84 killed, 281 wounded, 200 missing, 101 prisoners of war and 35 gassed.

Other Losses

The losses in the 1st Artillery Brigades totalled 421, of whom 59 were killed, 303 wounded, 12 missing, and six gassed. The Engineers lost 125 men, of whom 24 were killed, 77 wounded and four gassed. The Royal Canadian Dragoons lost 54 men, of whom seven were killed and 45 wounded.

Lord Kitchener On Italian Front

Gen. French Reports the Destruction of Many Enemy Trenches —Germans Are Replying Feebly

LONDON, Nov. 27.—Bulgaria refuses to release Roumanian subjects on the ground that they are spies. Complications are likely.

ROME, Nov. 27.—Lord Kitchener is visiting the Italian front.

ATHENS, Nov. 27. — Greece has agreed to a partial demobilization.

LONDON, Nov. 27.— Gen. French reports the destruction of many enemy trenches. Germans are replying feebly.

Where We Belonged

The box was very small and the load he was pushing in the wheelbarrow was very big.

A benevolent old gentleman, putting down his bundles, lent him a helping hand.

"Really, my boy," he puffed, "I don't see how you manage to get the barrow up the gutters alone."

"I don't," replied the appreciative kid. "There's always some jay standin' round as takes it up for me."

Big Italian Army Landed At Avlona

British Troops Have Gained More Ground and Are Now Within Ten Miles of Bagdad

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.— Henry Ford said yesterday he would spend as many million dollars as needed to beat preparedness programme in the United States. Ford declared he had signed statements from officials high in government circles of British and Germanic allies saying they are ready for peace.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 27. — German prisoners arriving at Riga say Mitau has been evacuated by the Germans.

MONTREAL, Nov. 27.— The police discovered a bomb in a blanket factory on the Lachine Canal and it is believed they have frustrated an attempt to destroy the canal by German spies.

ATHENS, Nov. 27.— A big Italian army is landing at Avlona, Albania to go to the help of the Serbs.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—British troops in Mesopotamia have gained more ground and are now within ten miles of Bagdad.

ROME, Nov. 27.—General Kitchener is spending the night on the Italian battle front with the King and General Cadorna.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 27.— Count Ove Frijiz, a Danish nobleman serving with the Canadian contingent, was killed in action in Flanders.

A SPLENDID WAY TO REDUCE ONE'S WEIGHT

There is, perhaps, no one thing that shows the passing of our youth so much as the horrible tendency of some of us to put on too much weight after we have reached the age of 25 or 30. However young our face may appear, our figures "give us away."

The cause of this over-stoutness is that our stomachs convert the food we eat into fat because there is not enough oxygen in the blood to produce a proper combustion to destroy the fatty tissue. To reduce your weight go to a good druggist and get oil of orthene in capsule form and take one after each meal. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Oil of orthene taken at meal times gives you all the benefit of the food you eat, and at the same time dissolves the fatty tissues from any part of the body where there is excessive fat. In this way many have reduced their weight at the rate of about a lb. a day, and no flabbiness is left.

Any druggist can supply you or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1220, Montreal, Can.

Time Dragged

Maurice Maeterlinck, who holds that music is "a particularly disagreeable kind of noise," was at one time beguiled to a musical given by a prominent Paris Society woman, who, during the evening, found that author sitting disconsolate and bored in a corner of the room.

"Now, really, monsieur," said the hostess, "don't you think this orchestra plays beautifully? These men have been playing together for 17 years."

"Eleven years," repeated Maeterlinck. "Haven't we been here longer than that?"

WORN WORRIED WOMEN

Her Many Duties Affect Her Health and Often She Breaks Down Completely

It is little wonder that there are many times in a woman's life when she feels in despair. There is no nine-hour day for the busy housewife. There are a hundred things about the home to keep her busy from the time she arises until it is again bed time. What is the result? Often her nerves give way, her good looks suffer, her blood becomes thin, her digestion is disturbed and her system threatened with a complete breakdown. Every woman should do all possible to protect her health and good looks, and there is one way in which she can do this and that is by taking Dr. William's Pink Pills. These actually make new, rich blood, strengthen every nerve and every organ, bring the glow of health to the cheeks and brightness to the eye. These pills have done more to make the lives of thousands of women sunshiny than anything else in the world. Mrs. Daniel Theal, Waterloo, Ont. says "I was very much run down, my blood was thin and watery and I would faint at the least excitement. I suffered from headaches and dizziness and often it seemed as though there were clouds before my eyes. Finally I was forced to go to bed with weakness. I doctored for six weeks while in bed without receiving any benefit. Finally I was induced to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and when I had taken ten boxes I was completely cured, and never felt better in my life. I am convinced that what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me they will do for others, and I warmly recommend them to all weak women."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Soldier of Fortune —— by Randall Parrish

Copyright, 1912, by A. C. McClurg & Co.

"You'll need a waterproof of some kind. It's raining outside. Wait a moment. There will be a coat in some of those staterooms."

I found one, a fisherman's slicker, and wrapped her in it. It was a world too big, but I tightened the belt and turned up the skirts, so she managed to walk.

I led her forward slowly, so that the dapping of the oilskins against the stair rail would not be heard. The steady patter of rain on the deck planks drowned what little noise we made, and as we emerged into the hood a gust of wind drove the moisture into our faces. I could feel my heart thump, yet it was more because of her proximity than any excitement of adventure. So far as I could perceive, peering out into the storm with hand shading my eyes, the way was clear, and, bidding her stoop low, we slipped back along the narrow deck passage into the shadow cast by the boat.

"Now," I said, "step on my knee, and I'll help you over. Don't hurry—only be quiet. That's it. Now just let me lift you. Steady yourself with the tackle."

She peered back at me over the side of the boat, her hair shining with moisture.

"Now are you coming?"

"No; I shall have to remain here and swear the boat. Turn about and face the stern. Now take this knife. Don't drop it. The moment the boat touches the water—an instant before, if possible—cut the rope you have hold on, then hurry forward and cut the other. You understand?"

"—I think so. I am to cut this first and then the other."

"Yes. Now don't fail. You see, we are launching this boat above the screw. There is bound to be suction. If you cut as I say you will drift off bow on to the course of the vessel and will float free. Otherwise the boat is likely to be swamped. You see what I mean?"

She nodded.

"The quicker you can get to that second rope," I added seriously, "the better your chances."

"But—but what are you going to do?"

"Jump for it as soon as you are fairly afloat. I'll be aboard before you know it. Are you ready?"

She was looking forward, and her hand gripped mine. Her failure to answer and the sudden pressure of fingers was a warning of danger. I glanced back across my shoulder. In front of the cabin stood a man staring aft. His huge bulk even in that darkness told me it was Herman.

I heard his heavy step on the deck as he came slowly forward around the bulge of the cabin. The very manner of his advance told me his uncertainty. Something had occurred to arouse suspicion. He had heard a noise or seen a shadow and was investigating curiously. He came up to the stern rail, standing still, a huge bulk in the gloom, his gaze on the swinging boat. Then, unsatisfied, he leaned forward and began to explore with one hand. Apparently he touched something strange—the edge of her skirt it must have been, for there was a bit of cloth in the lifted fingers. Noiselessly I arose to my feet, planting myself firmly on the wet deck. There was but one means of escape now, and, big as the fellow was, I must accept the chance. Another minute would mean discovery, and his bull voice would roar the length of the ship. He neither saw nor heard me, his whole attention concentrated on the boat. Without warning, putting every ounce of strength into the blow, I struck, landing square on the chin. There was a smothered groan, and he collapsed, hurled back bodily, his arms flung up. I heard him thud against the rail, his great form bending to the shock, and then he went over, whirling through the air.

Putting Every Ounce of Strength Into the Blow, I Struck.

"What is it?" she asked, her voice barely audible. "What has happened?"

Her voice seemed to recall me instantly, to restore my numbed faculties.

"Why, really I hardly know," I answered, yet stepping back to grip the ropes. "The fellow had hold of your dress, didn't he?"

"Yes. Oh, I was so frightened! And—and then he jerked me horribly."

"That was when I hit him. I must have got the big brute just right. He went overboard."

She looked down into the swirl beneath, clutching the edge of the boat with her hands.

"Is—is he down there—in the water? Do you—you suppose he is drowned?"

"I don't see what else he could be."

"I—I cannot bear to think of it!"

"Now, see here," I said, coming back to my senses. "This is all foolishness and losing us time. I'm not sorry he is out of the way. It was either his life or ours. Have you got the knife?"

"Yes."

"Then get hold of that stern rope. I am going to lower away."

She obeyed me, but it was mechanical, her eyes still fixed upon the water.

"Be quick now," I said sternly, and my hand pressed her shoulder. "Your life depends on your promptness."

I loosened the ropes, permitting them to run slowly through the blocks. There was no creaking, and I rejoiced at the ease with which I sustained the weight as the boat descended. Slowly it sank below into the darkness until it was merely a black, shapeless shadow outlined against the water. I felt the strain on my arms as the swell gripped its keel. Then the stern swung free, and I knew she was scrambling forward, knife in hand, for the other rope. Almost before the boat could swing about the second stay dangled, and all my straining eyes could perceive was a dark, indefinite shadow drifting out of sight astern. Without uttering a sound or wasting a second I slid from the rail.

"It's all right!" I called, loud enough for her to hear. "Throw out an oar on the left and hold her. I'll be there in a minute."

I made it almost breathless, when I deftly grasped the gunwale and hung on to regain a measure of strength.

"Oh, thank God," she exclaimed, staring at me; "I—I thought you were lost!"

"Don't think of it. The danger is all over. You needn't pull on the oar; just hold it straight out. That will keep the boat's head forward."

"Can you get over the side?"

"In a moment—yes; as soon as I get my breath back. Did you notice any alarm on board the Sea Gull?"

She shaded her eyes with one hand, holding the heavy oar against her body, and looked ahead.

"No; I was not thinking about that—only of your danger and my awful position. I was never so frightened before."

"Can you still see the vessel?"

"Just a shadow against the sky. I—I think she is moving straight ahead."

"Then we have not been missed nor the mate. Doubtless he was going below for his supper. Now lean well over to port—you, the left—and balance the boat. I am going to climb in."

CHAPTER XVI.

The Open Boat.

WITH a struggle, I made it, rolling over the low gunwale, the water draining from me into a pool at the bottom.

"You are a fine, brave girl," I said sincerely, unable to restrain my admiration.

She dropped her head and began to sob.

"Oh, no, no! I am not," she replied tremblingly. "I am such a coward. You cannot know the terror I have felt."

"Of course. But my being here makes a difference?"

"Always," she confessed frankly. "Somehow I can never be afraid with you. But—but what shall we do now?"

"I hardly know what to put you at. Oh, yes! Here is a tin, and you can bail out this water sloshing about in the bottom. That will be valuable service."

"What will you do?"

"Rig up the sail the best I can in the dark. There is breeze enough to give us some headway and ship the rudder."

"Do you know which direction to steer?"

"Not now, but I have a compass in my pocket. A northeast course would be sure to bring us to the coast, and towns are scattered along. I found that out from Broussard yesterday."

FARM AND GARDEN.

Ashes should not be placed near wooden buildings or fences.

Sheep are almost a necessity in maintaining the fertility and cleanliness of the land.

The camel is the only animal that cannot swim. The moment it loses its footing in a stream it turns over and makes no effort to save itself from drowning.

Great Britain is the greatest butter-eating nation in the world. Britishers eat thirteen pounds a head a year, against four pounds in France, eight pounds in Germany, and two pounds in Russia.

The rank growth of weeds on vacant lots is frequently a cause of fire. When the weeds become dry a lighted match or burning cigarette thrown into them will cause a fire to start and run rapidly, until it comes in contact with a wooden fence or frame building, when unless promptly extinguished great damage may result.

Carrots should be lifted before the appearance of frost, cutting the tops off an inch above the roots, storing them like beetroot in alternate layers with sand, in a dry outhouse. Both of the above keep exceedingly well stacked neatly against a north wall, and sloping to a point, and covered with sifted coal ashes. The thickness of this covering depends upon the weather.

Potatoes to be stored must be thoroughly ripe before being lifted, this being done during a period of fine dry weather. After lifting they should only be exposed sufficient long to dry before storing, all diseased and unsound tubers being sorted out. A frost proof shed is suitable for this, covering the tubers with straw or other material to exclude the light. Where this is not available we must resort to the old pit in the form of a ridge or clamp in the open.

OXO CUBES at the War

The value of OXO CUBES to all branches of His Majesty's Forces has received remarkable endorsement in numerous letters received by OXO Ltd., and the Press, from those on active service and in training.

OXO CUBES exactly meet their needs. They take up little space; are easily carried and can be converted quickly into a hot nourishing drink which, with bread or biscuits, will sustain for hours.

In the home, OXO CUBES are handy and good for many purposes—ready in a moment as a warming, strengthening and sustaining beverage. For Soups, Stews and Gravies they are an economical substitute for fresh beef. OXO CUBES save time, trouble and expense.

"Oxo is comforting, it is sustaining, and it is palatable, three constituents which make for popularity. In addition, it is pure and wholesome, and also of the greatest use as a stimulant. To the fighting man exposed to all kinds of weather it is an admirable remover of chills. It enjoys enormous popularity with the troops, and we cannot imagine a more acceptable gift, for Oxo is thoroughly appreciated by soldiers and officers alike. Oxo Cubes are just the thing the soldier wants. With a little hot water he can turn Oxo into nourishing soup of a warmth and piquancy that will drive away the effects of the most bitterly cold night or day, whether on guard, in the trenches, or in dug-outs."

"Daily News," London, England, September 9th, 1915.

A CUBE TO A CUP.

OXO in the Trenches.

"In the trenches we specialise on hot drinks, ranging from tea to OXO, and I think to really appreciate a hot drink you should have a spell here."

"Daily Telegraph" (St. John N.B.), March 26th, 1915.

From No. 3 Field Ambulance, 1st Contingent, Canadian Expeditionary Force.

"During recent night manœuvres on Salisbury Plain we found OXO invaluable as a very sustaining hot drink, and is considered by all to be the real goods."

WEST AFRICAN DIAMONDS.

Gems From Britain's Newest Territory Are of Fine Quality.

"An article on German South-West Africa, in the quarterly official bulletin of the Imperial Institute, may be read in connection with the royal proclamation concerning the importation of diamonds into the United Kingdom," the Westminster Gazette (London) says. "It will be known to many that about seven or eight years ago diamonds were discovered in this German colony. In 1912, the last year for which complete statistics are so far available, the output amounted to over a million and a half pounds in value. As regards size, the stones from this part of the world are small, as a rule, but some of fair size have occasionally been discovered. Thus at Bogenfels one turned up some time ago weighing over seventeen carats, while at Pomona, where they reached their average size, one nearly double this weight—thirty four carats—was found on another occasion, this being the largest stone which has so far come from the colony. As regards other characteristics, the color of the diamonds is variable, but the majority are colorless or nearly so. Yellowish, pinkish, bluish, and greenish stones also occur. The quality of the stones is uniformly high, and eighty-five per cent. of the output consists of stones suitable for cutting as gem-stones. The bort variety of diamond appears to be absent from the deposits or present only in very small amounts.

"As to the relationship between the diamonds of German South-West Africa and those of other parts of South Africa, opinions seem to differ. According to some authorities the Germ[illegible] stones resemble the Kimberley type. Other experts are of opinion that they differ greatly from the pipe and alluvial types occurring in the British portion of South Africa, and take the view that the stones more closely resemble those of Bra[illegible]

Tobacco Heart

CURED BY

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Tobacco does not seem to affect all alike. Many men enjoy their smoke, live to a good old age, and apparently suffer no ill effects from the use of the weed.

There are others, though, on whose heart and nervous system tobacco produces the most serious results.

It causes palpitation, pain in the heart and irregularity of its beat, makes the hands tremble, sets the nerves on edge, and the breath becomes short.

To counteract this demoralizing influence on the heart and nerves there is no remedy that equals Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

They make the heart beat strong and steady, restore tone and vigor to the nerves, and remove all the evil results caused by the tobacco.

Mr Nelson Young, Brampton, Ont., writes: "I have had, up to about a month ago, a very weak heart, which I suppose came from smoking cigarettes. When I heard of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as a cure, I immediately gave up smoking, and started using them. It does you justice to be the founder of such a great remedy. They made me feel like a new man."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE SURGEON'S GLOVES.

Up Where Them While Operating Since He Can't Get Clean Hands.

While the surgeon's success depends to a large extent upon his hands, they are at the same time a source of the greatest danger to himself and his patient.

No process has yet been discovered which makes it certain that a surgeon's hands are free from microbes and incapable of carrying infection to a patient. This is why the good surgeon will not perform the most trivial operation without first covering his hands with properly sterilized gloves.

Prolonged scrubbing with soap and running water, followed by another thorough scrubbing in from 70 to 80 per cent. alcohol, removes the outer layers of skin and bacteria and makes the surface of the hands sufficiently clean.

But there still remains the danger that many microbes which stay concealed in the tiny crevices at the base of the little hair glands will be forced to the surface by perspiration and the use of the hands in handling instruments and make an infection of the wound possible. While practical experience shows that his danger is very slight, yet its possibility is sufficient to make it undesirable ever to operate with the bare hands.—New York American.

SHOOTING THE RAPIDS.

Feats of the Arab Boys of Egypt, Who Are Expert Swimmers.

Among the most expert of swimmers are the Arab boys of Egypt. Like all other boys, they are fond of displaying their skill before strangers. This is how they shoot the rapids of the Nile:

Seating themselves astride a log of wood about six feet long and buoyant enough to support them waist high out of water, they ride it with the seat and gestures of a jockey and with hands and feet keep it straight with the line of the current.

The fall is shot with an ease and grace that do away with the sense of danger one would expect to feel at seeing a human being hurled along amid such a boil and turmoil of waters, but once at the bottom the youngsters have a hard struggle to induce their "horses" to turn out of the course.

To do this they avail themselves of the impetus acquired by the log in its shoot, and, throwing themselves full length upon it, they seem, with a sudden stroke from the left leg and arm, to drive it and themselves out of the current.

To fail in this would be dangerous even to Arab swimmers. Immediately below lie ugly rocks on which the heavy stream breaks with great violence.—Exchange.

They Were Solid.

Which bemoot leads me up to the story that a teacher in one of the west side schools told me the other day about a little girl. Her parents, it seems, had been celebrating their silver wedding, and little Rosie the next morning, with commendable family pride, was boasting of the quality of the presents received.

"There was a whole set," she said, "of solid silver teaspoons."

"Are you sure, Rosie," asked the teacher, "that the spoons were solid?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply triumphant; "solid silver—triple plate."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Candle Power.

In computing candle power it must be remembered that as there are many different sizes of candles the rate of burning and intensity of light radiated would vary, so that the standard candle, upon which England and the United States agree, must be used. This standard candle is made of pure spermaceti, exactly round, seven-eighths inch in diameter and of a length such that six weigh one pound, and with wick adjusted to burn 120 grains of spermaceti per hour. And the 1,000-900 candle power searchlight must emit a light equal to 1,000,000 standard candles.

Maybe He Got It Back.

Brown and Jones were leaning on a polished counter and talking intimately. Then said Brown to Jones:

"Look here, old man. Suppose you were to come around to my apartments one of these days and should walk up to my room and, receiving no answer to your knock, should come in and find my lifeless body stretched out cold across the bed. Now, in a case like that, what would you do?"

"I'll tell you," answered Jones after thinking it over. "I'd institute an immediate search for the $5 you have owed me for two years."

The New Woman.

Simeon Ford, the humorist, said at a recent dinner:

"The new woman is a commanding figure. Man beckles down to her.

"Man, the conqueror, when he would win a woman in the past, brought her to the dust. Today, on the contrary, he brings the dust to her."—Chicago Record-Herald.

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

As many as 73 different kinds of wood are used in the manufacture of umbrella handles, canes and whips.

If curtains are allowed to dry thoroughly before being starched it will be found that they will last clean longer.

Food articles that are damp should never be left in ordinary paper. Paper is made of wood pulp, rags, glue, lime, and similar substances, intermixed with acids and chemicals. When damp it should not be allowed to come into contact with things that are to be eaten.

In knitting it will be found much easier when casting on stitches, if using very large needles, to introduce an ordinary steel needle in place of the large one held in the right hand. Use the steel needle for knitting the stitch and pass it over the large needle. This is done only when casting on stitches.

The simplest way of dealing with moths is to keep them out of the house altogether, and this can be done at the expense of a few pints of turpentine. Sprinkle the rooms with this once a week, or thereabouts, when the moths begin to hatch out, and they will all die or leave the building. Repeat it if they appear again. Sprinkle a little in drawers where woollen clothes are, and the moths will not come near them.

Children are very fond of treacle pie. To make this you will need 1 lbs. of flour, ¼ lb. of breadcrumbs, ½ lb. of treacle, 6 ozs. of dripping, juice of one lemon, and one teaspoonful of baking powder. Make a paste of the flour, dripping, baking powder, a little water, then line a greased pie-dish with part of it; warm the treacle in a basin and work in the breadcrumbs gradually; lastly add the lemon-juice. Then spread a layer of this mixture in the paste, now put another layer of paste, then more treacle, repeating till the dish is full, but finish up with paste. Bake in a good oven for three-quarters of an hour.

Brown—"They say Green has been wandering in his mind lately." Black—"Well, he's safe enough; he can't go far."

Most of us believe in doing to others as we would have them do to us. But we generally wait for them to do it first.

"I always believe in saving something for a rainy day." "How much have you saved?" "Oh, I haven't saved anything, but I believe in it."

Interesting Side Lights On the Meteoric Career of Tod Sloan, Jockey

LONDON, Nov. 26.—Tod Sloan, once famous jockey, yesterday was deported from England on the charge of operating a gambling house.

Sloan left London at once for Liverpool, planning to board a liner for New York. A French woman, who is alleged to have been his partner, was deported to France.

Fred Archer and Tod Sloan were the two finest jockeys ever seen by living racing men.

In his career of 19 years Archer rode 2,748 winners. Sloan might have equalled this record but his riding license was withheld by the Jockey Club 15 years ago. Since then he has not ridden on an English race course. He was not "warned off"; he was simply advised not to apply for his riding license.

"Monkey-on-the-Stick" Seat

Sloan made the acquaintance of race horses in 1886, the year that Archer died. Archer was the greatest exponent in the last fifty years of the old style of riding Sloan discovered the new one, and revolutionized.

In his book, "Tod Sloan" by Himself" the great American horseman tells how he discovered, quite by accident, the monkey-on-the-stick' seat which made him famous.

One day when going to the post on the Bay District tract in America, Sloan's mount started to bolt. In trying to pull him up, Sloan got up out of the saddle and onto his neck. While he was doing the neck crouch he noticed the animal's stride seemed to be freer, and he determined to put it into practice. He began to win races, and the day of his enforced retirement Sloan always rode his races crouched like a monkey on the horse's neck.

During his first month in England Sloan had 48 mounts and won 21 races. His earnings after paying expenses, were £2,000. Going to Monte Carlo, he played roulette twice a day for six days and won another £2,400. But money slipped through his hands like water. On one occasion in America he chartered a special train to take a few friends to a ball! And on a journey of any length he often had with him as many as 10 pairs of shoes. He had a tiny foot, the size of his shoes being 1 1-2. Among the many women he knew only two could wear them.

Introduced to King Edward.

Sloan was introduced to the late King Edward when he was prince of Wales, by Lord William Beresford, for whom he rode. Later, during one of their many conversations, the prince told the jockey that he was no gambler, and that as a rule, he hardly ever had more than £25 on a horse, but that he used to make an exception and have a couple of hundred pounds on anything Sloan was riding, and he (the jockey) thought would win.

Once at Newmarket Sloan was on his way to mount when the prince beckoned him, and naming his mount, Encombe, he (the jockey) thought would win.

Sloan replied in the affirmative, but Lord Marcus Beresford, who was near, said his horse would beat Encombe, and an animal named Dundonald would beat both.

"Never you mind what Lord Marcus says, your Royal Highness," said Sloan boldly. "You can be a plunger here and have a bit on me."

After a desprate finish Sloan's mount won, and the prince told the jockey he had taken his tip and put £900 on Encombe at 7 to 2 against, thus winning £700.

Sloan will ever regret that when he was introduced to King George at Newmarket he stood talking two minutes and clean forgot to remove his cap.

For the late King Edward Sloan rode many winners, and in 1900 His Majesty, then, of course, prince of Wales, offered, through Lord Marcus Beresford, a retaining fee of 6,000 guineas to have first call of his services for the season of 1901. The English race course steward, however, prevented him from fulfilling the contract, which had been accepted on the spot.

Five winners in One Afternoon.

Meanwhile Sloan had been simply coining money. On September 30, 1900, at Newmarket, he rode five winners in one afternoon. In that season, when he rode 42 winners in three months, he had £10,000 saved. In 1900 he had £37,000 in one bank, besides some good investments in New York and California. But the gambling instinct was abnormally developed. He would lose £350 over a game at "Nap" and win £2,000 at a sitting at roulette. It was gambling on horses, which is against the Jockey Club rules, that terminated his career on the English turf.

He won a race in France on a horse called Codoman. For this he received a present of £700. Sloan thought Codoman could win the Cambridgeshire, and backed his mount, contrary to regulations, heavily. Codoman was beaten; had he won Sloan would have netted £60,000.

"After the Cambridgeshire," Sloan writes, "the stewards sent for me. I guessed that was coming. They told me it had come to their knowledge I had some big bets on Codoman and also that I had been promised a present (running into four figures) by a certain gentleman if the horse won. I acknowledged both things at once. . . . They reprimanded me. I went out to ride as usual, finishing up the week on Encombe, who, as I have said, I advised King Edward, then Prince of Wales, to back."

Once Reduced to Five Francs

And that was the last race the English public saw Sloan ride. His license as a jockey has not been renewed. He had, at this time, £60,000 in ready money in addition to investments. In one month he lost £30,000 in a motor car business. In one day he lost £6,000 racing. One evening he was offered $8,000 for a car he owned. He refused it. The car had to be eventually pawned, and he never saw it again.

Almost incredible ups and downs followed. In an hour and a half one night at Dieppe Sloan and Mr. Solly Joel cleared £1,000 each at baccarat. Before he rose from the table Sloan lost his £1,000 and £7,000 in addition. He was reduced to five francs, and skillfully playing this up on the gambling tables he had stupendous luck to turn it into 27,000 francs—roughly £1,125.

He was later warned off the saddling enclosure and jockeys' room permanently by the French stewards He brought an action, and secured a verdict, removing the ban, but with no damages. To fight the case cost him £600, and to raise this money he had to sell 17 tiepins (one of which cost £500) for £450.

After that Sloan married a chorus girl, who rose to be a star artiste in one night, ran a billiard saloon, himself went on the stage, ran a bookmaking business in a flat and got raided by the police, became a racehorse owner and went in for motor racing. When the present war broke out he was in Paris driving a Red Cross wagon, and all applications to do something more useful or be sent to the front were, he says, usually met by the objection that he had been warned off the turf.

With a career so full of promise, so packed with sensations, and so ingloriously terminated one can almost forgive Sloan's dramatic ejaculation: "God, it is a terrible thing to be barred for life!"

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

For the GIRL WHO is THIN

It is all very well for fleshy people to admire a slim figure, but no girl likes to be referred to as "thin as a match" or "flat as an ironing-board."

Thinness means that the tissues are not properly fed and nourished. It indicates a tendency towards anaemia, which must be overcome in its early stages. You may eat plenty of food, but you are losing weight, and with it reserve force. The blood has got thin and watery.

It is usually the nervously energetic girl or woman who wears herself down by worry and anxiety, until the nerves become irritable and the form emaciated.

This condition never rights itself, and for this reason you must seek external assistance, such as is found in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This treatment should not be confused with fat-forming, oil-composed preparations. It is rather a true tonic, which sharpens the appetite, improves digestion and restores richness to the blood. Through the medium of the blood it feeds and nourishes the starved cells and tissues back to health.

Under this restorative, upbuilding treatment the angles disappear, and the form is rounded out to healthful proportions. The new tissues formed are strong and firm, and give to the body the buoyancy and vigor which makes you look well and feel well. Nervous headaches and indigestion disappear, and you feel again the joy of living. You can prove the benefit obtained by noting each week your increase in weight.

THE BROWN THRASHER

THE brown thrasher breeds throughout the United States east of the Great Plains, and winters in the South Atlantic and Gulf States. It occasionally visits the garden or orchard, but nests in swamps or in groves standing upon low ground. The thrasher's favorite time for singing is in the early morning, when, perched on the top of a tall bush or low tree, it gives an exhibition of vocal powers which would do credit to a mocking bird. Indeed, in the South, where the latter bird is abundant, the thrasher is known as the sandy mocker.

The food of the brown thrasher consists of both fruit and insects. An examination of 636 stomachs showed 36 per cent. of vegetable and 64 of animal food, practically all insects, and mostly taken in spring before fruit was ripe. Half the insects were beetles, and the remainder chiefly grasshoppers, caterpillars, bugs, and spiders. A few predacious beetles were eaten, but on the whole the work of the species as an insect destroyer may be considered beneficial.

Eight per cent. of its food is made up of fruits like raspberries and currants which are or may be cultivated, but the raspberries at least are as likely to belong to wild as to cultivated varieties. Grain, made up mostly of scattered kernels of oats and corn, is merely a trifle, amounting to only three per cent. Though some of the corn may be taken from newly planted fields, it is amply paid for by the destruction of May beetles, which are eaten at the same time. The rest of the food consists of wild fruit or seeds. Taken all in all, the brown thrasher is a useful bird, and probably does as good work in its secluded retreats as it would about the garden, for the swamps and groves are no doubt the breeding grounds of many insects that migrate thence to attack the crops of the farmer.

The minister while on a visit to a neighboring parish, was justly proud of having induced Sandy, the local blacksmith, a confirmed old toper to sign the pledge. Having occasion again to visit the district he took the opportunity to call on Sandy to see whether his pledge was holding good. "Yes," replied Sandy to the minister's anxious inquiries. "I havna' touched a drap of onything for a whole month—I never thocht I could hae done without it lang." "Well done," replied his reverence, with very evident satisfaction. "I suppose you find you can save a little now?" "Aw," said Sandy. "I've saved enough to buy me a new oak coffin wi' brass handles on't if I see ocht for another month I'll be in it."

CHRISTMAS CHEER

EVEN now we are confronted with thoughts of Christmas, and we find ourselves making plans for this great day of the year. Nor is it too early to plan our Christmas menu. In this latter, perchance, the following tested recipes may prove useful:

(Good) Fruit Cake

Two pounds raisins, stoned; two pounds currants; one pound butter; one pound sugar; one and one-quarter pounds flour; 10 eggs; one tablespoon cloves; one wine glass grape wine; one tablespoon allspice; two tablespoons cinnamon; one nutmeg; one teaspoon sweet almond meats, cut in slices; two ounces candied lemon; two ounces citron; a teacup molasses; one-half teaspoonful soda or one teaspoon baking powder. Flour the fruit, bake slowly for three hours.

White Cookies

One cup butter, two cups sugar; one cup of milk; four eggs; one tablespoon caraway seed; one teaspoon soda; two teaspoons cream of tartar. Add flour enough to roll and cut out.

Doughnuts

Two eggs; one cup sugar; one teaspoon soda; one cup milk; one teaspoon melted butter; two cups flour, two teaspoons cream of tartar; one-half a grated nutmeg. Care should be taken not to have dough too stiff. It may require slightly more or less flour than the amount given. If baking powder is used put in three teaspoons. This makes about two and a half dozen cakes.

Lemon Biscuit

One cup sweet milk, one cup white sugar, one tablespoon oil of lemon; pinch of salt; butter half size of an egg; one-half ounce of baking ammonia and one teaspoon cream of tartar.

Marble Cake (White Part)

One and one half cups white sugar; one cup butter, one-half cup sweet milk; one half teaspoon soda; one teaspoon cream of tartar; whites of four eggs.

Marble Cake (Dark Part)

One cup brown sugar; one-half cup molasses; one-half cup butter; one-half cup sour milk; one half teaspoon soda; one teaspoon cream of tartar; yolks of four eggs; cloves, allspice; cinnamon; nutmeg, of each one teaspoon. Beat well.

Christmas Plum Pudding

One pound raisins, chopped fine; one pound currants; three quarter pound bread crumbs; half pound flour; three quarters pound beef suet; three eggs; one-half pound citron and lemon peel; half a nutmeg, one teaspoon ground ginger, two teaspoons baking powder, or one spoon soda; two teaspoons cream of tartar; sweet milk enough to wet all. Tie in a cloth and boil three hours.

FATHER AND SON.

A clubman who posed as a humorist was having his shoes shined at a railway station.

"And is your father a bootblack, too?" he asked the boy at his feet.

"No," said the bootblack. "My father is a farmer up the state."

"Ah!" said the humorist, as he reached for his note book to make an entry. "He believes in making hay while the sun shines."

War Hits London Clubs Severe Blow; Many Close

Pinch of War Is Felt Particularly in Famous Institutions of West End, Where Magnificent Quarters Are Maintained Now at Heavy Expense for Mere Handful of Members.

(Special Dispatch)
LONDON, November 13.

One by one the big West End clubs are closing their doors till the dawn of happier times, for "clubland" is feeling the pinch of the war acutely. A few of the old and well founded service clubs are still doing very well, the war having brought about something like a boom in that variety, which are now having the "time of their lives," but most clubs are badly affected to a greater or less degree.

In the 150 or so leading London clubs there is a nominal membership of more than 60,000. There are giants among them which include the Army and Navy Club with 2,000 members; Constitutional, 6,500; Junior Naval and Military, 2,800; Junior Constitutional, 5,000; Junior United Services, 2,000; Motor, 3,000; National Liberal, 8,200; Naval and Military, 3,000; Public Schools, 2,400; Royal Automobile, 7,880, and United Services, 2,000.

Of course there are important ladies' clubs also, which include the Ladies' Army and Navy, with 2,800 members; Ladies' Imperial, 2,000; New Century, 3,000, New Empress, 1,000, and others equally important. To be considered also are the resorts of specialists—yachting clubs, literary clubs and similar places, with hundreds of clubs not in the first flight.

However trying the period through which clubs have passed since the beginning of the war, a worse one is in prospect if the present strife lasts. From inquiries in authoritative quarters the consensus is that the great political clubs, like the Carlton, the Reform, Junior Carlton and Conservative, together with Arthur's, the Athenaeum, Marlborough, St. James' and others similar, with heavy entrance fees, varying from $150 to $250, will maintain their membership at about normal, as there will be a general disinclination to sacrifice such fees. Again, such clubs as the Army and Navy, Junior Naval and Military, United Services, &c., are not only booming, but adding to their membership, and actually seeking additional accommodation owing to the influx of officers from the front. Most of such clubs, it is expected, will weather the war period, but the smaller service clubs are feeling the pinch, and it is generally believed that after the war high rents—one club actually pays $50,000 a year—and other abnormal expenses, will bring many of them down.

The majority of clubs, speaking generally, are at present very poorly patronized. On one day this week, at six of these great institutions, splendidly furnished, with a membership of nominally 17,000, the attendances between nine A. M. and half-past twelve P. M., were 29, 31, 19, 45, 6 and 29 respectively, or a total of 151. Toward the luncheon hour these numbers were not doubled, and after four o'clock there was a mere "sprinkling" addition.

In most clubs food is being sold at almost cost price. Certainly the profit is almost negligible. Resignations have been pouring in. There are no "waiting" lists now, whereas formerly they used to include hundreds of names.

Some clubs, like The Services, in Stratford place, which took over German property and had a good financial start, have, by lowering subscriptions and tactful circularizing, received applications for membership recently from the North Sea, the Persian Gulf and other areas of the great campaign, but these are exceptional.

One vast institution has had to cut out all special quotations for "ladies'" luncheons, &c. Little wine is being drunk. Cigars of the club variety have given place to the cigarette bought outside. In fact, most of the avenues of club profits have been shut.

With the national test of "economy" everywhere clubs have been largely banned as luxuries and are much in the same position as the West End shops that sell high priced gold, silver, antiquities and art. The people are electing to do without them.

One cannot imagine anything more desolate and unattractive than a poorly patronized, luxurious West End club. In one, once the haunt of diplomatists, five or six may be seen wandering aimlessly about, and it is some weeks since the two splendid billiard tables in a large world famous club have been used.

With the end of the year subscriptions again will be required and will not be paid in many instances. A period of severe financial stress is looming ahead. Many club committees are having gloomy forebodings. The death of their famous institutions is the only prospect.

'No Treating' Order Reduces the London Bar Receipts

(Special Dispatch)
LONDON, November 13.

Early as it may be yet to judge the effects of the "no treating" order upon the drinking habits of the metropolis, that it has resulted in diminishing consumption is clear.

The secretary of a large club with a membership which, while select, is not too exclusive told a correspondent that the result of the order had been roughly to reduce the consumption of drink by about forty per cent.

The manager of a well known West End hotel which possesses a popular buffet and bar complained that since the order his daily receipts had fallen by an amount which fluctuated between twenty-five and forty per cent.

"I think my experience is that of the great majority of hotels," he said. "Where a man formerly brought in a friend or two and stayed some time drinking, he now comes in alone, has his drink and goes away. There has, it is true, been some little treating in cigars and cigarettes, but the additional profit from that is infinitesimal compared with the loss on the drinks."

The same story is told by the majority of public house licensees, and it seems more than likely that the Kensington licensees who have secured a reduction of their rates on the ground of decreased earnings have set an example which will be followed all over the metropolitan area.

Naturally one turns to the statistics in the police courts, and it is significant that in practically all districts a perceptible reduction in the cases of drunkenness has occurred. Curiously enough this seems more noticeable in the western and central districts than the eastern. At Old street, for instance, there has been no reduction in the cases and the Magistrate has publicly expressed his disappointment. At Tower Bridge there have been about thirty less cases than at the same period last year. These figures are rather in excess of other courts and can hardly be taken as fair evidence of London as a whole. But at certain western courts where the total number of cases is rather greater than at Tower Bridge, the cases have fallen very considerably.

But the last few weeks are hardly a fair criterion, for pensions are usually paid quarterly, and the general experience is that the September quarter day results in an increase of drunkenness during October, and seasonal industrial migrations, such as that of the hoppers, also swell the lists in those districts to which the workers return. So that, taken as a whole, the effects of "no treating" order may be considered very satisfactory from the point of view of the promoters.

PRAGUE HAS CHARITY WAR EXHIBITION

As a means of educating the public and also for the purpose of raising money for the war fund, the city of Prague in Austria recently set apart a considerable amount of land where real trenches have been dug. These trenches are the counterparts of those on the western and eastern fronts of the theatre of war.

On this peaceful battle field and the arts and devices of modern warfare are exhibited for the benefit of those who remain at home. There are barbed wire entanglements, mines and concealed guns of every description. Even aeroplanes from which bombs are thrown are included in the exhibition.

LONDON IRISH, HEROES OF LOOS, CARRIED FOOTBALL INTO BATTLE

"On the Ball!" Was Cry That Carried Famous Rifles Forward to the German Lines in First Dash of Big Drive, and "Goal!" They Shouted When Ball Was Landed in the Trenches.

(Special Dispatch)
LONDON, November

One of the most stirring stories of British grit and courage in the war is undoubtedly that of the charge of the London Irish Rifles in the attack upon Loos.

Some of them actually played football right up to the German trenches, but this way only one of hundreds of instances of cool dare devilry that marked a day which, according to Sir Hedley Sandler General Peyton, will stand out as one of the finest actions of the war.

One of the wounded Irishmen, now lying in a London hospital, told a correspondent who called on him the first connected story of the great charge and equally great stand against tremendous odds.

"As soon as we heard the great bombardment start," he said, "we knew the big advance was about to begin, and for nineteen solid days the guns banged away till, as one wit in the regiment put it, 'it was a wonder the shells didn't bally well jam together in the air,' so thick did they come over our heads. When we were ordered one night to the back reserve trenches and 'fed up' we knew the time was near. 'Fattening the calf to slaughter,' said we to ourselves.

"I can't tell you the pride we felt when we heard that we were actually to have the honor of leading the division. Our first objective was to be the Valley Cross Roads, which commanded the way to Loos and Hill No. 70, after taking which we were, if possible, to break through as far as Lens, the key to Douai. After three days' good food and rest we were marched into the first trenches late at night, laden with ammunition, kit bags and trench tools, and, in fact, everything we could carry.

Leading Way Into Battle.

"Our first job was to get over the parapet and start digging about three hundred yards nearer the enemy, and by dawn we had managed to make a sort of ditch about three feet deep all along our front. It was not dangerous work the first night, for the Germans had not spotted us, and we left off at dawn, but when the day broke over the new earthworks and realized what we were up to the first thing they did was to open a hot fire on us. Which startled us not a little.

"The Empire's eyes [illegible] London Irish remember that for you have been chosen to lead the whole division.' But seeing how we got to be a soldier and to have been under fire and in a big wealth of weeks to be able to understand that seven words mean. No man can hear them and remain a coward, for you just feel that all the old people at home would scorn to receive you back unless you had done your utmost.

"A few minutes later we were [illegible] out into the open to finish the [illegible] which was to be our target, and [illegible] for the great dash that we hoped would break the German lines. No sooner had we reached this place than the stillness was broken by the roar of the enemy's guns, and bullets and shells poured over us, the explosions silhouetting us momentarily every few instants, and revealing us hard at work.

"One set of our men, footballers to a man, made a strange resolution. It was to take a football along with them. The officer discovered this and ordered the football to be taken back to the base trench, of course, was carried out. But the old members of the London Irish Football Club were not to be done out of the widest sense of their lives the last time some of them, poor fellows and just before Major Beresford gave the signal the leather turned up again mysteriously.

Carried Football to Enemy's Trench.

"Suddenly the officer in command gave the signal, 'Over you go, lads.' With that one whole line sprang up as one man, some with a prayer, not a few making the sign of the cross. But the footballers merely cracked the ball and went after it just as cool as if on the field, passing it from one to the other, though the bullets were flying thick as hail, crying, 'On the ball, London Irish!' and they actually kicked it right into the enemy's trench with the cry, 'Goal!' though not before some of them had been picked off on the way.

"When we reached the German trench under a cloud of smoke we found nothing but a pack of beings dazed with terror. In a jiffy we were over their parapet and the real work began. A kind of madness comes over you as you stab with your bayonet and hear the shriek of the poor devil suddenly cease as steel goes through him and you know he's gone West. The strain on the nerves was something terrific, every moment you felt as if you were ready to drop from sheer exhaustion, but still you kept up, you couldn't let yourself how.

"In all Monday passed and still no relief came, indeed it was a question whether at all we should not be driven to atoms and the [illegible] after a rush of the enemy. We could hardly stand from fatigue, having been in action, practically since Saturday morning, but still we fought on almost blindly.

"Pigott, one lads said an officer, who was afterward killed, 'you [illegible] remember the division looks to you.' This is enough to stiffen the backbone of a jellyfish, and we fought on and on. Then a single Irishman got nearer than a dozen Germans, and [illegible] Soon we got the word that [illegible] The [illegible] of the [illegible] sent a terrific shell [illegible] for then we knew that we had won.

The After Battle Roll Call.

"The last few hours, however, were terrific. Our own shells and some of our men and under their shells new troops came to relieve us, together with the [illegible] Searles for we responded. As soon as we got to the back trenches in safety a huge cheer went up from all the others. The London Irish—Hurrah!' and [illegible] Then we had to march over the open to the support trenches, which was to be our target, and [illegible] the direction of Lens, which we had hoped [illegible] Later nearly the [illegible] reinforcements as soon as they realized that the loss of Lens probably would mean the loss of Douai, and concentrated their whole counter attack upon some fresh troops who had been out at the front only a fortnight.

"Luckily during the advance a large quantity of supplies had been moored [illegible] and under their shelter new troops came up to old trenches to our new trenches, which were nothing more than the German third line of trenches turned round back to the front, the sandbag parapets having been moved back by us and [illegible] the other side and consolidated as well as time could allow.

"The battle now became terrific. It seemed as if the whole of Krupps was being shelled at us wholesale, while our own artillery was peppering away just a yard from behind our backs. It seemed as if they'd pop our heads off at times between them. 'Stick to it, lads,' said one of our officers. 'Everything depends upon your holding your position. If the once break the line.' It didn't have to finish, that was quite sufficient, and the words of the general came back. 'Remember you're Irish, and the Empire expects great things of you.'

Long Wait for Relief.

"That was enough. It was [illegible] of us had to go under we were determined to do so, but we wouldn't stay [illegible] Hindenburg is coming with half a million men' shouted one German as he advanced. 'Bagorra this, some of the worse for Von Hindenburg and six half million' we shouted and the fight went on.

"There we were, a long, long way [illegible] our own lines, in fact, nearly in the enemy's, isolated from [illegible] help and hardly knowing what was happening around us or what part we were really playing in the great struggle. The strain on the nerves was something terrific, every moment you felt as if you were ready to drop from sheer exhaustion, but still you kept up, you couldn't let yourself how.

"In all Monday passed and still no relief came, indeed it was a question whether at all we should not be driven to atoms and the [illegible] after a rush of the enemy. We could hardly stand from fatigue, having been in action, practically since Saturday morning, but still we fought on almost blindly.

"Pigott, one lads said an officer, who was afterward killed, 'you [illegible] remember the division looks to you.' This is enough to stiffen the backbone of a jellyfish, and we fought on and on. Then a single Irishman got nearer than a dozen Germans, and [illegible] Soon we got the word that [illegible] The [illegible] of the [illegible] sent a terrific shell [illegible] for then we knew that we had won.

The After Battle Roll Call.

"The last few hours, however, were terrific. Our own shells and some of our men and under their shelter new troops came up to relieve us, together with the [illegible] Searles for we responded. As soon as we got to the back trenches in safety a huge cheer went up from all the others. '

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Buying Health. — No matter how many excellent physicians there may be in your community, no matter how many laws may be passed regulating the practice of medicine or the sale of drugs, there is a certain amount of uncommon, not common sense that must be used by each individual for himself if he would retain health.

There are some sayings or quotations that have been passed from one generation to another that bear frequent repetition and one of them is that after the age of 40 a man is either a doctor or a fool. Now, I think that the person who first expressed the idea did not mean that every man must be a graduate in medicine, but that by the time he has lived 40 years he should know, by observation, if in no other way, enough of the natural laws of health and of the simple natural methods of cure that he could at least preserve his own health and teach its law to his family.

Ever since I began to teach the practical laws of health through the public press, something near a quarter of a century ago, there has been a tremendous revolution in this country, and the fight which I then started against [illegible] poisons, opiates, narcotics and whiskey is no longer a one man fight. Many able medical men in all part of the country are constantly supplying well written articles to the weekly and daily papers of the cities and in their own local papers, teaching the laity how to avoid disease. In many states the laws regulating the sale of drugs have been so fully carried out that many makers of vicious and habit forming medicines, have been put out of business. One most excellent law that is in force in some states requires that every proprietary medicine shall be registered and the remedies used shall be stated in plain English terms, whereupon a certificate authorizing the sale is issued. By this simple plan one may actually earn the real value of any remedy offered for the home treatment of ailments, when sold in these states.

About a score of years ago I gave in the Home Health Club lectures a series of talks on the medicinal plants of America and others. These that saved the lectures or procured them later in book form, can readily learn the help or harm that may be had by the use of various proprietary remedies. The formulas for making various herb remedies and how to use them is thus known to many of you and it is not necessary to run to the drug store and buy highly advertised remedies put up under secret formulas.

Buy knowledge and then live up to what you learn and you will thus be your own doctor. Dont' try to buy health in a bottle, the contents of which are known only to the rich advertiser. The simple, old-fashioned, herb remedies are safe and good. If you cannot get them ready made according to the proper formula, make them yourself. I am always ready to tell you how.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT! STOP DANDRUFF AND BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Hair Stops Falling Out and Gets Thick, Wavy, Strong and Beautiful

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a ypung girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, just try it.

The magistrate was examining the witness to whom he remarked:

"You admit you overheard the quarrel between the defendant and his wife?"

"Yis, sor, I do," stoutly maintained the witness.

"Tell the court if you can, what he seemed to be doing?"

"He seemed to be doin' the listening."—Harper's Magazine.

PURPLE WILL BE IN FASHION

Purple in most of its many shades is to be in high fashion this Winter. The frock from the Paris openings show this. Pansy, violet, heliotrope, orchid, cyclamen—by all these flower names is it called and there are other shades besides.

Doubtless violet will be more worn than ever, because of this renewed vogue for purple. And orchids, too, will help to carry out the prescribed color scheme.

The woman who really loves the purple shades will be quite in her element, and she can do no better than to make the color a hobby.

There are all sorts of accessories that can be had in purple. Purple leather is one of the best of the colored leathers, and there are handbags, writing cases, toilet bags, manicure cases, all sorts of little conveniences for traveling, jewelry boxes and many other leather knick-racks already on the market in different shades of purple.

There are beautiful things in purple for house furnishings, too, and the woman who wishes to have her boudoir or bedroom redecorated can do no better than to have the walls covered with gray, with gray net at the windows and purple silk or velour curtains over the net, or a cretonne showing purple on a gray or white ground. In the hand-printed cretonnes and linens there are some lovely purple designs of peacock and parrot and flowers.

Wicker furniture, enameled gray and fitted with purple cushions, or gray enameled wood with purple cushions, help to carry out the color scheme, and for the floor there are lovely rugs in two tones of gray, and some in gray and purple or two tones of lavender.

Be careful in choosing purple for the color of the room to be sure that you like it. People usually either do or do not like these pansy shades. They seldom feel neutral on the subject.

FROCKS AND WRAPS FOR EVENING

Frilled and Fur-Trimmed of Satin, Taffeta and Net

DAINTY CHIFFON SCARFS

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.— Now that winter is upon us and the season of gaities has begun, we find ourselves scurrying about, here and there, hearts in a flurry and brimming over with happy expectation of the coming festivities where we may dance away the merry hours, oblivious of time and the many perplexities of this little world of ours, except for the ever present question of dress.

Alluring Silks and Satins.

There are numbers of dainty silks and sheer fabrics, such as taffeta, gros de Londres, soft satins, chiffons, nets, and novelty brocades which are charmingly suited to dance and dinner frocks. Gros de Londres comes plain and striped, combining often two of the most delicate pastel shades. The soft satins and taffetas are particularly effective, under the web-like tunics now modish. Although many prefer the effective simple frock, others delight in the swaying of tiny ruffles and frills, and the swinging of crispy frilles and taffetas, panniers of filmy fabrics, puffed, shirred, and pleated, quaintly mimicking creations of decades ago. These are carelessly caught up and held in place by tiny clusters of rosebuds, or perhaps a single flower of lace, gold or silver. Metallic ornaments have supplanted trimmings of silk, buds and flowers, to a certain extent, and when used sparingly makes most effective finishes.

The Scarf of Chiffon.

As the frame is to the picture, so is the dainty, filmy scarf to the frock for evening wear; endless ideas may be carried out with these. They are beaded, embroidered, fringed and hand-coloured; developed in the sheerest of nets, chiffons, gauzes and wonderfully patterned Oriental fabrics, designed with visions of Houris and dreamy harem beauties in mind. One of the many effective uses of the scarf is with the sleeveless gown; it may be draped in most becoming ways. A charming example of this was brought to my attention the other evening. The dress was of canary coloured taffeta made with an eight gored skirt, in which alternating gores were of the canary taffeta and satin of a delicate blue. Each gore was rounded at the lower edge and finished with a narrow quilling of chiffon matching the taffeta bodice. Over this striking skirt hung a tunic of canary coloured chiffon, while a wonderfully tinted scarf with pleated tones of canary colour and blue, was draped around the shoulders in a wing-like arrangement giving the effect of sleeves when the arms were raised. The ends were wound loosely around the neck, quite as one would use the regular throw scarf of heavier material. I was exceedingly practical and pleased the eyes of those who appreciate daintiness and grace.

The change to electric power on Sweden's most northerly railroad in the world has increased the train capacity 40 per cent. and the speed 50 per cent. over steam operation.

FLOWERS NOT FOR THE SICK ROOM

In these days of suggestive therapeutics physicians will some day forbid having flowers in the sick room. They wither quickly and as they droop from day to day the patient, desperately ill, takes from their brief and passing beauty a suggestion of the instability of his own life. The metaphor will inevitably suggest itself to a man who has been sick and more readily still to a woman who is convalescing. "The drooping flower is like my life. Only a little—shrivelled to live."

Instead of cut flowers a growing plant should be placed beside the patient. The suggestion it conveys is the reverse. It symbolizes growth, robustness, future strength.

Physical as well as psychological laws make the substitution of growing plants for cut flowers desirable. The cut flower fills the room with a sickly odor, an odor eloquent of decay, weakness, death. The air becomes heavy, if proportion of oxygen is diminished. On the other hand the growing plant purifies the air in the room by attracting what nitrogen it can, which is to plants what oxygen is to human beings.

A Necessity.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

7302

The original model of the dress shown in this illustration was provided by one of the most successful Paris modistes—Jenny. Of course the style has been varied to suit American requirements and tastes, but the main features have been retained.

The blouse is of the jacket type, the edges coming down straight in front, with a soft draped vest in the centre. The collar is wide and of sailor shape. The sleeves are plain at the shoulder and fit the arm to the wrist.

The skirt is a straight model, with the fulness at the top gathered or pleated around the waist and with the lower edge corded or tucked, with a small frill at the base of each group of cordings or tucks, producing the effect of a double skirt, while in reality it is only a single one.

This idea is much liked for taffetas, which has enough body to cause the little frills to stand out as if they were the edges of a flounce. The soft, deep plaits at the top are also becoming to the average figure and may be taped into position without this restraint being visible from the outside.

Voile is also a pretty material for such a style and even a simple gingham will gain much from the beauty line which marks this unusual costume.

The dress pattern, No. 7302, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires with tucks in skirt seven yards of 36 inch material, 1¾ yards of 23 inch silk for girdle and trimming.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

"CABIRIA"

At twilight Batto returns from the pastures to his home in Catana, on the slope of Mt. Etna, and is met by his wife and little daughter Cabiria. Suddenly the peace of the evening is rent by the rumbling of Mt. Etna, which has been quiet for years. Terrified, Batto's household rush to their private temple and offer prayers and sacrifices to the gods, to calm the fury of the elements. Their prayers seem to pacify the gods. The night is again still, when the sleeping people are awakened by the violent tremblings of the earth. Mt. Etna has again broken into eruption and a terrible earthquake accompanies it. The slaves, and with them is Croessa, Cabiria's faithful nurse, and her charge, vainly seek safety among the falling walls, when they discover a secret subterranean passage which leads to where the treasures of Batto are hidden. The sight of the glittering hoard stills their terror. They load themselves with the booty and flee. With them are Croessa and Cabiria. They come safely into the open and at the same time the house they have just left is demolished by the earthquake. Batto and his wife bemoan the loss of Cabiria, whom they believe buried under the ruins. The fugitive slaves divide the booty and Croessa receives a ring with the the seal of Batto engraved upon it.

As the earthquake continues, the slaves, pushed on by hunger, continue their flight and arrive at the seashore, where they find an apparently abandoned boat. They endeavour to escape in it, but the owners, Phoenician pirates, arrive. Croessa and Cabiria are made prisoners and are taken to Carthage, where they are sold as slaves on the market place. Karthalo, the high priest of Moloch, buys Cabiria with the object of offering her as to a sacrifice to the Bronze God.

At this time, between the first and second Punic wars, Fulvius Axilla, a Roman patrician, and his slave, Maciste, are living in Carthage, under disguise, spying on the movements of the rival republic. They frequent the wine-shop of "The Striped Monkey," kept by Bodastoret.

Karthalo visits the chamber at the Temple where the children for the sacrifice are kept. He chooses Cabiria as a sacrifice to Moloch. Croessa vainly endeavours to save Cabiria, pretending that she is ill and therefore not acceptable to the god. But her subterfuge has no effect and Cabiria is doomed. Croessa is punished for her fraud and left unconscious by her tormentors. Recovering, she flees and arrives at a solitary place where she overhears Fulvius and Maciste speaking. Croessa recognizes Fulvius as a Latin and implores him to save Cabiria. She offers him the ring of Batto, saying, "Accept it as a token of piety. The ring will be as a charm. If you save, you will be saved." Fulvius accepts the precious undertaking and with Maciste and Croessa enters the Temple, mingling with the worshippers. As the priest is about to consign Cabiria to the flames which rage inside the enormous monster, Maciste fells the priest, and seizing Cabiria, flees with Fulvius and takes refuge in the wine-shop, "The Striped Monkey."

At this time Hannibal, the Punic general, is crossing the Alps and is menacing Rome. The news is brought to Carthage and heard by Bodastoret, who, anxious to be rid of his unwelcome guests, tells Fulvius, who decides to attempt flight during the night. But Bodastoret secretly advises the priests of Moloch of the proposed flight, and as Fulvius and Maciste, carrying Cabiria, pass the public square they are attacked by the waiting mob. They flee in different directions. Fulvius saves himself by plunging into the sea from the high walls of Carthage, and Maciste, hard pressed, takes refuge in the garden of Hastrubal, chief of the Carthaginian Republic.

That night Massinissa, the Numidian king, has been promised the hand of Sophonsiba, the beautiful daughter of Hastrubal. Massinissa sends her a costly gift and begs that she meet him at moonrise in the garden of the palace. Maciste, with Cabiria, arrives just as Massinissa and Sophonisba meet. "Protect her, and the gods will protect thee," says Maciste to Sophonisba, and places Cabiria in her arms. Sophonisba, to save her good name, hastens away with the child. Massinissa cannot betray Sophonisba, and is obliged to say he has seen no one. On the word of the king the priests leave, taking Maciste with them. He is sentenced to be chained to a millstone for life.

Later we again meet Fulvius Axilla, serving under the banner of the Roman Proconsul, who is besieging Syracuse, the ally of Carthage. The Roman fleet is burned by the genius of Archimedes, who concentrates the rays of the sun on the ships. Terrible panic and confusion reign on the ships, and Fulvius, vainly attempting to make headway against this panic, is pulled into the sea by the sailors. The current draws him into the shore near Catana, and when he has lost all hope of safety he is rescued by servants of Batto, who recognize the ring on his finger. They bring him to their master's house, and here Fulvius Axilla relates the history of the ring and promises his host that should Fate again take him to Carthage, he will seek Cabiria.

Meanwhile, Syphax, King of Cirta, has dethroned Massinissa, who ventures into the desert. Hastrubal, to gain a strong ally against Rome, obliges Sophonisba to marry Syphax. Scipio has brought the war in Africa, which he already holds, and Massinissa, who is anxious to take revenge against Syphax, who took away his kingdom and fiancee, is fighting with Scipio in the hope of crowning himself King of Cirta. Under the banner of Scipio, Fulvius Axilla also serves. Knowing the country, he offers to enter Carthage and spy on its defences. Forming a human pyramid the daring Roman succeeds in arriving at the top of the high walls of the enclosed city and immediately enters it.

That same night Hastrubal holds war council and Karthalo, the high priest, starts for Cirta to induce Syphax to attack the army of Scipio.

Fulvius Axilla, when he has accomplished his duty, remembers Maciste and Cabiria, whom he has not seen in ten years. He goes to his old friend, Bodastoret, the wine-shop keeper, who has prospered with the money he received for his treason. Bodastoret is terrified at seeing Fulvius, who assures him that his only wish is to see Maciste, his faithful slave. Bodastoret accompanies Fulvius to the mill where, unseen, Fulvius sees Maciste turning the grinding-stone. Fulvius and Bodastoret return, but the following night, while Bodastoret sleeps, Fulvius goes back to the mill, where Maciste, his strength redoubled by unexpected liberation, succeeds in breaking his chains. Both flee and descend the walls.

Meantime Karthalo, who has arrived in Cirta, has persuaded Syphax to attack the Romans, but Scipio having heard of the impending assault has moved his camp to a more advantageous point, and when Fulvius and Maciste arrive at the place where the camp formerly was, they find it deserted. At the same time Massinissa has attacked the camp of Syphax, and succeeds in setting it afire. The soldiers of Cirta, fleeing from the burning camp, encounter Fulvius and Maciste wandering without hope in the desert, and both are taken prisoners and brought to Cirta. Here the news of the unexpected rout arrives at the moment when Karthalo is about to leave, but Cirta must close its gates against the arriving foe and Karthalo is obliged to remain in the besieged city. The prisoners are condemned by Sophonisba to die of starvation and thirst. But Elissa, the favourite slave of Sophonisba, takes pity on their sufferings, and during the night brings water to them.

Massinissa has now arrived under the walls of Cirta, and directs a fierce attack against it. Sophonisba, grieving for the plight of her country, has a terrible dream. She dreams that all the evils come through her, the wrath of Moloch being vented on her people because she has saved a victim meant for him. She sends for Karthalo to interpret her dream and Karthalo orders that the girl be rendered to him. Sophonisba points out Elissa to him, as the grown-up Cabiria. Karthalo, who has already coveted the frail beauty of Elissa, has her brought to his room. Meanwhile Maciste, to while away the time, has bent the bars of his prison and escaped, and seeing the high priest, Karthalo, he longs for revenge upon his old tormentor. He climbs a tree which brings him to the window of the room of Karthalo. In the room Karthalo is menacing Cabiria, saying she should choose between Moloch or him. From his words Maciste recognizes in the slave Elissa, little Cabiria. He drops into the room and saves Cabiria from the hands of Karthalo. The noise of the conflict attracts the servants, and Maciste, taking Elissa in his arms, flees and rejoins Fulvius, who has also escaped through the bent bars and has been attracted by the alarm given in the castle. Defending themselves against the pursuers they force a door and take refuge behind it. But in the scuffle Cabiria is left outside and is taken again by the servants and made prisoner.

Fulvius and Maciste have been favoured by Fortune. They are in the cellar of the palace where the provisions are stored and here Maciste tells Fulvius that the beautiful young girl who brought water to them is no other than Cabiria.

Massinissa, meanwhile, has brought King Syphax, who has been made prisoner in the rout, to the walls of Cirta. When the terrified people of Cirta see their king in chains they open the gates. Massinissa, at the head of his soldiers, arrives at the palace of the king and is met by Sophonisba, her hands in chains. She says to the conqueror, "O Massinissa, glorious lord of the Romans, if Sophonisba is part of the booty, take her." Enchanted by the regal beauty of the woman he has once loved and who should have been his wife, Massinissa kneels and answers, "I do not take the Queen, but the Queen takes me. I consecrate my sword to thee."

Massinissa, to save the woman, marries her, hoping that the wife of Massinissa will not adorn the triumph of the Roman Consul. Fulvius and Maciste continue their resistance and Massinissa, having heard of their bravery, wants to know the two heroes. He obtains the grace of Sophonisba for them, and Fulvius then dares to ask news of Elissa. "She is no more," answers Sophonisba, and broken-hearted, Fulvius and Maciste return to the camp of Scipio, who is now in front of Cirta. Here Scipio hears of the marriage of Massinissa, and fearing that the enchantress, Sophonisba, will draw Massinissa from the Roman faith, he sends a messenger to Massinissa, asking him to come immediately to his camp. Here he asks that Sophonisba be delivered as part of the booty, and as Massinissa refuses, Scipio holds him prisoner and orders his adjutant to arrest Sophonisba. The officer in charge of this arrest is Fulvius. Massinissa, who sees him, begs him as a favour for the grace he has obtained from Sophonisba to be allowed to send a message secretly to Sophonisba. Through Maciste he sends poison, and Sophonisba understands that she must die so as not to fall into the hands of the Roman Consul. She takes poison, and when Fulvius arrives, she is on the point of death, but she is still Queen, and wishing to repay the gift of death received from Fulvius, she orders a servant to bring up Elissa, who is still awaiting death, and gives her to Fulvius.

The war is now ended and the Roman ships again cross the seas. Fulvius and Cabiria, happily united, sail for the shores of Cabiria's childhood.

This is the story in brief of the great moving pictures to be seen at the Grand, December 2, 3, and 4.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and took it a winter and spring. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."—Miss ADELIA LAGRELLIER, 2021 Toulouse St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pains in my back and side, and severe headaches. I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."—Miss ESTELLA MAGUIRE, 110 Tawing St., St. Clair, Pa.

There is nothing that teaches more than experience. Therefore, such letters from girls who have suffered and were restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be a lesson to others. The same remedy is within reach of all.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Coughed Almost All Night

WITH THAT

DRY, TICKLING SENSATION

IN HER THROAT.

How many people have lost a good night's sleep by that nasty tickling sensation in the throat?

The dry, hard cough keeps you awake, and when you get up in the morning you feel as if you had had no rest at all.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a specific for just this kind of a cough, as it is composed of the most soothing and healing expectorant herbs, roots and barks known to medical science.

Mrs. Joseph Hiley, Orangeville, Ont., writes: "Just a few lines to let you know what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. I took a severe cold, and coughed almost all night with that dry, tickling sensation in my throat. The first bottle did me so much good I thought I would try the second one, and I am pleased to say "Dr. Wood's" resulted in a complete cure."

There is nothing that can take the place of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. There is nothing "just as good."

"Dr. Wood's" has been on the market for the past twenty-five years.

It is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price, 25c and 50c.

About Baby

IV.

THE best indication of proper development is a right increase in weight coupled with increase in muscular strength.

At five months Baby should be able to hold his head erect.

At seven months he will be able to sit up for a while.

The 'Allenburys' Foods Nos. 1, 2 and 3 provide the right nourishment for Baby step by step, and promote sturdy growth and sound development.

Married the Day They Met.

Horace Greeley and Mary Young Cheney were married the first day they met. They had corresponded for some time, a common friend who was something of a matchmaker having brought this about. She was all his fancy painted her, but she was much disappointed in his appearance, so much so that when he appeared before her, having proposed and been accepted by letter, she frankly told him that, although she married him, she was not in love with him. Their married life was long and happy, and the loss of his wife was a blow which Greeley did not long survive.

Bird Structure.

Birds belong to the vertebrates, or backboned animals. They are distinguished from the rest of the vertebrates by the graceful outlines of their bodies, by their clothing of feathers, toothless jaws and the fore limbs, or wings, being adapted to flying. Nature has made many wonderful provisions in the bird, especially in the formation and arrangement of the bones. These are compact and in many cases hollow, thus combining lightness with strength. The first bone of the backbone is so freely jointed to the skull that birds can turn their heads around and look directly back.

Smallpox.

Smallpox appeared to have been first described by Rhazes, an Arabian physician living about 900 A. D. It was introduced into southern Europe in the time of the crusades and slowly spread into the more northern regions. In 1517 it was carried from Spain to Santo Domingo and thence to Mexico, where it is said to have swept off 3,500,000 of the natives. It spread rapidly all over the new world and whole villages, and even tribes of Indians were carried off by it.

Frenchwomen In Business.

If the Englishwoman fails in business that proves her inferior in one respect at least to her sisters across the channel. Frenchwomen succeed as shopkeepers, and many large businesses are entirely under feminine control. The difference between the two nationalities in this respect is indicated by the name above the shop doors. Who ever saw "Mr. and Mrs. ——" above an English shop? In Paris, however, "M. and Mme. ——" and even "M. —— et femme" are quite common.—London Opinion.

Proof.

In a city boarding house some time ago the guests were working away at the evening meal when Mr. Jones broke through the din of clattering knives and forks.

"I was reading of a new cure this morning," he remarked, glancing around the table. It seems that you take off your shoes and stockings and walk barefooted—"

"What do you think of that cure, Mr. Jones?" eagerly interrupted the landlady, who had also read the story. "Do you really think that walking barefooted through grass will make one strong and healthy?"

"Well, smiled Mr. Jones, strenuously trying to cut a piece of meat, "it seems to have made this beef pretty tough."

If Germany Won

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Professor Butler, speaking at Batley, gave a clear indication of what would probably happen in this country "if Germany won," and showed how necessary it is that recruiting should be strongly stimulated:

The Germans, if they succeeded, would levy upon the United Kingdom a stupendous fine, not less than four thousand million pounds. To secure payment they would occupy this country with an armed force, take control of the Imperial Treasury and of its financial system, including the banks, and proceed to realize their claim. Their first step would be to get as much of the indemnity as possible by levy on our possessions. They would seize the Fleet and our merchant shipping, and transfer the whole to the German flag. All coal mines and other valuable deposits of minerals would be confiscated to the German State.

A register would be made at once of all valuable possessions in the United Kingdom, whether in public or private ownership, and all would be forfeit to the enemy. The British Museum, the National Gallery, the Victoria and Albert Museum, and other gallaries would be stripped of their treasures. Every private bank balance would be commandeered. All securities, whether in public or private hands, would be taken over without any compensation. The railways and all other means of communication would be forfeit to the German power, which would also control the Customs and postal service. What after a valuation of this plunder, remained unpaid of the indemnity of four thousand million pounds would have to be raised by taxation, imposed under German direction, and enforced by German arms.

In order that the taxable resources of the United Kingdom should be kept alive, emigration would be forcibly stopped, and the population would be compelled to work under German direction, and with a brutality of control which events in Belgium helped them to imagine. All representative Government, whether in Parliament, in the County Counicls, or in the Municipalities, would be suspended. The United Kingdom, so long as any part of the debt was unpaid, would be under German martial law, supported by the scientific administration of German officials. The German plan would be to strip the United Kingdom of its accumulated wealth, both public and private, and then to set its inhabitants to forced labor until the indemnity, including interest on arrears, had been wiped out. The population would be forbidden any weapons of defence. Every man and woman would be watched by German police.

The United Kingdom, under vigilant and pitiless administration, would be made a mere reservoir of Germen revenue and the Western outposts of German foreign trade, which would pour out of the port of Antwerp down the Channel, under cover of German guns at Dover and beyond. In the meantime, by the occupation of Egypt and the Suez Canal, the backbone of our Eastern Empire would have been broken.

In a word, until the menace was at an end, John Bull would have to put himself under something like German discipline, and Britannia would wear a German helmet.

"You want to be what?" demanded the conductor.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING IDNEYS

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged, and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

D.D.D. In Hospitals; Standard Skin Remedy

How many hospital patients have been soothed of their frightful itch, of the scorching pain or skin disease, by the famous D. D. D Perscription for eczema, a soothing fluid, washed in by a nurse's hand!

A SUPERVISING NURSE (name of nurse and institution on application), writes regarding a patient: "The disease had eaten her eyebrows away. The nose and lips had become disfigured Since the use of D. D. D. her eyebrows are growing, her nose and face have assumed their natural expression.

Doctors, too, use D. D. D. in private practice. DR. GEO. T. RICHARDSON frankly writes: "D.D.D. is superior to anything I have ever found. Soft and soothing, yet a powerful agent."

To do the work, D. D. D. Prescription must be applied according to directions given in the pamphlet around every bottle

All druggists of standing have the famous specific at 25c and $1 a bottle.

But we are so confident of the merits of this perscription that we will refund the purchase price of the first full size bottle if it fails to reach your case. You alone are to judge.

A CHILD'S TONGUE SHOWS IF LIVER OR BOWELS ARE ACTIVE

If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Give Fruit Laxative at Once

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without griping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, Mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile, and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of Mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by A Single Application

THE STYLE AT PRESENT

WASHING windows, flourishing the broom and dust cloth, and making general preparations for the coming winter, are quite in order these days. A very important duty, too, and one we fear that many of us are apt to neglect, is that of spending some time in the cellar making things thoroughly sanitary. Some very practical suggestions from our contemporary, "Successful Farming," might be read and put to good use just now. The suggestions follow:

Where both the walls and floor of the cellar are of concrete, they should be washed thoroughly. If only the walls are of concrete, stone or brick, the floor being dirt, they may be brushed down well with a damp cloth or old broom.

It will prove time well spent to take all barrels, bins, and boxes out in the open air, washing and drying them thoroughly before returning them to the cellar.

Clean out every particle of rubbish, especially any rotted or decaying fruit or vegetables that may be present. See that the drain leading from the cellar is in prime working order. It may not be needed any more this fall, but next spring, while the ground is partly frozen and the surface of it is a veritable slush to work in, your drain may fail to carry off the moisture if it is not put in shape at this time.

Having thoroughly cleaned out the cellar, sprinkle some lime and ashes on the floor, throw open all the windows, doors, and ventilators, leaving them open a day or two. This admits air, sunshine, and with the influence of the lime and ashes, purifies and freshens the interior. Then, when you begin putting away fruit and vegetables in the cellar, store only those which are fresh, solid and in prime keeping condition, as they will be confined for months, and any contamination created in the cellar will not only spread and ruin many valuable products, but such conditions under the living rooms of the house are very apt to start some dangerous disease among the members of the farm household. This makes the cleaning and purification of the cellar not only a question of economizing in stored products, but one of health and sanitation in the family.

How To Save Your Eyes

Try This Free Prescription

Do your eyes give you trouble? Do you already wear eyeglasses or spectacles? Thousands of people wear these "window" who might easily dispense with them. You may be one of these, and it is your duty to save your eyes before it is too late. The eyes are neglected more than any other organ of the entire body. After you finish your day's work you sit down and rest your muscles, but how about your eyes, do you rest them? You know you do not. You read or do something else that keeps your eyes busy, you work your eyes until you go to bed. That is why so many have strained eyes and finally other eye troubles that threaten partial or total blindness. Eyeglasses are merely crutches; they never cure. This free prescription, which has benefited the eyes of so many, may work equal wonders for you. Use it a short time. Would you like your eye troubles to disappear as if by magic? Try this prescription. Go to the nearest wideawake drug store, and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets; fill a two ounce bottle with warm water drop in one tablet and allow it to thoroughly dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. Just note how quickly your eyes clear up and how soon the inflammation will disappear. Don't be afraid to use it; it is absolutely harmless. Many who are now blind might have saved their eyes had they started to care for them in time. This is a simple treatment, but marvellously effective in multitudes of cases. Now that you have been warned, don't delay a day, but do what you can to save your eyes and you are likely to thank us so long as you live for publishing this prescription. The Valmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail if your druggist cannot.

Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then and never know the misery caused by a lazy liver, clogged bowels, or an upset stomach.

Don't put in another day of distress. Let Cascarets cleanse your stomach; remove the sour, fermenting food; take the excess bile from your liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Then you will feel great.

A Cascaret to-night straightens you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A 10-cent box from any drug store means a clear head, sweet stomach and clean, healthy liver and bowel action for months. Children love Cascarets because they never gripe or sicken.

A NEW DISK PLOUGH

THE main features of this machine No. 276086, are a number of sharp disks, mounted near each other on the same shaft, which cut into the soil by the weight of the whole machine and lift by friction a slice of earth which is then broken up by a series of knives mounted on a second shaft which may be situated over or behind the disks. In order to prevent the rapidly revolving knives being injured by stones or the like they are not rigidly attached to the shaft, but are mounted in such a way as to allow relative motion between them.

Besides, they may be arranged in such a way to the lifted slice that only the outside of the latter is broken up and thrown backwards, while the inner portion is scraped off and allowed to fall on the revolving knives which break it up and throw it into the bottom of the furrow. Figs. 1 and 3 are cross sections of the working parts of the machine and fig 2 is an elevation of the knives mounted on a shaft A and kept at the proper distances from each other by rings S. A nut A' presses them all tightly together, but it allows some freedom to each blade when the resistance exceeds a certain limit. In fig. 1 the blades are placed over the disks and in fig. 3 they are situated behind; with this arrangement the soil is completely turned over.

GERMAN FINANCE RECKLESS

Lord Inchcape Says Disaster Will Follow the Course of Berlin.

LONDON, Nov. 24.—Lord Inchcape, (Sir James Mackay), in his inaugural address as President of the Institute of Bankers to-day, said the financial policy of Germany bore the marks of recklessness and improvidence. None of the money required for the war has been raised by increased taxation, and each successive loan meant a fresh inflation of the currency, which showed itself in a steady rise in prices.

The more this procedure was persisted in, said Lord Inchcape, the more would prices rise, and all official attempts to fix maximum prices, though they might be successful for a time in regard to individual commodities, would be powerless to meet the situation. The task of redeeming the securities and retiring the notes would be left for an exhausted and defeated nation to face after the conclusion of peace.

The Government of this country, said Lord Inchcape, had resisted all temptations to unsound methods. "As certain as the sun will rise to-morrow," he concluded, "Germany and her militarism will be crushed, and the peace of the world, so far as anything she can do to prevent it, will be secured for another hundred years."

EAT BIG MEALS! NO SOUR, ACID STOMACH, INDIGESTION OR GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" is Quickest, Surest Stomach Relief Known—Try It!

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Pape's Diapepsin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

PRECOCITY

"Father, inquired the little brain twister of the family, "when will our baby brother be able to talk?" "Oh, when he's about three, Ethel." "Why, can't he talk now, father?" "He is only a baby yet, Ethel, and babies can't talk." "Oh, yes, they can, father," insisted Ethel. "For Job could talk when he was a baby." "Job! What do you mean?" "Yes," said Ethel. "Nurse was telling me to-day that it says in the Bible, Job cursed the day he was born."

Not a Man Fell Out

SALONIKI, Monday, Nov. 24.—A contingent of slightly over 100 French marines, who took part in the defense of Belgrade and have marched all the way from that city, has reached Monastir. The marines were sent to Serbia in October last year, at the same time as similar contingents from Russia and England.

During the march, which, considering the late period of the year, might almost be called a forced one, not a single man fell out, though every inch of the way the roads were little better than a torrent bed, and all had to be covered afoot. The men on their arrival were in fine spirits and inclined to make light of their splendid feat of endurance.

Captain Picot, who is in command, states that the fire from German artillery which they had to withstand passed all possible description. He added:

"On a position 100 by 50 meters the Germans showered one shell every second. We had good luck, for our losses were only two killed and three wounded. Our position, however, became untenable when two of our three guns were disabled before we went, and then the Germans were only a few hundred yards away. We rendered our remaining gun useless. The slight extent of our losses was due to the fact that our position was extremely well protected.

"One can say nothing too high regarding the manner in which the Serbians fought. Their resistence was heroic and stubborn, and I am not at all pessimistic as to the future. The Serbian Army retired in good order, and will, I am convinced give a good account of itself when it is able to advance again, as it will when the movement of our allies in the south relieves the pressure on it."

Captain Picot tells the following story about a German prisoner whom the Serbs took. After having been examined, he expressed his feeling of surprise thus:

"I was at Brest-Litovsk a few weeks ago. When we entrained we were told vaguely we were going to France. Somewhere—I have not the ghost of a notion where—we were put on board ship, and finally came here. Suddenly, in the midst of my first fight, I was, to my surprise, taken prisoner by the Serbs, taken before an English Admiral, and then handed over to the French marines. "Donnerwetter! Where on earth am I? Are we in Europe? I give it up!"

Society Women Learn Hair Curling Secret

"If your hair is straight, flat, dull looking, I need not ask if you long to possess perpetually wavy, light, fluffy, glossy tresses," says Gladys Coleman in Society World. "I'll tell you what to do. To-night after your hair has had its usual brushing, take a clean tooth brush, dip it in a saucer of pure liquid silmerine, and run this through the hair from crown to tip.

"When morning dawns and you have pawned yourself out of your downy cot, you will have a real surprise, quite an agreeable one. Your hair will have a prettier and more natural looking curl and lustre than it ever had before—and there will be nothing streaky sticky, greasy or anything unpleasant about it. If you will get the liquid silmerine from your druggist it will require no preparation at all, and four or five ounces will last for months. This is the finest thing imaginable for the purpose."

ALLIED OFFENSIVE SOON IN THE BALKANS

4000 TROOPS LANDING EACH DAY AT SALONIKA

125,000 ALLIED TROOPS IN BALKANS THOUSANDS MORE ARE ON THEIR WAY

Earl Kitchener Said to Have Received Permission for Allies to Use Other Ports Than Salonika for Landing New Forces---Train Loads of French and British Soldiers Arrive in Monastir to Participate in the Defense of the Town---Strumnitza Bombarded by French Aviators

101,000 SERBS ARE PRISONERS SAYS BERLIN

LONDON, Nov. 27.—An official announcement has been made to the commanders of the Allied troops at Salonika of the guarantees given by the Greek Government relative to the freedom of action of their armies. Press despatches from Athens say that the French and British forces landed at Salonika have now attained important proportions. The Patris of Athens gives their number at 125,000. These forces are abundantly supplied with arms and ammunition. Some 30,000 or 45,000 more men are said to be on the way to Salonika, at which port 4,000 troops are debarking each day. Earl Kitchener has obtained permission from the Greek Government for the Allied troops to land at Greek ports other than Salonika, according to an Athens despatch.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Serb prisoners in German, Austrian and Bulgarian hands now number 101,000, reports to the War Office announced to-day.

TO CO-OPERATE WITH ENTENTE POWERS.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—That Italy, which has hitherto played practically a lone hand in the European war, will co-operate fully with the Entente Powers henceforth is confidently expressed here to-day as a result of Kitchener's visit to Rome. The Allies did not greatly feel they needed Italian aid until the German drive through the Balkans began. Owing both to Italy's geographical position and to the fact that she can spare a large number of troops for a new campaign, her assistance in the Near East would now, however, be valuable.

It is to enlist Italian aid, it is believed, that Kitchener is in Italy, and opinion is general here that he will be successful.

Diplomats say that the main thing will be to satisfy the Italians that they will get the possessions they want on the Balkan Peninsula and in Asia Minor, even though the Greeks should ultimately join the Allies.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—An Allied offensive on a large scale seemingly is about to begin in the Balkans. British troops, hitherto in small force as compared with the French in the Near East, are reported landing in large numbers to-day at Salonika. The Serb line before Monastir is holding firmly. Trainloads of Allied soldiers are arriving in the town to aid in its defence. The news that French aviators have bombarded Strumnitza furnished the first assurance in several days that operations in South-Western Bulgaria are still progressing.

PARIS, Nov. 27.—By releasing clouds of asphyxiating gas along the front between Forges and Bethincourt, on Friday night, the Germans gave the French the impression that a general assault was about to begin. The French troops were on the alert to repel it, but no attack followed, the official communique announced to-day. In the Meuse region and elsewhere, said the report, conditions are unchanged. A French military aeroplane fell into the River Aisne, but two airmen with it swam ashore.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Norwegian steamship Klar, 500 tons, was sunk by a German submarine. Eight of the crew landed to-day.

ATHENS, Nov. 27.—Germanic forces now control all of Northern Serbia except for operations of guerilla bands of Serbs who are continually harassing and interfering with the operations of the invaders.

BERLIN, Nov. 27.—Major Moraht, in the Tageblatt, estimates that about 75,000 men of the Serbian army have reached, or are about to reach, Albanian and Montenegrin soil. He figures also that 130,000 have been captured and as many more killed, wounded or sick.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 27.—The French soldier whose confession to the German military authorities led to the arrest of Miss Edith Cavell, the English nurse, whom the Germans executed at Brussels, committed suicide on Thursday by hanging himself in a military prison, according to advices from the Belgian capital to-day.

ATHENS, Nov. 27.—The Serbs captured Krushevo, south of Prilip, from the Bulgars to-day.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—About forty prominent persons have accepted Henry Ford's invitation to make a trip to Europe on his peace ship, it was announced this afternoon. The names may be made public when Ford returns from Baltimore this evening.

BALTIMORE, M.D., Nov. 27.—Cardinal Gibbons to-day heard the plan of Henry Ford to get European war soldiers "out of the trenches by Christmas." But, like President Wilson, he withheld judgment on the proposal.

CITY DEPUTATION HAS RETURNED FROM VISIT TO TORONTO

Provincial Board of Health Reserves Decision Respecting Site for Sewage Disposal Plant

TWO PROPOSED SITES

The Provincial Board of Health has reserved its decision in the case of the city's application for the Board's approval of a site for the sewerage pumping station. A deputation, comprising His Worship Mayor Buller, Aldermen Green, Edgar, Evans, Langford, City Engineer Parsons, and City Solicitor Gordon waited upon the Board yesterday with the above result. The townships of South Monaghan, North Monaghan and Otonabee were represented by Mr. E. A. Peck, Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, and Deputy Reeve E. Doyell, and about twenty ratepayers. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for a number of private interests.

Two Plans Submitted.

Plans of two locations were submitted by City Engineer Parsons. One plan concerns the H. P. Kennedy property, which was objected to by the ratepayers, and the other deals with a location on the Wilson property.

The civic deputation was anxious to have the Board approve of the two sites so as to facilitate negotiations when the time comes to purchase one of the properties. Objections were made respecting the smell that such a plant might create.

After the pros and cons of the matter had been threshed out, the Board decided to reserve their decision.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT BY BOYS' CLUB

Held Last Evening in the Ashburnham Hall—In Aid of the New Rink

The Boys' Club of Mark street church, Ashburnham held an enjoyable concert in the Hunter street hall last evening. The boys intend having a rink this winter at the corner of Hunter and Mark streets and it was on behalf of this laudable enterprise that the entertainments last evening was given. The hall was well filled with the friends of the boys, and as a result quite a good sum was realized. The chair on this occasion was taken by Mr. J. J. Turner Jr., who after a few introductory remarks, announced the following numbers:

Selection—St. James' choir.
Vocal solo, "The Homeland"—Miss Emmerson.
Recitation—Master Percy Luther.
Musical selection—Loder Brothers.
Vocal solo—Mr. E. Wand.
Selection—St. James' choir.
Vocal—Mark street church male quartette.
Vocal solo—Miss Austin.
Comic number—Pte. Robt. Hendry.

Address—Rev. Mr. Whatton.
Vocal solo—"My Ain Folk"—Miss Hincheliffe.
Banjo selection—Mr. Frank Clark.
Selection—St. James' choir.

At the conclusion of the programme a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the artists who took part, it being moved by Harry Nellist and seconded by Harold Quinn.

"London's a dreary sort of place, and the smoke's something awful!" the returncountryman was telling his awed village friends. "It's so thick, the air is, that I wonder anything grows there. I planted some cress in a box on my window sill, to remind me of home, and what do you think came up?"

One suggested wheat, while another thought oats more likely. But most of them remained silent, looking at their venturesome friend with respect.

"All wrong!" said the returned traveller presently. "A policeman came up and told me to take the box down at once!"

ALLOWANCES TO THE DISABLED SOLDIERS

PETERBORO' BOY TO BE HONOURED BY THREE NATIONS

Sergt. Reuben Beavis Has Received D.C.M. From the King and French Legion of Honour and is to Get Russian Cross of St. George

HAS THIRTY-SEVEN WOUNDS

Further details in connection with the heroism of Sergt. Reuben Beavis whose home is in East City and who was one of the well known Peterborough boys to go to the front with the first Canadian contingent, have been received by a relative of Mr. E. H. Mann in the following letter from the Agent General for Ontario in England. Sergt. Beavis is a native-born Canadian and is widely known in the city:

London, Eng., Nov. 8, 1915.

E. H. Mann, Esq.,
Mgr. Mann Lumber Co.,
Peterborough, Ont.:

Dear Sir,—I beg to inform you that while visiting the Canadian wounded in this country on October 27th, Mr. J. M. Clark, a representative of the Ontario government, saw your friend Sgt. R. Beavis, No. 6496, 3rd Battalion, who is suffering from 37 wounds, shrapnel, bayonet and bullet. He has lost one leg and the sight of one eye. He is receiving attention in the London and Counties Hospital, Epsom, where he is very comfortable and able to be up and about.

He is looking very well and making splendid progress, but his spine still bothers him. The Germans drove a sword three times through his groin, ruining him for life.

He has been presented with the D.S.M. by the King, the Legion of Honour by the French Government and the Cross of St. George is coming from the Czar of Russia.

We will see that his wants are supplied and everything will be done to make him as comfortable as possible.

Respectively yours,
R. REID.
Agent General for Ontario.

Gift to Mother.

His Worship Mayor Buller has received a copy of the above letter and is of the opinion that something should be done to recognize the honour that has been brought to Peterborough as a result of Sergeant Beavis' gallant conduct. He proposes to suggest that on behalf of the citizens of Peterborough, free transportation to the Old Country be granted to Mrs. Beavis so that she may visit her son during the convalescent period and if possible return to Peterborough with him.

It is evident from the communication that the nature of Sergeant Beavis' injuries will totally incapacitate him and it will remain for the city to supplement the compensation provided by the Government. Mayor Buller proposes to have the matter placed in the hands of the special committee appointed to deal with the question of adequately providing for returning soldiers.

SOLDIERS AND SAILORS AT BIG FOOTBALL GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—From forty to fifty thousand soldiers and sailors and plain civilians, like President Wilson and his intended bride, Mrs. Norman Galt, are gathered here to-day, to witness the great national test of supremacy on the gridiron between the Army and Navy football teams. Odds this morning are greatly in favour of the Army, but the Navy supporters are confident.

Statement From Local Patriotic Officer Shows What Temporary Grants Have Been Made to Some of Peterborough's Men Who Are Back From the Front.

TO ALLAY APPREHENSION

Referring to the circumstances under which the disabled or partially disabled soldier returns to his home or to the locality in which he resided previous to enlistment there exists some very serious misconception. It is, if one takes comment on the street, the impression that the returned soldier is turned out and sent on to his destination with practically no resources to tide him over a period of convalescence.

This view is seen in the remonstrances that something must at once be done for the relief of the disabled man. This call is one eminently proper and the more insistent it is the more likely that some provision will be made. That is recognized. But to allay public apprehension the following particulars are printed which are taken from the official returns made to the local patriotic offices. It is assumed by the authorities that the sums allowed will do for immediate necessity, and while the several cases are being determined by the Pensions and Allowances Board. It must be recollected that this is our first war participation to any great extent, and that we are gradually learning to do a whole lot of things of which previously we had no experience and no opportunity of gaining knowledge.

In the case of the reservists who return the circumstances are different, should he return as partially disabled he is looked after as is the Canadian soldier, but at the expense of the British government. If he return unwounded he is in the position of a man who has had a contract, honourably filled its conditions, been paid his wages and leaves employment. No retiring allowance is made, so it is understood. He may enlist again, as many good men whose services are of the greatest value, are doing. He is then a Canadian soldier and will participate in the Canadian allowance. Both British and Canadian dependents are cared for by the Patriotic Fund.

Following are the official notations, and while the matter may be considered a private one the public are concerned in what is being done. It may be explained that on leaving for his destination the soldier is given $100.00 and the balance forwarded in monthly payments. The case is in the meantime before the Pension Board for permanent adjustment.

STENSON, C. W.—This soldier is suffering from bronchitis and rheumatism, and has been discharged by the Medical Board as unfit for further military service. Three months pay, etc., amounting to $247.19, has been awarded him pending the decision of the Pension Board. His permanent disability is assessed at 25 per cent. for three months.

LENOIR, W.—Three months pay, etc., amounting to $29.00 with permanent disability assessed at 25 per cent. for three months.

MOWRY, M. F.—Two months pay, etc., amounting to $80.00, and disability at 25 per cent. for three months.

PARRINGTON, P.—Three months pay, etc., amounting to $73.41 and disability at 50 per cent. for six months.

COOPER, J. R.—Three months pay, etc., amounting to $26.22, and disability at 100 per cent. for three months.

All of these will be determined by the Pension Board as to disability in the future and allowance therefor. The case of Sergt. Cooper is one particularly distressing, suffering from gas poisoning and shock he is practically a nervous wreck. All sympathy is expressed for the returned soldier and for the family which finds its bread winner totally helpless. But no doubt, so far as allowances can alleviate the case, such will be made and should be liberal.

THE BULL DOG WATCHES.

It is not well "to shout till we are out of the woods"; but when under the convoy of the British navy, 164,000 Canadian troops are carried across seas without the loss of a man the British Jack Tar deserves a pat on the back.

GOOD INVESTMENTS.

The City Trust was moderate in its subscription to the war loan, with its modest $20,000. The little town of Welland has subscribed $50,000; and with good justification. The sinking funds held by the town could not be invested better than in a loan that nets five and a half per cent. It is estimated that the additional interest receipts of the town compared with what the funds at present yield, will be $1,200 per year for ten years. Would it not have been well if the money were available, for Peterborough to have invested in the loan a larger sum than $20,000?

FUTILE PEACE TALK.

A great deal of newspaper space is wasted over the premature peace propaganda that is being urged by some whose interest in humanity is more to their credit than their judgment or knowledge of the temper of the Entente Powers. The crusade for peace is untimely. Peace cannot be even thought of, so long as the power that provoked the war in enmity to the highest human interests of the world, is unbroken. We can't ask a shepherd to lay aside his gun so long as the wolf that is destroying his flocks is still ravening; while his fangs are undrawn; while his power to do evil, remains. Great Britain went to war with Germany reluctantly, indignidly; reluctantly because she dreaded the dreadful suffering and loss; gladly because it was her duty to avenge an outrage, and redress a wrong upon a weaker nation, the forerunner, with success gained, of like European and world-wide outrage. She will fight to the bitter end for her scrap of paper, and for the disarming and subjection of the world's enemy; and her allies from imperial Russia, gallant France and conquering Italy, to bleeding Belgium and ensanguined Serbia, will wage the fight till the destruction of the destroyer of peace will make peace proposals something more than the impossible absurdity they are, with the end ungained for which we and Britain and her allies are fighting, and will continue to fight, till victory comes and the conditions of permanent peace are created.

CANADA'S CROP WEALTH.

We have been from time to time informed of the tremendous grain yield of the Canadian West. Figures, prepared with a keen regard for accuracy, that makes them of official authority, and published in another column, confirm previous reports. This later report puts the grain yield of the West—three provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta — at 693 million bushels, and its value at 443 million dollars. It is fortunate for Canada that it has its seeming West, as it is fortunate for the West as well as the east, that it has such splendid soil opulence. While the total value of the grain crop is not liquid, and will not come into general circulation as cash, even half of its value is an important item in national commercial and industrial prosperity. If money distributed helps prosperity, Canada is helped this year in a great way. With the billion of money distributed through the execution of war orders, there is, at least, a quarter of a billion derived from grain crops. Canada will have in circulation in the immediate future three-quarters of a billion dollars, or 94 dollars for every head of our population. The war struck us hard in the beginning, but it seems to be working out to the advantage of our material prosperity. Though the loss of so many valuable Canadian lives, and the assumption of so grave financial responsibilities, by the country, will not be offset by never so much prosperity and money gain, yet in the main we stand to gain by this terrible strife. Canada through the war, and the splendid share she has contributed, taken higher rank amongst the countries of the world. She has been strongly impressed by herself, and revealed to the world as a country with a great imperial spirit, as a country of unbroken loyalty to the ideals of imperial integrity and human freedom. If we call discharge of national duty national sacrifice, Canada has sacrificed much, but has been, and will in the long run, be the richer; and now, as in years to come, the boast "I am a Canadian," will have a grander, fuller meaning, than was the comparatively empty vaunt, "civis Romanus sum," in the mouth of a Roman, when Rome was in the zenith of her greatness.

PARTIAL VS. COMPLETE REPRESENTATION.

One cannot much wonder at the Kaiser seeking to justify his policy and course of action when one sees a newspaper justify the ward system in municipal affairs. But mutatis mutandis the two things are, very much the same in principle, trying to make wrong right. Nor is there just ground for the pharisaic claim that the municipality of Peterborough is better than other places, as is made by a local paper—we have no municipal scandals like Toronto and Hamilton. "Local civic government will compare favourably with that of any city in the Dominion."

That is the very point; the pith of the contention. It is because the general result of the present system of municipal management is defective, that leads The Examiner and others who regard these things dispassionately, to demand some improvement that will raise the general level of efficiency of civic government. The Examiner has made no "attack upon the board of aldermen." Its object is to secure by some means an improvement; and in the title of Peterborough it is suggested, that in the fault of more radical measures, such as the inefficiency of municipal government leads many aldermen, including the head of the board, to entertain in the form of a commission, we should make some advance by abandoning the ward system, for a general vote in the election of aldermen.

It is not to the point to discuss fully the relative merits of the two ways. It is enough to say that in addition to providing relatively, ineffective men, the ward system destroys at once the principle of representative and responsible government. By the ward system we elect collectively ten aldermen, two for each ward, so that one ward is represented by virtue of its vote by two men, while the rest of the city electors have no direct representation outside of the two men they elect in their ward. Ratepayers have a voice in the election of only two out of the ten members of the Council.

The ward system not only disfranchises the general body of electors, but it strikes at the root of the principle of responsible government. The essence of this is that representatives can be called to account for their actions. If representatives do their duty well, they can be approved, or if they default, they can be disciplined. But with the ward system a representative can only be dealt with by the comparatively few electors of his ward. No matter how bad a public servant he is, eight-tenths of the ratepayers have no voice—no opportunity to express the condemnation he deserves; and if he has ward pull enough, he can secure re-election and snap his fingers in the face of the general body of electors.

Not satisfied with upholding the ward system, which strikes at the root of two great British principles of government — representative and responsible government — the local paper must needs advocate the exotic un-British expedient, the referendum to displace principles of government great statesmen have wrought for, fought for, and brought by the shedding of blood. The referendum which reduces the great principle of self-government to ineffective absurdity, limited in its application to special matters, and impracticable in the application of general government, originated in Switzerland and also considerable favour in the United States where there is, as we now it, no real representative or responsible government. The Psychic and his cabinet have no right whatever—power, or as responsible to nobody, exercise as irresponsible power for their term of office, as the Kaiser of Germany, or as an alderman elected under the ward system.

We have the referendum now so far as it can be wisely applied in the matter of money by-laws, concrete questions of policy, etc.; but it is utterly unsuited in principle and applicability, to the general government of a municipality. There is an infinity of civic matters that cannot be reduced to the "yes" or "no" of a referendum.

The referendum as a substitute for representative and responsible government, would be no improvement of the present system, which it is universally admitted, is attended with unsatisfactory results. It is founded upon the assumption that the people know what they want. This is true only in a limited sense. They may do so upon matters of sentiment or policy, but in the matter of details, in technical matters, they have to trust to men qualified to deal with such matters, on the same principle that we employ a physician or a lawyer or an architect, to deal with matters that we cannot, from the nature of circumstances and conditions, do for ourselves; and we could as reasonably appeal to have any of these matters decided by referendum to us as to expect our qualified representatives to refer to the people the question of settling the outfall sewer or the Hydro-Electric question. We elect men to deal with such matters, and they will be better attended to if we take measures that will help us to select the best men — be put into a position to vote for the men to do our business, and cease to be disenfranchised in this matter as is especially done under the ward system of electing representatives.

WESTERN GRAIN CROP WORTH NEARLY A HALF BILLION

An estimate of the crops of the three western provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, has just been made by the North-West Dealers Association, as follows.

	Acres	Bushels per acre	Yield	Value
Wheat	12,500,000	24.8	307,000,000	$270,000,000.00
Oats	4,000,000	41.2	165,000,000	123,000,000.00
Barley	1,250,000	34	42,500,000	25,000,000.00
Flax	850,000	8.2	7,000,000	7,000,000.00
Total yield, bushels			693,000,000
Total value				$443,000,000.00

Stupendous as these figures are they are believed to be, if anything, an underestimate of the crops and the great value. The North West Grain Growers' association represents in its membership all the leading grain dealers in Western Canada, as well as practically all the members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, so that the estimate rests on the highest authority. No pains or expense were spared in gathering the necessary data.

In arriving at an estimate of the values, 80 cents was allowed for wheat, 40 cents for oats, 65 cents for barley, and $1.55 for flax. Distance from market and differences in grades were duly considered. The outstanding feature of the crop is that for the most part it is grading high.

An estimate of the wheat situation as it existed on November 6, shows further the enormous wealth still in the country:

WHEAT SITUATION—NOVEMBER 6.	Bushels
Wheat inspected to date.	103,296,800
In store country points ..	34,400,000
In transit not inspected..	9,600,000
Feed, seed and in country mills	26,000,000
Balance in farmers' hands yet to market	181,208,000

There thus is remaining in farmers' hands for delivery the enormous total of 191,208,000 bushels of wheat. Of the barley crop of the west not one-tenth has yet been marketed, and even a large percentage of flax is yet left in farmers' hands. There are about still in farmers' hands and awaiting export to the east or to British and European markets, millions of dollars worth of oats. At a conservative estimate there is still available for sale on the farms of the west wheat and flax of the value of $112,200,000.

It is not mere blatant optimism that sees in this condition a renewed era of prosperity for the Canadian West. The West this year has really harvested two crops in one, that with the high prices and prevailing good prices will go far to enable them to carry on. It is to be noted a marked improvement in commercial and industrial activity. The valuable crop returns have produced a more hopeful feeling. But aside from the crop factor, war orders and the provisioning and care of 10,000 troops for the winter season have contributed materially to the activities of the city. Labour is well employed. There is a distinctly better feeling in most lines of trade. Winnipeg enters upon the winter of 1915-16 with a feeling of justified optimism.

EXPECT TWO YEARS OF WAR.

French are Confident, Says Professor Basch, Trusting in the Army

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Professor Victor Basch who holds the Chair of Aesthetics at the Sorbonne, Paris, arrived yesterday from Bordeaux on the French liner Touraine, to attend the closing ceremonies of the Panama—Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, and to deliver a series of lectures on French literature, poetry and art at the principal American Universities.

"We have made mistakes," he said, speaking of France's part in the war, "and so has England; but to-day France is on a war footing, with men, arms, and ammunition. Her soldiers fight well because they are fed well, and they know that their women and children at home are fed, which gives them stout hearts to do their duty in the trenches before the enemy. Every woman gets 25 cents a day and 10 cents for a child, so that, with the money she earns herself, the family is better off than before the war.

"I am the Vice President of the Ligue de Droit de l'Homme, which was organized during the Dreyfus crisis in France, and our duty now is to seek out the families of the soldiers who have been killed and break the news to them as gently as possible. It is a very sad office to have to carry out, but I have been surprised at the fortitude displayed by the French women in their time of anguish. They all realize the men are dying that the young children at home may live and grow up in a free land.

"In France we expect the war to last another two years. Next Spring our army will be superior to that of Germany because it will be kept up to its full strength during the Winter months with well-fed and well-clothed soldiers."

At one of the recruiting camps some recruits were lying past through the riding tests. One man didn't know much about horses but trusted to luck to get through. He had not properly adjusted his saddle, and on mounting he swung sideways and all—right under the horse's body between its legs, where he was suspended for a few seconds.

"Hi, shorty!" yelled the non-com., in derision, "said what rider, do you?"

"Oh, no, sergeant," was the fearless answer, "that's to my taste for the Bunday action. Mister rather have it a few positions from the rear."

GLADYS VANDERBILT MOTHERS 50 ORPHANS

Has Turned Stephenyi Palace in Budapest Into a Popular Asylum.

LONDON, Thursday, Nov. 25.—Countess Szechenyi, formerly Gladys Vanderbilt, according to advices from Budapest, turned her palace on Andrassy Street into an orphanage, and there are now harbored 200 children under 10 years old whose fathers have been killed in the war. The orphans over 6 years of age go to school daily under charge of a governess and those under 6 receive kindergarten instruction from a male teacher.

A visit to the Szechenyi palace has become one of the popular features in Budapest, and the street often is filled with people looking on at the orphans playing in the gardens. Whenever the Countess appears the children surround her, calling her "Mother Gladys," and the crowds outside cheer.

BOYS FRAMED UP ROBBERY

Young Messenger Pretended He Was Tied Up and Gagged.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—An alleged assault and robbery at McGill University last Friday was a "frame up," admitted Leslie Fox, a sixteen-year-old messenger, who claimed he was tied up and robbed of over $100 on the stairs of the engineering building by two other boys, Samuel Isidore and Charles Bennett.

They met Fox in the engineering building, handed him the rope with which he was to be bound. Fox turned over to Isidore, who was the leader, the money in the pay envelopes, which was to be divided equally.

THE KNOCK OUT

HOW many rounds before the KNOCK OUT? That knock out blow, when "MR. OUT-OF-TOWN TRADE" gets his final "wallop" from HOME INTERESTS. Are WE in training for it? Here is a fight in which the interests of the entire country are ONE. It is ALL of us—you and me and OUR children and OUR neighbors, OUR town and OUR neighbouring towns—AGAINST this one evil. OUR champion is OURSELVES—All of us, welded together into ONE co-operative whole. WILL OUR man win? And when? It all depends on us. If we THINK as ONE MAN, act as ONE MAN, trade at home as ONE MAN, then we are in good training for that final knock out. In reality WE are not at the ring side. WE are IN the fight. In this picture we see OURSELVES, arrayed as HOME INTERESTS, triumphant.

Fighting in Serbia Dissimilar To That On the Western Front

French Headquarters Near Strumitza Station, Nov. 20.—With permission of General Sarrail, in command of the French troops in the Balkans, I have spent an interesting day at the French front on the Belaschitza Mountains, in the north part of the so-called Doiran enclave Serbia.

It is a picturesque corner. This is Serbia's Macedonian Ultima Thule. The higher mountains to the north are Bulgaria. The first radiance of the white dawn illuminates the Kruscha Mountains to the east, and the Payik Plateau in the south, and these are Greece.

A breakfast time General Baillond received me, and placed an officer and a motor car at the disposal of our small party, so that we might visit the French position to the right of the line in this part of the country. We sped along past camp after camp. Here were the French, there the British. The batteries were hidden in corners, and activity was everywhere. The place first to be visited was Hill 150, which the French took only a few days ago after a severe fight. The towerlike eminence was pockmarked with shell holes, and shrapnel bullets could be picked up by handfuls. From there we crossed the Bulgarian artillery fire zone to reach Hill 516, which dominates the surrounding region. "In single file!" the officer cried out to the little party, and just at that moment the enemy's shrapnel began to scream overhead and burst on the brow of the hill to the south. The aim was wide or the range too long, for the shells found a harmless billet on the vacant, bare hillside. Hill 516 was much as it was when the French, a few days ago, put the Bulgarians out of their position there. The hill having been thoroughly searched with heavy shell fire, the French took it with a splendid rush, and their losses were well under 150. The Bulgarians lost at the lowest estimate 500. One trench half a dozen yards long had fifty of the enemy's dead in it, and many dead were found on the top. Rifles were abondoned by the hundreds, cartridges by the thousand. The Bulgars save several times attempted to retake the hill, but have been easily repulsed.

A striking feature of this new campaign is its complete dissimilarity to that of France and Flanders. There are no lines of elaborate trenches. The latter consists of shallow dugouts at the brows of the hills and at any convenient spot. They are only a few yards long. They are broken and shrub-covered, the ground providing excellent cover. Little concealment is required, as the enemy is not provided with aeroplanes.

The French positions struck me as being very strong, though it should not be forgotten that the fighting in this campaign is as yet in the nature of manoeuvring for position until the definite advance begins.

I also visited the extreme right of the position here at Gradeeta. That village was carried a few days ago by a brilliant French dash, and strong positions beyond the village were taken and consolidated immediately after. During the last day or two the fighting on the Cerna front has been more severe than elsewhere. A fierce combat in the gorge of the River Kojec, a tributary of the Cerna, marked the furthest point of the French advance from the direction of Drenovo, on the right bank of the Cerna. The French, however hold a strong position in the gorge and at an important bridge head at Toysarta. This is the controlling point of communication between the strong French position on the heights or Archangel, facing Gradsko on the Saloniki-Nish Railway and dominating the route toward Veles. To-day light infantry is in possession of the gorge, which makes a strong position, though open to fire from the heights in possession of the enemy.

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, digestive trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis may develop. Mr. Alex. Macpherson, 19 Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using two boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

The following anecdote is told of General Gilman Marston, a once famous New Hampshire lawyer:

General Marston was attending court at a small country town when a young attorney made a motion that was denied by the court. The young man remonstrated against what he thought was the wrong ruling of the judge. So vehemently did he do so that he was fined $10 for contempt of court. An older attorney took the matter up and he was fined a similar sum. Still another who thought that he stood a little better with the judge endeavored to straighten the matter out, but he too enriched the coffers of the state by paying a "ten spot" for contempt.

General Marston was then seen to rise in his seat and advance to the clerk's desk. Taking his long pocket book from his pocket he took out two $10 bills and laid them on his desk.

"What is that for?" said the judge.

"I want you to distinctly understand," said the general, "that I have just twice as much contempt for this court as any man here, and I am paying for it."

SICKLY CHILDREN

Children are languishing all winter to-day that a reasonable supply of fat are they stronger? That's a grave question. So many pinched faces, dulled eyes and languid feeling make us wonder if they will ever grow into robust, healthy men and women.

If your children catch colds easily, are tired when rising, lack healthy color, or find studies difficult, give them Scott's Emulsion for one month to enrich their blood and restore the body-forces to healthy action.

Scott's Emulsion is used in private schools. It is not a "patent medicine", simply a highly concentrated oil-food, free from harmful drugs. It cannot harm; it improves blood; it benefits lungs and strengthens the system. Your druggist has it—refuse substitutes.

WAR'S MISERY MAKES LIFE DEARER THAN EVER, SAYS WRITER

Hospitals Tell Tales—Nursing and Doctoring Reach Higher Standards of Perfection.

It is sometimes said of the great war that it has cheapened the value of the individual life, says the London Daily Mail.

This is a piece of false reasoning. Its logical application would be that the doctor should take less care of his patient, the parent less care of the child, the community less care of the weak, charity less care of the unfortunate, and (to pursue the idea still logical) that the engine-driver for instance, should take less care of his living freight.

It is poor tribute to the countless heroic who are fighting for us to maintain that this thing for which they are fighting is of little worth. For what are they fighting for but for the lives, the freedom, and the futures of all us civilians? And what were most of them, a few short months ago, but civilians themselves. The gallantry and manhood of our country have gone forth to war not out of abstract patriotism so much as out of concrete affection for their women, their children, and their fellows who are too old to join them. With the greatest generosity that can shine in humanity they have gone forth to wager their own lives against lives that they love. It is just because the individual's life still remains as dear and hugged by him as it ever was—and as nature intended it to be—that the glory of the soldier's offering is so great. If you belittle the value of civilians life you obliquely belittle the value of the soldier's life and the cause for which he risks it.

Life Dearer Still.

It would be the worst of all endings of this great agony of the world if we are to accept the paradox that it has cheapened human life. It would be a revision to pure paganism. It would be Prussianism triumphant and the kaiserdom of humanity. The gage was flung down by Germany because the new paganism of Germany believes that the individual's life in only a pawn for the "state". The gage was taken up by the allies because the old Christianity of European civilization believes that the individual's life is dear to him, but that without freedom it would be worth little. If the losses of war are to dull us to the value of the life of the individual it will be a negative of all human progress. If we begin to cheapen life, we begin to cheapen the care of life. We would no longer be greatly troubled if, taking the law in their own hands, citizens lynched a suspect, if fire ravaged insufficiently guarded cities, if terrible accidents came of carelessness, if the hard struggle of the fittest trod the weak into the mire.

So far from having cheapened individual life, the greater of all wars will end in a far greater appraisment of it. "Children are stock," say the cottagers in the country villages, and by that they mean stock that carries dividends at maturity. So all we individuals have now more than ever become stock to the state, and it will be for the days of peace to see that the stock is not less cherished but more cherished.

The great scientist dying now during Armageddon is a still greater loss to his England than he would have been before August 1914; the young mother slain in a street accident is a greater loss to-day; the victim of preventable disease or of a railway accident, or those who fall in the hard-breathing race of toil—all of them are worth less than those lives in ships and trenches, they are yet human bullets for the state.

There is a great deal of cant talked about this unimportance of the single life is to valuable to the community, so precious and brief to the individual and irrecoverable when lost, that we are moved, and properly moved, to the grief that passes tears when we read those daily casualty lists and their record of ineffably notable oblation. Everyone has experienced how much more poignant that emotion becomes when, instead of a list of perhaps, three thousand you look in some illustrated paper on a page of photographs of perhaps only twenty of the slain. It is simply because they have immediately become individuals each of them an individual in features, characteristics and expressions, each of them more certainly still an individual in that strongest instinct of all nature, and sacrifice of which is their greatest glory, the instinct of the individual to survive, the spirit in the individual that makes life a possession of more joys than sorrows, more sweets than bitters, more pleasures than pains, a thing of eternal and congruing expectation, a thing of loveliness that he can hand to no heir or assignee, his own, and only his own.

Facing a New Future.

The war has not made human life worth less; it has made it worth more. It has made the individual's life worth more to the shrunk community that will need each individual life so much! it has made the individual's life worth more to himself. At the end of the war there will not be a man or woman in Europe who will not be like an ant put to work to repair a smashed nest. Already the life of every civilian individual has become a tool in the hand of the state or else why the National Registration? Life has become worth more to the individual because, for better or worse, every individual of us stands at the gate of an entirely new life. In August 1914 the history of the world went round a hairpin corner. We are beginning to realize that it was not an era but an aeon that ended in those days. The "optimist" and the "pessimist" agree like that, whatever befalls, our old world will never come back to us. We stand on a new planet and we confront a new existence.

A Smooth, White Skin That Defies Weather

During the coming months of biting winds and mildew cold you who would keep your skins smooth, white and velvety should turn your attention to mercolized wax. Nothing else will so effectively remove a chapped, roughened or discolored surface. By gradually absorbing the weather-beaten cuticle, the complexion is kept in perfect condition and even the beauty of expression appears more pronounced. If your skin be blotchy, pimply, freckled, coarse, sallow or over-red, why not shed it? One ounce of ordinary mercolized wax, to be had at any druggist's, will completely transform the most unsightly complexion in less than a fortnight. Use the wax nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.

If weather, age or poor health has marred your face with wrinkles, there's good news. You can quickly remove every line by using a lambskin, refreshing face lotion prepared by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saxolite in ½ pint witch hazel. The first smoother skin, the more youthful appearance, even after one application will astonish you.

A VALUABLE MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Mrs. G. Morgan, Huntsville, Ont., writes:—"I wish every mother and especially young mothers knew the value of Baby's Own Tablets. They have certainly worked wonders with our baby. She was troubled with colic and constipation and cried all the time, but the Tablets soon put her right and she is now a fine healthy child." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A drill sergeant was drilling the recruit squad in the use of the rifle. Everything went smoothly until blank cartridges were distributed. The recruits were instructed to load their pieces and stand at the "ready," and then the sergeant gave the command:

"Fire at will!"

Private Perilous was puzzled. He lowered his gun.

"Which one is Will?" he asked.—London Tit-Bits.

FORESTERS SWELL RANKS.

Big Percentage Has Gone to the Front.

Probably no other profession in this country is able to show such a percentage of enlisted men as that of forestry. A rough estimate made by one of the professors in the Faculty of Forestry, Toronto University places the number of foresters engaged in the practice of forestry or allied occupations at 93 and the number enlisted, to 20th October, at 39. Of 71 undergraduates in Canadian forest schools, 27 have enlisted.

In other words, of the Canadian foresters engaged in their profession 32 per cent. have enlisted, while of the undergraduates, 37 per cent. have enlisted. The two combined show an enlistment of 35 per cent., which, in view of the two per cent. enlistment for the entire country, is probably a greater percentage of enlistment than from any other profession in Canada except army men.

STATISTICS CONCERNING INFANT MORTALITY IN PETERBOROUGH

Average Number of Deaths From Enteritis Per Thirteen Years is 2.23 Based on an Assessed Population of 20,150—Extracts From the Report of Dr. George Clinton, District Officer of Health.

The thirty-third annual report of the Provincial Board of Health covering the work of the past year contains the appended statistics concerning the number of yearly deaths in Peterborough from enteritis. Considerable attention has been given to infant mortality by the local health department. One of the most serious losses under the general heading, "infant mortality," is that known as enteritis. This is a form of intestinal trouble common to infants.

The yearly deaths in Peterborough from enteritis per one hundred births registered between 1902-4 is as follows:

Assessed population—20,150.
Maximum year—4.6.
Minimum year—.23.
Average for thirteen years—2.23.
Average yearly deaths from all causes, 1902-12—247.
Average number of births for year, exclusive of still births registered, 1902-12, 367.
Births registered in 1914—470.

Dr. Clinton's Report.

In the same report, Dr. George Clinton, District Officer of Health for district No. 4, of which Peterborough city and county forms a part, has the following to say:

Summer Resorts.

During parts of July and August, accompanied by Dr. Bell, I visited all the summer resorts on Kawartha Lakes, Lake of Bays, Fairy Lake, Mary Lake, Peninsular Lake, Sparrow Lake, in all about 125 places.

All had fulfilled the requirements regarding sewage disposal, water supply, care of garbage, and screening windows, with the exception of three places, which were notified that unless required changes were made the places would be closed for 1915.

On three of the passenger boats on Muskoka Lakes they have tanks for sewage which is sterilized by steam before discharging into the Lake. The balance of the boats to be supplied with similar tanks for season of 1916. I understand that this is the first place in America where the problem of sewage disposall of steam boats is as complete as this system. All supply boats were notified that they would be required to have either chemical or dry earth closets.

All the hotels that had waterworks had septic tanks and sub-soil drainage. Others had dry earth closets. No closets were discharging direct into the lakes.

Slaughter Houses.

Many have been inspected, and very few are found to be up to the requirements. A number had to be condemned. Now that we have new regulaitons, and a copy given to each butcher, our work along this line should be easier, more especially if we can secure an active local sanitary inspector.

Scarlet Fever.

On January 6th made a special trip to Bethany to investigate a report of carelessness in looking after an epidemic of scarlet fever. On reaching there I found Mr. Preston, M.P.P., was secretary of the local Board of Health, and Dr. Clarke, of Pontypool, Medical Officer of Health.

Everything had been done to stamp out the disease, and the complainant acknowledged his report was only from rumours.

Roumanians Say Their Policy Is One of Self-Preservation

ATHENS, Nov. 24.—One of the last issues of the Balkan Courier, published by the Serbians at their former capital, Nish, contained a long explanation of Rumania's attitude, written by a prominent Rumanian statesman.

"When it comes to fighting Germany," writes the Rumanian, "we are bound to tell you frankly that we are too weak to defend you. I can well understand that you in Serbia are surprised at Rumanian's inactivity in the face of Bulgaria's attack on you. But our attitude is dictated by the circumstances which we have to face. If it were a matter of a conflict between Bulgaria and Serbia, we should not hesitate to take up arms on your side, as indeed, we did in 1913. Unhappily, this is not a war with Bulgaria only, but it is a question of participating in the terrific struggle between the Germanic powers and the Quadruple Entente. Serbia has not been attacked by Bulgaria but by Germany, with Bulgaria as a subordinate ally.

"None but the great Powers of the Quadruple Entente can face Germany and her allies. But when can we count with certainty on the effective intervention ... in the Balkan Peninsula of England and her allies? Nobody can answer this question. We all know what Germany wants, and what Germany will do. But does any one know what the Quadruple Entente will do? You know very well that the Quadruple Entente is not a harmonious whole. The agreement of Sept. 8, 1914 only binds its constituents not to conclude a separate peace; but no provision was made for a common and unified policy in conducting the war. In this respect each of the four powers, (England, France, Russia and Italy,) has retained its own freedom of action. The result is that ... in every new situation the Quadruple Entente is obliged to confer as to what policy shall be adopted and such negotiations, even though they produce perfect accord, inevitably mean delay.

"You will surely understand that in these circumstances every neutral country, and particularly Rumania (with her dangerous geographical position), must take care not to incur the hostility of Germany in return for the empty friendship of the Quadruple Entente.

"This is the secret of Rumania's attitude, and probably of that of Greece. You and others tell us that the final victory of the Quadruple Entente is certain. We do not doubt it, but it must be admitted that this victory is likely to be long delayed. The English, on their island, can afford to wait for victory; but Rumania cannot afford to incur the hostility of Germany and Austria while waiting for the end of the war, for in the intervening period she might easily suffer the fate of Belgium and share the destruction meted out to Serbia. You Serbians may say that this is a selfish policy. I assure you it is merely a policy of self-preservation. You cannot reasonably demand that we should expose our country to the terrible danger of making a merciless enemy without possessing a guarantee that his opponents will support us."

A telephone which is claimed to be explosion-proof and flame-proof has been invented in England for use in mines or anywhere that explosive gases or liquids are present.

RINGWORM COVERED CHILD'S FACE

Much Inflamed. Child Not Recognizable. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Free from Trouble.

Stanford, Que.—"A year ago my little boy, three years old, was afflicted with ringworm on the chin. After a time the eruption increased by half and was much inflamed. He was not recognizable. He scratched the eruption often which made it red. What troubled him was the itching.

"Then I sent for some Cuticura Soap and Ointment. At the end of a month he was free from the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. Alfred Trepanier, Mar. 10, 1914.

WALSH CASE WAS DISMISSED

Plaintiff Brought Action Against the Township of Asphodel

NORWOOD, Nov. 27.—The adjourned sitting of the Division Court case of John Walsh vs. the Township of Asphodel was held in the Council Chamber, Norwood, before His Honour Judge Huycke. Walsh's suit against the township was for a claim of $37.00 for refund of taxes and road work. A large number of witnesses were subpoenaed, including the township officials, Hastings bank manager, and others.

Mr. F. D. Kerr of Peterborough acted on behalf of the township. Mr. Walsh did not employ any lawyer.

The Judge, after hearing the evidence, dismissed the case with costs against the plaintiff for the second day's sitting. The Township was charged with the costs of the first day's sitting.

REGULAR MEETING OF THE W. C. T. U.

The regular monthly meeting of the local W.C.T.U. was held on Friday afternoon in the parlour of the Y.W.C.A. There was a fair attendance.

Mrs. Whalley, the president, occupied the chair, and after devotional exercises, led by Mrs. Mathieson, the routine business was taken up.

Mrs. Knapman presented a very thoughtful and practical paper re the lumber camp and missionary work. Owing to ill-health, the Union's noble pioneer missionary, Miss Agnes Sproule, has been laid aside for a year after having given seventeen long, faithful years of service to our lumbermen in the wilds of the far north. It is earnestly hoped that she wonderful work among these men.

The W.C.T.U. are at present supporting two chaplains at the Front, and a third, the son of Mr. Archibald, Toronto's Chief of Police, is being fitted for this worthy work.

An important feature of the work recently was the organizing of a young people's branch to be known as "The Willard Y.", in honour of the beloved and honoured Frances Willard.

These young people will hold a social evening on Tuesday, November 30th, at the home of one of its members, Miss Jean Anderson, 156 Douro Street, East City, and it is earnestly hoped that all who can will avail themselves of this privilege of encouraging the young friends of the Loyal Temperance Legion by being present, and thereby help to make this young organization a splendid success.

MURDER MYSTERY IN ST. LOUIS

Wife and Policeman Killed—Police Chief Husband Wounded.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 27.—In William street, assistant chief of police of Madison, Ill., known as the biggest policeman in Illinois, rests, the police believe, the power to clear up the mystery of the death of his estranged wife and Patrolman Charles Barmeier of the St. Louis police department, whose bodies were found in an alley here last night, each shot through the heart. Street, with a bullet wound in the right leg, was arrested a few hours later, but denied any shooting.

Street had quarrelled with his wife in a wine room and within a block of Mrs. Street's home. Street took his wife into an alley. Barmeier followed them, and just as the trio were out of sight of witnesses, five shots were heard.

Barmeier and Mrs. Street were found within a few feet of each other. By the policeman was his revolver with two shells discharged. On Street was found a revolver with one chamber empty, but this, he pointed out, was a precautionary measure adopted by many policemen to prevent explosion of the weapon should it fall. His revolver bore no powder marks and seemed not to have been fired recently. Street said that while he was talking to his wife someone called out, "Now I've got you" and fired. Street said he ran without returning the fire. Street is six feet five inches in height and weighs more than 200 pounds.

ESTATE OF LATE THOS. E. BODDY

Former Peterboro Agent for C. P. R. Left Estate to Only Child

The estate comprises $400 mortgages, $185 cash, and $100 personal effects. Deceased made no will, and his daughter has applied for letters of administration.

THE BURDEN OF AGE.

The kidneys seem to be about the first organs to wear out and fail to properly perform their work. The result is weak, aching back, rheumatic pains and failing eyesight. Many people of advanced years have recovered health and comfort by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They ensure the healthful action of liver, kidneys and bowels.

HUGE SHELL ORDER COMING

Proposals Under Way Involve Great Extension of Work of Making Munitions for Allies.

OTTAWA, Nov. 27.—Proposals now under way involve a very large extension of the work of the Canadian Munitions Committee. The baking institutions are to be called upon to join the factories and have all the orders financed by Canada, while a large proportion of Russian and French, as well as British, shell orders are expected to be secured for Canada.

The shell orders given in prospect amount to about $350,000,000. This is likely to be very greatly increased.

Heretofore all payments have been made from British funds. Hereafter the business is to be financed in Canada, British bills of exchange being taken by the Canadian banks.

Better Than Wheat Crops.

Messrs. Hichens and Brand, who recently came to Canada as representatives of the Right Hon. Lloyd-George, are now working on the plans for extending the scope of the committee's operations to include orders from all the Allies, and it is figured out that there will be a tremendous development in the munitions business.

The shell orders this year promise to bring more money to the country than would come from the wheat crop.

MINSTREL SHOW BY T. A. S. WAS FINE SUCCESS

Played to Capacity Crowd and Many Could Not Gain Admittance—Smooth Performance and Real Talent

WITHOUT A HITCH

The boys of St. Peter's T.A.S. assisted by several of the older members, scored another minstrel success in the entertainment they staged last night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum. It was a finished performance and pleased the large audience present. The songs were well chosen and were placed with capable soloists. The chorus was strong and nicely balanced.

Throughout the first part was a good line of jokes by the men in black and, altogether this section was bright, snappy and ably handled. The orchestra proved a valuable aid to the evening's concert. Their selections were pleasingly rendered, and Miss Gorman's accompaniments were most acceptable. Mr. Vincent McCabe made a fine impression as interlocutor, and made the most of his opportunities. Messrs. George Lynch and James O'Brien had a prominent part in the programme and made a hit with their monologues and jokes. The dancing specialties were uniformly good.

While it is scarcely fair to the other boys who without exception got their songs across in fine style, to single out individuals, it might be remarked that Mr. Ed. Bartley and Mr. Ed. Hanrahan sang particularly well. The quartette also deserves a reference. Mr. Houlihan, Mr. Quinlan and the Murty brothers provided an exceptionally good display of dancing only surpassed by Mr. Geo. Lynch's stunts. Mr. Will Moher's exemplification of modern terpsichore in connection with his song was very gracefully done. In fact the whole programme was of uniform standard with talent approaching professional calibre. Only a few of the boys who appeared last night were in the concerts of several years ago, indicating the successful coaching of the older members who lend their assistance.

The Programme.

Opening Chorus—"Night Time Down in Dixie Land"—Solo, V. McCabe

Quartette selections — Will Moher Jos. Minnecola, Ed. Hanrahan and Ed. Bartley.
Waltz clog—Sam Houlihan.
Monologue—Jas. O'Brien.
Buck and wing—Murty Brothers.
Closing Chorus.

The endmen were: S. Houlihan, J. O'Brien, W. Moher, F. Grady, M. Murty, and Ed. Murty.

The orchestra was composed of the following: Piano, Miss Marion Gorman; cornet, Jos. Minnicola; trombone, D. Memmo; 1st violin, V. McCabe; 2nd violins, J. McCabe and J. Condon; drums, Frank Lynch.

LITERARY RAMBLES

A few days ago, whilst engaged in sorting some private papers, I came across an old tin box, containing a heterogeneous collection of receipts, letters, cancelled insurance policies and other useless documents. Delving among these, and with little thought of discovering anything of more than negative value, my hand brought to the surface an ancient scrap-book. I recognized it at once as one of my very oldest possessions. It was forty years since I had pasted anything into its pages and fully twenty since I had even opened it. Strange as it may appear, I did not welcome its re-appearance with any degree of warmth. Knowledge of much of its contents had long since faded from my memory, but certain amateur efforts at versifying with which I had embellished its blank spaces certainly had not. I feared to face them and it was with an effort amounting to positive pain that I at last forced myself to gaze once more upon the outpourings of my boyish muse. I have no intention whatever of inflicting any of these gems of poesy upon my readers. They are doing us harm where they are and their publication could not possibly add one iota to the gaiety of nations or lessen by one drop the misery with which the world is now brimming over. But there was much that was of interest in the printed matter and I offer herewith a few odd items for the delectation of my readers.

The first thing that strikes the eye is an account of a steam yacht built by the English firm of Thorneycroft & Co. for Baroness Rothschild, for her use on Lake Geneva. "This vessel," the item reads, "although only 91 ft. long by 13 1-2 beam, just large enough to contain the accommodation for a day's comfortable cruising on the lake, has attained and kept up a speed greater than that of any ocean steamer afloat, and only equalled perhaps, by some of the largest American steamers." This paragraph gives a tolerable insight into the advance made in steam navigation since that time, for the article goes on to say that the speed guaranteed was 18 English statute miles per hour in a run of two hours. To do the yacht justice her actual time was 43 miles in one hour and forty eight minutes. She was thought a wonder in those days.

The next item we come to concerns the early ritualistic troubles of the Church of England. One of those who suffered for standing firm to his religious convictions was a Mr. Tooth, rector of Hatcham in Surrey. Mr. Tooth was placed in durance vile for contempt of the Court of Arches. It is curious to note how the general outlook has changed in forty years. To-day the very practices for which Mr. Tooth suffered imprisonment are widely in vogue and are engaged in without comment. For a time he was the most talked of man in England. Someone made merry at his expense in the following high class quatrain.

"If Hatcham's Tooth sticks to his jaw
And drives the Church distracted,
Will not be stopped or obey the law
That Tooth must be extracted."

And Punch waxed humorous as follows: The sympathy of the English Church Union with Mr. Tooth may be heightened by a feeling peculiar to Englishmen—admiration of an offender who shows himself game. Undoubtedly the contemner of the Court of Arches is game to the back-bone, but the game is too high."

Turning over a page we come to a graphic account of the grand Durbar held at Delhi on the occasion of the proclamation of Queen Victoria as Empress of India. The part dealing with the reception of the Khan of Kholat and his followers, who had never till then seen steamboats, railways or telegraphs, makes instructive reading. The authorities seem to have had considerable trouble in keeping the Khan and his suite from pocketing the knives and forks which were laid for them at their meals.

Then there is a long and very graphic description of service at St. Helena, by an ex-soldier, who was one of the guardians of the Emperor Napoleon. A most interesting account is given of Napoleon's last days, of the preparations made for his internment and of the funeral itself. Sir Hudson Lowe, the governor of the island, has been held up so often in an unflattering light as a man of harsh character that it is refreshing in regard to his behaviour to his men. He wasn't a bad gentleman; a very kind, nice man. I've seen him many a time with his lady and two daughters; nice young ladies they were. They used to keep a carriage drawn by two bullocks. I've seen 'em come to the church, which was near Boney's quarters. He would lean on his pew door and he would never sit down till he had everyone—slaves and all—accommodated with seats. If he saw a bare-footed man —a slave without a seat, he would beckon to him and see him seated." "Boney was the fattest man I ever saw—the calves of his legs and his cheeks too; you might see them shake as he was walking and yet he had not the ruddy, healthy look our people have. He would carry a stick about as thick as my walking stick with an iron spud at the end and if he saw a weed he would always spud it up anywhere where he went." This man was one of the bearers at Napoleon's funeral.

Next we have a full description of the State entry of the Duke of Marlborough into Dublin as Viceroy of Ireland. One sentence in it shows how fast time flies. "There came over with His Grace's family his grandson, Master Winston Spencer Churchill, who was held up in his nurse's arms and cheered by the people."

Two or three pages are taken up with an account of the then fresh discoveries of Dr. Schliemann at Mycenae, in Greece. Mycenae is one of the most ancient places in Greece and these discoveries of Dr. Schliemann threw a flood of light upon the earliest Greek art, particularly in the department of pottery. They were the first important finds of their class; a class which has since been recognized in many ancient Greek settlements and now goes by the name of Mycenean. Dr. Schliemann made a present of his treasure trove to the Greek nation and most of the objects found are now in the museum at Athens.

Many other items in this little scrap book might be commented on but space forbids. Enough perhaps has been written to show how very interesting, instructive and valuable a scrap-book may be made, especially so if the items contained therein are properly tabulated and indexed.
